18. Identification of the elders as divine beings versus humans is not essential to identifying the scene as a divine council session. Identification of the elders with the people of God is not erased if the elders are divine beings since the purpose of the council assembly is the final phase of God's triumph on earth and the fact that God's original intent was to include humans in his council rule. Heaven and earth, divinity and humanity, are not easily separable when it comes to the divine council and God's plan for humanity.

5. As I noted in chapter 28 and briefly discuss in chapter 37, the powers of darkness were not aware of God's plan of salvation. They, like Satan in the wilderness, knew that Yahweh's messiah had come and that at least one purpose was the repatriation of the nations of the world under Yahweh's dominion. But they did not discern that the death of the messiah was the lynchpin to the plan, The death, burial, and resurrection of the messiah would result in the reconstitution of God's family as one body united to Christ, the Church, which was "circumcision neutral" and not tied to physical descent from Abraham.

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3).

The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2 Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^{B} version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug ("darkness"), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as "lawless ones" (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila ("giant") to translate Hebrew kesil ("Orion"). See L. Zalcman, "Orion," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, "Pleiades," in ibid., 657–58.

1. Most critical scholars believe Israel's faith evolved from polytheism and contend that Yahweh and Elyon (Most High) are separate deities in Deut 32:8–9. Though some critical evangelical scholars would file that idea under "progressive revelation," I reject the evolutionary idea. For a discussion of the issue, see Michael S. Heiser, “Does Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible Demonstrate an Evolution from Polytheism to Monotheism in Israelite Religion?” Journal for the Evangelical Study of the Old Testament 1.1 (2012): 1–24.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word “angel” was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn’t coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos (“god”) to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, “Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint,” Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, “Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls,” Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

8. This placement is often due to a preconceived notion of an Israelite evolution out of polytheism to monotheism, which allows Psa 82 to be cast as a “killing off” of the gods. I reject the evolutionary idea for a number of reasons. The presumption is flawed on several levels and results in a forced reading of Psa 82 and Deut 32:8–9. See Michael S. Heiser, “Does Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible Demonstrate an Evolution from Polytheism to Monotheism in Israelite Religion?” Journal for the Evangelical Study of the Old Testament 1.1 (2012): 1–24; Heiser, “Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls,” Tyndale Bulletin (forthcoming).

11. A good scholarly resource on this point is Guy Waters, The End of Deuteronomy in the Epistles of Paul (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 221; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2006). See especially footnote 12 on page 134, where the Waters provides a list of commentators that argue Paul has Deut 32:17 explicitly in view in 1 Cor 10:20. Proving that the elohim/shedim of Deut 32:17 are not merely idols does not depend on 1 Cor 10:20. Their spiritual identity is evident after a trip through Deuteronomy. In Deut 32:8–9 (reading v. 8 with the Dead Sea Scrolls, as do the ESV and NRSV), when the nations were divided at the tower of Babel incident, the nations were placed by God under the authority of lesser elohim, the "sons of God" (see chapter 14 of this book for more detail). The parallel passage to that text is Deut 4:19–20. There the gods "allotted" to the other nations while Yahweh took Israel are called the "host of heaven." Worshiping them is forbidden. This is the same language as in 1 Kgs 22:13–23, where the prophet Micaiah has a vision of a divine council meeting (see chapter 7 of this book). These members of the "host of heaven" are called elohim in Deut 17:2–5, where Israel is again warned to not worship them. Unfortunately, Deut 29:25 informs us that Israelites did worship elohim that were not "allotted" to them. These passages, along with Deut 32:17, interchange the following terms or phrases: host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim). This is where Paul got his theology. He isn't innovating—he knows Deuteronomy well.

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, “The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls,” Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, “Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel,” in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

3. When terms like "hell," "Hades," "heaven," "Sheol," etc. are understood in this context—they all speak of the afterlife and its spiritual geography—there is no need to criticize the Apostles' Creed or other early Christian teaching as being unbiblical. The Apostles' Creed says Jesus "descended to Hades." Jesus did not go to hell, the place of punishment. Rather, the point is that he went to the realm of the dead—he died.

13. As the next chapter and the companion website discuss, my view of the relationship between Gen 3, Ezek 28, and Isa 14 does not depend on this reconstruction. There are many points of intersection between the three chapters. Ultimately, the issue comes down to whether a backdrop of a divine rebellion or human rebellion has more comprehensive explanatory power for all the interconnections. My view is that the latter view, though the majority view in biblical scholarship, cannot account for certain connections and is therefore less coherent (see note 14 below).

15. One of the significant weaknesses of identifying the Edenic rebel lurking in the background of Ezek 28 as Adam is the relationship between Ezek 28 and Isa 14. Scholars acknowledge that the two passages have clear, undeniable conceptual overlaps—yet they do not posit Adam in Isa 14. Instead, they posit a divine rebellion tale as the conceptual source of Isaiah's portrait of the king of Babylon while positing Adam as the rebel behind Ezek 28. This divergence in approach to two passages that contain clear points of overlap is methodologically inconsistent. See the companion website for a discussion of how an ancient tale of divine rebellion accounts for all the elements in both passages.

1. The mashal of Isa 14 has several points of correlation with a Ugaritic divine council scene involving a lesser deity snubbing El. See Michael S. Heiser, “The Mythological Provenance of Isaiah 14:12–15: A Reconsideration of the Ugaritic Material,” Vetus Testamentum 51.3 (Fall 2001): 354–69. I noted at the end of the last chapter that it is inconsistent to see a human rebellion (Adam) as the backdrop for Ezek 28 but a divine rebellion behind Isa 14 when all scholars agree they are conceptually related. Among the treatments of Isa 14 that explore some sort of divine rebellion as the backdrop to Isa 14, see Joseph Jensen, “Helel Ben Shahar (Isaiah 14:12–15) in Bible and Tradition,” in Writing and Reading the Scroll of Isaiah: Studies of an Interpretive Tradition (Supplements to Vetus Testamentum 70; Leiden: Brill, 1997), 339–57; J. W. McKay, “Helel and the Dawn-Goddess: A Re-Examination of the Myth in Isaiah XIV 12–15,” Vetus Testamentum 20 (1970): 451–64; Peter C. Craigie, “Helel, Athtar and Phaethon (Jes 14 12–15),” Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 85 (1973): 223–25; W. S. Prinsloo, “Isaiah 14 12–15: Humiliation, Hubris, Humiliation,” Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 93.3 (1981): 432–38; Ulf Oldenburg, “Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion,” Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208. With such an abundance of possible correlations to a divine rebellion story as the backdrop of Isa 14, why look to Adam in Ezek 28, which is so closely related to Isa 14? The major recent work on this is Hugh R. Page, The Myth of Cosmic Rebellion: A Study of Its Reflexes in Ugaritic and Biblical Literature (Supplements to Vetus Testamentum 65; Leiden: Brill, 1996). My conclusions will differ at points with Page’s. He prefers the Keret Epic (which involves a human king) as the backdrop to Ezek 28. As I show on the companion website, all the evidences he draws for this proposal can also be found in myths of a rebellion of a divine being. In short, divine rebellion motifs account for all the elements in both biblical passages (which have clear touch-points to the nachash of Gen 3), but the same cannot be said for appeals to Adam or the Keret Epic. See the companion website for more detailed discussion on this point.

5. As I noted in chapter 28 and briefly discuss in chapter 37, the powers of darkness were not aware of God's plan of salvation. They, like Satan in the wilderness, knew that Yahweh's messiah had come and that at least one purpose was the repatriation of the nations of the world under Yahweh's dominion. But they did not discern that the death of the messiah was the lynchpin to the plan, The death, burial, and resurrection of the messiah would result in the reconstitution of God's family as one body united to Christ, the Church, which was "circumcision neutral" and not tied to physical descent from Abraham.

5. As I noted in chapter 28 and briefly discuss in chapter 37, the powers of darkness were not aware of God's plan of salvation. They, like Satan in the wilderness, knew that Yahweh's messiah had come and that at least one purpose was the repatriation of the nations of the world under Yahweh's dominion. But they did not discern that the death of the messiah was the lynchpin to the plan, The death, burial, and resurrection of the messiah would result in the reconstitution of God's family as one body united to Christ, the Church, which was "circumcision neutral" and not tied to physical descent from Abraham.

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

9. Given the connection made in the New Testament between the nachash (serpent) figure and the Hebrew word satan ("adversary") in Rev 12:9, the judicial role of the satan described in the Hebrew Bible (Job 1–2) becomes noteworthy. The role of the satan in Job involved roaming through the earth. In the context of the divine courtroom scene of Job 1–2, the ostensible purpose was to see, among humanity, who was (or wasn't) obedient to God. This precipitates God's words about Job. The satan issues a challenge to God's assessment, and perhaps to the justness of God's ordering of the world. Job becomes the focus of that challenge, as his integrity (and, by implication, God's) is questioned. Presuming this accusatorial role, when the New Testament writers have Satan expelled from heaven in Luke 10:17–18, the theological message would be that, with the commencement of the kingdom of God, Satan's role as "accuser of the brethren" is finished. God is no longer listening to challenges as to whom he deems righteous. That this phrase ("accuser of the brethren") occurs uniquely in Rev 12:10, right after the only verse in the New Testament that connects the terms Satan, devil, and dragon (cf. the serpent) cannot be coincidental. The inauguration of the kingdom of God by the messiah means that Satan, the lord of the dead, has no "legal" authority in God's court (council) by which to condemn any member of that kingdom. On Job 1–2 and the accuser, see Peggy Day, An Adversary in Heaven: sātān in the Hebrew Bible, Harvard Semitic Monographs 43 (Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1988), 79–83. For a scholarly treatment of the divine courtroom, tracing its constituent ideas from the Hebrew Bible through the Second Temple period on into the New Testament, see Meira Z. Kensky, Trying Man, Trying God, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 289, second series (Tübingen: Mohr-Siebeck, 2010).

6. Note that Rom 16:20 identifies the serpent as Satan. As I noted in chapter 8 when discussing the Hebrew word satan, the Old Testament never uses that term of the divine Edenic rebel. Since the term's meaning ("adversary") was conceptually appropriate, though, it became used as a label for God's original opposer after the Old Testament period.

9. Given the connection made in the New Testament between the nachash (serpent) figure and the Hebrew word satan ("adversary") in Rev 12:9, the judicial role of the satan described in the Hebrew Bible (Job 1–2) becomes noteworthy. The role of the satan in Job involved roaming through the earth. In the context of the divine courtroom scene of Job 1–2, the ostensible purpose was to see, among humanity, who was (or wasn't) obedient to God. This precipitates God's words about Job. The satan issues a challenge to God's assessment, and perhaps to the justness of God's ordering of the world. Job becomes the focus of that challenge, as his integrity (and, by implication, God's) is questioned. Presuming this accusatorial role, when the New Testament writers have Satan expelled from heaven in Luke 10:17–18, the theological message would be that, with the commencement of the kingdom of God, Satan's role as "accuser of the brethren" is finished. God is no longer listening to challenges as to whom he deems righteous. That this phrase ("accuser of the brethren") occurs uniquely in Rev 12:10, right after the only verse in the New Testament that connects the terms Satan, devil, and dragon (cf. the serpent) cannot be coincidental. The inauguration of the kingdom of God by the messiah means that Satan, the lord of the dead, has no "legal" authority in God's court (council) by which to condemn any member of that kingdom. On Job 1–2 and the accuser, see Peggy Day, An Adversary in Heaven: sātān in the Hebrew Bible, Harvard Semitic Monographs 43 (Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1988), 79–83. For a scholarly treatment of the divine courtroom, tracing its constituent ideas from the Hebrew Bible through the Second Temple period on into the New Testament, see Meira Z. Kensky, Trying Man, Trying God, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 289, second series (Tübingen: Mohr-Siebeck, 2010).

7. Recall that the Septuagint is the ancient Greek translation of the Old Testament. It was heavily used by the New Testament writers. Since the New Testament was composed in Greek, the majority of the quotations of the Old Testament by New Testament writers reflect the Septuagint, not the traditional Hebrew text.

6. Note that Rom 16:20 identifies the serpent as Satan. As I noted in chapter 8 when discussing the Hebrew word satan, the Old Testament never uses that term of the divine Edenic rebel. Since the term's meaning ("adversary") was conceptually appropriate, though, it became used as a label for God's original opposer after the Old Testament period.

1. Jesus affirmed that perspective. He accused the Pharisees of spilling the blood of all the prophets sent by God to his people, beginning with Abel, the righteous son of Adam (Luke 11:49–51). Why would Jesus reference Abel this way as among the prophets? Because he represented

God—of Adam and Eve's two children, he was the godly son. We might say prophets speak for God, but even more broadly than that, a prophet is someone God views or calls as his chief representative among the population of his human imagers. Adam, of course, was the original imager of God, and Abel stood in the stead of his father as one who walked with God, imaging his Maker on earth. Cain killed Abel, and Abel was replaced by Seth, who we are told was in the "likeness" and "image" of his father, Adam. Not coincidentally, that terminology comes from Gen 1:26. All humans are divine imagers, but in our fallen condition we often don't image God as we are able and as he intended. If the Bible teaches anything it's that people need divine intervention and divinely appointed leadership to avoid abusing our free will by following our own inclination to be our own master instead of remaining loyal to God.

7. It is interesting to note that the number of the nations listed in Gen 10 is seventy (see Nahum M. Sarna, Genesis [JPS Torah Commentary; Philadelphia: Jewish Publication Society, 1989], 69). This is precisely the number of the sons of El in the divine council at Ugarit. This number, in the context of the disinheritance of the nations, will surface later in our discussion of the Gospels.

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

7. The connection of the gods of the nations installed in Deut 32:8–9 with the demons (Hebrew: shedim) of Deut 32:17 can be traced by comparing Deut 32:8–9 with Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:25–26; 32:17. The interconnections of these passages is why Deuteronomy 32:17 refers to the shedim ("demons") as elohim ("gods"). Many English translations obscure all this, sometimes in very awkward ways that require ignoring grammar and syntax. See Michael S. Heiser, "Does Deuteronomy 32:17 Assume or Deny the Reality of Other Gods?" Bible Translator 59.3 (July 2008): 137–45. As noted in earlier chapters, the term shedim comes from Akkadian shadu, which describes a guardian spirit. The word choice is appropriate in Deut 32:17 given the context of Deut 32:8–9 and cosmic geography: the nations are the domains of other gods who are, in turn, their guardians. Instead of administering Yahweh's just rule in these nations under his authority, preparing them for their return to Yahweh via Israel and the terms of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3), these divine beings lured Yahweh's children to worship them and abused their charge (Psa 82).

9–10 See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3).

The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

4. In 2 Sam 6:1–2 (cf. 1 Sam 4:4; Jer 7:12) we read: "David again gathered all the chosen men in Israel, thirty thousand. David got up and went and all the people who were with him, from Baale-judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts [ʾ[a]shĕr-·niq·rā(ʾ) shem shem yhwh ts[e]bā·ʾot], upon which the cherubim sit."

The word shem (shem) appears twice in this verse—the ark is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts. The point is that the ark is identified with the Name, who is Yahweh, since Yahweh is the one seated on the cherubim. Many English translations obscure the Hebrew text here, rendering something like "which is called by the name of the LORD of hosts," which omits one of the occurrences of shem. The reason is that many scholars consider the dual occurrence of shem to be an accidental repetition by a scribe, what textual critics call dittography (see for example, P. Kyle McCarter Jr., II Samuel: A New Translation with Introduction, Notes, and Commentary, Anchor Yale Bible Commentary 9 [New Haven: Yale University Press, 1964, 2008], 163). While this is possible, there is no inherent interpretive problem with the Masoretic Text as it stands in view of the evidence for divine co-regency (the two Yahwehs) already noted. That the ark would be called the name is understandable, since the ark was a placeholder for the very presence of Yahweh, who is the name. The same association (note the anthropomorphic language) is conveyed in 2 Sam 7:2, where the ark is said to dwell in a tent.

7. As C. K. Barrett notes on Acts 5:40–42, "The Jews used shm [shem; "the name"] to avoid saying God; the Christians took this up for Jesus; therefore they thought of Jesus as God" (C. K. Barrett, A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles; The Acts of the Apostles, vol. 1 [Edinburgh: T&T Clark International, 2004], 301).

9. Some Bible maps have "Gether" near India, but this is hardly correct. As David Baker notes in the Anchor Bible Dictionary, "According to the Table of Nations (Gen 10:23), Gether is the son of Aram, the forefather of the Arameans or Syrians, who himself was the son of Shem, son of Noah. He and his descendants are thus Semitic. The corresponding genealogy in 1 Chr 1:17 places Gether as a son of Shem and brother of Aram. This is probably due to a simple copying error by an early scribe. His eye slipped from the first to the second of two lines which ended with the same word, 'Aram,' leading to the loss of the original line 'the sons of Aram (are)' which is still found in Genesis. Little else is known about the identity or geographical location of Gether, although the association with Aram would suggest an Aramean city" (see David W. Baker, "Gether [Person]," in The Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary [ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992], 997).

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

9. This is the central point of the shema, the creed of ancient Israel (Deut 6:4). Despite its familiarity and centrality in Old Testament theology, the shema is one of the most notoriously difficult verses in the Bible to translate. See the companion website for discussion.

2. Only one passage in the New Testament suggests a differentiation between body, soul, and spirit: 1 Thess 5:23. Since the Old Testament clearly sees two parts to humans (body and soul/spirit; material and immaterial), it is best to interpret this single verse the same way for theological consistency. Many scholars do not consider soul and spirit in this verse as discrete, separate items. This verse is similar to the shema (Deut 6:4; cf. Matt 22:37; Mark 12:29–30), which tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, and might. The point is totality, not that heart, soul, might (and mind in the gospel references) are separable. The Old Testament uses both nephesh and ruach to describe the source of these inner parts. Totality is also the point of Heb 4:12 (which actually uses four items, not three).

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, "Bashan," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, "Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68," in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the "serpentine" connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, "the gates of hell." We'll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous "gates of hell" statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2 Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^{B} version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug ("darkness"), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as "lawless ones" (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila ("giant") to translate Hebrew kesil ("Orion"). See L. Zalcman, "Orion," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, "Pleiades," in ibid., 657–58.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

11. Reconciling the first view with what 2 Pet 2:4–10 and Jude 6–7 say about "the angels who sinned" is straightforward, especially given the sexual nature of the events of Sodom and Gomorrah, which both writers use as analogous situations. The second approach doesn't question the sexual language; it considers it euphemistic. Peter and Jude's inclusion of sexual language is no surprise—it is present in the Old Testament. This approach would argue that there is no reason to insist that Peter and Jude did not also consider it euphemistic. In any respect, what cannot be coherently denied is that Peter and Jude have divine beings as the offenders, not mere humans.

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg 5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, "Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah," Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, "Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job," Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

7. David later removed it during the time of civil unrest caused by his son Absalom (2 Sam 15:24–25). In the meantime, the place of sacrifice had become Gibeon (1 Kgs 3:4), where, we are told, an ancient "tent of meeting" of Moses had been moved (2 Chr 1:3 ESV). In Solomon's day, Gibeon was the high place of worship. The "tent of meeting" at Gibeon was actually the Mosaic tabernacle, since sacrifices were offered there (something that was not true of the tent of meeting in Moses' day). This separation of the ark at Jerusalem and the tabernacle tent at Gibeon was the situation during the time of Solomon as well, prior to Solomon's construction of the temple.

10. See R. E. Friedman, "Tabernacle," in Anchor Bible Dictionary (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 6:292–300;

Friedman, “The Tabernacle in the Temple,” Biblical Archaeologist 43 (1980): 241–48. Friedman seeks to incorporate more of the tabernacle structure within the temple than the holy of holies, an idea that has drawn sharp criticism (see Victor Avigdor Hurowitz, “The Form and Fate of the Tabernacle: Reflections on a Recent Proposal,” Jewish Quarterly Review 86.1–2 [July–October 1995], 127–51). My position is only that it is coherent to see the tented holy of holies from the tabernacle within the holy of holies in Solomon’s temple. According to Exod 38–39, the tented area of the tabernacle (holy place and holy of holies) measured ten cubits wide and thirty cubits long (15 feet by 45 feet). The holy of holies was a ten-cubit cube area. The corresponding spaces in Solomon’s temple were larger: sixty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high (1 Kgs 6:2), with the holy of holies a twenty-cubit cube. In terms of spacing, there is no obstacle to having the tented holy of holies from the desert tabernacle within the innermost sanctum of the temple. In my view, this explains some of the “tent” language associated with the temple (see the following note). The cherubim throne graphic is from Martin Metzger, Königsthron und Gottesthron: Thronformen und Throndarstellungen in Ägypten und im Vorderen Orient im dritten und zweiten Jahrtausend vor Christus und deren Bedeutung für das Verständis von Aussagen über den Thron im Alten Testament (Kevelaer: Butzon and Bercker, 1985).

12. Some Jewish interpreters say the plural “thrones” refers to only two thrones—that of the God of Israel and the other for King David, whom they identify with the Son of Man in this passage. There are several problems with that view, namely the passage’s clear literary parallels to divine council scenes from the Ugaritic Baal Cycle and the fact that the Son of Man neither takes a seat nor has one offered to him when he approaches the Ancient of Days. See the discussion in chapter 29. It also cannot be argued that the plural seats are for human Jewish elders, since the court/council in Dan 7 is clearly in heaven and is making a decision for the human holy people at the time when the kingdom of the Son of Man is established; cf. Dan 7:22. See the sixth chapter (“The Divine Council in the book of Daniel”) in Michael S. Heiser, “The Divine Council in Late Canonical and Non-Canonical Second Temple Jewish Literature," (PhD diss., University of Wisconsin–Madison, 2004). The dissertation is available on the companion website.

1. I am aware that the terms nephilim and gibborim could be distinguished, and that certain Jewish texts and translations take that route (see Stuckenbruck, “The ‘Angels’ and ‘Giants’ of Genesis 6:1–4 in Second and Third Century BCE Jewish Interpretation: Reflections on the Posture of Early Apocalyptic Traditions,” Dead Sea Discoveries 7.3 [2000]: 354–77, and Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim: Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7, Ilex Foundation; Center for Hellenic Studies [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013]). Viewing the terms as labels for one group is also grammatically and syntactically viable. That option is preferable, and really the only coherent choice, given the Mesopotamian context for Gen 6:1–4 we’ve discussed earlier. The apkallus were both giant in stature and the culture heroes who transmitted the sacred divine knowledge that resulted in civilization. It makes sense to see the biblical writer, as he created a polemic against them, using both terms of one group.

2. As we saw earlier (ch. 10), the creaturely portrayal is consistent with the use of the term cherub to describe the Edenic enemy. Cherubim were divine creaturely guardians of the God’s throne. A human portrayal of the divine beings (“sons of God”) in Genesis 6 is also required because of the parallel to and polemic against the Mesopotamian apkallus (see ch. 13). The discussion in this and the next two chapters will introduce readers to a second interpretive approach to Genesis 6:1–4 that does not require literal divine-human cohabitation, but nevertheless does require a supernatural view of the sons of God. This alternative perspective is consistent with understanding the human offspring as the focus of Gen 6:1–4 while understanding offspring of the creaturely nachash metaphorically.

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, “Bashan,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, “Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68," in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the "serpentine" connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, "the gates of hell." We'll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous "gates of hell" statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

8. The Septuagint renders the Hebrew beney elohim ("sons of God") as "angels." For full discussion, see Michael S. Heiser, "Deuteronomy 32:8 and the Sons of God," Bibliotheca Sacra 158 (January–March 2001): 52–74.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, “Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls,” Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

2. As we saw earlier (ch. 10), the creaturely portrayal is consistent with the use of the term cherub to describe the Edenic enemy. Cherubim were divine creaturely guardians of the God’s throne. A human portrayal of the divine beings (“sons of God”) in Genesis 6 is also required because of the parallel to and polemic against the Mesopotamian apkallus (see ch. 13). The discussion in this and the next two chapters will introduce readers to a second interpretive approach to Genesis 6:1–4 that does not require literal divine-human cohabitation, but nevertheless does require a supernatural view of the sons of God. This alternative perspective is consistent with understanding the human offspring as the focus of Gen 6:1–4 while understanding offspring of the creaturely nachash metaphorically.

16. The well-known texts of 1 Enoch have the offenders of Gen 6 as divine (the sons of God are called Watchers in 1 Enoch, a term that, as our next chapter shows, derives from a Mesopotamian context) and their offspring as giants. First Enoch connects this to demonology in that, when a giant was killed, its “Watcher spirit” is referred to as a demon. Hence in Gen 6 divine-human cohabitation is the answer to where demons come from in Second Temple Jewish thinking. On that subject, see Reed, Fallen Angels; Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). There are several other Second Temple Jewish texts that take the same perspective (and none that oppose it to my knowledge). For instance, several Dead Sea Scrolls refer to demons as “bastard spirits” (4Q510 [=4QShir^{a}] frag. 1:5; 4Q511 [=4QShir^{b}] frag. 35:7; 4Q204 [=4QEnoch^{c} ar], Col V:2–3). Another scroll (11QapocPsa[=11Q11] refers to demons in Col II:3 and then later calls the demons “offspring of man and the seed of the holy ones” (Col V:6). See the companion website for those texts. This is a clear indication of how Second Temple Jews understood Gen 6:1–4, which was in turn based on a grasp of the original polemic context of Gen 6:1–4. See chapter 13 for more on that context. On the Qumran scrolls mentioned above, see Loren T. Stuckenbruck, "The 'Angels' and 'Giants' of Genesis 6:1–4 in Second and Third Century BCE Jewish Interpretation: Reflections on the Posture of Early Apocalyptic Traditions," Dead Sea Discoveries 7.3 (2000): 354–77; Ida Fröhlich, "Theology and Demonology in Qumran Texts," Henoch 32.1 (2010):101–128; Hermann Lichtenberger, "Spirits and Demons in the Dead Sea Scrolls," in The Holy Spirit and Christian Origins: Essays in Honor of James D. G. Dunn (ed. James D. G. Dunn, Graham Stanton, Bruce W. Longenecker, and Stephen C. Barton; Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 2004), 22–40.

16–17 As was the case with the Septuagint, the Greek manuscripts of 1 Enoch use gigas ("giant") when describing the offspring of the Watchers. See 1 Enoch 7:2, 4; 9:9.

20–21 The quandary of how anyone, including the giants, had survived the flood led some Jewish writers to speculate that Noah himself had been fathered by a Watcher. One Dead Sea scroll, The Genesis Apocryphon, has Noah's father challenging his wife, the mother of Noah, about whether her pregnancy was the work of one of the Watchers (Genesis Apocryphon [=1QapGen] 1:1–5:27). She vehemently denies the charge. See chapter 23 for a discussion of Nephilim after the flood.

17. I say "other" since all ancient Jewish traditions, including 2 Peter and Jude in the New Testament, have the offending sons of God (also called Watchers) imprisoned in the underworld for what they did until the end of days. Both supernaturalist approaches are also workable with this possible translation, as it would suggest a repetition of whatever intervention event one envisions for producing the Nephilim of Gen 6:1–4.

18. Recall that in 1 Enoch the term used for the divine "sons of God" was "Watchers" (see chs. 12–13).

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and

Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has

God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

16. The well-known texts of 1 Enoch have the offenders of Gen 6 as divine (the sons of God are called Watchers in 1 Enoch, a term that, as our next chapter shows, derives from a Mesopotamian context) and their offspring as giants. First Enoch connects this to demonology in that, when a giant was killed, its "Watcher spirit" is referred to as a demon. Hence in Gen 6 divine-human cohabitation is the answer to where demons come from in Second Temple Jewish thinking. On that subject, see Reed, Fallen Angels; Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). There are several other Second Temple Jewish texts that take the same perspective (and none that oppose it to my knowledge). For instance, several Dead Sea Scrolls refer to demons as "bastard spirits" (4Q510 [=4QShir^{a}] frag. 1:5; 4Q511 [=4QShir^{b}] frag. 35:7; 4Q204 [=4QEnoch^{c} ar], Col V:2–3). Another scroll (11QapocPsa[=11Q11] refers to demons in Col II:3 and then later calls the demons "offspring of man and the seed of the holy ones" (Col V:6). See the companion website for those texts. This is a clear indication of how Second Temple Jews understood Gen 6:1–4, which was in turn based on a grasp of the original polemic context of Gen 6:1–4. See chapter 13 for more on that context. On the Qumran scrolls mentioned above, see Loren T. Stuckenbruck, "The 'Angels' and 'Giants' of Genesis 6:1–4 in Second and Third Century BCE Jewish Interpretation: Reflections on the Posture of Early Apocalyptic Traditions," Dead Sea Discoveries 7.3 (2000): 354–77; Ida Fröhlich, "Theology and Demonology in Qumran Texts," Henoch 32.1 (2010):101–128; Hermann Lichtenberger, "Spirits and Demons in the Dead Sea Scrolls," in The Holy Spirit and Christian Origins: Essays in Honor of James D. G. Dunn (ed. James D. G. Dunn, Graham Stanton, Bruce W. Longenecker, and Stephen C. Barton; Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 2004), 22–40.

3. Recall that the New Testament language for divine beings is less hierarchically precise than the Old Testament. As we'll see in chapter 37, while Paul uses terms for divine beings that reflect geographical authority (e.g., principalities and powers), most New Testament vocabulary is simplified. Good divine beings are predominantly referred to with angelos ("angel"), whereas the terms of choice for evil ones are daimon and daimonion. All three of these terms are actually neutral (neither good nor evil) in wider Greek usage. They refer to, respectively, "messengers" and "spirit beings." The idea of a divine messenger presumes a being sent by God for good purposes, and so angelos became the common term for benevolent spirits. This is not to suggest, however, that Jewish theology in the Hellenistic era was trying to rid itself of terms like Hebrew (plural) elohim or elim ("gods") or Greek theoi. Jewish texts in both Hebrew and Greek before and during the first century utilize this vocabulary as well. In addition to the resources in chapter 37, see Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65:1 (2014): 85–100; R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82, 1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39.

3. As we'll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to "angels" being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton's Paradise Lost. References to "angels that sinned" look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like "evil spirits" either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly, Dale Martin's recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today's Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel's Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, "When Did Angels Become Demons?" Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

24. This is not to exclude a relationship of the divine powers to human foes of Israel and Yahweh. As we've seen with passages like Dan 7:20–28; Zech 14:1–5; and Isa 24:21–23, the Bible envisions conflict where human and divine involvement overlap. This perspective is of course prominent in the Dead Sea Scrolls, particularly in The War Scroll (1QM). Due to exaggerations and fantastic portrayals of spiritual warfare in popular Christianity and fiction, scholars are often hesitant to emphasize the supernatural element of Dan 10 and other passages. For example, see the discussion in David E. Stevens, "Daniel 10 and the Notion of Territorial Spirits," Bibliotheca Sacra 157 (2000): 410–31.

5. Jas 1:17 calls God "the Father of lights," a phrase that points to God as the creator of celestial objects and all other heavenly beings. Like the cultures of the wider ancient world, Jewish thinking held that the stars were heavenly beings. The idea is found in the Old Testament, where the sons of God are metaphorically referred to as "the stars of God" (Job 38:7). James' description of God as the "Father of lights" therefore speaks of God as the creator of all heavenly beings. He alone is uncreated—they are created and, therefore, inferior. See P. W. van der Horst, "Father of the Lights," Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 328–29. The fact that, in biblical theology, there can by definition be only one uncreated being in turn means that all other elohim inhabitants of the spiritual realm are made of something. We often mistake invisibility with nonmateriality, but that is scientifically (materially) not the case.

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

2. As we saw earlier (ch. 10), the creaturely portrayal is consistent with the use of the term cherub to describe the Edenic enemy. Cherubim were divine creaturely guardians of the God's throne. A human portrayal of the divine beings ("sons of God") in Genesis 6 is also required because of the parallel to and polemic against the Mesopotamian apkallus (see ch. 13). The discussion in this and the next two chapters will introduce readers to a second interpretive approach to Genesis 6:1–4 that does not require literal divine-human cohabitation, but nevertheless does require a supernatural view of the sons of God. This alternative perspective is consistent with understanding the human offspring as the focus of Gen 6:1–4 while understanding offspring of the creaturely nachash metaphorically.

2. As we saw earlier (ch. 10), the creaturely portrayal is consistent with the use of the term cherub to describe the Edenic enemy. Cherubim were divine creaturely guardians of the God's throne. A human portrayal of the divine beings ("sons of God") in Genesis 6 is also required because of the parallel to and polemic against the Mesopotamian apkallus (see ch. 13). The discussion in this and the next two chapters will introduce readers to a second interpretive approach to Genesis 6:1–4 that does not require literal divine-human cohabitation, but nevertheless does require a supernatural view of the sons of God. This alternative perspective is consistent with understanding the human offspring as the focus of Gen 6:1–4 while understanding offspring of the creaturely nachash metaphorically.

9. As we saw in the previous chapter, 2 Pet 2:4 has the guilty divine beings imprisoned in “Tartarus.” This Greek word is the precise term used in classical Greek myths of ancient Titans and giants. The two groups are different but also conflated by classical Greek writers. However, both groups were divine in origin in Greek mythology. For our purposes, Peter’s word choice here points very specifically to the divine nature of the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4.

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel’s return. On Zerubbabel’s lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: “He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin’s eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel’s to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut 25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel’s heir, he would be first in line for the throne.” Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God’s agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet’s eschatological outlook for the nation’s destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). “Joshua,” of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua (“salvation”), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means “seed of Babel.” While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh's son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God's son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, "The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

8. See chapter 18 for the "name theology" of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called "the tent of meeting." Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase "tent of meeting" is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a "tent of meeting" where Yahweh "lived" and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently)

the tented holy of holies became a new "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle's construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant "original" tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

7. David later removed it during the time of civil unrest caused by his son Absalom (2 Sam 15:24–25). In the meantime, the place of sacrifice had become Gibeon (1 Kgs 3:4), where, we are told, an ancient "tent of meeting" of Moses had been moved (2 Chr 1:3 ESV). In Solomon's day, Gibeon was the high place of worship. The "tent of meeting" at Gibeon was actually the Mosaic tabernacle, since sacrifices were offered there (something that was not true of the tent of meeting in Moses' day). This separation of the ark at Jerusalem and the tabernacle tent at Gibeon was the situation during the time of Solomon as well, prior to Solomon's construction of the temple.

11. A good scholarly resource on this point is Guy Waters, The End of Deuteronomy in the Epistles of Paul (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 221; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2006). See especially footnote 12 on page 134, where the Waters provides a list of commentators that argue Paul has Deut 32:17 explicitly in view in 1 Cor 10:20. Proving that the elohim/shedim of Deut 32:17 are not merely idols does not depend on 1 Cor 10:20. Their spiritual identity is evident after a trip through Deuteronomy. In Deut 32:8–9 (reading v. 8 with the Dead Sea Scrolls, as do the ESV and NRSV), when the nations were divided at the tower of Babel incident, the nations were placed by God under the authority of lesser elohim, the "sons of God" (see chapter 14 of this book for more detail). The parallel passage to that text is Deut 4:19–20. There the gods "allotted" to the other nations while Yahweh took Israel are called the "host of heaven." Worshiping them is forbidden. This is the same language as in 1 Kgs 22:13–23, where the prophet Micaiah has a vision of a divine council meeting (see chapter 7 of this book). These members of the "host of heaven" are called elohim in Deut 17:2–5, where Israel is again warned to not worship them. Unfortunately, Deut 29:25 informs us that Israelites did worship elohim that were not "allotted" to them. These passages, along with Deut 32:17, interchange the following terms or phrases: host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim). This is where Paul got his theology. He isn't innovating—he knows Deuteronomy well.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

13. Marduk was a minor deity prior to the Babylonian era, when he was elevated to be king of the gods and the patron deity of the city of Babylon. His main temple was, as we have noted, Etemenanki, the ziggurat at Babylon (see Jeremy A. Black, "Marduk," in Dictionary of the Ancient Near East [ed. Piotr Bienkowski and Alan Millard; London: British Museum Press, 2000], 188–89). Marduk was therefore the chief theological rival to Yahweh in the exilic period. In biblical literature, Marduk is referred to as Merodach or Bel. Second Temple period Jewish texts contain a tradition about a giant who survived the flood named Belus, who was credited with building a tower in Babylon (the Tower of Babel), in which he lived. The train of thought conceptually links Marduk and Belus the giant. The same tradition identifies Belus with the biblical Nimrod, and suggests Nimrod might also be identified with Noah. Biblical editors during the exile may have taken note of the same Bel/Belus wordplay and used the dimensions of Og's bed to identify him with Marduk, though we cannot of course know that with any certainty. What we can know is that this sort of thinking did surface in Second Temple period Jewish writings. Van der Toorn summarizes: "The opinion that Nimrod goes back to a Mesopotamian deity is not new. As early as 1871, J. Grivel suggested that Nimrod is to be identified with Marduk (biblical Merodach or Bel). Unwittingly, he thus revived an ancient haggadic speculation in which Nimrod is identified with Belus.… In one of the fragments of Pseudo-Eupolemus … we read the following: 'Abraham traced his family to the giants. While these giants were living in Babylonia, they were destroyed by the gods because of their wickedness. One of them, Belus, escaped death and came to dwell in Babylon. There he built a tower and lived in it. It was named Belus, after Belus who built it' (quoted from Alexander Polyhistor by Eusebius, Praeparatio Evangelica 9.18.2). Here is a medley of allusions to Gen 6 (both the motif of the giants and that of the flood) and Gen 11 (the building of the tower of Babel). As we shall see in other instances of linking Gen 6 to Gen 11, the intermediate link is Nimrod from Gen 10. The problem in this case, however, is that if Belus, one of the giants who built the tower, is identical with Nimrod, he also is said to have escaped the flood, which would imply an identification of Noah and Nimrod!" (K. van der Toorn, "Nimrod before and after the Bible," Harvard Theological Review 83.1 (January 1990): 8, 16. Lastly, though it is only speculation, it is interesting to note that Marduk's name in Sumerian name was AMAR.UTU ("calf of Utu"; i.e., "the young bull of the Sun god"). The Sumerian for "Amorite" is MAR.TU. One wonders if the biblical scribes heard a pun behind the description of Og the giant Amorite king and Marduk's name.

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

16. The well-known texts of 1 Enoch have the offenders of Gen 6 as divine (the sons of God are called Watchers in 1 Enoch, a term that, as our next chapter shows, derives from a Mesopotamian context) and their offspring as giants. First Enoch connects this to demonology in that, when a giant was killed, its "Watcher spirit" is referred to as a demon. Hence in Gen 6 divine-human cohabitation is the answer to where demons come from in Second Temple Jewish thinking. On that subject, see Reed, Fallen Angels; Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). There are several other Second Temple Jewish texts that take the same perspective (and none that oppose it to my knowledge). For instance, several Dead Sea Scrolls refer to demons as "bastard spirits" (4Q510 [=4QShir[a]] frag. 1:5; 4Q511 [=4QShir[b]] frag. 35:7; 4Q204 [=4QEnoch[c] ar], Col V:2–3). Another scroll (11QapocPsa[=11Q11] refers to demons in Col II:3 and then later calls the demons "offspring of man and the seed of the holy ones" (Col V:6). See the companion website for those texts. This is a clear indication of how Second Temple Jews understood Gen 6:1–4, which was in turn based on a grasp of the original polemic context of Gen 6:1–4. See chapter 13 for more on that context. On the Qumran scrolls mentioned above, see Loren T. Stuckenbruck, "The 'Angels' and 'Giants' of Genesis 6:1–4 in Second and Third Century BCE Jewish Interpretation: Reflections on the Posture of Early Apocalyptic Traditions," Dead Sea Discoveries 7.3 (2000): 354–77; Ida Fröhlich, "Theology and Demonology in Qumran Texts," Henoch 32.1 (2010):101–128; Hermann Lichtenberger, "Spirits and Demons in the Dead Sea Scrolls," in The Holy Spirit and Christian Origins: Essays in Honor of James D. G. Dunn (ed. James D. G. Dunn, Graham Stanton, Bruce W. Longenecker, and Stephen C. Barton; Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 2004), 22–40.

16. The well-known texts of 1 Enoch have the offenders of Gen 6 as divine (the sons of God are called Watchers in 1 Enoch, a term that, as our next chapter shows, derives from a Mesopotamian context) and their offspring as giants. First Enoch connects this to demonology in that, when a giant was killed, its "Watcher spirit" is referred to as a demon. Hence in Gen 6 divine-human cohabitation is the answer to where demons come from in Second Temple Jewish thinking. On that subject, see Reed, Fallen Angels; Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). There are several other Second Temple Jewish texts that take the same perspective (and none that oppose it to my knowledge). For instance, several Dead Sea Scrolls refer to demons as “bastard spirits” (4Q510 [=4QShir[a]] frag. 1:5; 4Q511 [=4QShir[b]] frag. 35:7; 4Q204 [=4QEnoch[c] ar], Col V:2–3). Another scroll (11QapocPsa[=11Q11] refers to demons in Col II:3 and then later calls the demons “offspring of man and the seed of the holy ones” (Col V:6). See the companion website for those texts. This is a clear indication of how Second Temple Jews understood Gen 6:1–4, which was in turn based on a grasp of the original polemic context of Gen 6:1–4. See chapter 13 for more on that context. On the Qumran scrolls mentioned above, see Loren T. Stuckenbruck, “The ‘Angels’ and ‘Giants’ of Genesis 6:1–4 in Second and Third Century BCE Jewish Interpretation: Reflections on the Posture of Early Apocalyptic Traditions,” Dead Sea Discoveries 7.3 (2000): 354–77; Ida Fröhlich, “Theology and Demonology in Qumran Texts,” Henoch 32.1 (2010):101–128; Hermann Lichtenberger, “Spirits and Demons in the Dead Sea Scrolls,” in The Holy Spirit and Christian Origins: Essays in Honor of James D. G. Dunn (ed. James D. G. Dunn, Graham Stanton, Bruce W. Longenecker, and Stephen C. Barton; Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 2004), 22–40.

16–17 As was the case with the Septuagint, the Greek manuscripts of 1 Enoch use gigas (“giant”) when describing the offspring of the Watchers. See 1 Enoch 7:2, 4; 9:9.

20–21 The quandary of how anyone, including the giants, had survived the flood led some Jewish writers to speculate that Noah himself had been fathered by a Watcher. One Dead Sea scroll, The Genesis Apocryphon, has Noah’s father challenging his wife, the mother of Noah, about whether her pregnancy was the work of one of the Watchers (Genesis Apocryphon [=1QapGen] 1:1–5:27). She vehemently denies the charge. See chapter 23 for a discussion of Nephilim after the flood.

17. I say “other” since all ancient Jewish traditions, including 2 Peter and Jude in the New Testament, have the offending sons of God (also called Watchers) imprisoned in the underworld for what they did until the end of days. Both supernaturalist approaches are also workable with this possible translation, as it would suggest a repetition of whatever intervention event one envisions for producing the Nephilim of Gen 6:1–4.

18. Recall that in 1 Enoch the term used for the divine “sons of God” was “Watchers” (see chs. 12–13).

4. Our discussion of the Word of the Lord here and elsewhere is not to suggest that every time this phrase occurs in the Bible a visible figure is involved. In most cases, there is no suggestion in the context for that conclusion. At other times, such as the instances I’ll highlight, the context drives that conclusion. The point of course is that this language —Yahweh is the visible Word, even to the point of embodiment—is the conceptual backdrop for John’s language about Jesus.

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

11. A good scholarly resource on this point is Guy Waters, The End of Deuteronomy in the Epistles of Paul (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 221; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2006). See especially footnote 12 on page 134, where the Waters provides a list of commentators that argue Paul has Deut 32:17 explicitly in view in 1 Cor 10:20. Proving that the elohim/shedim of Deut 32:17 are not merely idols does not depend on 1 Cor 10:20. Their spiritual identity is evident after a trip through Deuteronomy. In Deut 32:8–9 (reading v. 8 with the Dead Sea Scrolls, as do the ESV and NRSV), when the nations were divided at the tower of Babel incident, the nations were placed by God under the authority of lesser elohim, the "sons of God" (see chapter 14 of this book for more detail). The parallel passage to that text is Deut 4:19–20. There the gods "allotted" to the other nations while Yahweh took Israel are called the "host of heaven." Worshiping them is forbidden. This is the same language as in 1 Kgs 22:13–23, where the prophet Micaiah has a vision of a divine council meeting (see chapter 7 of this book). These members of the "host of heaven" are called elohim in Deut 17:2–5, where Israel is again warned to not worship them. Unfortunately, Deut 29:25 informs us that Israelites did worship elohim that were not "allotted" to them. These passages, along with Deut 32:17, interchange the following terms or phrases: host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim). This is where Paul got his theology. He isn't innovating—he knows Deuteronomy well.

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2 Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^{B} version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug (“darkness”), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as “lawless ones” (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila (“giant”) to translate Hebrew kesil (“Orion”). See L. Zalcman, “Orion,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, “Pleiades,” in ibid., 657–58.

8. See Theodotian’s Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, “Archangel,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel's return. On Zerubbabel's lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: "He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin's eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel's to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut 25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel's heir, he would be first in line for the throne." Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God's agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet's eschatological outlook for the nation's destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). "Joshua," of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua ("salvation"), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means "seed of Babel." While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh's son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God's son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, "The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg 5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, "Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah," Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, "Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job," Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

1. Jesus affirmed that perspective. He accused the Pharisees of spilling the blood of all the prophets sent by God to his people, beginning with Abel, the righteous son of Adam (Luke 11:49–51). Why would Jesus reference Abel this way as among the prophets? Because he represented God—of Adam and Eve's two children, he was the godly son. We might say prophets speak for God, but even more broadly than that, a prophet is someone God views or calls as his chief representative among the population of his human imagers. Adam, of course, was the original imager of God, and Abel stood in the stead of his father as one who walked with God, imaging his Maker on earth. Cain killed Abel, and Abel was replaced by Seth, who we are told was in the "likeness" and "image" of his father, Adam. Not coincidentally, that terminology comes from Gen 1:26. All humans are divine imagers, but in our fallen condition we often don't image God as we are able and as he intended. If the Bible teaches anything it's that people need divine intervention and divinely appointed leadership to avoid abusing our free will by following our own inclination to be our own master instead of remaining loyal to God.

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

3. I prefer the term "judgment" to "curse" when it comes to God's response to Adam and Eve, reserving the term "curse" for the serpent. I agree with Wenham's assessment: "It should be noted that neither the man nor the woman are cursed: only the snake (v 14) and the soil (v 17) are cursed because of man. The sentences on the man and woman take the form of a disruption of their appointed roles" (Gordon J. Wenham, Genesis 1–15 [vol. 1; Word Biblical Commentary; Dallas: Word, Incorporated, 1998], 81).

3. I prefer the term "judgment" to "curse" when it comes to God's response to Adam and Eve, reserving the term "curse" for the serpent. I agree with Wenham's assessment: "It should be noted that neither the man nor the woman are cursed: only the snake (v 14) and the soil (v 17) are cursed because of man. The sentences on the man and woman take the form of a disruption of their appointed roles" (Gordon J. Wenham, Genesis 1–15 [vol. 1; Word Biblical Commentary; Dallas: Word, Incorporated, 1998], 81).

4. The flame of Gen 3:24 may actually describe an individual divine being (see Ronald Hendel, " 'The Flame of the Whirling Sword': A Note on Genesis 3:24," Journal of Biblical Literature 104:4 [1985]: 671–74). The seraphim of Isa 6:2, 6 that attend Yahweh's throne may also have been fiery beings if the noun derives from the verb saraph ("to burn"). It is more likely that seraphim derives from the Hebrew noun saraph ("serpent"), which in turn is drawn from Egyptian throne guardian terminology and conceptions. If that is the case, Egyptian imagery relating to the divine throne guardians includes fire as well. See Philippe Provençal, "Regarding the Noun saraph in the Hebrew Bible," Journal for the Study of the Old Testament 29.3 (2005): 371–79.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

11. Sacred marriage rituals included the blessing of fertility for both the land and its inhabitants. See Martti Nissinen, "Akkadian Rituals and Poetry of Divine Love," in Mythology and Mythologies: Methodological Approaches to Intercultural Influences; Proceedings of the Second Annual Symposium of the Assyrian and Babylonian Intellectual Heritage Project Held in Paris, France, October 4–7, 1999, Melammu Symposia 2 (ed. R. M. Whiting; Helsinki: Neo-Assyrian Text Corpus Project, 2001), 93–136. The ritual was also concerned with maintaining the cosmic order instituted by the gods. Consequently, in addition to the giantism element, a link between Og and Marduk via the matching bed dimensions may also have telegraphed the idea that Og was the inheritor and perpetuator of the Babylonian knowledge and cosmic order from before the flood. This would of course tie him back to Gen 6:1–4 and its apkallu polemic. See Beate Pongratz-Leisten, "Sacred Marriage and the Transfer of Divine Knowledge: Alliances between the Gods and the King in Ancient Mesopotamia," in Sacred Marriages: The Divine-Human Sexual Metaphor from Sumer to Early Christianity (ed. Martti Nissinen and Risto Uro; Winona Lake, IN:

Eisenbrauns, 2008), 43–72. In any event, the size of Og's bed cannot be taken as a precise indication of Og's own dimensions. There is much more at play here.

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, "Bashan," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, "Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68," in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the "serpentine" connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, "the gates of hell." We'll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous "gates of hell" statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

3. As we'll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to "angels" being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton's Paradise Lost. References to "angels that sinned" look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like "evil spirits" either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly,

Dale Martin's recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today's Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel's Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, "When Did Angels Become Demons?" Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

8. Some translations read seventy-two instead of seventy. Greek New Testament manuscript evidence for both readings is divided among very ancient manuscript traditions. The difference arose on account of the Septuagint, which has "seventy-two" for the number nations in Gen 10. The traditional Hebrew (Masoretic) text has the number of nations as seventy. Consequently, either number points to a correlation back to the nations divided at Babel and the cosmic-geographical worldview of Deut 32:8–9. The number seventy of the traditional Hebrew text is best on external grounds, given the witness to seventy "sons of El" in the divine council at Ugarit. As Fitzymer, noting Deut 32:8, writes: the number "has often been thought to reflect the nations of the world in the table of Gen 10:2–31 and would symbolize the coming evangelization of the Gentiles and diaspora Jews by the disciples, whereas the Twelve would have been sent to Israel itself" (Joseph A. Fitzmyer, S.J., The Gospel according to Luke X–XXIV: Introduction, Translation, and Notes, Anchor Yale Bible 28A [New Haven: Yale University Press, 2008], 846).

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom

3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

9. Some Bible maps have "Gether" near India, but this is hardly correct. As David Baker notes in the Anchor Bible Dictionary, "According to the Table of Nations (Gen 10:23), Gether is the son of Aram, the forefather of the Arameans or Syrians, who himself was the son of Shem, son of Noah. He and his descendants are thus Semitic. The corresponding genealogy in 1 Chr 1:17 places Gether as a son of Shem and brother of Aram. This is probably due to a simple copying error by an early scribe. His eye slipped from the first to the second of two lines which ended with the same word, 'Aram,' leading to the loss of the original line 'the sons of Aram (are)' which is still found in Genesis. Little else is known about the identity or geographical location of Gether, although the association with Aram would suggest an Aramean city" (see David W. Baker, "Gether [Person]," in The Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary [ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992], 997).

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

7. The reference to "languages" in Dan 7:14 adds clarity to the reference to the division of nations at Babel, which division is correlated with multiplicity of languages (Gen 11:1–9).

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

7. The connection of the gods of the nations installed in Deut 32:8–9 with the demons (Hebrew: shedim) of Deut 32:17 can be traced by comparing Deut 32:8–9 with Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:25–26; 32:17. The interconnections of these passages is why Deuteronomy 32:17 refers to the shedim ("demons") as elohim ("gods"). Many English translations obscure all this, sometimes in very awkward ways that require ignoring grammar and syntax. See Michael S. Heiser, "Does Deuteronomy 32:17 Assume or Deny the Reality of Other Gods?" Bible Translator 59.3 (July 2008): 137–45. As noted in earlier chapters, the term shedim comes from Akkadian shadu, which describes a guardian spirit. The word choice is appropriate in Deut 32:17 given the context of Deut 32:8–9 and cosmic geography: the nations are the domains of other gods who are, in turn, their guardians. Instead of administering Yahweh's just rule in these nations under his authority, preparing them for their return to Yahweh via Israel and the terms of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3), these divine beings lured Yahweh's children to worship them and abused their charge (Psa 82).

6. On "Canaanites" as an umbrella term, see Gen 12:6; 28:1, 6. Some scholars consider the two to be synonymous terms used in different Pentateuchal sources ("Canaan, Canaanites," in Harper's Bible Dictionary [ed. Paul J. Achtemeier; San Francisco: Harper & Row, 1985], 152–53).

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible

where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

4. In Gen 14:13 an Amorite is said to have been an ally to Abraham. This is not much of a surprise since the term could simply denote Mesopotamian ethnicity. But in the broad strokes of the conquest narratives, the Amorites are enemies, and their Babylonian heritage becomes a link back to the Nephilim.

8. The wording of Amos 2:9 cannot be conclusively isolated to reference only the individual Sihon or Og. The phrase "the Amorite" (ha-'emoriy) can refer to a single person (e.g., Gen 14:13) or a collective (e.g., Gen 10:16). "Whose" is the simple relative pronoun 'asher. The third person singular suffix pronoun ("his" [fruit]) can be used with respect to a collective as well, precisely because its grammatical agreement will align with the noun it represents. Since "Amorite" is morphologically singular, the suffix pronoun is singular. But the singular noun, as noted above, can be semantically plural. Consequently, the suffix pronoun would contextually be understood the same way.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

3. See also Gen 15:17 and Patrick D. Miller, “Fire in the Mythology of Canaan and Israel,” Catholic Biblical Quarterly 27 (1965): 256–61.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This “problem” is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, “Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?” Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This “problem” is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah

(the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, “Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?” Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This “problem” is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, “Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?” Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This “problem” is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

6. It is also misguided to argue that the Sethite view is valid because the writers and editors of the Torah were living under the law. There are near-relation marriages in the Genesis story prior to the Sinai legislation. For example, Abraham and Sarah had the same father, but different mothers, a forbidden sexual relationship in the Torah (Gen 20:12; cf. Lev 18:9, 11; 20:17; Deut 27:22). In other words, the later legal backdrop of Sinai isn't being presumed elsewhere in Genesis, so it cannot be presumed as the backdrop for Gen 6:1–4. There simply is no support for condemned human intermarriage in the text.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation

(Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

16. A translation of "when" takes the 'asher clause as temporal. According to Westermann, this is the view espoused by most commentators. He is, however, apathetic as to whether a temporal understanding or another possibility is more coherent: "It does not really matter whether 'shr is understood as temporal (with most interpreters) or iterative (so E. König, W. H. Schmidt and others) or as causal (e.g., B. S. Childs; against, and correctly, W. H. Schmidt); 'shr is an afterthought, its function being in fact only to link and so to subordinate" (Westermann, Genesis 1–11, 377). Wenham notes that some Hebrew scholars consider the use of the Hebrew imperfect in this clause to allow for repetition: " 'Whenever the sons of the gods went into the daughters of men, they bore them children.' Though it is not impossible to translate this as a simple past event—'When they went in …'—it is more natural (with Skinner, König, Gispen) to take the imperfect 'went' and perfect preceded by waw ('bore … children') as frequentative. To 'go in to' is a frequent euphemism for sexual intercourse (cf. Gen 30:16; 38:16)" (Gordon J. Wenham, Genesis 1–15, Word Biblical Commentary 1 (Dallas: Word, 1998], 143. See also Friedrich Wilhelm Gesenius, Gesenius' Hebrew Grammar, 2nd English ed. (ed. E. Kautzsch and Sir Arthur Ernest Cowley; Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1910), 315 (sec. 107e). Gesenius includes Gen 6:4 as an instance of this interpretive nuance.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

5. See 1 Chr 10:12; Gen 35:8.

4. Joseph is omitted from this discussion, since God's activity in his life is described in providential terms. However, his meeting with "a man" (Gen 37:12–17, esp. 15) is often taken by interpreters as an encounter with an embodied angel. The text isn't clear that this supposition is accurate. However, this incident happened at Shechem, the location of the Oak of Moreh (see the discussion on sacred trees and the Angel of Yahweh).

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings "marrying" human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the "marriage" idea derives from English translations. The word translated "wife" is simply the normal plural for "women" (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of "taking" (Gen 6:2) or "going in to" a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, "taking" a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can "coming/going in to" (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God's judgment in a catastrophic flood?

16. A translation of "when" takes the 'asher clause as temporal. According to Westermann, this is the view espoused by most commentators. He is, however, apathetic as to whether a temporal understanding or another possibility is more coherent: "It does not really matter whether 'shr is understood as temporal (with most interpreters) or iterative (so E. König, W. H. Schmidt and others) or as causal (e.g., B. S. Childs; against, and correctly, W. H. Schmidt); 'shr is an afterthought, its function being in fact only to link and so to subordinate" (Westermann, Genesis 1–11, 377). Wenham notes that some Hebrew scholars consider the use of the Hebrew imperfect in this clause to allow for repetition: " 'Whenever the sons of the gods went into the daughters of men, they bore them children.' Though it is not impossible to translate this as a simple past event—'When they went in …'—it is more natural (with Skinner, König, Gispen) to take the imperfect 'went' and perfect preceded by waw (‘bore … children’) as frequentative. To ‘go in to’ is a frequent euphemism for sexual intercourse (cf. Gen 30:16; 38:16)” (Gordon J. Wenham, Genesis 1–15, Word Biblical Commentary 1 (Dallas: Word, 1998], 143. See also Friedrich Wilhelm Gesenius, Gesenius’ Hebrew Grammar, 2nd English ed. (ed. E. Kautzsch and Sir Arthur Ernest Cowley; Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1910), 315 (sec. 107e). Gesenius includes Gen 6:4 as an instance of this interpretive nuance.

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings “marrying” human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the “marriage” idea derives from English translations. The word translated “wife” is simply the normal plural for “women” (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of “taking” (Gen 6:2) or “going in to” a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, “taking” a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can “coming/going in to” (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God’s judgment in a catastrophic flood?

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., “Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology,” Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP

Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

11. Mount Sinai is also called Mount Horeb in the Old Testament. For example, see Exod 3:1–3; Deut 4:15; 5:2; 1 Kgs 8:9.

7. For example, Perizzites, Hittites, Hivites, Girgashites, etc. (Exod 3:8; 23:23; Deut 7:1; 20:17; Josh 12:8).

7. Many scholars resist saying Abraham knew that he was speaking to Yahweh because in vv. 3, 27–32 he addresses the figure as adonai—not with the divine name, Yahweh. Abraham did address Yahweh by name earlier (Gen 15:2, 8). Sarai refers to God by this name as well (Gen 16:2, 5). Readers of Gen 18, of course, know immediately (v. 1) that the figure who appears to Abraham at Mamre is Yahweh. This "problem" is misleading. That Abraham knew the divine name in the biblical text as we have it (cf. Exod 6:3) is no requirement that he use it in every exchange. The term adonai was a culturally proper term of reception of a guest or person due respect (e.g., Gen 18:18; 23:6; 24:18; 32:4; 33:8, 13). That Abraham understood who his guest was is suggested by Gen 18:25. When Abraham learns the fate that awaits Sodom and Gomorrah (the reader is not told how he learns that), he says to Yahweh, "Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?" Note that the statement correlates the Judge of all the earth with you. While it is possible from the language to say that Abraham could have viewed the three men as equals and the Judge of all the earth as a fourth person removed from the scene, that option is not compelling, nor is it consistent with the earlier encounters. There is no textual reason that forbids the notion that Abraham recognized the lead figure as Yahweh.

3. The Israelites crossed through the waters of the "Red Sea" (Exod 15:4). The biblical phrase is yam suph, translated by most scholars as "sea of reeds" (the word "red" in Hebrew is edom', which does not occur with yam, "sea"). The phrasing and its translation has led to voluminous debate over the location of the crossing. To make matters more confusing, Num 33:8 says the Israelites "went through the midst of the sea into the desert" and has the Israelites at the "Red Sea" (yam suph) days later (Num 33:10–11). Scholars have offered a number of ways to reconcile the accounts, though all of them depend at some point on speculation. For our purposes, the proposal that yam suph describes both a real location and the primeval waters of chaos is most interesting, particularly in light of the ensuing discussion of Psa 74. See the companion website for my interaction with the following two articles: N. H. Snaith, "ym sop: The Sea of Reeds; The Red Sea," Vetus Testamentum 15.3 (July 1965): 395–98 (note that the Hebrew pointing in the article title is that of Snaith); Bernard F. Batto, "The Reed Sea: Requiescat in Pace," Journal of Biblical Literature 102.1 (1983): 27–35.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

1. Space constraints make it impossible to fully address the flawed thinking behind the human explanation for elohim (in Psa 82 and elsewhere) in this chapter. In the discussion that proceeds, I touch on some of the more glaring logical and scriptural problems for this view. Arguments for the human view of elohim stemming from passages like Judg 18, Exod 22:7–9, Psa 45:7, or Jesus' quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10:34 are dealt with at length on the companion website.

7. For example, Perizzites, Hittites, Hivites, Girgashites, etc. (Exod 3:8; 23:23; Deut 7:1; 20:17; Josh 12:8).

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

11. See also Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15–16; Deut 4:13; 5:22.

8. See chapter 18 for the "name theology" of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called "the tent of meeting." Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase "tent of meeting" is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a "tent of meeting" where Yahweh "lived" and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle's construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant "original" tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

10. Beale notes: "A white stone was commonly associated with a vote of acquittal (cf. 4 Macc. 15:26; Acts 26:10) or a favorable vote. Conversely, a black stone indicated guilt. A white stone sometimes was also used as a pass of admission to special occasions. Against this background, the meaning here probably refers to the reversal of the guilty verdict issued by the world's institutions against the overcomer because of refusal to participate in its idolatrous meals. Accordingly, the "white stone" becomes the invitation to take part in Jesus' supper (cf. 19:9). The notion that a banquet meal is in mind is supported by the reference to "manna." According to Jewish tradition, precious stones fell along with the manna (cf. Midr. Ps. 78.4). Some commentators have seen here the two precious stones on the shoulder pieces of the high priest's ephod, bearing the names of the twelve tribes (Exod 28:9–12). According to another Jewish tradition, these priestly stones were stored in the hidden ark, to be revealed in the messianic times (cf. 2 Bar. 6:7–8)." See G. K. Beale, The Book of Revelation: A Commentary on the Greek Text, New International Greek Testament Commentary (Grand Rapids, MI; Carlisle, Cumbria: Eerdmans; Paternoster Press, 1999), 252–53.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·r^{e}qat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·r^{e}qat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with ‘lightning.’ In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald.” See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

8. See chapter 18 for the “name theology” of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called “the tent of meeting.” Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase “tent of meeting” is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a “tent of meeting” where Yahweh “lived” and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle’s construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant “original” tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

8. See chapter 18 for the “name theology” of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called “the tent of meeting.” Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase “tent of meeting” is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a “tent of meeting” where Yahweh “lived” and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle’s construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant “original” tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

11. See also Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15–16; Deut 4:13; 5:22.

11. See also Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15–16; Deut 4:13; 5:22.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

8. See chapter 18 for the "name theology" of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called "the tent of meeting." Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase "tent of meeting" is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a "tent of meeting" where Yahweh "lived" and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle's construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant "original" tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

2. Exod 33:12–14 repeats that the very presence (panim) of God will go with Moses as he leads the people to Canaan. This passage follows Exod 23 in the text, but Moses seems completely unaware of the earlier conversation. Source critical scholars and literary-critical scholars have different explanations for the convoluted ordering, all of which is beyond the scope of this book.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

8. See chapter 18 for the "name theology" of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called "the tent of meeting." Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase "tent of meeting" is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a "tent of meeting" where Yahweh "lived" and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle's construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant "original" tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

10. See R. E. Friedman, "Tabernacle," in Anchor Bible Dictionary (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 6:292–300; Friedman, "The Tabernacle in the Temple," Biblical Archaeologist 43 (1980): 241–48. Friedman seeks to incorporate more of the tabernacle structure within the temple than the holy of holies, an idea that has drawn sharp criticism (see Victor Avigdor Hurowitz, "The Form and Fate of the Tabernacle: Reflections on a Recent Proposal," Jewish Quarterly Review 86.1–2 [July–October 1995], 127–51). My position is only that it is coherent to see the tented holy of holies from the tabernacle within the holy of holies in Solomon's temple. According to Exod 38–39, the tented area of the tabernacle (holy place and holy of holies) measured ten cubits wide and thirty cubits long (15 feet by 45 feet). The holy of holies was a ten-cubit cube area. The corresponding spaces in Solomon's temple were larger: sixty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high (1 Kgs 6:2), with the holy of holies a twenty-cubit cube. In terms of spacing, there is no obstacle to having the tented holy of holies from the desert tabernacle within the innermost sanctum of the temple. In my view, this explains some of the "tent" language associated with the temple (see the following note). The cherubim throne graphic is from Martin Metzger, Königsthron und Gottesthron: Thronformen und Throndarstellungen in Ägypten und im Vorderen Orient im dritten und zweiten Jahrtausend vor Christus und deren Bedeutung für das Verständis von Aussagen über den Thron im Alten Testament (Kevelaer: Butzon and Bercker, 1985).

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

4. See Lev 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:6; Psa 16:3; 34:9. Psa 16:3 refers to the qedoshim that are in the land, making it certain that the term can refer to people.

3. See Lev 12; 15:1–30; 18:19; 20:18; 22:4–6; Deut 23:10–15.

3. See Lev 12; 15:1–30; 18:19; 20:18; 22:4–6; Deut 23:10–15.

18. The Septuagint also uses daimonion to translate shedim in its only other Old Testament occurrence: Psa 106:37. Daimonion is also the translation choice for references to "goat demons" (se'irim) in Isa 13:21 and "desert creatures" (tsiyim) in Isa 34:14. Recall from the discussion of Azazel in Lev 16 (the Day of Atonement) that Israelites believed the desert to be the realm of sinister evil and were sacrificing to "goat demons" (Lev 17:7).

6. It is also misguided to argue that the Sethite view is valid because the writers and editors of the Torah were living under the law. There are near-relation marriages in the Genesis story prior to the Sinai legislation. For example, Abraham and Sarah had the same father, but different mothers, a forbidden sexual relationship in the Torah (Gen 20:12; cf. Lev 18:9, 11; 20:17; Deut 27:22). In other words, the later legal backdrop of Sinai isn't being presumed elsewhere in Genesis, so it cannot be presumed as the backdrop for Gen 6:1–4. There simply is no support for condemned human intermarriage in the text.

6. It is also misguided to argue that the Sethite view is valid because the writers and editors of the Torah were living under the law. There are near-relation marriages in the Genesis story prior to the Sinai legislation. For example, Abraham and Sarah had the same father, but different mothers, a forbidden sexual relationship in the Torah (Gen 20:12; cf. Lev 18:9, 11; 20:17; Deut 27:22). In other words, the later legal backdrop of Sinai isn't being presumed elsewhere in Genesis, so it cannot be presumed as the backdrop for Gen 6:1–4. There simply is no support for condemned human intermarriage in the text.

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings "marrying" human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the "marriage" idea derives from English translations. The word translated "wife" is simply the normal plural for "women" (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of "taking" (Gen 6:2) or "going in to" a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, "taking" a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can "coming/going in to" (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God's judgment in a catastrophic flood?

3. See Lev 12; 15:1–30; 18:19; 20:18; 22:4–6; Deut 23:10–15.

4. See Lev 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:6; Psa 16:3; 34:9. Psa 16:3 refers to the qedoshim that are in the land, making it certain that the term can refer to people.

4. See Lev 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:6; Psa 16:3; 34:9. Psa 16:3 refers to the qedoshim that are in the land, making it certain that the term can refer to people.

6. It is also misguided to argue that the Sethite view is valid because the writers and editors of the Torah were living under the law. There are near-relation marriages in the Genesis story prior to the Sinai legislation. For example, Abraham and Sarah had the same father, but different mothers, a forbidden sexual relationship in the Torah (Gen 20:12; cf. Lev 18:9, 11; 20:17; Deut 27:22). In other words, the later legal backdrop of Sinai isn't being presumed elsewhere in Genesis, so it cannot be presumed as the backdrop for Gen 6:1–4. There simply is no support for condemned human intermarriage in the text.

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings "marrying" human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the "marriage" idea derives from English translations. The word translated "wife" is simply the normal plural for "women" (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of "taking" (Gen 6:2) or "going in to" a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, "taking" a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can "coming/going in to" (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God's judgment in a catastrophic flood?

3. See Lev 12; 15:1–30; 18:19; 20:18; 22:4–6; Deut 23:10–15.

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings "marrying" human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the "marriage" idea derives from English translations. The word translated “wife” is simply the normal plural for “women” (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of “taking” (Gen 6:2) or “going in to” a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, “taking” a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can “coming/going in to” (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God’s judgment in a catastrophic flood?

4. See Lev 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:6; Psa 16:3; 34:9. Psa 16:3 refers to the qedoshim that are in the land, making it certain that the term can refer to people.

4. See Lev 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:6; Psa 16:3; 34:9. Psa 16:3 refers to the qedoshim that are in the land, making it certain that the term can refer to people.

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings “marrying” human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the “marriage” idea derives from English translations. The word translated “wife” is simply the normal plural for “women” (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of “taking” (Gen 6:2) or “going in to” a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, “taking” a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can “coming/going in to” (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God's judgment in a catastrophic flood?

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings "marrying" human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the "marriage" idea derives from English translations. The word translated "wife" is simply the normal plural for "women" (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of "taking" (Gen 6:2) or "going in to" a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, "taking" a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can "coming/going in to" (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God's judgment in a catastrophic flood?

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

3. See Lev 12; 15:1–30; 18:19; 20:18; 22:4–6; Deut 23:10–15.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F.

Siemens Jr., “Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology,” Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase “the whole earth” (kol ’erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, “whole land” or “all the people in the area” are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that “the whole earth” was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase “all humankind” (kol ’adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., “Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology,” Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

2. See Lev 26:12; Deut 23:14 (Hebrew: 15); 2 Sam 7:6–7.

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

11. This passage therefore adds another clarification to the generalized description of Num 11:28–29. As discussed earlier, the spies had made the blanket statement that they had seen Anakim wherever they had gone. One of those locations was the "hill country" where the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites dwelled. These people groups are noted in Joshua 11's description of the northern campaign. Deut 9:1–2 seems to support this approach, as the Anakim of verse 2 appear to be cast as a subset of the population described in verse 1. Deut 9:1–2 is important in this regard as it is included in those passages that provide the rationale for the conquest. Not only were the Israelites outnumbered by an entrenched population (Deut 9:1), but the giant Anakim they had feared back in Num 13:33 had to be dealt with (Deut 9:2). Hendel makes a similar point about the giant clans: "The function of the Nephilim-Rephaim in all of these [biblical] traditions is constant—they exist in order to be wiped out: by the flood, by Moses, by David, and others.… Note that the giant aboriginal inhabitants of Seir, Ammon, and Gaza are also utterly annihilated, generally by Yahweh (Deut 2:12, 20–23); see also Deut 9:1–3; Amos 2:9" (Ronald S. Hendel, "Of Demigods and the Deluge: Toward and Interpretation of Genesis 6:1–4," Journal of Biblical Literature 106.1 [March 1987]: 21 and note).

8. This is not to say, however, that there were vast numbers of giant clan members. The account of Caleb is of interest in this regard. Caleb was one of the original twelve spies sent in by Moses (Num 13:6, 30). He and Joshua were the only two who believed that Yahweh would give victory over the giant Anakim and were therefore allowed to enter the land forty years later (Num 14:30). Part of the original spying account in Num 13:22 notes that the spies encountered "Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of Anak" in Hebron. The same three individuals are listed in Josh 15:14 as being driven out by the returning Caleb. Were these the only Anakim in Hebron? Were these three names representative of lineages? The latter seems likelier than the former, because the same three names surface again in Judg 1:10, where they are defeated by the tribe of Judah. Either the same three Anakim (or their families) escaped death at the hands of Caleb (note they were "driven out" in Josh 15:14) only to meet their demise later, or these names are emblematic of tribes (or clans) which were part of the Nephilim bloodline targeted by Israelites in both Joshua's wars and the efforts noted in the book of Judges after Joshua's death. If we presume the situation in Hebron is representative of the situation in Canaan, then various cities mentioned in the conquest narratives may have been home to various clans or family groups belonging to Anak. One certainly does not get the picture of huge numbers of Anakim, much less the entire population of Canaan being Anakim. Doak references Deut 9:1–2 and Josh 11:21–22 as evidence that the Anakim were conceived of as ubiquitous throughout the land (Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim: Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7 [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013], 73–74). In my view, this is an overreading of these passages. Deut 9:1–2 can quite easily be read as first referencing the general population (v. 1—"nations greater and mightier than you"—note the plural) and then singling out the Anakim who live among those nations (v. 2). The statement in Josh 11:21–22 that "Joshua came at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel" does not require the conclusion that Anakim are to be equated with the entire population of Canaan. Rather, it could just as well mean that wherever Anakim were encountered within Canaan they were eliminated. In other words, the passages can speak to how the Anakim had permeated Canaan without making the term a virtual synonym for "the nations" within Canaan.

8. This is not to say, however, that there were vast numbers of giant clan members. The account of Caleb is of interest in this regard. Caleb was one of the original twelve spies sent in by Moses (Num 13:6, 30). He and Joshua were the only two who believed that Yahweh would give victory over the giant Anakim and were therefore allowed to enter the land forty years later (Num 14:30). Part of the original spying account in Num 13:22 notes that the spies encountered "Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of Anak" in Hebron. The same three individuals are listed in Josh 15:14 as being driven out by the returning Caleb. Were these the only Anakim in Hebron? Were these three names representative of lineages? The latter seems likelier than the former, because the same three names surface again in Judg 1:10, where they are defeated by the tribe of Judah. Either the same three Anakim (or their families) escaped death at the hands of Caleb (note they were "driven out" in Josh 15:14) only to meet their demise later, or these names are emblematic of tribes (or clans) which were part of the Nephilim bloodline targeted by Israelites in both Joshua's wars and the efforts noted in the book of Judges after Joshua's death. If we presume the situation in Hebron is representative of the situation in Canaan, then various cities mentioned in the conquest narratives may have been home to various clans or family groups belonging to Anak. One certainly does not get the picture of huge numbers of Anakim, much less the entire population of Canaan being Anakim. Doak references Deut 9:1–2 and Josh 11:21–22 as evidence that the Anakim were conceived of as ubiquitous throughout the land (Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim: Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7 [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013], 73–74). In my view, this is an overreading of these passages. Deut 9:1–2 can quite easily be read as first referencing the general population (v. 1—"nations greater and mightier than you"—note the plural) and then singling out the Anakim who live among those nations (v. 2). The statement in Josh 11:21–22 that "Joshua came at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel" does not require the conclusion that Anakim are to be equated with the entire population of Canaan. Rather, it could just as well mean that wherever Anakim were encountered within Canaan they were eliminated. In other words, the passages can speak to how the Anakim had permeated Canaan without making the term a virtual synonym for "the nations" within Canaan.

8. This is not to say, however, that there were vast numbers of giant clan members. The account of Caleb is of interest in this regard. Caleb was one of the original twelve spies sent in by Moses (Num 13:6, 30). He and Joshua were the only two who believed that Yahweh would give victory over the giant Anakim and were therefore allowed to enter the land forty years later (Num 14:30). Part of the original spying account in Num 13:22 notes that the spies encountered "Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of Anak" in Hebron. The same three individuals are listed in Josh 15:14 as being driven out by the returning Caleb. Were these the only Anakim in Hebron? Were these three names representative of lineages? The latter seems likelier than the former, because the same three names surface again in Judg 1:10, where they are defeated by the tribe of Judah. Either the same three Anakim (or their families) escaped death at the hands of Caleb (note they were "driven out" in Josh 15:14) only to meet their demise later, or these names are emblematic of tribes (or clans) which were part of the Nephilim bloodline targeted by Israelites in both Joshua's wars and the efforts noted in the book of Judges after Joshua's death. If we presume the situation in Hebron is representative of the situation in Canaan, then various cities mentioned in the conquest narratives may have been home to various clans or family groups belonging to Anak. One certainly does not get the picture of huge numbers of Anakim, much less the entire population of Canaan being Anakim. Doak references Deut 9:1–2 and Josh 11:21–22 as evidence that the Anakim were conceived of as ubiquitous throughout the land (Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim: Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7 [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013], 73–74). In my view, this is an overreading of these passages. Deut 9:1–2 can quite easily be read as first referencing the general population (v. 1—"nations greater and mightier than you"—note the plural) and then singling out the Anakim who live among those nations (v. 2). The statement in Josh 11:21–22 that "Joshua came at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel" does not require the conclusion that Anakim are to be equated with the entire population of Canaan. Rather, it could just as well mean that wherever Anakim were encountered within Canaan they were eliminated. In other words, the passages can speak to how the Anakim had permeated Canaan without making the term a virtual synonym for "the nations" within Canaan.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth.

In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

11. This passage therefore adds another clarification to the generalized description of Num 11:28–29. As discussed earlier, the spies had made the blanket statement that they had seen Anakim wherever they had gone. One of those locations was the "hill country" where the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites dwelled. These people groups are noted in

Joshua 11's description of the northern campaign. Deut 9:1–2 seems to support this approach, as the Anakim of verse 2 appear to be cast as a subset of the population described in verse 1. Deut 9:1–2 is important in this regard as it is included in those passages that provide the rationale for the conquest. Not only were the Israelites outnumbered by an entrenched population (Deut 9:1), but the giant Anakim they had feared back in Num 13:33 had to be dealt with (Deut 9:2). Hendel makes a similar point about the giant clans: "The function of the Nephilim-Rephaim in all of these [biblical] traditions is constant—they exist in order to be wiped out: by the flood, by Moses, by David, and others.… Note that the giant aboriginal inhabitants of Seir, Ammon, and Gaza are also utterly annihilated, generally by Yahweh (Deut 2:12, 20–23); see also Deut 9:1–3; Amos 2:9" (Ronald S. Hendel, "Of Demigods and the Deluge: Toward and Interpretation of Genesis 6:1–4," Journal of Biblical Literature 106.1 [March 1987]: 21 and note).

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

6. There is one earlier instance of kharam in the context of warfare prior to the Transjordanian wars against the giants: Num 21:2–3. In this instance, Yahweh does not command the kherem. Rather, "Israel" (the speaker is not further identified) promises God that the king of Arad and his city will be put under kherem in retaliation for that king's kidnapping of some Israelites. Yahweh acquiesced and the name of the place of the destruction was called Hormah (khormah, which means "destruction"—again, the same consonants as kherem). While God did not command the kherem, the narrative notes that the "Canaanites" were "devoted to destruction." I noted the indiscriminate use of this term (along with "Amorite") in the previous chapter. See the ensuing discussion for how this relates to the giant clans as the specific targets of kherem.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion"

(Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

5. It is interesting to speculate on how Joshua was able to discern that this "man" was the angel of Yahweh. He bows down immediately upon hearing the commander's voice. It would seem that he recognizes the voice. Having accompanied Moses into the proximity of the divine presence on a number of occasions, this seems a reasonable explanation. However, the incident may only be a literary-theological way of partnering the angel with Joshua once Moses has died. Joshua had been commissioned in Num 27:18–23. The message in Joshua 5 to readers would be that, as Yahweh's presence in the angel was with Moses, so would he be with Joshua. Joshua's performance to this point in the wake of Moses' death had Yahweh's endorsement. See the companion website.

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

4. See Lev 11:24–25, 39; 21:16–24; Num 19:11, 16, 19; 31:19, 24.

3. The Israelites crossed through the waters of the “Red Sea” (Exod 15:4). The biblical phrase is yam suph, translated by most scholars as “sea of reeds” (the word “red” in Hebrew is edom’, which does not occur with yam, “sea”). The phrasing and its translation has led to voluminous debate over the location of the crossing. To make matters more confusing, Num 33:8 says the Israelites “went through the midst of the sea into the desert” and has the Israelites at the “Red Sea” (yam suph) days later (Num 33:10–11). Scholars have offered a number of ways to reconcile the accounts, though all of them depend at some point on speculation. For our purposes, the proposal that yam suph describes both a real location and the primeval waters of chaos is most interesting, particularly in light of the ensuing discussion of Psa 74. See the companion website for my interaction with the following two articles: N. H. Snaith, “ym sop: The Sea of Reeds; The Red Sea,” Vetus Testamentum 15.3 (July 1965): 395–98 (note that the Hebrew pointing in the article title is that of Snaith); Bernard F. Batto, “The Reed Sea: Requiescat in Pace,” Journal of Biblical Literature 102.1 (1983): 27–35.

3. The Israelites crossed through the waters of the “Red Sea” (Exod 15:4). The biblical phrase is yam suph, translated by most scholars as “sea of reeds” (the word “red” in Hebrew is edom’, which does not occur with yam, “sea”). The phrasing and its translation has led to voluminous debate over the location of the crossing. To make matters more confusing, Num 33:8 says the Israelites “went through the midst of the sea into the desert” and has the Israelites at the “Red Sea” (yam suph) days later (Num 33:10–11). Scholars have offered a number of ways to reconcile the accounts, though all of them depend at some point on speculation. For our purposes, the proposal that yam suph describes both a real location and the primeval waters of chaos is most interesting, particularly in light of the ensuing discussion of Psa 74. See the companion website for my interaction with the following two articles: N. H. Snaith, “ym sop: The Sea of Reeds; The Red Sea,” Vetus

Testamentum 15.3 (July 1965): 395–98 (note that the Hebrew pointing in the article title is that of Snaith); Bernard F. Batto, "The Reed Sea: Requiescat in Pace," Journal of Biblical Literature 102.1 (1983): 27–35.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

11. This passage therefore adds another clarification to the generalized description of Num 11:28–29. As discussed earlier, the spies had made the blanket statement that they had seen Anakim wherever they had gone. One of those locations was the "hill country" where the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites dwelled. These people groups are noted in Joshua 11's description of the northern campaign. Deut 9:1–2 seems to support this approach, as the Anakim of verse 2 appear to be cast as a subset of the population described in verse 1. Deut 9:1–2 is important in this regard as it is included in those passages that provide the rationale for the conquest. Not only were the Israelites outnumbered by an entrenched population (Deut 9:1), but the giant Anakim they had feared back in Num 13:33 had to be dealt with (Deut 9:2). Hendel makes a similar point about the giant clans: "The function of the Nephilim-Rephaim in all of these [biblical] traditions is constant—they exist in order to be wiped out: by the flood, by Moses, by David, and others.…

Note that the giant aboriginal inhabitants of Seir, Ammon, and Gaza are also utterly annihilated, generally by Yahweh (Deut 2:12, 20–23); see also Deut 9:1–3; Amos 2:9" (Ronald S. Hendel, "Of Demigods and the Deluge: Toward and Interpretation of Genesis 6:1–4," Journal of Biblical Literature 106.1 [March 1987]: 21 and note).

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

11–12 This passage therefore adds another clarification to the generalized description of Num 11:28–29. As discussed earlier, the spies had made the blanket statement that they had seen Anakim wherever they had gone. One of those locations was the "hill country" where the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites dwelled. These people groups are noted in Joshua 11's description of the northern campaign. Deut 9:1–2 seems to support this approach, as the Anakim of verse 2 appear to be cast as a subset of the population described in verse 1. Deut 9:1–2 is important in this regard as it is included in those passages that provide the rationale for the conquest. Not only were the Israelites outnumbered by an entrenched population (Deut 9:1), but the giant Anakim they had feared back in Num 13:33 had to be dealt with (Deut 9:2). Hendel makes a similar point about the giant clans: “The function of the Nephilim-Rephaim in all of these [biblical] traditions is constant—they exist in order to be wiped out: by the flood, by Moses, by David, and others.… Note that the giant aboriginal inhabitants of Seir, Ammon, and Gaza are also utterly annihilated, generally by Yahweh (Deut 2:12, 20–23); see also Deut 9:1–3; Amos 2:9” (Ronald S. Hendel, “Of Demigods and the Deluge: Toward and Interpretation of Genesis 6:1–4,” Journal of Biblical Literature 106.1 [March 1987]: 21 and note).

2. Note that the Caphtorim "lived in villages as far as Gaza" (v. 23). Gaza would become known as a Philistine city. Caphtor is an island in the Aegean, likely Crete. In David's era, Goliath would be numbered among the Philistines.

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

7. The result of the cohabitation (or some other form of divine intervention per the ensuing discussion) is also something that causes hesitation. The information obtainable from the text of Scripture and archaeology leads to the conclusion that neither the Nephilim nor their descendants were freakishly tall. The evidence points to the same range for unusually tall people today (the upper six-foot range to eight feet; see chapter 25). The size of Og's bed (Deut 3:11) cannot be taken as a precise indication of Og's own dimensions. See the discussion in chapter 24.

16. Recall from chapter 23 that the dimensions for Og's bed are not a reliable indicator of his own size. The dimensions are an overt link back to the sacred marriage bed of Marduk, a deity whose own size is of mythological proportions. While there is no doubt that Deut 3:11 has Og as a Rephaim giant, we cannot know how tall he was from his bed.

11. See also Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15–16; Deut 4:13; 5:22.

11. Mount Sinai is also called Mount Horeb in the Old Testament. For example, see Exod 3:1–3; Deut 4:15; 5:2; 1 Kgs 8:9.

20. The phrase "host of heaven" is at times used as frequent generic designation for divine beings—members of the nonterrestrial world, good or evil (e.g., 1 Kgs 22:19 and 2 Kgs 17:16, respectively). However, it is distinctly associated with those lesser elohim set over the nations who are enemies of Yahweh and his people (Deut 4:19; 17:3).

7. The connection of the gods of the nations installed in Deut 32:8–9 with the demons (Hebrew: shedim) of Deut 32:17 can be traced by comparing Deut 32:8–9 with Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:25–26; 32:17. The interconnections of these passages is why Deuteronomy 32:17 refers to the shedim ("demons") as elohim ("gods"). Many English translations obscure all this, sometimes in very awkward ways that require ignoring grammar and syntax. See Michael S. Heiser, "Does Deuteronomy 32:17 Assume or Deny the Reality of Other Gods?" Bible Translator 59.3 (July 2008): 137–45. As noted in earlier chapters, the term shedim comes from Akkadian shadu, which describes a guardian spirit. The word choice is appropriate in Deut 32:17 given the context of Deut 32:8–9 and cosmic geography: the nations are the domains of other gods who are, in turn, their guardians. Instead of administering Yahweh's just rule in these nations under his authority, preparing them for their return to Yahweh via Israel and the terms of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3), these divine beings lured Yahweh's children to worship them and abused their charge (Psa 82).

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for

Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

11. Mount Sinai is also called Mount Horeb in the Old Testament. For example, see Exod 3:1–3; Deut 4:15; 5:2; 1 Kgs 8:9.

11. See also Exod 24:12; 31:18; 32:15–16; Deut 4:13; 5:22.

2. Only one passage in the New Testament suggests a differentiation between body, soul, and spirit: 1 Thess 5:23. Since the Old Testament clearly sees two parts to humans (body and soul/spirit; material and immaterial), it is best to interpret this single verse the same way for theological consistency. Many scholars do not consider soul and spirit in this verse as discrete, separate items. This verse is similar to the shema (Deut 6:4; cf. Matt 22:37; Mark 12:29–30), which tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, and might. The point is totality, not that heart, soul, might (and mind in the gospel references) are separable. The Old Testament uses both nephesh and ruach to describe the source of these inner parts. Totality is also the point of Heb 4:12 (which actually uses four items, not three).

7. For example, Perizzites, Hittites, Hivites, Girgashites, etc. (Exod 3:8; 23:23; Deut 7:1; 20:17; Josh 12:8).

8. This is not to say, however, that there were vast numbers of giant clan members. The account of Caleb is of interest in this regard. Caleb was one of the original twelve spies sent in by Moses (Num 13:6, 30). He and Joshua were the only two who believed that Yahweh would give victory over the giant Anakim and were therefore allowed to enter the land forty years later (Num 14:30). Part of the original spying account in Num 13:22 notes that the spies encountered "Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of Anak" in Hebron. The same three individuals are listed in Josh 15:14 as being driven out by the returning Caleb. Were these the only Anakim in Hebron? Were these three names representative of lineages? The latter seems likelier than the former, because the same three names surface again in Judg 1:10, where they are defeated by the tribe of Judah. Either the same three Anakim (or their families) escaped death at the hands of Caleb (note they were "driven out" in Josh 15:14) only to meet their demise later, or these names are emblematic of tribes (or clans) which were part of the Nephilim bloodline targeted by Israelites in both Joshua's wars and the efforts noted in the book of Judges after Joshua's death. If we presume the situation in Hebron is representative of the situation in Canaan, then various cities mentioned in the conquest narratives may have been home to various clans or family groups belonging to Anak. One certainly does not get the picture of huge numbers of Anakim, much less the entire population of Canaan being Anakim. Doak references Deut 9:1–2 and Josh 11:21–22 as evidence that the Anakim were conceived of as ubiquitous throughout the land (Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim:

Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7 [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013], 73–74). In my view, this is an overreading of these passages. Deut 9:1–2 can quite easily be read as first referencing the general population (v. 1—"nations greater and mightier than you"—note the plural) and then singling out the Anakim who live among those nations (v. 2). The statement in Josh 11:21–22 that "Joshua came at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel" does not require the conclusion that Anakim are to be equated with the entire population of Canaan. Rather, it could just as well mean that wherever Anakim were encountered within Canaan they were eliminated. In other words, the passages can speak to how the Anakim had permeated Canaan without making the term a virtual synonym for "the nations" within Canaan.

11. This passage therefore adds another clarification to the generalized description of Num 11:28–29. As discussed earlier, the spies had made the blanket statement that they had seen Anakim wherever they had gone. One of those locations was the "hill country" where the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites dwelled. These people groups are noted in Joshua 11's description of the northern campaign. Deut 9:1–2 seems to support this approach, as the Anakim of verse 2 appear to be cast as a subset of the population described in verse 1. Deut 9:1–2 is important in this regard as it is included in those passages that provide the rationale for the conquest. Not only were the Israelites outnumbered by an entrenched population (Deut 9:1), but the giant Anakim they had feared back in Num 13:33 had to be dealt with (Deut 9:2). Hendel makes a similar point about the giant clans: "The function of the Nephilim-Rephaim in all of these [biblical] traditions is constant—they exist in order to be wiped out: by the flood, by Moses, by David, and others.… Note that the giant aboriginal inhabitants of Seir, Ammon, and Gaza are also utterly annihilated, generally by Yahweh (Deut 2:12, 20–23); see also Deut 9:1–3; Amos 2:9" (Ronald S. Hendel, "Of Demigods and the Deluge: Toward and Interpretation of Genesis 6:1–4," Journal of Biblical Literature 106.1 [March 1987]: 21 and note).

11. This passage therefore adds another clarification to the generalized description of Num 11:28–29. As discussed earlier, the spies had made the blanket statement that they had seen Anakim wherever they had gone. One of those locations was the "hill country" where the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites dwelled. These people groups are noted in Joshua 11's description of the northern campaign. Deut 9:1–2 seems to support this approach, as the Anakim of verse 2 appear to be cast as a subset of the population described in verse 1. Deut 9:1–2 is important in this regard as it is included in those passages that provide the rationale for the conquest. Not only were the Israelites outnumbered by an entrenched population (Deut 9:1), but the giant Anakim they had feared back in Num 13:33 had to be dealt with (Deut 9:2). Hendel makes a similar point about the giant clans: "The function of the Nephilim-Rephaim in all of these [biblical] traditions is constant—they exist in order to be wiped out: by the flood, by Moses, by David, and others.… Note that the giant aboriginal inhabitants of Seir, Ammon, and Gaza are also utterly annihilated, generally by Yahweh (Deut 2:12, 20–23); see also Deut 9:1–3; Amos 2:9" (Ronald S. Hendel, "Of Demigods and the Deluge: Toward and Interpretation of Genesis 6:1–4," Journal of Biblical Literature 106.1 [March 1987]: 21 and note).

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

9. The term is also used in two passages in Deuteronomy whose context is actually post-conquest. Deut 13:12–18 presupposes Israelite occupation ("one of your cities") and is a command for kherem against anyone who would seek to make Israelites worship other gods. Deut 20:10–18 is concerned with rules for future wars when Israel is settled in the land. The passage has Israel in possession of chariots (a weapon they did not have coming out of Egypt) and allows Israel to offer peace to targeted cities. The kherem ensues when peace is rejected. The logic (threat of apostasy and idolatry) is the same.

11. A good scholarly resource on this point is Guy Waters, The End of Deuteronomy in the Epistles of Paul (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 221; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2006). See especially footnote 12 on page 134, where the Waters provides a list of commentators that argue Paul has Deut 32:17 explicitly in view in 1 Cor 10:20. Proving that the elohim/shedim of Deut 32:17 are not merely idols does not depend on 1 Cor 10:20. Their spiritual identity is evident after a trip through Deuteronomy. In Deut 32:8–9 (reading v. 8 with the Dead Sea Scrolls, as do the ESV and NRSV), when the nations were divided at the tower of Babel incident, the nations were placed by God under the authority of lesser elohim, the "sons of God" (see chapter 14 of this book for more detail). The parallel passage to that text is Deut 4:19–20. There the gods "allotted" to the other nations while Yahweh took Israel are called the "host of heaven." Worshiping them is forbidden. This is the same language as in 1 Kgs 22:13–23, where the prophet Micaiah has a vision of a divine council meeting (see chapter 7 of this book). These members of the "host of heaven" are called elohim in Deut 17:2–5, where Israel is again warned to not worship them. Unfortunately, Deut 29:25 informs us that Israelites did worship elohim that were not "allotted" to them. These passages, along with Deut 32:17, interchange the following terms or phrases: host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim). This is where Paul got his theology. He isn't innovating—he knows Deuteronomy well.

7. The connection of the gods of the nations installed in Deut 32:8–9 with the demons (Hebrew: shedim) of Deut 32:17 can be traced by comparing Deut 32:8–9 with Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:25–26; 32:17. The interconnections of these passages is why Deuteronomy 32:17 refers to the shedim (“demons”) as elohim (“gods”). Many English translations obscure all this, sometimes in very awkward ways that require ignoring grammar and syntax. See Michael S. Heiser, “Does Deuteronomy 32:17 Assume or Deny the Reality of Other Gods?” Bible Translator 59.3 (July 2008): 137–45. As noted in earlier chapters, the term shedim comes from Akkadian shadu, which describes a guardian spirit. The word choice is appropriate in Deut 32:17 given the context of Deut 32:8–9 and cosmic geography: the nations are the domains of other gods who are, in turn, their guardians. Instead of administering Yahweh’s just rule in these nations under his authority, preparing them for their return to Yahweh via Israel and the terms of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3), these divine beings lured Yahweh’s children to worship them and abused their charge (Psa 82).

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, “You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!” (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham’s descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we’ve looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: “When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD’s portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage” (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his “portion,” the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons

(shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

20. The phrase "host of heaven" is at times used as frequent generic designation for divine beings—members of the nonterrestrial world, good or evil (e.g., 1 Kgs 22:19 and 2 Kgs 17:16, respectively). However, it is distinctly associated with those lesser elohim set over the nations who are enemies of Yahweh and his people (Deut 4:19; 17:3).

9. The term is also used in two passages in Deuteronomy whose context is actually post-conquest. Deut 13:12–18 presupposes Israelite occupation ("one of your cities") and is a command for kherem against anyone who would seek to make Israelites worship other gods. Deut 20:10–18 is concerned with rules for future wars when Israel is settled in the land. The passage has Israel in possession of chariots (a weapon they did not have coming out of Egypt) and allows Israel to offer peace to targeted cities. The kherem ensues when peace is rejected. The logic (threat of apostasy and idolatry) is the same.

7. For example, Perizzites, Hittites, Hivites, Girgashites, etc. (Exod 3:8; 23:23; Deut 7:1; 20:17; Josh 12:8).

3. See Lev 12; 15:1–30; 18:19; 20:18; 22:4–6; Deut 23:10–15.

2. See Lev 26:12; Deut 23:14 (Hebrew: 15); 2 Sam 7:6–7.

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel's return. On Zerubbabel's lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: "He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin's eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel's to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut 25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel's heir, he would be first in line for the throne." Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God's agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet's eschatological outlook for the nation's destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). "Joshua," of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua ("salvation"), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means "seed of Babel." While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh's son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God's son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, "The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

6. It is also misguided to argue that the Sethite view is valid because the writers and editors of the Torah were living under the law. There are near-relation marriages in the Genesis story prior to the Sinai legislation. For example, Abraham and Sarah had the same father, but different mothers, a forbidden sexual relationship in the Torah (Gen 20:12; cf. Lev 18:9, 11; 20:17; Deut 27:22). In other words, the later legal backdrop of Sinai isn't being presumed elsewhere in Genesis, so it cannot be presumed as the backdrop for Gen 6:1–4. There simply is no support for condemned human intermarriage in the text.

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

11. A good scholarly resource on this point is Guy Waters, The End of Deuteronomy in the Epistles of Paul (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 221; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2006). See especially footnote 12 on page 134, where the Waters provides a list of commentators that argue Paul has Deut 32:17 explicitly in view in 1 Cor 10:20. Proving that the elohim/shedim of Deut 32:17 are not merely idols does not depend on 1 Cor 10:20. Their spiritual identity is evident after a trip through Deuteronomy. In Deut 32:8–9 (reading v. 8 with the Dead Sea Scrolls, as do the ESV and NRSV), when the nations were divided at the tower of Babel incident, the nations were placed by God under the authority of lesser elohim, the "sons of God" (see chapter 14 of this book for more detail). The parallel passage to that text is Deut 4:19–20. There the gods "allotted" to the other nations while Yahweh took Israel are called the "host of heaven." Worshiping them is forbidden. This is the same language as in 1 Kgs 22:13–23, where the prophet Micaiah has a vision of a divine council meeting (see chapter 7 of this book). These members of the "host of heaven" are called elohim in Deut 17:2–5, where Israel is again warned to not worship them. Unfortunately, Deut 29:25 informs us that Israelites did worship elohim that were not "allotted" to them. These passages, along with Deut 32:17, interchange the following terms or phrases: host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim). This is where Paul got his theology. He isn't innovating—he knows Deuteronomy well.

7. The connection of the gods of the nations installed in Deut 32:8–9 with the demons (Hebrew: shedim) of Deut 32:17 can be traced by comparing Deut 32:8–9 with Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:25–26; 32:17. The interconnections of these passages is why Deuteronomy 32:17 refers to the shedim ("demons") as elohim ("gods"). Many English translations obscure all this, sometimes in very awkward ways that require ignoring grammar and syntax. See Michael S. Heiser, "Does Deuteronomy 32:17 Assume or Deny the Reality of Other Gods?" Bible Translator 59.3 (July 2008): 137–45. As noted in earlier chapters, the term shedim comes from Akkadian shadu, which describes a guardian spirit. The word choice is appropriate in Deut 32:17 given the context of Deut 32:8–9 and cosmic geography: the nations are the domains of other gods who are, in turn, their guardians. Instead of administering Yahweh's just rule in these nations under his authority, preparing them for their return to Yahweh via Israel and the terms of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3), these divine beings lured Yahweh's children to worship them and abused their charge (Psa 82).

2. The Torah was clear that possession of the promised land was linked to obedience, particularly in regard to rejecting the worship of other gods and idolatry (e.g., Lev 26; Deut 4:25–27, 39–40; 11:18–24). The preaching of the prophets, the destruction of the temple, and expulsion from the land itself jolted the exiled Israelites to the realization that their exile was due to disobedience. Consequently, the Torah became the central focus of the surviving community. In exile, the teaching of the law in the new institution of the synagogue replaced temple ritual in the religious life of the community. Synagogues and the focus on the law were retained even after the return to the land and the building of a new temple. With Israel determined to never be driven from the land again, the law became the orientation point for Judaism. The focus on obedience to the law became a way for the Jewish community to express commitment to God's election of Israel and remain in the land. With respect to this mentality, one scholar notes: "To the exiles, the Pentateuch's curses for disobedience to the covenant must have appeared to be a breathtakingly accurate prediction of the Babylonian invasion and subsequent exile (Lev 26:14–46; Deut 28:43–52, 64–67; 29:22–28; 31:14–29). Thus when the Persians overran the Babylonians and subsequently allowed expatriate Israelites to return to their native land the leaders of the return understandably resolved to adhere strictly to the law and so to avoid future punishment for disobedience. Their Achilles heel prior to the exile, they believed, was their seduction into idolatry by foreign influences. The road to a restored covenant relationship with God, they reasoned, was a renewed determination to fence themselves off from harmful foreign influences by strictly obeying the Law" (F. Theilman, "Law," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters [ed. Gerald F. Hawthorne, Ralph P. Martin, and Daniel G. Reid; Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1993], 533).

1. See Joel Aaron Reemtsma, "Punishment of the Powers: Deut 32:8 and Psalm 82 as the Backdrop for Isaiah 34," (paper presented at the annual meeting of the Evangelical Theological Society, November 19, 2014; San Diego, CA; Ronald Bergey, "The Song of Moses (Deut 32:1–43) and Isaianic Prophecies: A Case of Intertextuality?" Journal for the Study of the Old Testament 28:1 (2003):33–54; Thomas A. Keiser, "The Song of Moses as a Basis for Isaiah's Prophecy," Vetus Testamentum 55 (2005): 486–500.

11. A good scholarly resource on this point is Guy Waters, The End of Deuteronomy in the Epistles of Paul (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 221; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2006). See especially footnote 12 on page 134, where the Waters provides a list of commentators that argue Paul has Deut 32:17 explicitly in view in 1 Cor 10:20. Proving that the elohim/shedim of Deut 32:17 are not merely idols does not depend on 1 Cor 10:20. Their spiritual identity is evident after a trip through Deuteronomy. In Deut 32:8–9 (reading v. 8 with the Dead Sea Scrolls, as do the ESV and NRSV), when the nations were divided at the tower of Babel incident, the nations were placed by God under the authority of lesser elohim, the "sons of God" (see chapter 14 of this book for more detail). The parallel passage to that text is Deut 4:19–20. There the gods "allotted" to the other nations while Yahweh took Israel are called the "host of heaven." Worshiping them is forbidden. This is the same language as in 1 Kgs 22:13–23, where the prophet Micaiah has a vision of a divine council meeting (see chapter 7 of this book). These members of the "host of heaven" are called elohim in Deut 17:2–5, where Israel is again warned to not worship them. Unfortunately, Deut 29:25 informs us that Israelites did worship elohim that were not "allotted" to them. These passages, along with Deut 32:17, interchange the following terms or phrases: host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim). This is where Paul got his theology. He isn't innovating—he knows Deuteronomy well.

6. For a discussion of the Hebrew text and manuscript support for “sons of God,” see Michael S. Heiser, “Deuteronomy 32:8 and the Sons of God,” Bibliotheca Sacra 158 (January-March 2001): 52–74. The ESV and NRSV have incorporated the reading of the scrolls into the running translation. Other English translations leave it in a footnote.

9. Rev 2:7, 26–28; 3:21; 5:10; 21:24 [“kings” = rulers]. The idea of believers ruling over nations must be read in the context of the reclamation of the nations disinherited by God in Deut 32:8–9 (see chapter 15 and the final chapter of this book). The eschatological portrayal of glorified human rulers in a global Eden is why Hos 1:10 cannot be used to argue that the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4 are human. First, the phrase is not a precise parallel. Second, that passage must be viewed in the larger context of biblical theology. Hos 1:10 is eschatological. It looks to a distant future time when the northern kingdom of Israel will be restored as people of God. That eschatological event coincides with the ultimate glorification of believers—who are, and will be, children of the living God, ruling and reigning with Yahweh, as originally intended, in a new, global Eden. The fact that God will see his human family fulfill the original Edenic goal does not overturn the fact that God also has a divine family. At the last day, when human believers are glorified, the two families and councils merge. One family of God doesn’t erase the other.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations “among the sons of God” at Babel and declares Israel his own “portion” (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram’s name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a “great name” to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and “men of the name,” are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

7. The connection of the gods of the nations installed in Deut 32:8–9 with the demons (Hebrew: shedim) of Deut 32:17 can be traced by comparing Deut 32:8–9 with Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:25–26; 32:17. The interconnections of these passages is why Deuteronomy 32:17 refers to the shedim ("demons") as elohim ("gods"). Many English translations obscure all this, sometimes in very awkward ways that require ignoring grammar and syntax. See Michael S. Heiser, "Does Deuteronomy 32:17 Assume or Deny the Reality of Other Gods?" Bible Translator 59.3 (July 2008): 137–45. As noted in earlier chapters, the term shedim comes from Akkadian shadu, which describes a guardian spirit. The word choice is appropriate in Deut 32:17 given the context of Deut 32:8–9 and cosmic geography: the nations are the domains of other gods who are, in turn, their guardians. Instead of administering Yahweh's just rule in these nations under his authority, preparing them for their return to Yahweh via Israel and the terms of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3), these divine beings lured Yahweh's children to worship them and abused their charge (Psa 82).

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

13. The idea of kherem is that of devoting something wholly to God. As Naudé notes, the verb "involves consecration of something or someone as a permanent and definitive offering for the sanctuary; or in war, the consecration of a city and its inhabitants to destruction and the carrying out of this destruction" ("khā·ram (I), khe·rĕm (I)," 276). The logic is that the elimination of these targeted bloodlines, perceived as the spawn of hostile gods, was a gesture of burnt offering back to Yahweh. Not only had other gods encroached on Yahweh's portion (Deut 32:9), violating the boundaries of their own allotment, but they had raised up warriors to prevent Yahweh's children from inheriting his land. The only way to ensure occupation of the land was to eliminate the giant-warrior clans raised up to prevent that occupation. Kherem was a fierce judgment on any lethal threat by other gods against Yahweh's own children in Yahweh's own land.

7. The connection of the gods of the nations installed in Deut 32:8–9 with the demons (Hebrew: shedim) of Deut 32:17 can be traced by comparing Deut 32:8–9 with Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:25–26; 32:17. The interconnections of these passages is why Deuteronomy 32:17 refers to the shedim ("demons") as elohim ("gods"). Many English translations obscure all this, sometimes in very awkward ways that require ignoring grammar and syntax. See Michael S. Heiser, "Does Deuteronomy 32:17 Assume or Deny the Reality of Other Gods?" Bible Translator 59.3 (July 2008): 137–45. As noted in earlier chapters, the term shedim comes from Akkadian shadu, which describes a guardian spirit. The word choice is appropriate in Deut 32:17 given the context of Deut 32:8–9 and cosmic geography: the nations are the domains of other gods who are, in turn, their guardians. Instead of administering Yahweh's just rule in these nations under his authority, preparing them for their return to Yahweh via Israel and the terms of the Abrahamic covenant (Gen 12:3), these divine beings lured Yahweh's children to worship them and abused their charge (Psa 82).

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

5. Deut 33:1–2; Acts 7:52–53; Gal 3:19; Heb 2:2; See chapter 21.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the

definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

1. Despite their unusual size, the biblical text is clear that the giant clan members were human. For example, the word 'adam ("humankind"; cf. Gen 1:26–27) is used to describe the victims of the conquest in cities associated with giant clans (Josh 11:14). Arba is called "the greatest man ('adam) among the Anakim." The generic Hebrew word for people ('am; i.e., human populations) is also used of giant clans: Deut 2:10 (the Emim); Deut 2:20 (the Zamzummim); Deut 3:1–3 (Og's people); Deut 9:2 (the Anakim). This language raises the question of how both supernaturalist views of Gen 6:1–4 (see ch. 13) would understand this human description of the Anakim against the clear genealogical link back to the quasi-divine Nephilim (Num 13:33). For those favoring literal cohabitation in Gen 6:1–4, the point of the language ascribing humanity to Nephilim descendants would simply mean Anakim were mortal—not immortal gods. For those preferring the sort of divine parentage of which Yahweh's intervention to produce the Israelites is an analogy, human descriptions would not be unexpected, as Israelites were obviously human despite Yahweh's intervention.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

8. This is not to say, however, that there were vast numbers of giant clan members. The account of Caleb is of interest in this regard. Caleb was one of the original twelve spies sent in by Moses (Num 13:6, 30). He and Joshua were the only two who believed that Yahweh would give victory over the giant Anakim and were therefore allowed to enter the land forty years later (Num 14:30). Part of the original spying account in Num 13:22 notes that the spies encountered "Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of Anak" in Hebron. The same three individuals are listed in Josh 15:14 as being driven out by the returning Caleb. Were these the only Anakim in Hebron? Were these three names representative of lineages? The latter seems likelier than the former, because the same three names surface again in Judg 1:10, where they are defeated by the tribe of Judah. Either the same three Anakim (or their families) escaped death at the hands of Caleb (note they were "driven out" in Josh 15:14) only to meet their demise later, or these names are emblematic of tribes (or clans) which were part of the Nephilim bloodline targeted by Israelites in both Joshua's wars and the efforts noted in the book of Judges after Joshua's death. If we presume the situation in Hebron is representative of the situation in Canaan, then various cities mentioned in the conquest narratives may have been home to various clans or family groups belonging to Anak. One certainly does not get the picture of huge numbers of Anakim, much less the entire population of Canaan being Anakim. Doak references Deut 9:1–2 and Josh 11:21–22 as evidence that the Anakim were conceived of as ubiquitous throughout the land (Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim: Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7 [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013], 73–74). In my view, this is an overreading of these passages. Deut 9:1–2 can quite easily be read as first referencing the general population (v. 1—"nations greater and mightier than you"—note the plural) and then singling out the Anakim who live among those nations (v. 2). The statement in Josh 11:21–22 that "Joshua came at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel" does not require the conclusion that Anakim are to be equated with the entire population of Canaan. Rather, it could just as well mean that wherever Anakim were encountered within Canaan they were eliminated. In other words, the passages can speak to how the Anakim had permeated Canaan without making the term a virtual synonym for "the nations" within Canaan.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

7. For example, Perizzites, Hittites, Hivites, Girgashites, etc. (Exod 3:8; 23:23; Deut 7:1; 20:17; Josh 12:8).

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name

"Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

14. Josh 13:11–12, 30–31 describes Og's general kingdom as the region of Bashan, which encompassed sixty cities.

14. Josh 13:11–12, 30–31 describes Og's general kingdom as the region of Bashan, which encompassed sixty cities.

4. The language also points forward. After Yahweh divides the nations "among the sons of God" at Babel and declares Israel his own "portion" (Deut 32:8–9), he calls Abram. The intention is not only to start over with a people through whom God will restart the rule of God on earth. In Gen 12:1–3 we learn that Yahweh will make Abram's name (shem) great. This is but one aspect of the Abrahamic covenant. Other parts of the covenant description connect a "great name" to divine protection and blessing. The lemmas used in the covenant language appear in the meeting between Abram and Melchizedek (Gen 14) and in the patriarchal blessing of Judah by Jacob, in which the well-known prophecy of kingship is found (Gen 49:10). See the companion website for discussion. The Nephilim, called gibborim and "men of the name," are the ancestors of the giant clans encountered by Moses and Joshua centuries later in the struggle to claim the land Yahweh had allotted as the inheritance of his people (Num 13:32–33; 21:31–35; Deut 1–3; Josh 11:21–22; 14:12–15). See chapters 23–25.

8. This is not to say, however, that there were vast numbers of giant clan members. The account of Caleb is of interest in this regard. Caleb was one of the original twelve spies sent in by Moses (Num 13:6, 30). He and Joshua were the only two who believed that Yahweh would give victory over the giant Anakim and were therefore allowed to enter the land forty years later (Num 14:30). Part of the original spying account in Num 13:22 notes that the spies encountered "Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of Anak" in Hebron. The same three individuals are listed in Josh 15:14 as being driven out by the returning Caleb. Were these the only Anakim in Hebron? Were these three names representative of lineages? The latter seems likelier than the former, because the same three names surface again in Judg 1:10, where they are defeated by the tribe of Judah. Either the same three Anakim (or their families) escaped death at the hands of Caleb (note they were "driven out" in Josh 15:14) only to meet their demise later, or these names are emblematic of tribes (or clans) which were part of the Nephilim bloodline targeted by Israelites in both Joshua's wars and the efforts noted in the book of Judges after Joshua's death. If we presume the situation in Hebron is representative of the situation in Canaan, then various cities mentioned in the conquest narratives may have been home to various clans or family groups belonging to Anak. One certainly does not get the picture of huge numbers of Anakim, much less the entire population of Canaan being Anakim. Doak references Deut 9:1–2 and Josh 11:21–22 as evidence that the Anakim were conceived of as ubiquitous throughout the land (Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim: Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7 [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013], 73–74). In my view, this is an overreading of these passages. Deut 9:1–2 can quite easily be read as first referencing the general population (v. 1—"nations greater and mightier than you"—note the plural) and then singling out the Anakim who live among those nations (v. 2). The statement in Josh 11:21–22 that "Joshua came at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel" does not require the conclusion that Anakim are to be equated with the entire population of Canaan. Rather, it could just as well mean that wherever Anakim were encountered within Canaan they were eliminated. In other words, the passages can speak to how the Anakim had permeated Canaan without making the term a virtual synonym for "the nations" within Canaan.

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash ("to drive out": Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash ("to dispossess, drive out": Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

16. See Duane F. Watson, "Hinnom Valley (Place)," Anchor Bible Dictionary, 3:202. Josh 18:16 (ESV) refers to "the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, which is at the north end of the Valley of Rephaim."

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that "no one remained" in a city or

region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash (“to drive out”: Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash (“to dispossess, drive out”: Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that “no one remained” in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash (“to drive out”: Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash (“to dispossess, drive out”: Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that “no one remained” in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash (“to drive out”: Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash (“to dispossess, drive out”: Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that “no one remained” in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash (“to drive out”: Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash (“to dispossess, drive out”: Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

14. That is, they lack the specificity of kharam in that regard. When the biblical text in certain instances says that “no one remained” in a city or region, it cannot be assumed that this means everyone died (i.e., was a victim of kherem) unless that clarification is added. They may have been driven away or fled, since the commands of conquest utilize other vocabulary: garash (“to drive out”: Exod 23:28, 29, 30, 31; 33:2; Deut 33:27; Josh 24:12, 18); yarash (“to dispossess, drive out”: Exod 34:24; Num 21:32; 33:52, 53, 55; Josh 3:10; 12:1; 13:6; 17:12, 13; 23:5, 9).

8. This is not to say, however, that there were vast numbers of giant clan members. The account of Caleb is of interest in this regard. Caleb was one of the original twelve spies sent in by Moses (Num 13:6, 30). He and Joshua were the only two who believed that Yahweh would give victory over the giant Anakim and were therefore allowed to enter the land forty years later (Num 14:30). Part of the original spying account in Num 13:22 notes that the spies encountered "Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of Anak" in Hebron. The same three individuals are listed in Josh 15:14 as being driven out by the returning Caleb. Were these the only Anakim in Hebron? Were these three names representative of lineages? The latter seems likelier than the former, because the same three names surface again in Judg 1:10, where they are defeated by the tribe of Judah. Either the same three Anakim (or their families) escaped death at the hands of Caleb (note they were "driven out" in Josh 15:14) only to meet their demise later, or these names are emblematic of tribes (or clans) which were part of the Nephilim bloodline targeted by Israelites in both Joshua's wars and the efforts noted in the book of Judges after Joshua's death. If we presume the situation in Hebron is representative of the situation in Canaan, then various cities mentioned in the conquest narratives may have been home to various clans or family groups belonging to Anak. One certainly does not get the picture of huge numbers of Anakim, much less the entire population of Canaan being Anakim. Doak references Deut 9:1–2 and Josh 11:21–22 as evidence that the Anakim were conceived of as ubiquitous throughout the land (Brian Doak, The Last of the Rephaim: Conquest and Cataclysm in the Heroic Ages of Ancient Israel, Ilex Series 7 [Cambridge: Harvard University Press, 2013], 73–74). In my view, this is an overreading of these passages. Deut 9:1–2 can quite easily be read as first referencing the general population (v. 1—"nations greater and mightier than you"—note the plural) and then singling out the Anakim who live among those nations (v. 2). The statement in Josh 11:21–22 that "Joshua came at that time and cut off the Anakim from the hill country, from Hebron, from Debir, from Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel" does not require the conclusion that Anakim are to be equated with the entire population of Canaan. Rather, it could just as well mean that wherever Anakim were encountered within Canaan they were eliminated. In other words, the passages can speak to how the Anakim had permeated Canaan without making the term a virtual synonym for “the nations” within Canaan.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, “Rapha,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name “Goliath” is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, “Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza,” Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name “Goliath” on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, “A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance,” Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical ’anaqim (’nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, “Anak/’anx,” Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of ’anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

5. Bethel was also the place where Deborah the prophetess, who sat under the terebinth tree, lived (Judg 4:5). I have omitted subjects like divination from much of the book. See the companion website for how that subject is informed by the divine council and Israel's supernatural worldview.

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg 5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, "Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah," Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, "Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job," Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

5. See also Judg 5:20; Dan 8:10; 12:3; Rev 1:20; 12:4, 9.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992):

169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings "marrying" human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the "marriage" idea derives from English translations. The word translated "wife" is simply the normal plural for "women" (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of "taking" (Gen 6:2) or "going in to" a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, "taking" a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can "coming/going in to" (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God's judgment in a catastrophic flood?

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel:

Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

1. Space constraints make it impossible to fully address the flawed thinking behind the human explanation for elohim (in Psa 82 and elsewhere) in this chapter. In the discussion that proceeds, I touch on some of the more glaring logical and scriptural problems for this view. Arguments for the human view of elohim stemming from passages like Judg 18, Exod 22:7–9, Psa 45:7, or Jesus' quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10:34 are dealt with at length on the companion website.

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel's return. On Zerubbabel's lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: "He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin's eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel's to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut

25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel's heir, he would be first in line for the throne." Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God's agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet's eschatological outlook for the nation's destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). "Joshua," of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua ("salvation"), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means "seed of Babel." While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh's son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God's son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, "The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

8. See chapter 18 for the “name theology” of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called “the tent of meeting.” Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase “tent of meeting” is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a “tent of meeting” where Yahweh “lived” and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle’s construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant “original” tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

4. In 2 Sam 6:1–2 (cf. 1 Sam 4:4; Jer 7:12) we read: “David again gathered all the chosen men in Israel, thirty thousand. David got up and went and all the people who were with him, from Baale-judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts [’[a]shĕr-·niq·rā(’) shem shem yhwh ts[e]bā·’ot], upon which the cherubim sit.”

The word shem (shem) appears twice in this verse—the ark is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts. The point is that the ark is identified with the Name, who is Yahweh, since Yahweh is the one seated on the cherubim. Many English translations obscure the Hebrew text here, rendering something like “which is called by the name of the LORD of hosts,” which omits one of the occurrences of shem. The reason is that many scholars consider the dual occurrence of shem to be an accidental repetition by a scribe, what textual critics call dittography (see for example, P. Kyle McCarter Jr., II Samuel: A New Translation with Introduction, Notes, and Commentary, Anchor Yale Bible Commentary 9 [New Haven: Yale University Press, 1964, 2008], 163). While this is possible, there is no inherent interpretive problem with the Masoretic Text as it stands in view of the evidence for divine co-regency (the two Yahwehs) already noted. That the ark would be called the name is understandable, since the ark was a placeholder for the very presence of Yahweh, who is the name. The same association (note the anthropomorphic language) is conveyed in 2 Sam 7:2, where the ark is said to dwell in a tent.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., “Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology,” Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase “the whole earth” (kol ’erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, “whole land” or “all the people in the area” are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that “the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, “A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance,” Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical ’anaqim (’nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, “Anak/’anx,” Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of ’anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn’t clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, “Rapha,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name “Goliath” is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, “Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza,” Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name “Goliath” on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, “A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance,” Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical ’anaqim (’nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, “Anak/’anx,” Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of ’anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn’t clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

1. Earlier, in chapter 15, we briefly discussed cosmic geographical thinking in passages from the historical books and the period of the monarchy (e.g., 1 Sam 26:17–19; 2 Kgs 5:15–19).

15. This is not to suggest that the valley was named after Rephaim within the Philistine camp. Scripture doesn’t indicate the origin of the name, though it’s obvious it had some association with the Rephaim. Edelstein notes: “In the LXX, the valley is called (1) ‘Valley of the Rephaim (Gk Raphaim)’ (2 Sam 23:13); (2) ‘Valley of the Titans (Gk Titanon)’ (2 Sam 5:18); (3) ‘Valley of the Giants (Gk giganton)’ (1 Chr 11:15; 14:9). This reflects a tradition in which ‘Rephaim’ is the equivalent of ‘Giants.’ It may have been a matter of deliberate choice that the text has the descendants of giants (cf. Hesiod Theog. 132–60, 207–10), the Philistines (2 Samuel 15–22), outwitted by the mighty three (2 Sam 23:13–17 = 1 Chr 11:15–19) and ultimately defeated by David’s army in the ‘Valley of the Giants’ (2 Sam 5:17–25 = 1 Chr 14:8–17)”—see Gershon Edelstein, “Rephaim, Valley of (Place),” in Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary, vol. 5 (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 676.

4. In 2 Sam 6:1–2 (cf. 1 Sam 4:4; Jer 7:12) we read: “David again gathered all the chosen men in Israel, thirty thousand. David got up and went and all the people who were with him, from Baale-judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts [’^{a}shĕr-·niq·rā(’) shem shem yhwh ts^{e}bā·’ot], upon which the cherubim sit.”

The word shem (shem) appears twice in this verse—the ark is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts. The point is that the ark is identified with the Name, who is Yahweh, since Yahweh is the one seated on the cherubim. Many English translations obscure the Hebrew text here, rendering something like “which is called by the name of the LORD of hosts,” which omits one of the occurrences of shem. The reason is that many scholars consider the dual occurrence of shem to be an accidental repetition by a scribe, what textual critics call dittography (see for example, P. Kyle McCarter Jr., II Samuel: A New Translation with Introduction, Notes, and Commentary, Anchor Yale Bible Commentary 9 [New Haven: Yale University Press, 1964, 2008], 163). While this is possible, there is no inherent interpretive problem with the Masoretic Text as it stands in view of the evidence for divine co-regency (the two Yahwehs) already noted. That the ark would be called the name is understandable, since the ark was a placeholder for the very presence of Yahweh, who is the name. The same association (note the anthropomorphic language) is conveyed in 2 Sam 7:2, where the ark is said to dwell in a tent.

4. In 2 Sam 6:1–2 (cf. 1 Sam 4:4; Jer 7:12) we read: “David again gathered all the chosen men in Israel, thirty thousand. David got up and went and all the people who were with him, from Baale-judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts [’[a]shĕr-·niq·rā(’) shem shem yhwh ts[e]bā·’ot], upon which the cherubim sit.”

The word shem (shem) appears twice in this verse—the ark is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts. The point is that the ark is identified with the Name, who is Yahweh, since Yahweh is the one seated on the cherubim. Many English translations obscure the Hebrew text here, rendering something like “which is called by the name of the LORD of hosts,” which omits one of the occurrences of shem. The reason is that many scholars consider the dual occurrence of shem to be an accidental repetition by a scribe, what textual critics call dittography (see for example, P. Kyle McCarter Jr., II Samuel: A New Translation with Introduction, Notes, and Commentary, Anchor Yale Bible Commentary 9 [New Haven: Yale University Press, 1964, 2008], 163). While this is possible, there is no inherent interpretive problem with the Masoretic Text as it stands in view of the evidence for divine co-regency (the two Yahwehs) already noted. That the ark would be called the name is understandable, since the ark was a placeholder for the very presence of Yahweh, who is the name. The same association (note the anthropomorphic language) is conveyed in 2 Sam 7:2, where the ark is said to dwell in a tent.

2. See Lev 26:12; Deut 23:14 (Hebrew: 15); 2 Sam 7:6–7.

15. This is not to suggest that the valley was named after Rephaim within the Philistine camp. Scripture doesn’t indicate the origin of the name, though it’s obvious it had some association with the Rephaim. Edelstein notes: “In the LXX, the valley is called (1) ‘Valley of the Rephaim (Gk Raphaim)’ (2 Sam 23:13); (2) ‘Valley of the Titans (Gk Titanon)’ (2 Sam 5:18); (3) ‘Valley of the Giants (Gk giganton)’ (1 Chr 11:15; 14:9). This reflects a tradition in which ‘Rephaim’ is the equivalent of ‘Giants.’ It may have been a matter of deliberate choice that the text has the descendants of giants (cf. Hesiod Theog. 132–60, 207–10), the Philistines (2 Samuel 15–22), outwitted by the mighty three (2 Sam 23:13–17 = 1 Chr 11:15–19) and ultimately defeated by David’s army in the ‘Valley of the Giants’ (2 Sam 5:17–25 = 1 Chr 14:8–17)”—see Gershon Edelstein, “Rephaim, Valley of (Place),” in Anchor Yale Bible

Dictionary, vol. 5 (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 676.

7. David later removed it during the time of civil unrest caused by his son Absalom (2 Sam 15:24–25). In the meantime, the place of sacrifice had become Gibeon (1 Kgs 3:4), where, we are told, an ancient "tent of meeting" of Moses had been moved (2 Chr 1:3 ESV). In Solomon's day, Gibeon was the high place of worship. The "tent of meeting" at Gibeon was actually the Mosaic tabernacle, since sacrifices were offered there (something that was not true of the tent of meeting in Moses' day). This separation of the ark at Jerusalem and the tabernacle tent at Gibeon was the situation during the time of Solomon as well, prior to Solomon's construction of the temple.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II

Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, “Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza,” Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name “Goliath” on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, “A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance,” Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical ’anaqim (’nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, “Anak/’anx,” Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of ’anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn’t clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking,

"Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

2. See also 2 Sam 22:9–13.

15. This is not to suggest that the valley was named after Rephaim within the Philistine camp. Scripture doesn't indicate the origin of the name, though it's obvious it had some association with the Rephaim. Edelstein notes: "In the LXX, the valley is called (1) 'Valley of the Rephaim (Gk Raphaim)' (2 Sam 23:13); (2) 'Valley of the Titans (Gk Titanon)' (2 Sam 5:18); (3) 'Valley of the Giants (Gk giganton)' (1 Chr 11:15; 14:9). This reflects a tradition in which 'Rephaim' is the equivalent of 'Giants.' It may have been a matter of deliberate choice that the text has the descendants of giants (cf. Hesiod Theog. 132–60, 207–10), the Philistines (2 Samuel 15–22), outwitted by the mighty three (2 Sam 23:13–17 = 1 Chr 11:15–19) and ultimately defeated by David's army in the 'Valley of the Giants' (2 Sam 5:17–25 = 1 Chr 14:8–17)"—see Gershon Edelstein, "Rephaim, Valley of (Place)," in Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary, vol. 5 (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 676.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

7. David later removed it during the time of civil unrest caused by his son Absalom (2 Sam 15:24–25). In the meantime, the place of sacrifice had become Gibeon (1 Kgs 3:4), where, we are told, an ancient "tent of meeting" of Moses had been moved (2 Chr 1:3 ESV). In Solomon's day, Gibeon was the high place of worship. The "tent of meeting" at Gibeon was actually the Mosaic tabernacle, since sacrifices were offered there (something that was not true of the tent of meeting in Moses' day). This separation of the ark at Jerusalem and the tabernacle tent at Gibeon was the situation during the time of Solomon as well, prior to Solomon's construction of the temple.

10. See R. E. Friedman, "Tabernacle," in Anchor Bible Dictionary (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 6:292–300; Friedman, "The Tabernacle in the Temple," Biblical Archaeologist 43 (1980): 241–48. Friedman seeks to incorporate more of the tabernacle structure within the temple than the holy of holies, an idea that has drawn sharp criticism (see Victor Avigdor Hurowitz, "The Form and Fate of the Tabernacle: Reflections on a Recent Proposal," Jewish Quarterly Review 86.1–2 [July–October 1995], 127–51). My position is only that it is coherent to see the tented holy of holies from the tabernacle within the holy of holies in Solomon's temple. According to Exod 38–39, the tented area of the tabernacle (holy place and holy of holies) measured ten cubits wide and thirty cubits long (15 feet by 45 feet). The holy of holies was a ten-cubit cube area. The corresponding spaces in Solomon's temple were larger: sixty cubits long, twenty cubits wide, and thirty cubits high (1 Kgs 6:2), with the holy of holies a twenty-cubit cube. In terms of spacing, there is no obstacle to having the tented holy of holies from the desert tabernacle within the innermost sanctum of the temple. In my view, this explains some of the "tent" language associated with the temple (see the following note). The cherubim throne graphic is from Martin Metzger, Königsthron und Gottesthron: Thronformen und Throndarstellungen in Ägypten und im Vorderen Orient im dritten und zweiten Jahrtausend vor Christus und deren Bedeutung für das Verständis von Aussagen über den Thron im Alten Testament (Kevelaer: Butzon and Bercker, 1985).

8. See chapter 18 for the “name theology” of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called “the tent of meeting.” Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase “tent of meeting” is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5) there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a “tent of meeting” where Yahweh “lived” and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle’s construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a “tent of meeting” after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant “original” tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

11. We know the tabernacle tent structure (mishkan) was moved inside the temple from several other considerations. 1 Kgs 8:4–8 tells us that it wasn’t only the ark that was brought to the finished temple, but also the tabernacle and its accoutrements. Although the passage does not explicitly say the tent was moved inside the temple sanctum, other passages suggest that the tent and the temple were somehow co-identified. Well after the days of Solomon, 2 Chr 24:6 reports that when King Joash ordered repairs for the temple, he angrily asked, "Why have you not required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax of Moses, the servant of Yahweh, and of the assembly of Israel for the tent of the testimony?" (emphasis added). In 2 Chr 29:3–7 (ESV, emphasis added), Hezekiah laments the disrepair of the temple. His complaint contains both temple and tabernacle tent wordings: "In the first year of his reign, in the first month, [Hezekiah] opened the doors of the house of the LORD and repaired them. He brought in the priests and the Levites and assembled them in the square on the east and said to them, "Hear me, Levites! Now consecrate yourselves, and consecrate the house of the LORD, the God of your fathers, and carry out the filth from the Holy Place. For our fathers have been unfaithful and have done what was evil in the sight of the LORD our God. They have forsaken him and have turned away their faces from the tabernacle [mishkan] of the LORD and turned their backs. They also shut the doors of the vestibule and put out the lamps and have not burned incense or offered burnt offerings in the Holy Place to the God of Israel." It is interesting that in Hurowitz's lengthy rejection of Friedman's proposal, none of these passages from 1 Kings and 2 Chronicles are to be found.

11. Mount Sinai is also called Mount Horeb in the Old Testament. For example, see Exod 3:1–3; Deut 4:15; 5:2; 1 Kgs 8:9.

11. A good scholarly resource on this point is Guy Waters, The End of Deuteronomy in the Epistles of Paul (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 221; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2006). See especially footnote 12 on page 134, where the Waters provides a list of commentators that argue Paul has Deut 32:17 explicitly in view in 1 Cor 10:20. Proving that the elohim/shedim of Deut 32:17 are not merely idols does not depend on 1 Cor 10:20. Their spiritual identity is evident after a trip through Deuteronomy. In Deut 32:8–9 (reading v. 8 with the Dead Sea Scrolls, as do the ESV and NRSV), when the nations were divided at the tower of Babel incident, the nations were placed by God under the authority of lesser elohim, the "sons of God" (see chapter 14 of this book for more detail). The parallel passage to that text is Deut 4:19–20. There the gods "allotted" to the other nations while Yahweh took Israel are called the "host of heaven." Worshiping them is forbidden. This is the same language as in 1 Kgs 22:13–23, where the prophet Micaiah has a vision of a divine council meeting (see chapter 7 of this book). These members of the "host of heaven" are called elohim in Deut 17:2–5, where Israel is again warned to not worship them. Unfortunately, Deut 29:25 informs us that Israelites did worship elohim that were not "allotted" to them. These passages, along with Deut 32:17, interchange the following terms or phrases: host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim). This is where Paul got his theology. He isn't innovating—he knows Deuteronomy well.

20. The phrase "host of heaven" is at times used as frequent generic designation for divine beings—members of the nonterrestrial world, good or evil (e.g., 1 Kgs 22:19 and 2 Kgs 17:16, respectively). However, it is distinctly associated with those lesser elohim set over the nations who are enemies of Yahweh and his people (Deut 4:19; 17:3).

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

1. Earlier, in chapter 15, we briefly discussed cosmic geographical thinking in passages from the historical books and the period of the monarchy (e.g., 1 Sam 26:17–19; 2 Kgs 5:15–19).

20. The phrase "host of heaven" is at times used as frequent generic designation for divine beings—members of the nonterrestrial world, good or evil (e.g., 1 Kgs 22:19 and 2 Kgs 17:16, respectively). However, it is distinctly associated with those lesser elohim set over the nations who are enemies of Yahweh and his people (Deut 4:19; 17:3).

9. Some Bible maps have "Gether" near India, but this is hardly correct. As David Baker notes in the Anchor Bible Dictionary, "According to the Table of Nations (Gen 10:23), Gether is the son of Aram, the forefather of the Arameans or Syrians, who himself was the son of Shem, son of Noah. He and his descendants are thus Semitic. The corresponding genealogy in 1 Chr 1:17 places Gether as a son of Shem and brother of Aram. This is probably due to a simple copying error by an early scribe. His eye slipped from the first to the second of two lines which ended with the same word, ‘Aram,’ leading to the loss of the original line ‘the sons of Aram (are)’ which is still found in Genesis. Little else is known about the identity or geographical location of Gether, although the association with Aram would suggest an Aramean city” (see David W. Baker, “Gether [Person],” in The Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary [ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992], 997).

5. See 1 Chr 10:12; Gen 35:8.

15. This is not to suggest that the valley was named after Rephaim within the Philistine camp. Scripture doesn’t indicate the origin of the name, though it’s obvious it had some association with the Rephaim. Edelstein notes: “In the LXX, the valley is called (1) ‘Valley of the Rephaim (Gk Raphaim)’ (2 Sam 23:13); (2) ‘Valley of the Titans (Gk Titanon)’ (2 Sam 5:18); (3) ‘Valley of the Giants (Gk giganton)’ (1 Chr 11:15; 14:9). This reflects a tradition in which ‘Rephaim’ is the equivalent of ‘Giants.’ It may have been a matter of deliberate choice that the text has the descendants of giants (cf. Hesiod Theog. 132–60, 207–10), the Philistines (2 Samuel 15–22), outwitted by the mighty three (2 Sam 23:13–17 = 1 Chr 11:15–19) and ultimately defeated by David’s army in the ‘Valley of the Giants’ (2 Sam 5:17–25 = 1 Chr 14:8–17)”—see Gershon Edelstein, “Rephaim, Valley of (Place),” in Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary, vol. 5 (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 676.

15. This is not to suggest that the valley was named after Rephaim within the Philistine camp. Scripture doesn’t indicate the origin of the name, though it’s obvious it had some association with the Rephaim. Edelstein notes: “In the LXX, the valley is called (1) ‘Valley of the Rephaim (Gk Raphaim)’ (2 Sam 23:13); (2) ‘Valley of the Titans (Gk Titanon)’ (2 Sam 5:18); (3) ‘Valley of the Giants (Gk giganton)’ (1 Chr 11:15; 14:9). This reflects a tradition in which ‘Rephaim’ is the equivalent of ‘Giants.’ It may have been a matter of deliberate choice that the text has the descendants of giants (cf. Hesiod Theog. 132–60, 207–10), the Philistines (2 Samuel 15–22), outwitted by the mighty three (2 Sam 23:13–17 = 1 Chr 11:15–19) and ultimately defeated by David’s army in the ‘Valley of the Giants’ (2 Sam 5:17–25 = 1 Chr 14:8–17)”—see Gershon Edelstein, “Rephaim, Valley of (Place),” in Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary, vol. 5 (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 676.

15. This is not to suggest that the valley was named after Rephaim within the Philistine camp. Scripture doesn’t indicate the origin of the name, though it’s obvious it had some association with the Rephaim. Edelstein notes: “In the LXX, the valley is called (1) ‘Valley of the Rephaim (Gk Raphaim)’ (2 Sam 23:13); (2) ‘Valley of the Titans (Gk Titanon)’ (2 Sam 5:18); (3) ‘Valley of the Giants (Gk giganton)’ (1 Chr 11:15; 14:9). This reflects a tradition in which ‘Rephaim’ is the equivalent of ‘Giants.’ It may have been a matter of deliberate choice that the text has the descendants of giants (cf. Hesiod Theog. 132–60, 207–10), the Philistines (2 Samuel 15–22), outwitted by the mighty three (2 Sam 23:13–17 = 1 Chr 11:15–19) and ultimately defeated by David’s army in the ‘Valley of the Giants’ (2 Sam 5:17–25 = 1 Chr 14:8–17)”—see Gershon Edelstein, “Rephaim, Valley of (Place),” in Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary, vol. 5 (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 676.

15. This is not to suggest that the valley was named after Rephaim within the Philistine camp. Scripture doesn’t indicate the origin of the name, though it’s obvious it had some association with the Rephaim. Edelstein notes: “In the LXX, the valley is called (1) ‘Valley of the Rephaim (Gk Raphaim)’ (2 Sam 23:13); (2) ‘Valley of the Titans (Gk Titanon)’ (2 Sam 5:18); (3) ‘Valley of the Giants (Gk giganton)’ (1 Chr 11:15; 14:9). This reflects a tradition in which ‘Rephaim’ is the equivalent of ‘Giants.’ It may have been a matter of deliberate choice that the text has the descendants of giants (cf. Hesiod Theog. 132–60, 207–10), the Philistines (2 Samuel 15–22), outwitted by the mighty three (2 Sam 23:13–17 = 1 Chr 11:15–19) and ultimately defeated by David’s army in the ‘Valley of the Giants’ (2 Sam 5:17–25 = 1 Chr 14:8–17)”—see Gershon Edelstein, “Rephaim, Valley of (Place),” in Anchor Yale Bible Dictionary, vol. 5 (ed. David Noel Freedman; New York: Doubleday, 1992), 676.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg

3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical ’anaqim (’nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, “Anak/’anx,” Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of ’anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn’t clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, “Rapha,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name “Goliath” is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, “Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza,” Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name “Goliath” on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, “A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance,” Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical ’anaqim (’nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, “Anak/’anx,” Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of ’anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn’t clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

8. See chapter 18 for the “name theology” of the Old Testament. The whole subject of the tabernacle is not without problems. Before the tabernacle was constructed (Exod 35–40), Moses would meet with Yahweh in a small tent called “the tent of meeting.” Though some scholars take the tent of meeting and the tabernacle as the same structure, Exod 33:7–11 has the tent of meeting in existence prior to the tabernacle. The issue is actually complicated, as the phrase “tent of meeting” is at times clearly used with respect to the tabernacle (e.g., Exod 27:21; 28:43; 30:26) and at other times clearly not. Passages such as Exod 33:7–11 provide several indications that the tent of meeting was distinct from the tabernacle: (1) The passage itself appears in Exodus before the construction of the tabernacle; (2) one man (Moses) could construct the tent, unlike the much larger tabernacle, which took scores of workers to tear down, erect, and transport; (3) the tent of meeting was outside the camp, unlike the tabernacle, which was in the middle of the camp; (4) the tent of meeting was guarded and maintained by a single person; (5)

there is no indication that the tent of meeting was a place of sacrifice, or that the ark of the covenant was kept in it. The solution is apparently that, prior to the tabernacle, there was a "tent of meeting" where Yahweh "lived" and would meet Moses. Either that tent structure was moved inside the tabernacle as the holy of holies or (more coherently) the tented holy of holies became a new "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle's construction. However, certain passages in the historical books inform us that there was a "tent of meeting" after the tabernacle was in existence (1 Sam 2:22; 2 Chr 1:3; 1 Kgs 8:4). Whether these passages describe a still-extant "original" tent of meeting or a tent structure that housed holy objects during the chaos of the period of the judges and the separation of the ark of the covenant from the tabernacle is a matter of debate.

7. David later removed it during the time of civil unrest caused by his son Absalom (2 Sam 15:24–25). In the meantime, the place of sacrifice had become Gibeon (1 Kgs 3:4), where, we are told, an ancient "tent of meeting" of Moses had been moved (2 Chr 1:3 ESV). In Solomon's day, Gibeon was the high place of worship. The "tent of meeting" at Gibeon was actually the Mosaic tabernacle, since sacrifices were offered there (something that was not true of the tent of meeting in Moses' day). This separation of the ark at Jerusalem and the tabernacle tent at Gibeon was the situation during the time of Solomon as well, prior to Solomon's construction of the temple.

5. Several passages have Yahweh referring to Canaan/Israel as "my land" or "my inheritance" (e.g., 2 Chr 7:20; Isa 19:25; Jer 2:7; 16:18; Ezek 38:16; Joel 1:6; 3:2).

11. We know the tabernacle tent structure (mishkan) was moved inside the temple from several other considerations. 1 Kgs 8:4–8 tells us that it wasn't only the ark that was brought to the finished temple, but also the tabernacle and its accoutrements. Although the passage does not explicitly say the tent was moved inside the temple sanctum, other passages suggest that the tent and the temple were somehow co-identified. Well after the days of Solomon, 2 Chr 24:6 reports that when King Joash ordered repairs for the temple, he angrily asked, "Why have you not required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax of Moses, the servant of Yahweh, and of the assembly of Israel for the tent of the testimony?" (emphasis added). In 2 Chr 29:3–7 (ESV, emphasis added), Hezekiah laments the disrepair of the temple. His complaint contains both temple and tabernacle tent wordings: "In the first year of his reign, in the first month, [Hezekiah] opened the doors of the house of the LORD and repaired them. He brought in the priests and the Levites and assembled them in the square on the east and said to them, "Hear me, Levites! Now consecrate yourselves, and consecrate the house of the LORD, the God of your fathers, and carry out the filth from the Holy Place. For our fathers have been unfaithful and have done what was evil in the sight of the LORD our God. They have forsaken him and have turned away their faces from the tabernacle [mishkan] of the LORD and turned their backs. They also shut the doors of the vestibule and put out the lamps and have not burned incense or offered burnt offerings in the Holy Place to the God of Israel." It is interesting that in Hurowitz's lengthy rejection of Friedman's proposal, none of these passages from 1 Kings and 2 Chronicles are to be found.

11. We know the tabernacle tent structure (mishkan) was moved inside the temple from several other considerations. 1 Kgs 8:4–8 tells us that it wasn't only the ark that was brought to the finished temple, but also the tabernacle and its accoutrements. Although the passage does not explicitly say the tent was moved inside the temple sanctum, other passages suggest that the tent and the temple were somehow co-identified. Well after the days of Solomon, 2 Chr 24:6 reports that when King Joash ordered repairs for the temple, he angrily asked, "Why have you not required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax of Moses, the servant of Yahweh, and of the assembly of Israel for the tent of the testimony?" (emphasis added). In 2 Chr 29:3–7 (ESV, emphasis added), Hezekiah laments the disrepair of the temple. His complaint contains both temple and tabernacle tent wordings: "In the first year of his reign, in the first month, [Hezekiah] opened the doors of the house of the LORD and repaired them. He brought in the priests and the Levites and assembled them in the square on the east and said to them, "Hear me, Levites! Now consecrate yourselves, and consecrate the house of the LORD, the God of your fathers, and carry out the filth from the Holy Place. For our fathers have been unfaithful and have done what was evil in the sight of the LORD our God. They have forsaken him and have turned away their faces from the tabernacle [mishkan] of the LORD and turned their backs. They also shut the doors of the vestibule and put out the lamps and have not burned incense or offered burnt offerings in the Holy Place to the God of Israel." It is interesting that in Hurowitz's lengthy rejection of Friedman's proposal, none of these passages from 1 Kings and 2 Chronicles are to be found.

1. The mourning at Haddad-Rimmon on the plain of Megiddo refers to the untimely death of the beloved King Josiah on that plain (2 Chr 35:20–25).

10. Beale notes: "A white stone was commonly associated with a vote of acquittal (cf. 4 Macc. 15:26; Acts 26:10) or a favorable vote. Conversely, a black stone indicated guilt. A white stone sometimes was also used as a pass of admission to special occasions. Against this background, the meaning here probably refers to the reversal of the guilty verdict issued by the world's institutions against the overcomer because of refusal to participate in its idolatrous meals. Accordingly, the "white stone" becomes the invitation to take part in Jesus' supper (cf. 19:9). The notion that a banquet meal is in mind is supported by the reference to "manna." According to Jewish tradition, precious stones fell along with the manna (cf. Midr. Ps. 78.4). Some commentators have seen here the two precious stones on the shoulder pieces of the high priest's ephod, bearing the names of the twelve tribes (Exod 28:9–12). According to another Jewish tradition, these priestly stones were stored in the hidden ark, to be revealed in the messianic times (cf. 2 Bar. 6:7–8)." See G. K. Beale, The Book of Revelation: A Commentary on the Greek Text, New International Greek Testament Commentary (Grand Rapids, MI; Carlisle, Cumbria: Eerdmans; Paternoster Press, 1999), 252–53.

6. The satan of Job 1–2 is not the nachash of Eden. See the discussion in Chapter 8. The divine rebel of Eden lost his role as Yahweh's throne guardian and, consequently, access to Yahweh's council. As will be noted in subsequent chapters, as lord of the dead, the nachash (later called Satan in the New Testament) has claim over humanity through death, since human immortality in the presence of God was disrupted by human sin in Eden, necessitating redemption to once again be part of God's eternal family.

1. Recall that the satan of Job 1–2 was not the enemy of Eden. The nachash is never called satan in the Hebrew Bible, and no passage in the Old Testament where the word satan is used to describe a divine being ever uses nachash as part of that description. It is also not clear from the language of Job 1–2 whether the satan is one of the sons of God or just makes an appearance among the sons of God.

9. Given the connection made in the New Testament between the nachash (serpent) figure and the Hebrew word satan ("adversary") in Rev 12:9, the judicial role of the satan described in the Hebrew Bible (Job 1–2) becomes noteworthy. The role of the satan in Job involved roaming through the earth. In the context of the divine courtroom scene of Job 1–2, the ostensible purpose was to see, among humanity, who was (or wasn't) obedient to God. This precipitates God's words about Job. The satan issues a challenge to God's assessment, and perhaps to the justness of God's ordering of the world. Job becomes the focus of that challenge, as his integrity (and, by implication, God's) is questioned. Presuming this accusatorial role, when the New Testament writers have Satan expelled from heaven in Luke 10:17–18, the theological message would be that, with the commencement of the kingdom of God, Satan's role as "accuser of the brethren" is finished. God is no longer listening to challenges as to whom he deems righteous. That this phrase ("accuser of the brethren") occurs uniquely in Rev 12:10, right after the only verse in the New Testament that connects the terms Satan, devil, and dragon (cf. the serpent) cannot be coincidental. The inauguration of the kingdom of God by the messiah means that Satan, the lord of the dead, has no "legal" authority in God's court (council) by which to condemn any member of that kingdom. On Job 1–2 and the accuser, see Peggy Day, An Adversary in Heaven: sātān in the Hebrew Bible, Harvard Semitic Monographs 43 (Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1988), 79–83. For a scholarly treatment of the divine courtroom, tracing its constituent ideas from the Hebrew Bible through the Second Temple period on into the New Testament, see Meira Z. Kensky, Trying Man, Trying God, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 289, second series (Tübingen: Mohr-Siebeck, 2010).

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

3. For example, see Job 9:8; Psa 104:2. See the companion website for more on Israelite cosmology.

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, “Bashan,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, “Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68,” in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the “serpentine” connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, “the gates of hell.” We’ll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous “gates of hell” statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, “Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

4. For example, Psa 2:2, due to the mention of the "kings of the earth," would likely have been taken by a Jew living in the Old Testament era as referring to a time in the distant future. How far into the future Dan 9:25–26 may have been placed by a Jewish reader depends on when it was written. As anyone knows who has studied eschatology in depth, a good case can be made for the passage being fulfilled in the Second Temple period, as well as a time yet future. It also isn't clear whether the passage refers to one "anointed" (mashiach) prince or two, and whether one or the other is good or evil. The fact that Cyrus the Persian, a pagan, could be called mashiach by God (Isa 45:1) illustrates the flexibility and ambiguity of the concept. There is no single verse in the Old Testament that contains the word mashiach that one could point to and discern the scope of what Jesus did in the New Testament.

4. See Lev 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:6; Psa 16:3; 34:9. Psa 16:3 refers to the qedoshim that are in the land, making it certain that the term can refer to people.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

1. Readers may presume I've missed verse 16 (v. 17 in the Hebrew text): "They have pierced my hands and feet." (That rendering is the ESV translation.) I have not. Most Hebrew manuscripts of this verse do not have a reference to piercing the hands and feet, but read something to the effect: "Like the lion they are at my hands and feet" (LEB) or "my hands and feet have shriveled" (NRSV). The verse is arguably one of the most textually difficult in the Old Testament. With respect to our ensuing discussion, the lion imagery is interesting, since that imagery is applied to the devil in the New Testament (1 Pet 5:8). For piercing, see Zech 12:10. The scholarly literature on this verse is copious. A sampling illustrates the interpretive quandary: John Kaltner, "Psalm 22:17b: Second Guessing 'The Old Guess,' " Journal of Biblical Literature 117:3 (1998): 503–06; Brent A. Strawn, "Psalm 22:17b: More Guessing," Journal of Biblical Literature 119:3 (2000): 439–51; Kristin M. Swenson, "Psalm 22:17: Circling around the Problem Again," Journal of Biblical Literature 123:4 (2004): 637–48.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

4. See Lev 11:44–45; 19:2; 20:7, 26; 21:6; Psa 16:3; 34:9. Psa 16:3 refers to the qedoshim that are in the land, making it certain that the term can refer to people.

1. Space constraints make it impossible to fully address the flawed thinking behind the human explanation for elohim (in Psa 82 and elsewhere) in this chapter. In the discussion that proceeds, I touch on some of the more glaring logical and scriptural problems for this view. Arguments for the human view of elohim stemming from passages like Judg 18, Exod 22:7–9, Psa 45:7, or Jesus' quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10:34 are dealt with at length on the companion website.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, “Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls,” Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word “angel” was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn’t coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos (“god”) to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, “Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint,” Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, “Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls,” Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

1. Space constraints make it impossible to fully address the flawed thinking behind the human explanation for elohim (in Psa 82 and elsewhere) in this chapter. In the discussion that proceeds, I touch on some of the more glaring logical and scriptural problems for this view. Arguments for the human view of elohim stemming from passages like Judg 18, Exod 22:7–9, Psa 45:7, or Jesus’ quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10:34 are dealt with at length on the companion website.

3. Due to space constraints I have excluded discussion of John 10:34–35, where John has Jesus citing Psa 82:6 in defense of his deity. Nearly all modern commentators fail to take the verse in light of the original context of Psa 82, which has the divine council as its focus. They strangely have the elohim of Psa 82:6 as mere humans, which reduces Jesus’ self-defense to saying that he is allowed to call himself the son of God because every other Jew could as well. This undermines Jesus’ claim to deity in the passage and ignores how the quotation is bookended with two suggestions of his deity: (1) identification with the Father (John 10:30)—who is Lord of the council; and (2) the assertion that the Father is in Jesus (John 10:38). Interpretation of the quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10 must not ignore the original divine—not human—context of the psalm. That context is part of the power of the quotation—that the Jewish Scriptures bore witness to nonhuman sons of God. This reminder is the gist of Psa 82:6. Juxtaposed as its quotation is in John 10, between two statements that identify Jesus with the Father, the point of the theology produced by the quotation in context is that Jesus is not only a divine son of God, but superior to all divine sons of God in his identification with the Father, the Lord of the divine council. I have addressed this issue in an academic paper available on the companion website: Michael S. Heiser, "Jesus' Quotation of Psalm 82:6 in John 10:34: A Different View of John's Theological Strategy" (presented at the Pacific Northwest Regional Meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature, Gonzaga University, Spokane, WA, May 13–15, 2011).

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, "Bashan," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, "Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68," in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw

earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the "serpentine" connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, "the gates of hell." We'll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous "gates of hell" statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as “angel,” but which means “messenger”). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods (’ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not “less divine” because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term (“angel [mal’ak] of Yahweh”; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

4. See the discussion in chapters 3 and 4. Some scholars argue that the word "angel" was used to downgrade or eliminate the idea of a divine council. This notion isn't coherent, since the Septuagint will also use theos ("god") to translate plural elohim or elim whether occurring alone (Exod 15:11; Psa 82:1b [Greek: 81:1b]; 95:3–4 [Greek: 94:3–4]; 97:9 [Greek: 96:9]) or in phrases like beney elohim (Psa 29:1 [Greek: 28:1]; Deut 32:43, with the Dead Sea Scrolls). See R. B. Salters, "Psalm 82:1 and the Septuagint," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 103.2 (1991): 225–39. This notion, usually made to defend the idea of a religious evolution to monotheism from polytheism on the part of the biblical writers, is also flawed with respect to the Qumran material, where there are nearly 180 instances of plural elohim or elim in the sectarian material, many of which occur in explicit divine council contexts. See Michael S. Heiser, "Monotheism and the Language of Divine Plurality in the Hebrew Bible and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Tyndale Bulletin 65.1 (2014): 85–100.

3. For example, see Job 9:8; Psa 104:2. See the companion website for more on Israelite cosmology.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F.

Siemens Jr., “Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology,” Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase “the whole earth” (kol ’erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, “whole land” or “all the people in the area” are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that “the whole earth” was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase “all humankind” (kol ’adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a “sexual deity” in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, “Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1,” Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like “sexual deity” captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg 5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, "Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah," Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, "Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job," Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

30. Several New Testament scholars follow this trajectory. Bauckham writes: "The term doxai (lit. 'glories') for angels is attested in the Dead Sea Scrolls (nkbdym).… Probably they are so called because they participate in or embody the glory of God (cf. T. Jud. 25:2; T. Levi 18:5; Heb 9:5; Philo, Spec. Leg. 1.8.45). It is true that nkbdym can also refer to illustrious men, noblemen (Isa 3:5; 23:8; Nah 3:10; Ps 149:8; 1QpHab 4:2; 4QpNah 2:9; 3:9; 4:4; 1QM 14:11), but in these cases the Septuagint does not use doxai, and one would expect a more idiomatic Greek rendering if this were Jude's meaning. It is in any case an unlikely meaning, especially in view of the parallel statement in v 10a. Clement of Alexandria already interpreted Jude's doxai as angels" (Richard J. Bauckham, 2 Peter, Jude, Word Biblical Commentary 50 [Dallas: Word, 1998], 57). Bauckham's reference to Clement of Alexandria comes from the latter's Comments on the Epistle of Jude (Ante-Nicene Fathers 2:573): "They 'speak evil of majesty,' that is, of the angels" (cited in Gene L. Green, Jude and 2 Peter, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament [Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008], 76–77). Finally, J. N. D. Kelly observes: "This term cannot, any more than authority above and for much the same reasons, designate community leaders: this is quite out of keeping with the context, and there is no plausible instance of its bearing this sense.… In the light of the context (cf. 9) and 2 Pet. 2:10 f., which borrows from this verse, there can be no doubt that it here denotes a class of angelic beings; and this usage of the noun is supported by LXX Ex. 15:11. 'Glory' (doxa) originally stands for the numinous radiance which belongs to God Himself (e.g. Ex. 24:16 f.; 33:18–23; Ps. 19:1), but later the angels who surround Him come to be regarded as sharing in it (cf. Philo, Spec. leg. i. 8. 45: 'by thy glory I understand the powers which keep watch around thee')" (J. N. D. Kelly, The Epistles of Peter and of Jude, Black's New Testament Commentary [London: Continuum, 1969], 263).

30. Several New Testament scholars follow this trajectory. Bauckham writes: "The term doxai (lit. 'glories') for angels is attested in the Dead Sea Scrolls (nkbdym).… Probably they are so called because they participate in or embody the glory of God (cf. T. Jud. 25:2; T. Levi 18:5; Heb 9:5; Philo, Spec. Leg. 1.8.45). It is true that nkbdym can also refer to illustrious men, noblemen (Isa 3:5; 23:8; Nah 3:10; Ps 149:8; 1QpHab 4:2; 4QpNah 2:9; 3:9; 4:4; 1QM 14:11), but in these cases the Septuagint does not use doxai, and one would expect a more idiomatic Greek rendering if this were Jude's meaning. It is in any case an unlikely meaning, especially in view of the parallel statement in v 10a. Clement of Alexandria already interpreted Jude's doxai as angels" (Richard J. Bauckham, 2 Peter, Jude, Word Biblical Commentary 50 [Dallas: Word, 1998], 57). Bauckham's reference to Clement of Alexandria comes from the latter's Comments on the Epistle of Jude (Ante-Nicene Fathers 2:573): "They 'speak evil of majesty,' that is, of the angels" (cited in Gene L. Green, Jude and 2 Peter, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament [Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008], 76–77). Finally, J. N. D. Kelly observes: "This term cannot, any more than authority above and for much the same reasons, designate community leaders: this is quite out of keeping with the context, and there is no plausible instance of its bearing this sense.… In the light of the context (cf. 9) and 2 Pet. 2:10 f., which borrows from this verse, there can be no doubt that it here denotes a class of angelic beings; and this usage of the noun is supported by LXX Ex. 15:11. ‘Glory’ (doxa) originally stands for the numinous radiance which belongs to God Himself (e.g. Ex. 24:16 f.; 33:18–23; Ps. 19:1), but later the angels who surround Him come to be regarded as sharing in it (cf. Philo, Spec. leg. i. 8. 45: ‘by thy glory I understand the powers which keep watch around thee’)” (J. N. D. Kelly, The Epistles of Peter and of Jude, Black’s New Testament Commentary [London: Continuum, 1969], 263).

4. The flame of Gen 3:24 may actually describe an individual divine being (see Ronald Hendel, “ ‘The Flame of the Whirling Sword’: A Note on Genesis 3:24,” Journal of Biblical Literature 104:4 [1985]: 671–74). The seraphim of Isa 6:2, 6 that attend Yahweh’s throne may also have been fiery beings if the noun derives from the verb saraph (“to burn”). It is more likely that seraphim derives from the Hebrew noun saraph (“serpent”), which in turn is drawn from Egyptian throne guardian terminology and conceptions. If that is the case, Egyptian imagery relating to the divine throne guardians includes fire as well. See Philippe Provençal, “Regarding the Noun saraph in the Hebrew Bible,” Journal for the Study of the Old Testament 29.3 (2005): 371–79.

3. The Old Testament uses the metaphor as well. The oracle against the Philistines, for example, threatens that rogue nation with “the root of the snake [nachash]” (Isa 14:29). The word translated “root” (shoresh) is used in the very next verse to describe the Philistine people who will be the victims of this judgment. God’s executing judgment on the Philistines by means of another human enemy is expressed metaphorically with serpent language. That the word shoresh (“root”) speaks of human offspring is perhaps best known from the phrase “root of Jesse” to refer to the messiah (Isa 11:10; cf. Isa 11:1; Hos 9:16).

3. The Old Testament uses the metaphor as well. The oracle against the Philistines, for example, threatens that rogue nation with “the root of the snake [nachash]” (Isa 14:29). The word translated “root” (shoresh) is used in the very next verse to describe the Philistine people who will be the victims of this judgment. God’s executing judgment on the Philistines by means of another human enemy is expressed metaphorically with serpent language. That the word shoresh ("root") speaks of human offspring is perhaps best known from the phrase "root of Jesse" to refer to the messiah (Isa 11:10; cf. Isa 11:1; Hos 9:16).

18. The Septuagint also uses daimonion to translate shedim in its only other Old Testament occurrence: Psa 106:37. Daimonion is also the translation choice for references to "goat demons" (se'irim) in Isa 13:21 and "desert creatures" (tsiyim) in Isa 34:14. Recall from the discussion of Azazel in Lev 16 (the Day of Atonement) that Israelites believed the desert to be the realm of sinister evil and were sacrificing to "goat demons" (Lev 17:7).

8. Clifford's treatment of the astral language of Ezek 28 and Isa 14:4b–21 in his work on the cosmic mountain and divine council is illustrative of the clear connections between the terminology and divine beings. See Clifford, Cosmic Mountain, 160–73. See also John Gray, "The Desert God 'Athtar in the Literature and Religion of Canaan," Journal of Near Eastern Studies 78 (1949): 72–83; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, "Bashan," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, "Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68," in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the "serpentine" connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, "the gates of hell." We'll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous "gates of hell" statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg 5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, "Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah," Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, "Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job," Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

3. The Old Testament uses the metaphor as well. The oracle against the Philistines, for example, threatens that rogue nation with "the root of the snake [nachash]" (Isa 14:29). The word translated "root" (shoresh) is used in the very next verse to describe the Philistine people who will be the victims of this judgment. God's executing judgment on the Philistines by means of another human enemy is expressed metaphorically with serpent language. That the word shoresh ("root") speaks of human offspring is perhaps best known from the phrase "root of Jesse" to refer to the messiah (Isa 11:10; cf. Isa 11:1; Hos 9:16).

5. Several passages have Yahweh referring to Canaan/Israel as "my land" or "my inheritance" (e.g., 2 Chr 7:20; Isa 19:25; Jer 2:7; 16:18; Ezek 38:16; Joel 1:6; 3:2).

30. Several New Testament scholars follow this trajectory. Bauckham writes: "The term doxai (lit. 'glories') for angels is attested in the Dead Sea Scrolls (nkbdym).… Probably they are so called because they participate in or embody the glory of God (cf. T. Jud. 25:2; T. Levi 18:5; Heb 9:5; Philo, Spec. Leg. 1.8.45). It is true that nkbdym can also refer to illustrious men, noblemen (Isa 3:5; 23:8; Nah 3:10; Ps 149:8; 1QpHab 4:2; 4QpNah 2:9; 3:9; 4:4; 1QM 14:11), but in these cases the Septuagint does not use doxai, and one would expect a more idiomatic Greek rendering if this were Jude's meaning. It is in any case an unlikely meaning, especially in view of the parallel statement in v 10a. Clement of Alexandria already interpreted Jude's doxai as angels" (Richard J. Bauckham, 2 Peter, Jude, Word Biblical Commentary 50 [Dallas: Word, 1998], 57). Bauckham's reference to Clement of Alexandria comes from the latter's Comments on the Epistle of Jude (Ante-Nicene Fathers 2:573): "They 'speak evil of majesty,' that is, of the angels" (cited in Gene L. Green, Jude and 2 Peter, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament [Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008], 76–77). Finally, J. N. D. Kelly observes: "This term cannot, any more than authority above and for much the same reasons, designate community leaders: this is quite out of keeping with the context, and there is no plausible instance of its bearing this sense.… In the light of the context (cf. 9) and 2 Pet. 2:10 f., which borrows from this verse, there can be no doubt that it here denotes a class of angelic beings; and this usage of the noun is supported by LXX Ex. 15:11. 'Glory' (doxa) originally stands for the numinous radiance which belongs to God Himself (e.g. Ex. 24:16 f.; 33:18–23; Ps. 19:1), but later the angels who surround Him come to be regarded as sharing in it (cf. Philo, Spec. leg. i. 8. 45: 'by thy glory I understand the powers which keep watch around thee')" (J. N. D. Kelly, The Epistles of Peter and of Jude, Black's New Testament Commentary [London: Continuum, 1969], 263).

24. This is not to exclude a relationship of the divine powers to human foes of Israel and Yahweh. As we've seen with passages like Dan 7:20–28; Zech 14:1–5; and Isa 24:21–23, the Bible envisions conflict where human and divine involvement overlap. This perspective is of course prominent in the Dead Sea Scrolls, particularly in The War Scroll (1QM). Due to exaggerations and fantastic portrayals of spiritual warfare in popular Christianity and fiction, scholars are often hesitant to emphasize the supernatural element of Dan 10 and other passages. For example, see the discussion in David E. Stevens, "Daniel 10 and the Notion of Territorial Spirits," Bibliotheca Sacra 157 (2000): 410–31.

18. The Septuagint also uses daimonion to translate shedim in its only other Old Testament occurrence: Psa 106:37. Daimonion is also the translation choice for references to "goat demons" (se'irim) in Isa 13:21 and "desert creatures" (tsiyim) in Isa 34:14. Recall from the discussion of Azazel in Lev 16 (the Day of Atonement) that Israelites believed the desert to be the realm of sinister evil and were sacrificing to "goat demons" (Lev 17:7).

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg 5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, "Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah," Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, "Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job," Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

10. One scholar has recently put forth the idea that Yahweh is perceived as a "sexual deity" in the Old Testament: David E. Bokovoy, "Did Eve Acquire, Create, or Procreate with Yahweh? A Grammatical and Contextual Reassessment of qnh in Genesis 4:1," Vetus Testamentum 63 (2013): 19–35. I do not believe a phrase like "sexual deity" captures the semantic point of Gen 4:1. Bokovoy argues that the verb in question in Gen 4:1 (qanah) means to create or procreate. I would agree that the verb can certainly have this meaning. Bokovoy's argument is that the biblical writer believed God participated in the mystery of procreation. Although he doesn't state it, his assumption appears to be that the biblical writers attributed conception to the deity because, unlike us, they didn't know scientifically how human fertilization and what happens in the womb worked. I would also agree with that point. However, Bokovoy's conclusion, that Yahweh "actively participated" in Cain's procreation, needs qualifications that he does not include in his work. One can say that, in the perception of the biblical writer, and even Eve herself, God caused Eve's pregnancy. But what does that mean? The biblical writer wasn't ignorant of the man's (Adam's) involvement. The text of the first half of Gen 4:1 says explicitly that Adam "knew Eve his wife, and she [subsequently] conceived." In other words, the biblical writer understood that sexual intercourse between a man and a woman led to pregnancy. There is no prerequisite for modern scientific understanding for grasping that point. In the second half of the verse Eve says (ESV), "I have gotten [lemma: qanah; form: qaniti] a man with the LORD." But note that Eve is the grammatical subject of this "sexual" verb, not the object. Bokovoy's writing sounds as though Yahweh is the subject here, and that Yahweh is participating sexually with Eve. That isn't what the grammar of the text says. The author's wording lacks precision and is therefore misleading. Nevertheless, following Bokovoy for the sake of discussion, one could translate Eve's statement this way: "I have procreated a man with YHWH." What would this mean since the writer clearly has Adam as the one having sexual relations with Eve? The answer is simple. This passage is akin to others in the Old Testament where the author narrates the fact that couples have sexual intercourse and then attributes the pregnancy (e.g., "opening of the womb") to Yahweh—i.e., God gets credit for the mystery of procreation (Gen 18:9–14; 21:1–2; 25:21; 29:32–35; 30:16–24; 1 Sam 1:19–20; Pss 17:14; 127:3; Isa 44:2, 24). This is neither complicated nor shocking, and it isn't proof that Yahweh was thought to participate sexually with anyone. The mystery of procreation and the act of intercourse are distinguished in Gen 4:1 and other passages.

4. For example, Psa 2:2, due to the mention of the "kings of the earth," would likely have been taken by a Jew living in the Old Testament era as referring to a time in the distant future. How far into the future Dan 9:25–26 may have been placed by a Jewish reader depends on when it was written. As anyone knows who has studied eschatology in depth, a good case can be made for the passage being fulfilled in the Second Temple period, as well as a time yet future. It also isn't clear whether the passage refers to one "anointed" (mashiach) prince or two, and whether one or the other is good or evil. The fact that Cyrus the Persian, a pagan, could be called mashiach by God (Isa 45:1) illustrates the flexibility and ambiguity of the concept. There is no single verse in the Old Testament that contains the word mashiach that one could point to and discern the scope of what Jesus did in the New Testament.

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: ‘No One Has Seen What I Have Seen’ (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch’s work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel’s Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the “stones of fire” refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint’s anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·rᵉqat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is “a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid” (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, “Gemstones,” UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, “Precious Stones,” Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, “Stones (Precious),” Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, “The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse,” Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·rᵉqat when he says the word is “a derivation from bāraq, ‘to flash, shine,’ [which] connects the word with ‘lightning.’ In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald.” See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

7. There are seeds of this in the Old Testament as well, where the distinction between the Spirit and God is blurred just as the distinction between the Angel and God is blurred. For example, in Isa 63:7–11, an account of the wilderness wanderings, Yahweh is mentioned (v. 7) along with the Angel of his presence (v. 9). Yahweh was the savior of Israel (v. 8), but so was the Angel (v. 9); thus the writer interchanges the two. In verse 10 the Israelites are said to have “rebelled against” (Hebrew: marah) and “grieved” (Hebrew: atsab) the Holy Spirit. Psa 78:40–41 is a parallel passage to Isa 63:7–11, but that passage has the rebellion and grieving (the Hebrew words are the same) directed against “the Holy One of Israel,” a well-known title for God. Taken together, the two passages interchange Yahweh, the Angel, and the Spirit. In Ezek 8 the prophet sees a divine being in the form of a man (v. 2). The being is embodied, since he extends his hand to Ezekiel (v. 3) and grabs him by a lock of the hair to lift him up. But it is the Spirit who is said to lift him up (v. 3). Later (vv. 5–6), the entity speaks to Ezekiel and refers to the temple as “my sanctuary.” Is the entity the Spirit, who is identified as Yahweh by virtue of his reference to “my sanctuary,” or is he the embodied Yahweh, who seems to have been the Spirit as well? The point is that the language of the passage blurs the distinctions between three figures: Yahweh, the second (embodied) Yahweh, and the Spirit.

5. Several passages have Yahweh referring to Canaan/Israel as “my land” or “my inheritance” (e.g., 2 Chr 7:20; Isa 19:25; Jer 2:7; 16:18; Ezek 38:16; Joel 1:6; 3:2).

4. In 2 Sam 6:1–2 (cf. 1 Sam 4:4; Jer 7:12) we read: “David again gathered all the chosen men in Israel, thirty thousand. David got up and went and all the people who were with him, from Baale-judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts [’[a]shĕr-·niq·rā(’) shem shem yhwh ts[e]bā·’ot], upon which the cherubim sit.”

The word shem (shem) appears twice in this verse—the ark is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts. The point is that the ark is identified with the Name, who is Yahweh, since Yahweh is the one seated on the cherubim. Many English translations obscure the Hebrew text here, rendering something like “which is called by the name of the LORD of hosts,” which omits one of the occurrences of shem. The reason is that many scholars consider the dual occurrence of shem to be an accidental repetition by a scribe, what textual critics call dittography (see for example, P. Kyle McCarter Jr., II Samuel: A New Translation with Introduction, Notes, and Commentary, Anchor Yale Bible Commentary 9 [New Haven: Yale University Press, 1964, 2008], 163). While this is possible, there is no inherent interpretive problem with the Masoretic Text as it stands in view of the evidence for divine co-regency (the two Yahwehs) already noted. That the ark would be called the name is understandable, since the ark was a placeholder for the very presence of Yahweh, who is the name. The same association (note the anthropomorphic language) is conveyed in 2 Sam 7:2, where the ark is said to dwell in a tent.

5. Several passages have Yahweh referring to Canaan/Israel as “my land” or “my inheritance” (e.g., 2 Chr 7:20; Isa 19:25; Jer 2:7; 16:18; Ezek 38:16; Joel 1:6; 3:2).

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel’s return. On Zerubbabel’s lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: “He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin’s eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel’s to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut 25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel’s heir, he would be first in line for the throne.” Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God’s agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet’s eschatological outlook for the nation’s destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). “Joshua,” of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua (“salvation”), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means “seed of Babel.” While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh's son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God's son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, "The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

14. The argument for a local flood proceeds along several trajectories aside from scientific arguments. For scientific discussion, see David F. Siemens Jr., "Some Relatively Non-Technical Problems with Flood Geology," Perspectives on Science and the Christian Faith 44.3 (1992): 169–74; Davis Young and Ralph Searley, The Bible, Rocks and Time: Geological Evidence for the Age of the Earth (Downers Grove, IL: IVP Academic, 2008), 224–40. Our concern is with the biblical text and its own evidence for a local flood. First, the phrases in the flood narrative that suggest a global event occur a number of times in the Hebrew Bible where their context cannot be global or include all people on the planet. For example, the phrase "the whole earth" (kol 'erets) occurs in passages that clearly speak of localized geography (e.g., Gen 13:9; 41:57; Lev 25:9, 24; Judg 6:37; 1 Sam 13:3; 2 Sam 24:8). In such cases, "whole land" or "all the people in the area" are better understandings. Those options produce a regional flood event if used in Gen 6–8 where the phrase occurs. Second, the Gen 9:19 clearly informs us that "the whole earth" was populated by the sons of Noah. Gen 10 (see 10:1) gives us the list of the nations spawned by the sons of Noah—all of which are located in the regions of the ancient Near East, the Mediterranean, and the Aegean. The biblical writers knew nothing of nations in another hemisphere (the Americas) or places like India, China, or Australia. The language of Gen 10 therefore allows Gen 7:21 to be restricted to only (or even some) of the people groups listed in the Table of Nations. That interpretation is consistent with a localized flood. Third, the phrase "all humankind" (kol 'adam) used in Gen 7:21 also appears in contexts that cannot speak to all humans everywhere (e.g., Jer 32:20; Psa 64:9 can only refer to people who had seen what God had done, not people on the other side of the world). Lastly, Psa 104:9 appears to forbid a global flood, since it has God promising to never cover the earth with water as had been the case at creation.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, "Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza," Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name "Goliath" on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, "A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance," Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical 'anaqim ('nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, "Anak/'anx," Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of 'anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn't clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

7. There are seeds of this in the Old Testament as well, where the distinction between the Spirit and God is blurred just as the distinction between the Angel and God is blurred. For example, in Isa 63:7–11, an account of the wilderness wanderings, Yahweh is mentioned (v. 7) along with the Angel of his presence (v. 9). Yahweh was the savior of Israel (v. 8), but so was the Angel (v. 9); thus the writer interchanges the two. In verse 10 the Israelites are said to have "rebelled against" (Hebrew: marah) and "grieved" (Hebrew: atsab) the Holy Spirit. Psa 78:40–41 is a parallel passage to Isa 63:7–11, but that passage has the rebellion and grieving (the Hebrew words are the same) directed against "the Holy One of Israel," a well-known title for God. Taken together, the two passages interchange Yahweh, the Angel, and the Spirit. In Ezek 8 the prophet sees a divine being in the form of a man (v. 2). The being is embodied, since he extends his hand to Ezekiel (v. 3) and grabs him by a lock of the hair to lift him up. But it is the Spirit who is said to lift him up (v. 3). Later (vv. 5–6), the entity speaks to Ezekiel and refers to the temple as "my sanctuary." Is the entity the Spirit, who is identified as Yahweh by virtue of his reference to "my sanctuary," or is he the embodied Yahweh, who seems to have been the Spirit as well? The point is that the language of the passage blurs the distinctions between three figures: Yahweh, the second (embodied) Yahweh, and the Spirit.

7. There are seeds of this in the Old Testament as well, where the distinction between the Spirit and God is blurred just as the distinction between the Angel and God is blurred. For example, in Isa 63:7–11, an account of the wilderness wanderings, Yahweh is mentioned (v. 7) along with the Angel of his presence (v. 9). Yahweh was the savior of Israel (v. 8), but so was the Angel (v. 9); thus the writer interchanges the two. In verse 10 the Israelites are said to have "rebelled against" (Hebrew: marah) and "grieved" (Hebrew: atsab) the Holy Spirit. Psa 78:40–41 is a parallel passage to Isa 63:7–11, but that passage has the rebellion and grieving (the Hebrew words are the same) directed against “the Holy One of Israel,” a well-known title for God. Taken together, the two passages interchange Yahweh, the Angel, and the Spirit. In Ezek 8 the prophet sees a divine being in the form of a man (v. 2). The being is embodied, since he extends his hand to Ezekiel (v. 3) and grabs him by a lock of the hair to lift him up. But it is the Spirit who is said to lift him up (v. 3). Later (vv. 5–6), the entity speaks to Ezekiel and refers to the temple as “my sanctuary.” Is the entity the Spirit, who is identified as Yahweh by virtue of his reference to “my sanctuary,” or is he the embodied Yahweh, who seems to have been the Spirit as well? The point is that the language of the passage blurs the distinctions between three figures: Yahweh, the second (embodied) Yahweh, and the Spirit.

7. There are seeds of this in the Old Testament as well, where the distinction between the Spirit and God is blurred just as the distinction between the Angel and God is blurred. For example, in Isa 63:7–11, an account of the wilderness wanderings, Yahweh is mentioned (v. 7) along with the Angel of his presence (v. 9). Yahweh was the savior of Israel (v. 8), but so was the Angel (v. 9); thus the writer interchanges the two. In verse 10 the Israelites are said to have “rebelled against” (Hebrew: marah) and “grieved” (Hebrew: atsab) the Holy Spirit. Psa 78:40–41 is a parallel passage to Isa 63:7–11, but that passage has the rebellion and grieving (the Hebrew words are the same) directed against “the Holy One of Israel,” a well-known title for God. Taken together, the two passages interchange Yahweh, the Angel, and the Spirit. In Ezek 8 the prophet sees a divine being in the form of a man (v. 2). The being is embodied, since he extends his hand to Ezekiel (v. 3) and grabs him by a lock of the hair to lift him up. But it is the Spirit who is said to lift him up (v. 3). Later (vv. 5–6), the entity speaks to Ezekiel and refers to the temple as “my sanctuary.” Is the entity the Spirit, who is identified as Yahweh by virtue of his reference to “my sanctuary,” or is he the embodied Yahweh, who seems to have been the Spirit as well? The point is that the language of the passage blurs the distinctions between three figures: Yahweh, the second (embodied) Yahweh, and the Spirit.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·r^{e}qat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·r^{e}qat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with ‘lightning.’ In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald.” See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: ‘No One Has Seen What I Have Seen’ (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch’s work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel’s Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the “stones of fire” refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint’s anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·rᵉqat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is “a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid” (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, “Gemstones,” UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·rᵉqat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with 'lightning.' In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald." See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

7–8 See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·rᵉqat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·r^{e}qat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with 'lightning.' In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald." See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·r^{e}qat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·r^{e}qat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·r^{e}qat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with 'lightning.' In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald." See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·rᵉqat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·rᵉqat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with 'lightning.' In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald." See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, "Bashan," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, "Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68," in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the "serpentine" connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, "the gates of hell." We'll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous "gates of hell" statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

5. Several passages have Yahweh referring to Canaan/Israel as “my land” or “my inheritance” (e.g., 2 Chr 7:20; Isa 19:25; Jer 2:7; 16:18; Ezek 38:16; Joel 1:6; 3:2).

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

11. Jeremiah has all the tribes in view when he declares the Lord says, “I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them” (Jer 23:3; italics mine). Jer 29:14 (“all the lands”; “all the places”) presents the same vision. Ezekiel prophesies the same sort of comprehensive return (Ezek 36:22–36). See also Isa 49:6; Ezek 37:19; 47:13, 21–22; 48:1–31.

8. See Theodotian’s Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, “Archangel,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the “name”). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of “chief princes” (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel’s vision “became great, even as great as the Prince of the host” (italics mine). The phrase “prince of the host” transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier “prince of the host” is called “the prince of princes.” In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn.

Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

12. Some Jewish interpreters say the plural "thrones" refers to only two thrones—that of the God of Israel and the other for King David, whom they identify with the Son of Man in this passage. There are several problems with that view, namely the passage's clear literary parallels to divine council scenes from the Ugaritic Baal Cycle and the fact that the Son of Man neither takes a seat nor has one offered to him when he approaches the Ancient of Days. See the discussion in chapter 29. It also cannot be argued that the plural seats are for human Jewish elders, since the court/council in Dan 7 is clearly in heaven and is making a decision for the human holy people at the time when the kingdom of the Son of Man is established; cf. Dan 7:22. See the sixth chapter ("The Divine Council in the book of Daniel") in Michael S. Heiser, "The Divine Council in Late Canonical and Non-Canonical Second Temple Jewish Literature," (PhD diss., University of Wisconsin–Madison, 2004). The dissertation is available on the companion website.

24. This is not to exclude a relationship of the divine powers to human foes of Israel and Yahweh. As we've seen with passages like Dan 7:20–28; Zech 14:1–5; and Isa 24:21–23, the Bible envisions conflict where human and divine involvement overlap. This perspective is of course prominent in the Dead Sea Scrolls, particularly in The War Scroll (1QM). Due to exaggerations and fantastic portrayals of spiritual warfare in popular Christianity and fiction, scholars are often hesitant to emphasize the supernatural element of Dan 10 and other passages. For example, see the discussion in David E. Stevens, "Daniel 10 and the Notion of Territorial Spirits," Bibliotheca Sacra 157 (2000): 410–31.

5. Some translations have "their kingdom" in Dan 7:27. This requires viewing the referent of the Aramaic suffix pronoun to be the people. The pronoun is singular, though. It is possible to have a singular pronoun refer to a collective group, but usually the pronoun refers back to its nearest antecedent, in this case the singular entity referred to as "Most High."

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg 5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, "Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah," Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, "Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job," Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, "Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion," Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

5. See also Judg 5:20; Dan 8:10; 12:3; Rev 1:20; 12:4, 9.

25. Interestingly, some Septuagint manuscripts have “powers” (dynamis; plural: dynameis) as the translation for the divine “host” in Dan 8:10. See also Rom 8:38 for supernatural powers.

8. See Theodotian’s Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, “Archangel,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the “name”). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of “chief princes” (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel’s vision “became great, even as great as the Prince of the host” (italics mine). The phrase “prince of the host” transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier “prince of the host” is called “the prince of princes.” In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly “king” who is the analogy to the little horn “shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–

82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

13. The foe-from-the-north theme is also picked up in Dan 11, a passage that many scholars believe in some way relates to the antichrist. Daniel's eschatological foe is connected to the north many times. The known invasion of Jerusalem by Antiochus IV (Epiphanes) in 167 BC follows many elements that are detailed in Dan 11. Antiochus attacked from the north (he was from the northern, Seleucid empire in Asia Minor). He committed the abominable act of profaning the temple by sacrificing a pig on the altar (cf. Dan 9:24–27) and made Jewish customs such as circumcision punishable by death. These offenses started a rebellion in Jerusalem that led to a short period of Jewish independence. Therefore, those who saw the Gog enemy in Antiochus may also have been led to think of the new Jewish independent state as the final kingdom of God. History informs us clearly that it wasn't. Moreover, despite the elements of precision noted by scholars between the invasion of Antiochus IV and Dan 11, there are clear contradictions between the record of Antiochus's invasion and parts of Dan 11. Nearly two centuries later, Jesus still regarded the prophecy of the abomination of desolation (Dan 9:24–27) as yet to come (Matt 24:15–21). Regardless of the Antiochus issue, his association with the northern foe of Dan 11 nevertheless shows us that the foe-from-the-north motif is important. Later Jewish rabbis and early Christian scholars paid close attention to it.

4. For example, Psa 2:2, due to the mention of the "kings of the earth," would likely have been taken by a Jew living in the Old Testament era as referring to a time in the distant future. How far into the future Dan 9:25–26 may have been placed by a Jewish reader depends on when it was written. As anyone knows who has studied eschatology in depth, a good case can be made for the passage being fulfilled in the Second Temple period, as well as a time yet future. It also isn't clear whether the passage refers to one "anointed" (mashiach) prince or two, and whether one or the other is good or evil. The fact that Cyrus the Persian, a pagan, could be called mashiach by God (Isa 45:1) illustrates the flexibility and ambiguity of the concept. There is no single verse in the Old Testament that contains the word mashiach that one could point to and discern the scope of what Jesus did in the New Testament.

26. Translation of the verse references in this paragraph are all from the ESV. The context of 1 Cor 2 is that of a divine plan—divine knowledge. While archon (along with the rest of Paul's vocabulary) is found in the New Testament and elsewhere for human rulers, it makes little sense for Paul to see irony in the fact that humans didn't know God's mystery-plan involved the death and resurrection of the messiah. As Aune notes, "The term archontes used as a designation for angelic beings first occurs in the LXX Dan 10:13, and seven times in Theod. Dan 10:13, 20–21; 12:1, where the LXX has strategos, 'commander,' 'magistrate,' all translations of the Aram sar, 'prince.' " That the rulers here are evil supernatural powers of darkness is an interpretation found in church fathers such as Origen, Tertullian, and Justin (see D. E. Aune, "Archon," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 82–85).

26. Translation of the verse references in this paragraph are all from the ESV. The context of 1 Cor 2 is that of a divine plan—divine knowledge.

While archon (along with the rest of Paul's vocabulary) is found in the New Testament and elsewhere for human rulers, it makes little sense for Paul to see irony in the fact that humans didn't know God's mystery-plan involved the death and resurrection of the messiah. As Aune notes, "The term archontes used as a designation for angelic beings first occurs in the LXX Dan 10:13, and seven times in Theod. Dan 10:13, 20–21; 12:1, where the LXX has strategos, 'commander,' 'magistrate,' all translations of the Aram sar, 'prince.' " That the rulers here are evil supernatural powers of darkness is an interpretation found in church fathers such as Origen, Tertullian, and Justin (see D. E. Aune, "Archon," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 82–85).

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's

"prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

26. Translation of the verse references in this paragraph are all from the ESV. The context of 1 Cor 2 is that of a divine plan—divine knowledge. While archon (along with the rest of Paul's vocabulary) is found in the New Testament and elsewhere for human rulers, it makes little sense for Paul to see irony in the fact that humans didn't know God's mystery-plan involved the death and resurrection of the messiah. As Aune notes, "The term archontes used as a designation for angelic beings first occurs in the LXX Dan 10:13, and seven times in Theod. Dan 10:13, 20–21; 12:1, where the LXX has strategos, 'commander,' 'magistrate,' all translations of the Aram sar, 'prince.' " That the rulers here are evil supernatural powers of darkness is an interpretation found in church fathers such as Origen, Tertullian, and Justin (see D. E. Aune, "Archon," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 82–85).

5. See also Judg 5:20; Dan 8:10; 12:3; Rev 1:20; 12:4, 9.

9. Rev 2:7, 26–28; 3:21; 5:10; 21:24 ["kings" = rulers]. The idea of believers ruling over nations must be read in the context of the reclamation of the nations disinherited by God in Deut 32:8–9 (see chapter 15 and the final chapter of this book). The eschatological portrayal of glorified human rulers in a global Eden is why Hos 1:10 cannot be used to argue that the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4 are human. First, the phrase is not a precise parallel. Second, that passage must be viewed in the larger context of biblical theology. Hos 1:10 is eschatological. It looks to a distant future time when the northern kingdom of Israel will be restored as people of God. That eschatological event coincides with the ultimate glorification of believers—who are, and will be, children of the living God, ruling and reigning with Yahweh, as originally intended, in a new, global Eden. The fact that God will see his human family fulfill the original Edenic goal does not overturn the fact that God also has a divine family. At the last day, when human believers are glorified, the two families and councils merge. One family of God doesn't erase the other.

3. The Old Testament uses the metaphor as well. The oracle against the Philistines, for example, threatens that rogue nation with "the root of the snake [nachash]" (Isa 14:29). The word translated "root" (shoresh) is used in the very next verse to describe the Philistine people who will be the victims of this judgment. God's executing judgment on the Philistines by means of another human enemy is expressed metaphorically with serpent language. That the word shoresh ("root") speaks of human offspring is perhaps best known from the phrase "root of Jesse" to refer to the messiah (Isa 11:10; cf. Isa 11:1; Hos 9:16).

5. Several passages have Yahweh referring to Canaan/Israel as "my land" or "my inheritance" (e.g., 2 Chr 7:20; Isa 19:25; Jer 2:7; 16:18; Ezek 38:16; Joel 1:6; 3:2).

5. Several passages have Yahweh referring to Canaan/Israel as "my land" or "my inheritance" (e.g., 2 Chr 7:20; Isa 19:25; Jer 2:7; 16:18; Ezek 38:16; Joel 1:6; 3:2).

8. The divinized kingship view is also defended by contending that there are no examples in ancient Near Eastern materials of divine beings "marrying" human women, while there are examples of kings claiming mixed ancestry from gods and humans. This of course presumes Gen 6:1–4 is describing matrimonial unions. This is playing word games, since the "marriage" idea derives from English translations. The word translated "wife" is simply the normal plural for "women" (nashim). The biblical euphemisms of "taking" (Gen 6:2) or "going in to" a woman (Gen 6:4) are not exclusively used for marriage. They are also used to describe the sexual act outside a marriage bond. That is, "taking" a woman can describe an illicit sexual relationship (Gen 38:2; Lev 18:17; 20:17, 21; 21:7), as can "coming/going in to" (Gen 38:2; 39:14; Lev 21:11; Judg 16:1; Amos 2:7). The point of the language of Gen 6:1–4 is a sexual relationship, not matrimony. This objection is therefore a distinction without a difference. This view also fails logically. The objection about the lack of divine-human marriages is aimed at eliminating the divine element from Gen 6:1–4, thus reducing the episode to purely human relationships (albeit with divine kings as focus). But on what logical basis would multiple marriages between kings and women bring the world into chaos, necessitating God's judgment in a catastrophic flood?

8. The wording of Amos 2:9 cannot be conclusively isolated to reference only the individual Sihon or Og. The phrase "the Amorite" (ha-'emoriy) can refer to a single person (e.g., Gen 14:13) or a collective (e.g., Gen 10:16). "Whose" is the simple relative pronoun 'asher. The third person singular suffix pronoun ("his" [fruit]) can be used with respect to a collective as well, precisely because its grammatical agreement will align with the noun it represents. Since "Amorite" is morphologically singular, the suffix pronoun is singular. But the singular noun, as noted above, can be semantically plural. Consequently, the suffix pronoun would contextually be understood the same way.

11. This passage therefore adds another clarification to the generalized description of Num 11:28–29. As discussed earlier, the spies had made the blanket statement that they had seen Anakim wherever they had gone. One of those locations was the "hill country" where the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites dwelled. These people groups are noted in Joshua 11's description of the northern campaign. Deut 9:1–2 seems to support this approach, as the Anakim of verse 2 appear to be cast as a subset of the population described in verse 1. Deut 9:1–2 is important in this regard as it is included in those passages that provide the rationale for the conquest. Not only were the Israelites outnumbered by an entrenched population (Deut 9:1), but the giant Anakim they had feared back in Num 13:33 had to be dealt with (Deut 9:2). Hendel makes a similar point about the giant clans: "The function of the Nephilim-Rephaim in all of these [biblical] traditions is constant—they exist in order to be wiped out: by the flood, by Moses, by David, and others.… Note that the giant aboriginal inhabitants of Seir, Ammon, and Gaza are also utterly annihilated, generally by Yahweh (Deut 2:12, 20–23); see also Deut 9:1–3; Amos 2:9" (Ronald S. Hendel, "Of Demigods and the Deluge: Toward and Interpretation of Genesis 6:1–4," Journal of Biblical Literature 106.1 [March 1987]: 21 and note).

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2 Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^{B} version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug ("darkness"), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as "lawless ones" (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila ("giant") to translate Hebrew kesil ("Orion"). See L. Zalcman, "Orion," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, "Pleiades," in ibid., 657–58.

12. See Josh 13:2–3; 1 Sam 17:4, 23; 2 Sam 21:15–22; 1 Chr 20:4–8. It is interesting to note that the Philistines are known from ancient texts outside the Bible to have been one of the Sea Peoples. The Sea Peoples were seafaring people from the Aegean who tried to invade (with varying degrees of success) the coast of Canaan and Egypt in roughly 1200–1150 BC. One of their points of origin was Caphtor, an island in the Aegean. Jeremiah 47:4 and Amos 9:7 explicitly connect the Philistines with Caphtor. The Caphtorim are among the peoples discussed in Deut 2:20–23 in connection with the Anakim. Goliath was from Gath, a Philistine city. The Old Testament has other giants from Gath (2 Sam 21:16, 18, 20, 22; 1 Chr 20:4, 6, 8), descendants of Rapha, a name that many scholars connect to the Rephaim (see B. Becking, "Rapha," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. [ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 687). The name "Goliath" is either Luwian or Lydian, that is, deriving from one of the cultures that are connected to the Aegean region (see Aharon Kempinski, “Some Philistine Names from the Kingdom of Gaza,” Israel Exploration Journal 37:1 [1987]: 20–24). An inscription from Gath has surfaced with what appears to be the name “Goliath” on it (see Aren M. Maeir, Stefan J. Wimmer, Alexander Zukerman, and Aaron Demsky, “A Late Iron Age I/Early Iron Age II Old Canaanite Inscription from Tell ets-tsahfi /Gath, Israel: Palaeography, Dating, and Historical-Cultural Significance,” Bulletin of the American Schools of Oriental Research 351 [2008]: 39–71 [esp. 48–50]). Lastly, fifty years ago E. C. B. MacLaurin put forth the interesting thesis that biblical ’anaqim (’nqym) might be equitable to Greek (digamma) anx, a title used of gods and mythic heroes in Greek literature (MacLaurin, “Anak/’anx,” Vetus Testamentum 15:4 [1965]: 468–74). MacLaurin further argues for a correlation of ’anaqim and seranim, a biblical term used of Philistine military governors (e.g., Judg 3:3; 16:5). Given the apparent relationship of the Anakim with the Philistines in several biblical passages, and the classification of the Philistines with the Sea Peoples from the Aegean, these correlations, though speculative, deserve consideration. See the companion website for more detail. It seems certain that some relationship existed between these people groups, though what precisely that was isn’t clear. It also seems fair to suggest that in the context of a local flood perspective, these connections provide a possible historical trajectory for giants after the flood.

30. Several New Testament scholars follow this trajectory. Bauckham writes: “The term doxai (lit. ‘glories’) for angels is attested in the Dead Sea Scrolls (nkbdym).… Probably they are so called because they participate in or embody the glory of God (cf. T. Jud. 25:2; T. Levi 18:5; Heb 9:5; Philo, Spec. Leg. 1.8.45). It is true that nkbdym can also refer to illustrious men, noblemen (Isa 3:5; 23:8; Nah 3:10; Ps 149:8; 1QpHab 4:2; 4QpNah 2:9; 3:9; 4:4; 1QM 14:11), but in these cases the Septuagint does not use doxai, and one would expect a more idiomatic Greek rendering if this were Jude’s meaning. It is in any case an unlikely meaning, especially in view of the parallel statement in v 10a. Clement of Alexandria already interpreted Jude’s doxai as angels” (Richard J. Bauckham, 2 Peter, Jude, Word Biblical Commentary 50 [Dallas: Word, 1998], 57). Bauckham’s reference to Clement of Alexandria comes from the latter’s Comments on the Epistle of Jude (Ante-Nicene Fathers 2:573): “They ‘speak evil of majesty,’ that is, of the angels” (cited in Gene L. Green, Jude and 2 Peter, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament [Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008], 76–77). Finally, J. N. D. Kelly observes: “This term cannot, any more than authority above and for much the same reasons, designate community leaders: this is quite out of keeping with the context, and there is no plausible instance of its bearing this sense.… In the light of the context (cf. 9) and 2 Pet. 2:10 f., which borrows from this verse, there can be no doubt that it here denotes a class of angelic beings; and this usage of the noun is supported by LXX Ex. 15:11. ‘Glory’ (doxa) originally stands for the numinous radiance which belongs to God Himself (e.g. Ex. 24:16 f.; 33:18–23; Ps. 19:1), but later the angels who surround Him come to be regarded as sharing in it (cf. Philo, Spec. leg. i. 8. 45: ‘by thy glory I understand the powers which keep watch around thee’)” (J. N. D. Kelly, The Epistles of Peter and of Jude, Black’s New Testament Commentary [London: Continuum, 1969], 263).

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel’s return. On Zerubbabel’s lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: “He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin’s eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel’s to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut 25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel’s heir, he would be first in line for the throne.” Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God’s agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet’s eschatological outlook for the nation’s destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). “Joshua,” of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua (“salvation”), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means “seed of Babel.” While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh’s son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God’s son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, “The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel's return. On Zerubbabel's lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: "He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin's eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel's to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut 25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel's heir, he would be first in line for the throne." Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God's agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet's eschatological outlook for the nation's destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). "Joshua," of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua ("salvation"), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means "seed of Babel." While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh's son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God's son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, "The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

11. There is much more to this than the rebuilding of a temple and Zerubbabel's return. On Zerubbabel's lineage, see Derek Kidner, Ezra and Nehemiah: An Introduction and Commentary Tyndale Old Testament Commentaries 12 (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 1979). Kidner notes (pp. 40–41) of Zerubbabel: "He is known as the son of Shealtiel (3:2, et al.) who was Jehoiachin's eldest son. But the Heb text of 1 Chr 3:19 makes Zerubbabel the son of Pedaiah, who was a younger brother of Shealtiel. If this is the true text, it implies a levirate marriage of Pedaiah to the widow of Shealtiel, whereby the firstborn was reckoned as Shealtiel's to keep the family name in being (cf. Deut 25:5f.; Ruth 4:10). As Shealtiel's heir, he would be first in line for the throne." Scholars quite naturally draw from this lineage the idea that many Jews would have had hopes for a royal (Davidic) restoration, possibly in messianic terms. While it is true that Zerubbabel was in the line of David, the biblical material dating to the time of the return from exile and afterward bears abundant testimony to the fact that he was not the promised heir to the Davidic covenantal throne. Two items are, in my view, telling in this regard. First, while the prophet Zechariah casts Zerubbabel as God's agent for completing the temple (Zech 4:6–9), the prophet's eschatological outlook for the nation's destiny is more focused on Joshua the high priest (Zech 3:1–10; 6:9–15). "Joshua," of course, is in Hebrew Yeshua ("salvation"), the Hebrew equivalent of Jesus. Given the hindsight of the New Testament, there seems to be a play on words here if not a foreshadowing. Second, the name Zerubbabel means "seed of Babel." While neither the name nor the scriptural account of Zerubbabel amounts to a blemish on his character, it would seem that the name cryptically informs us of some theological messaging: Yahweh had taken his seed out of Babel (i.e., delivering them), but Yahweh would not have his ultimate Davidic king bear any attachment to Babylon. This may be why, although the nation was Yahweh's son, Matthew saw no analogy to Yahweh calling his seed out of Babylon (Israel, God's son, was there because of apostasy), but did see an analogy with Egypt (Hos 11:1; Israel was there because God gave Jacob instructions to go there; Gen 46:1–4). We also ought to be able to discern that this return would not be the kingdom of God because of the terms of the new covenant of Jer 31:31–33. Both Jeremiah and Isaiah describe kingdom living as a transformed society, one that cannot be accomplished without the presence of the Spirit and the divine messiah, as well as humans made divine. See J. J. M. Roberts, "The Divine King and the Human Community in Isaiah's Vision of the Future," in The Quest for the Kingdom of God: Studies in Honor of George E. Mendenhall (Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 1983), 127–36.

1. Readers may presume I've missed verse 16 (v. 17 in the Hebrew text): "They have pierced my hands and feet." (That rendering is the ESV translation.) I have not. Most Hebrew manuscripts of this verse do not have a reference to piercing the hands and feet, but read something to the effect: "Like the lion they are at my hands and feet" (LEB) or "my hands and feet have shriveled" (NRSV). The verse is arguably one of the most textually difficult in the Old Testament. With respect to our ensuing discussion, the lion imagery is interesting, since that imagery is applied to the devil in the New Testament (1 Pet 5:8). For piercing, see Zech 12:10. The scholarly literature on this verse is copious. A sampling illustrates the interpretive quandary: John Kaltner, "Psalm 22:17b: Second Guessing 'The Old Guess,' " Journal of Biblical Literature 117:3 (1998): 503–06; Brent A. Strawn, "Psalm 22:17b: More Guessing," Journal of Biblical Literature 119:3 (2000): 439–51; Kristin M. Swenson, "Psalm 22:17: Circling around the Problem Again," Journal of Biblical Literature 123:4 (2004): 637–48.

24. This is not to exclude a relationship of the divine powers to human foes of Israel and Yahweh. As we've seen with passages like Dan 7:20–28; Zech 14:1–5; and Isa 24:21–23, the Bible envisions conflict where human and divine involvement overlap. This perspective is of course prominent in the Dead Sea Scrolls, particularly in The War Scroll (1QM). Due to exaggerations and fantastic portrayals of spiritual warfare in popular Christianity and fiction, scholars are often hesitant to emphasize the supernatural element of Dan 10 and other passages. For example, see the discussion in David E. Stevens, "Daniel 10 and the Notion of Territorial Spirits," Bibliotheca Sacra 157 (2000): 410–31.

8. For example, Matt 2:19; Acts 10:3; 11:13.

5. What happened on the day of Pentecost shouldn't have been completely unexpected. It might certainly be the case that none of the gathered disciples were around on the day of Jesus' baptism when John the Baptist said that Jesus would baptize people "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11; Luke 3:16). But we know from Acts 1:1–5 that Jesus had indeed told the disciples he would send the Spirit after his resurrection and therefore gave them orders to wait for that event (see John 14:26; 15:26; Luke 24:49; John 7:39). Additionally, although baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" sounds like people would be baptized with two separate things (the Holy Spirit; fire), the grammar and syntax of these passages allow an equation or identification of these two elements. That is, they speak of the same thing, which would make good sense since fire symbolized the divine presence. See David L. Turner, Matthew, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008), 115–16.

15. See also Matt 3:17; Luke 3:22.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

16. See G. del Olmo Lete, "Bashan," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 161–63. Charlesworth agrees that geographical Bashan should be identified with serpent language (James H. Charlesworth, “Bashan, Symbology, Haplography, and Theology in Psalm 68,” in David and Zion: Biblical Studies in Honor of J. J. M. Roberts [ed. Bernard Frank Batto and Kathryn L. Roberts; Winona Lake, Ind.: Eisenbrauns, 2004], 351–372 [esp. 355–56]). As we saw earlier, the divine serpent (nachash, another word so translated) became lord of the dead after his rebellion in Eden. Therefore, the “serpentine” connection is conceptual, not philological/linguistic. In effect, Bashan was conceived of, to borrow a New Testament phrase, “the gates of hell.” We’ll return to both the imagery and this place in a later chapter. This is precisely the region where Jesus utters his famous “gates of hell” statement (Matt 16:18). The Old Testament also has Rephaim in the underworld (Sheol; see Isa 14:9; Ezek 32:27; Psa 88:10–12 [Hebrew, vv. 11–13]; Job 26:1–6). See the companion website for more discussion of Sheol in the Old Testament. Because of the Babylonian context of Gen 6:1–4 (a polemic against the divine apkallus and their quasi-divine giant offspring apkallus; see chs. 12–13), the subsequent connection by the biblical writers between the Nephilim and the Rephaim results in a departure from the tradition of Ugaritic literature, which did not have the Rephaim as giants.

2. Only one passage in the New Testament suggests a differentiation between body, soul, and spirit: 1 Thess 5:23. Since the Old Testament clearly sees two parts to humans (body and soul/spirit; material and immaterial), it is best to interpret this single verse the same way for theological consistency. Many scholars do not consider soul and spirit in this verse as discrete, separate items. This verse is similar to the shema (Deut 6:4; cf. Matt 22:37; Mark 12:29–30), which tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, and might. The point is totality, not that heart, soul, might (and mind in the gospel references) are separable. The Old Testament uses both nephesh and ruach to describe the source of these inner parts. Totality is also the point of Heb 4:12 (which actually uses four items, not three).

13. The foe-from-the-north theme is also picked up in Dan 11, a passage that many scholars believe in some way relates to the antichrist.

Daniel's eschatological foe is connected to the north many times. The known invasion of Jerusalem by Antiochus IV (Epiphanes) in 167 BC follows many elements that are detailed in Dan 11. Antiochus attacked from the north (he was from the northern, Seleucid empire in Asia Minor). He committed the abominable act of profaning the temple by sacrificing a pig on the altar (cf. Dan 9:24–27) and made Jewish customs such as circumcision punishable by death. These offenses started a rebellion in Jerusalem that led to a short period of Jewish independence. Therefore, those who saw the Gog enemy in Antiochus may also have been led to think of the new Jewish independent state as the final kingdom of God. History informs us clearly that it wasn't. Moreover, despite the elements of precision noted by scholars between the invasion of Antiochus IV and Dan 11, there are clear contradictions between the record of Antiochus's invasion and parts of Dan 11. Nearly two centuries later, Jesus still regarded the prophecy of the abomination of desolation (Dan 9:24–27) as yet to come (Matt 24:15–21). Regardless of the Antiochus issue, his association with the northern foe of Dan 11 nevertheless shows us that the foe-from-the-north motif is important. Later Jewish rabbis and early Christian scholars paid close attention to it.

3. As we'll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to "angels" being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton's Paradise Lost. References to "angels that sinned" look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like "evil spirits" either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly, Dale Martin's recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today's Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel's Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, "When Did Angels Become Demons?" Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

8. In chapter 37 I briefly discuss two related items: (1) Paul's comments in 1 Cor 2:8 that, had "the rulers of this age" known what God's plan of redemption was—that the messiah must die to accomplish salvation—they "would not have crucified the Lord of glory"; and (2) the meaning of Jas 2:19 ("You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe—and shudder!" [ESV]). In regard to the first item, the gospel accounts of demons recognizing Jesus make it clear that the powers of darkness knew that the messiah had arrived. Only demons address Jesus as "son of the Most High" in Scripture (Mark 5:7; Luke 8:28). However, they did not know God's means for accomplishing salvation and the restoration of the Edenic kingdom—hence Paul's statement. The complete messianic profile and plan of salvation was cryptically scattered and veiled throughout the Old Testament.

2. Only one passage in the New Testament suggests a differentiation between body, soul, and spirit: 1 Thess 5:23. Since the Old Testament clearly sees two parts to humans (body and soul/spirit; material and immaterial), it is best to interpret this single verse the same way for theological consistency. Many scholars do not consider soul and spirit in this verse as discrete, separate items. This verse is similar to the shema (Deut 6:4; cf. Matt 22:37; Mark 12:29–30), which tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, and might. The point is totality, not that heart, soul, might (and mind in the gospel references) are separable. The Old Testament uses both nephesh and ruach to describe the source of these inner parts. Totality is also the point of Heb 4:12 (which actually uses four items, not three).

5. What happened on the day of Pentecost shouldn't have been completely unexpected. It might certainly be the case that none of the gathered disciples were around on the day of Jesus' baptism when John the Baptist said that Jesus would baptize people "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11; Luke 3:16). But we know from Acts 1:1–5 that Jesus had indeed told the disciples he would send the Spirit after his resurrection and therefore gave them orders to wait for that event (see John 14:26; 15:26; Luke 24:49; John 7:39). Additionally, although baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" sounds like people would be baptized with two separate things (the Holy Spirit; fire), the grammar and syntax of these passages allow an equation or identification of these two elements. That is, they speak of the same thing, which would make good sense since fire symbolized the divine presence. See David L. Turner, Matthew, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008), 115–16.

15. See also Matt 3:17; Luke 3:22.

11. See Luke 3:23–38.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

8. In chapter 37 I briefly discuss two related items: (1) Paul's comments in 1 Cor 2:8 that, had "the rulers of this age" known what God's plan of redemption was—that the messiah must die to accomplish salvation—they "would not have crucified the Lord of glory"; and (2) the meaning of Jas 2:19 ("You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe—and shudder!" [ESV]). In regard to the first item, the gospel accounts of demons recognizing Jesus make it clear that the powers of darkness knew that the messiah had arrived. Only demons address Jesus as “son of the Most High” in Scripture (Mark 5:7; Luke 8:28). However, they did not know God’s means for accomplishing salvation and the restoration of the Edenic kingdom—hence Paul’s statement. The complete messianic profile and plan of salvation was cryptically scattered and veiled throughout the Old Testament.

1. Jesus affirmed that perspective. He accused the Pharisees of spilling the blood of all the prophets sent by God to his people, beginning with Abel, the righteous son of Adam (Luke 11:49–51). Why would Jesus reference Abel this way as among the prophets? Because he represented God—of Adam and Eve's two children, he was the godly son. We might say prophets speak for God, but even more broadly than that, a prophet is someone God views or calls as his chief representative among the population of his human imagers. Adam, of course, was the original imager of God, and Abel stood in the stead of his father as one who walked with God, imaging his Maker on earth. Cain killed Abel, and Abel was replaced by Seth, who we are told was in the "likeness" and "image" of his father, Adam. Not coincidentally, that terminology comes from Gen 1:26. All humans are divine imagers, but in our fallen condition we often don't image God as we are able and as he intended. If the Bible teaches anything it's that people need divine intervention and divinely appointed leadership to avoid abusing our free will by following our own inclination to be our own master instead of remaining loyal to God.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

5. What happened on the day of Pentecost shouldn't have been completely unexpected. It might certainly be the case that none of the gathered disciples were around on the day of Jesus' baptism when John the Baptist said that Jesus would baptize people "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11; Luke 3:16). But we know from Acts 1:1–5 that Jesus had indeed told the disciples he would send the Spirit after his resurrection and therefore gave them orders to wait for that event (see John 14:26; 15:26; Luke 24:49; John 7:39). Additionally, although baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" sounds like people would be baptized with two separate things (the Holy Spirit; fire), the grammar and syntax of these passages allow an equation or identification of these two elements. That is, they speak of the same thing, which would make good sense since fire symbolized the divine presence. See David L. Turner, Matthew, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008), 115–16.

6. As we'll discuss in a later chapter, the New Testament also says that the presence of God dwells in each believer. The indwelling presence (the Name) with respect to Jesus goes beyond mere indwelling, as the language of John 17 makes clear. John 17 has Jesus with the Father before the world existed (17:5; cf. John 1:1–14). The language also goes beyond the idea that Jesus "became" God or received God at his baptism. That cannot be the point because of John 17:24, where Jesus says that the Father loved him "before the foundation of the world."

5. What happened on the day of Pentecost shouldn't have been completely unexpected. It might certainly be the case that none of the gathered disciples were around on the day of Jesus' baptism when John the Baptist said that Jesus would baptize people "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11; Luke 3:16). But we know from Acts 1:1–5 that Jesus had indeed told the disciples he would send the Spirit after his resurrection and therefore gave them orders to wait for that event (see John 14:26; 15:26; Luke 24:49; John 7:39). Additionally, although baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" sounds like people would be baptized with two separate things (the Holy Spirit; fire), the grammar and syntax of these passages allow an equation or identification of these two elements. That is, they speak of the same thing, which would make good sense since fire symbolized the divine presence. See David L. Turner, Matthew, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008), 115–16.

3. Due to space constraints I have excluded discussion of John 10:34–35, where John has Jesus citing Psa 82:6 in defense of his deity. Nearly all modern commentators fail to take the verse in light of the original context of Psa 82, which has the divine council as its focus. They strangely have the elohim of Psa 82:6 as mere humans, which reduces Jesus' self-defense to saying that he is allowed to call himself the son of God because every other Jew could as well. This undermines Jesus'

claim to deity in the passage and ignores how the quotation is bookended with two suggestions of his deity: (1) identification with the Father (John 10:30)—who is Lord of the council; and (2) the assertion that the Father is in Jesus (John 10:38). Interpretation of the quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10 must not ignore the original divine—not human—context of the psalm. That context is part of the power of the quotation—that the Jewish Scriptures bore witness to nonhuman sons of God. This reminder is the gist of Psa 82:6. Juxtaposed as its quotation is in John 10, between two statements that identify Jesus with the Father, the point of the theology produced by the quotation in context is that Jesus is not only a divine son of God, but superior to all divine sons of God in his identification with the Father, the Lord of the divine council. I have addressed this issue in an academic paper available on the companion website: Michael S. Heiser, "Jesus' Quotation of Psalm 82:6 in John 10:34: A Different View of John's Theological Strategy" (presented at the Pacific Northwest Regional Meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature, Gonzaga University, Spokane, WA, May 13–15, 2011).

1. Space constraints make it impossible to fully address the flawed thinking behind the human explanation for elohim (in Psa 82 and elsewhere) in this chapter. In the discussion that proceeds, I touch on some of the more glaring logical and scriptural problems for this view. Arguments for the human view of elohim stemming from passages like Judg 18, Exod 22:7–9, Psa 45:7, or Jesus' quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10:34 are dealt with at length on the companion website.

3. Due to space constraints I have excluded discussion of John 10:34–35, where John has Jesus citing Psa 82:6 in defense of his deity. Nearly all modern commentators fail to take the verse in light of the original context of Psa 82, which has the divine council as its focus. They strangely have the elohim of Psa 82:6 as mere humans, which reduces Jesus' self-defense to saying that he is allowed to call himself the son of God because every other Jew could as well. This undermines Jesus' claim to deity in the passage and ignores how the quotation is bookended with two suggestions of his deity: (1) identification with the Father (John 10:30)—who is Lord of the council; and (2) the assertion that the Father is in Jesus (John 10:38). Interpretation of the quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10 must not ignore the original divine—not human—context of the psalm. That context is part of the power of the quotation—that the Jewish Scriptures bore witness to nonhuman sons of God. This reminder is the gist of Psa 82:6. Juxtaposed as its quotation is in John 10, between two statements that identify Jesus with the Father, the point of the theology produced by the quotation in context is that Jesus is not only a divine son of God, but superior to all divine sons of God in his identification with the Father, the Lord of the divine council. I have addressed this issue in an academic paper available on the companion website: Michael S. Heiser, "Jesus' Quotation of Psalm 82:6 in John 10:34: A Different View of John's Theological Strategy" (presented at the Pacific Northwest Regional Meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature, Gonzaga University, Spokane, WA, May 13–15, 2011).

3. Due to space constraints I have excluded discussion of John 10:34–35, where John has Jesus citing Psa 82:6 in defense of his deity. Nearly all modern commentators fail to take the verse in light of the original context of Psa 82, which has the divine council as its focus. They strangely have the elohim of Psa 82:6 as mere humans, which reduces Jesus' self-defense to saying that he is allowed to call himself the son of God because every other Jew could as well. This undermines Jesus' claim to deity in the passage and ignores how the quotation is bookended with two suggestions of his deity: (1) identification with the Father (John 10:30)—who is Lord of the council; and (2) the assertion that the Father is in Jesus (John 10:38). Interpretation of the quotation of Psa 82:6 in John 10 must not ignore the original divine—not human—context of the psalm. That context is part of the power of the quotation—that the Jewish Scriptures bore witness to nonhuman sons of God. This reminder is the gist of Psa 82:6. Juxtaposed as its quotation is in John 10, between two statements that identify Jesus with the Father, the point of the theology produced by the quotation in context is that Jesus is not only a divine son of God, but superior to all divine sons of God in his identification with the Father, the Lord of the divine council. I have addressed this issue in an academic paper available on the companion website: Michael S. Heiser, "Jesus' Quotation of Psalm 82:6 in John

10:34: A Different View of John's Theological Strategy" (presented at the Pacific Northwest Regional Meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature, Gonzaga University, Spokane, WA, May 13–15, 2011).

12. The identification with Satan is argued on two grounds: (1) the fact that the title here is similar to the epithet "ruler of this world" in the Gospel of John (John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11), whose identity would be difficult to reconcile with any other divine being than Satan; and (2) Paul's identification of the deception of people in the eschaton with Satan (2 Thess 2:9–10).

5. What happened on the day of Pentecost shouldn't have been completely unexpected. It might certainly be the case that none of the gathered disciples were around on the day of Jesus' baptism when John the Baptist said that Jesus would baptize people "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11; Luke 3:16). But we know from Acts 1:1–5 that Jesus had indeed told the disciples he would send the Spirit after his resurrection and therefore gave them orders to wait for that event (see John 14:26; 15:26; Luke 24:49; John 7:39). Additionally, although baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" sounds like people would be baptized with two separate things (the Holy Spirit; fire), the grammar and syntax of these passages allow an equation or identification of these two elements. That is, they speak of the same thing, which would make good sense since fire symbolized the divine presence. See David L. Turner, Matthew, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008), 115–16.

12. The identification with Satan is argued on two grounds: (1) the fact that the title here is similar to the epithet "ruler of this world" in the Gospel of John (John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11), whose identity would be difficult to reconcile with any other divine being than Satan; and (2) Paul's identification of the deception of people in the eschaton with Satan (2 Thess 2:9–10).

5. What happened on the day of Pentecost shouldn't have been completely unexpected. It might certainly be the case that none of the gathered disciples were around on the day of Jesus' baptism when John the Baptist said that Jesus would baptize people "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11; Luke 3:16). But we know from Acts 1:1–5 that Jesus had indeed told the disciples he would send the Spirit after his resurrection and therefore gave them orders to wait for that event (see John 14:26; 15:26; Luke 24:49; John 7:39). Additionally, although baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" sounds like people would be baptized with two separate things (the Holy Spirit; fire), the grammar and syntax of these passages allow an equation or identification of these two elements. That is, they speak of the same thing, which would make good sense since fire symbolized the divine presence. See David L. Turner, Matthew, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008), 115–16.

12. The identification with Satan is argued on two grounds: (1) the fact that the title here is similar to the epithet "ruler of this world" in the Gospel of John (John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11), whose identity would be difficult to reconcile with any other divine being than Satan; and (2) Paul's identification of the deception of people in the eschaton with Satan (2 Thess 2:9–10).

6. As we'll discuss in a later chapter, the New Testament also says that the presence of God dwells in each believer. The indwelling presence (the Name) with respect to Jesus goes beyond mere indwelling, as the language of John 17 makes clear. John 17 has Jesus with the Father before the world existed (17:5; cf. John 1:1–14). The language also goes beyond the idea that Jesus "became" God or received God at his baptism. That cannot be the point because of John 17:24, where Jesus says that the Father loved him "before the foundation of the world."

6. As we'll discuss in a later chapter, the New Testament also says that the presence of God dwells in each believer. The indwelling presence (the Name) with respect to Jesus goes beyond mere indwelling, as the language of John 17 makes clear. John 17 has Jesus with the Father before the world existed (17:5; cf. John 1:1–14). The language also goes beyond the idea that Jesus "became" God or received God at his baptism. That cannot be the point because of John 17:24, where Jesus says that the Father loved him "before the foundation of the world."

5. What happened on the day of Pentecost shouldn't have been completely unexpected. It might certainly be the case that none of the gathered disciples were around on the day of Jesus' baptism when John the Baptist said that Jesus would baptize people "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" (Matt 3:11; Luke 3:16). But we know from Acts 1:1–5 that Jesus had indeed told the disciples he would send the Spirit after his resurrection and therefore gave them orders to wait for that event (see John 14:26; 15:26; Luke 24:49; John 7:39). Additionally, although baptism "with the Holy Spirit and with fire" sounds like people would be baptized with two separate things (the Holy Spirit; fire), the grammar and syntax of these passages allow an equation or identification of these two elements. That is, they speak of the same thing, which would make good sense since fire symbolized the divine presence. See David L. Turner, Matthew, Baker Exegetical Commentary on the New Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Baker Academic, 2008), 115–16.

7. A handful of New Testament commentators have noticed this but were at a loss as to what to make of it since they lack the divine council worldview backdrop with which Old Testament scholars are familiar. For example, C. K. Barrett says, "The use of the word suggests an intended allusion to the story of Babel, but the word, or words (synchein, synchynnein), are not uncommon (in the NT Acts only: 2:6; 9:22; 19:32; 21:27, 31) and it would be unwise to press too strongly the thought of a reversal of the dispersion of mankind as a result of diversity of speech" (A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles; The Acts of the Apostles, 2 vols. [Edinburgh: T&T Clark International, 2004], 119). Barrett is correct that the reversal of the dispersion has nothing directly to do with diversity of speech. But it has everything to do with regathering the disinherited nations given up in Deut 32:8–9, the event of Babel.

7. As C. K. Barrett notes on Acts 5:40–42, "The Jews used shm [shem; "the name"] to avoid saying God; the Christians took this up for Jesus; therefore they thought of Jesus as God" (C. K. Barrett, A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles; The Acts of the Apostles, vol. 1 [Edinburgh: T&T Clark International, 2004], 301).

5. Deut 33:1–2; Acts 7:52–53; Gal 3:19; Heb 2:2; See chapter 21.

7. A handful of New Testament commentators have noticed this but were at a loss as to what to make of it since they lack the divine council worldview backdrop with which Old Testament scholars are familiar. For example, C. K. Barrett says, "The use of the word suggests an intended allusion to the story of Babel, but the word, or words (synchein, synchynnein), are not uncommon (in the NT Acts only: 2:6; 9:22; 19:32; 21:27, 31) and it would be unwise to press too strongly the thought of a reversal of the dispersion of mankind as a result of diversity of speech" (A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles; The Acts of the Apostles, 2 vols. [Edinburgh: T&T Clark International, 2004], 119). Barrett is correct that the reversal of the dispersion has nothing directly to do with diversity of speech. But it has everything to do with regathering the disinherited nations given up in Deut 32:8–9, the event of Babel.

8. For example, Matt 2:19; Acts 10:3; 11:13.

8. For example, Matt 2:19; Acts 10:3; 11:13.

8. The one exception is Acts 17:18, where Greeks listening to Paul describe him by saying, "He seems to be a preacher of foreign divinities [daimonion]." The reference here is neutral.

7. A handful of New Testament commentators have noticed this but were at a loss as to what to make of it since they lack the divine council worldview backdrop with which Old Testament scholars are familiar. For example, C. K. Barrett says, "The use of the word suggests an intended allusion to the story of Babel, but the word, or words (synchein, synchynnein), are not uncommon (in the NT Acts only: 2:6; 9:22; 19:32; 21:27, 31) and it would be unwise to press too strongly the thought of a reversal of the dispersion of mankind as a result of diversity of speech" (A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles; The Acts of the Apostles, 2 vols. [Edinburgh: T&T Clark International, 2004], 119). Barrett is correct that the reversal of the dispersion has nothing directly to do with diversity of speech. But it has everything to do with regathering the disinherited nations given up in Deut 32:8–9, the event of Babel.

7. A handful of New Testament commentators have noticed this but were at a loss as to what to make of it since they lack the divine council worldview backdrop with which Old Testament scholars are familiar. For example, C. K. Barrett says, “The use of the word suggests an intended allusion to the story of Babel, but the word, or words (synchein, synchynnein), are not uncommon (in the NT Acts only: 2:6; 9:22; 19:32; 21:27, 31) and it would be unwise to press too strongly the thought of a reversal of the dispersion of mankind as a result of diversity of speech” (A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles; The Acts of the Apostles, 2 vols. [Edinburgh: T&T Clark International, 2004], 119). Barrett is correct that the reversal of the dispersion has nothing directly to do with diversity of speech. But it has everything to do with regathering the disinherited nations given up in Deut 32:8–9, the event of Babel.

7. A handful of New Testament commentators have noticed this but were at a loss as to what to make of it since they lack the divine council worldview backdrop with which Old Testament scholars are familiar. For example, C. K. Barrett says, “The use of the word suggests an intended allusion to the story of Babel, but the word, or words (synchein, synchynnein), are not uncommon (in the NT Acts only: 2:6; 9:22; 19:32; 21:27, 31) and it would be unwise to press too strongly the thought of a reversal of the dispersion of mankind as a result of diversity of speech” (A Critical and Exegetical Commentary on the Acts of the Apostles; The Acts of the Apostles, 2 vols. [Edinburgh: T&T Clark International, 2004], 119). Barrett is correct that the reversal of the dispersion has nothing directly to do with diversity of speech. But it has everything to do with regathering the disinherited nations given up in Deut 32:8–9, the event of Babel.

10. Beale notes: “A white stone was commonly associated with a vote of acquittal (cf. 4 Macc. 15:26; Acts 26:10) or a favorable vote. Conversely, a black stone indicated guilt. A white stone sometimes was also used as a pass of admission to special occasions. Against this background, the meaning here probably refers to the reversal of the guilty verdict issued by the world's institutions against the overcomer because of refusal to participate in its idolatrous meals. Accordingly, the "white stone" becomes the invitation to take part in Jesus' supper (cf. 19:9). The notion that a banquet meal is in mind is supported by the reference to "manna." According to Jewish tradition, precious stones fell along with the manna (cf. Midr. Ps. 78.4). Some commentators have seen here the two precious stones on the shoulder pieces of the high priest's ephod, bearing the names of the twelve tribes (Exod 28:9–12). According to another Jewish tradition, these priestly stones were stored in the hidden ark, to be revealed in the messianic times (cf. 2 Bar. 6:7–8)." See G. K. Beale, The Book of Revelation: A Commentary on the Greek Text, New International Greek Testament Commentary (Grand Rapids, MI; Carlisle, Cumbria: Eerdmans; Paternoster Press, 1999), 252–53.

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations

via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and

Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has

God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

25. Interestingly, some Septuagint manuscripts have “powers” (dynamis; plural: dynameis) as the translation for the divine “host” in Dan 8:10. See also Rom 8:38 for supernatural powers.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

6. Note that Rom 16:20 identifies the serpent as Satan. As I noted in chapter 8 when discussing the Hebrew word satan, the Old Testament never uses that term of the divine Edenic rebel. Since the term’s meaning (“adversary”) was conceptually appropriate, though, it became used as a label for God’s original opposer after the Old Testament period.

7. There are other alternatives for an allusion here, but there may in fact be no allusion at all. The gospel writers don’t say “this happened in fulfillment” of any particular verse with respect to the heavenly voice.

31. This observation is made not only on the basis of the wordings in context, but also grammar. The second person verb form in 1 Cor 3:16 (“you are God’s temple”) is grammatically plural.

3. As we’ll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to “angels” being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton’s Paradise Lost. References to “angels that sinned” look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like “evil spirits” either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly, Dale Martin's recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today's Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel's Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, "When Did Angels Become Demons?" Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

8. In the wider context of Deuteronomy as a whole, these shedim/elohim are the gods allotted to the nations (see chapters 14–15 of this book). Some recent evangelical treatments of the term shedim, most notably that of John Walton, contribute much to the discussion but seem to confuse language that identifies an entity as a member of the spiritual realm (elohim) with hierarchy in the divine council (see the companion website for specific interaction with John H. Walton, "Demons in Mesopotamia and Israel: Exploring the Category of Non-Divine but Supernatural Beings," in Windows to the Ancient World of the Hebrew Bible: Essays in Honor of Samuel Greengus [Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2014], 229–46). The biblical picture is simply not a neat one that conforms precisely to cognate material. All spiritual beings are, in biblical usage, labeled elohim. Terms like beney elohim or beney elim can either denote rank in the divine council (e.g., Job 1:6; 2:1; Psa 89:6 [Heb: 89:7]) or, more generally, speak of spiritual beings (Job 38:7; Psa 29:1). All spiritual beings are members of the heavenly host, the divine council (1 Kgs 22:19–23), in the sense that they all have some role to play. (There are no spiritual beings who operate alone. They are either under God's authority or in rebellion.) Some beings are distinguished by role, such as messengers (mal'ak, a term translated in many instances as "angel," but which means "messenger"). In ancient Near Eastern councils, messengers have low rank—but the term does not always denote low status. For example, at Ugarit the messengers (mlkm) of Baal are still referred to as gods ('ilm; KTU 1.3.iii:32). They are not "less divine" because of their role. Even Yahweh himself, when embodied or appearing in human form, takes that term ("angel [mal'ak] of Yahweh"; see chapters 16–18). Yahweh embodied in the Old Testament is not lesser than Yahweh invisible who is the sender. Hierarchy and identification are not completely interchangeable notions. For our purposes here, Deut 32:17 serves simply to point to the fact that the biblical writers understood the elohim as real beings. That Paul picks up on this passage to express fear of fellowship with demons (1 Cor 10:21–22; see chapter 38 of this book) informs us that he believed the elohim of Deut 32:17 were real spiritual beings.

3. As we'll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to "angels" being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton's Paradise Lost. References to "angels that sinned" look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like "evil spirits" either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly, Dale Martin's recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today's Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel's Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, "When Did Angels Become Demons?" Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

3. As we'll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to "angels" being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton's Paradise Lost. References to "angels that sinned" look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like "evil spirits" either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly, Dale Martin's recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today's Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel's Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, "When Did Angels Become Demons?" Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

14. Compare what Paul wrote in Gal 3:7–9, 28–29: [7]"Understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham. [8]And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: 'In you all the nations will be blessed.’ [9]So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.… [28]There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29]And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.”

5. Deut 33:1–2; Acts 7:52–53; Gal 3:19; Heb 2:2; See chapter 21.

7. This interpretive trajectory is part of New Testament and Second Temple period Jewish thinking on the glorification (also called “angelification,” “apotheosis,” and “deification”) of believers. Second Temple period examples of this approach include Philo of Alexandria (Who Is the Heir of Divine Things 86–87, 280–83; Questions and Answers in Genesis 4.181; On the Posterity of Cain 89; The Special Laws 1.13–19); Sirach 44:21. See David Burnett, “ ‘So Shall Your Seed Be’: Paul’s Use of Genesis 15:5 in Romans 4:18 in Light of Early Jewish Deification Traditions” (paper presented at the Annual Meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature, San Diego, CA, November 22–25, 2014; forthcoming in Journal for the Study of Paul and His Letters); M. David Litwa, We Are Being Transformed: Deification in Paul’s Soteriology, Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für die neutestamentliche Wissenschaft 187 (Berlin: Walter de Gruyter, 2012); Devorah Dimant, “Men as Angels: The Self-Image of the Qumran Community,” in Religion and Politics in the Ancient Near East, Studies in Jewish History and Culture (ed. Adele Berlin; Bethesda, MD: University Press of America, 1996), 93–103; James Tabor, “Firstborn of Many Brothers: A Pauline Notion of Apotheosis,” in Society of Biblical Literature Seminar Papers 1984, 295–303. The eschatological ramifications of that thinking are the coherent outcome of the Deuteronomy 32 worldview’s final resolution in biblical theology. Burnett’s essay is particularly powerful in that it demonstrates a clear Jewish intellectual trajectory (especially Philo) that links the glorification of Abraham’s seed (all believers, via Gal 3:26–29) to the divine sons of God. Glorified believers are Yahweh’s household-council reconstituted to displace and replace the rebellious sons of God over the nations who now resist the advance of Yahweh’s kingdom and reclamation of the nations. See the companion website for more discussion.

9. See, for example, Larry Hurtado, One God, One Lord: Early Christian Devotion and Ancient Jewish Monotheism (London: Continuum, 2003), 97–99. James also has the shema in view when he writes, "You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!" (Jas 2:19). Note that James does not say the demons believe in God and therefore tremble. He says that they believe that God is one—and that is what frightens them. A fundamental theological point of the shema was that God had offered redemption to and through only one nation and community: Abraham's descendants. Israel had been created by supernatural intervention after God had disinherited the nations of the earth (Gen 10) at the Tower of Babel event (Gen 11:1–9). Deut 32:8–9, a passage at which we've looked many times in this book, described that disinheritance: "When the Most High gave to the nations their inheritance, when he divided mankind, he fixed the borders of the peoples according to the number of the sons of God. But the LORD's portion is his people, Jacob his allotted heritage" (ESV). After the judgment at the Tower of Babel, God called Abraham (Gen 12:1–3). The two events are juxtaposed back-to-back. When God called Abraham and promised the creation of his "portion," the nation of Israel, through Abraham and Sarah, he disinherited all other nations, allotting them to other heavenly beings, the sons of God. Those divine beings are elsewhere referred to as the host of heaven, gods (elohim), and demons (shedim) in Deuteronomy (Deut 4:19–20; 17:3; 29:24–26; 32:17). Old Testament theology puts these "sons of the Most High" (Psa 82:6) under judgment for not ruling justly and seducing the Israelites to worship them instead of the true God (Deut 29:24–26; 32:17; Psa 82). There are two important theological points related to the shema that touch on Jas 2:19. First, all the people of the nations under the dominion of lesser elohim were outside the plan of salvation. A Jewish follower of Jesus—the audience of the book of James (Jas 1:1–3)—knew and rightly affirmed the shema. Their faith in Jesus did not nullify the creed "The Lord our God is one" since Jesus was the incarnate Yahweh (see chs. 16–18). After the event of the cross, Abraham's seed was all believers, Jew and Gentile together (Gal 3:26–29). Believing "God is one" was still an expression of faith for a Jewish follower of Jesus that there was only one God who could provide salvation—and he had done just that through the work of Jesus. Second, the rebellious sons of God also knew what the shema meant. It reminded them that they were under judgment, sentenced to die like men (Psa 82:6–7; see ch. 30), and forever banished from the presence of the true God. That is what frightens them, not the reality of God's existence. See Christopher R. Bruno, 'God Is One': The Function of 'Eis Ho Theos' as a Ground for Gentile Inclusion in Paul's Letters, Library of New Testament Studies 497; (London: Bloomsbury Publishing, 2013).

14. Compare what Paul wrote in Gal 3:7–9, 28–29: [7]"Understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham. [8]And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: 'In you all the nations will be blessed.' [9]So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.… [28]There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29]And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise."

17. The usage of stoicheia in Heb 5:12 is a clear reference to religious teachings (the law). Second Peter 3:10, 12 refers more literally to elements of the physical world. There is no consensus among scholars on Paul's use of the term (Gal 4:3, 9; Col 2:8, 20). The question is whether Paul is using the term of spiritual entities/star deities in Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 20. Three of these four instances append the word to "of the world" (kosmos; i.e., "stoicheia of the world"), but this doesn't provide much clarity. Paul's discussion in Gal 4 and Col 2 includes spiritual forces (angels, principalities and powers, false gods) in the context, which suggests stoicheia may refer to divine beings. He is contrasting stoicheia to salvation in Christ in some way. Since Paul is speaking to both Jews and Gentiles, he might also be using the term in different ways with respect to each audience. Stoicheia as law would make little sense to Gentiles, though it would strike a chord with Jews.

My view is that in Gal 4:3 Paul's use of stoicheia likely refers to the law and religious teaching with a Jewish audience in view (cf. Gal 4:1–7). The audience shifts to Gentiles in 4:8–11, and so it seems coherent to see stoicheia in Gal 4:9 as referring to divine beings, probably astral deities (the "Fates"). Gal 4:8 transitions to pagans, since the Jews would have known about the true God. The reference to "times and seasons and years" (4:10) would therefore point to astrological beliefs, not the Jewish calendar. Paul is therefore denying the idea that the celestial objects (sun, moon, stars) are deities. His Gentile readers should not be enslaved by the idea that these objects controlled their destiny. As a related issue, Paul's wording here cannot therefore be taken as a denial of the existence of other gods. Paul does deny their existence in 1 Cor 8:4–6, which must not be interpreted against the context of 1 Cor 10:20–21, as it relates to the same subject matter. Paul is just denying that celestial bodies are gods that control one's fate. This approach is also useful with respect to Col 2:8, 20, where the contexts seem to be pagan angel worship (i.e., worship of divine beings thought to have power over basic elements of the material world) and pagan asceticism. See E. Schweizer, "Slaves of the Elements and Worshipers of Angels: Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 18, 20," Journal of Biblical Literature 107 (1988): 455–68; Clinton E. Arnold, "Returning to the Domain of the Powers: 'Stoicheia' as Evil Spirits in Galatians 4:3, 9," Novum Testamentum 38.1 (January 1996): 55–76.

5. Readers may recognize that this is the passage quoted in the New Testament by Paul (Eph 4:8). See chapter 33 for comments on this quotation.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

6. Paul is not espousing monism in 1 Cor 6:17. He is expressing unity with that spiritual being who is Yahweh, the Most High, who is a personal deity, the creator of all things visible and invisible (Col 1:15–17). Paul envisions unity of presence (i.e., joining in Yahweh's council in his abode) in a new earthly Eden, not absorption into an impersonal force in a nonterrestrial, immaterial dimension, indistinct from creation.

23. There is only one instance of this lemma in the New Testament: "All things in the heavens and on the earth were created by him, things visible and things invisible, whether thrones [thronoi] or dominions or rulers or powers, all things were created through him and for him" (Col 1:16). The term is used in parallel to other lemmas that indicate geographical rule in supernatural contexts. See the discussion. Col 1:16 is of interest to scholars since it lists four lemmas: thronoi—kuriotes—archai—exousiai. Scholars have tried to discern a coherent hierarchical ordering in the list (i.e., presuming a descent in rank), but without success or consensus. External usage of the terms provides no consistency in hierarchical meanings.

17. The usage of stoicheia in Heb 5:12 is a clear reference to religious teachings (the law). Second Peter 3:10, 12 refers more literally to elements of the physical world. There is no consensus among scholars on Paul's use of the term (Gal 4:3, 9; Col 2:8, 20). The question is whether Paul is using the term of spiritual entities/star deities in Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 20. Three of these four instances append the word to "of the world" (kosmos; i.e., "stoicheia of the world"), but this doesn't provide much clarity. Paul's discussion in Gal 4 and Col 2 includes spiritual forces (angels, principalities and powers, false gods) in the context, which suggests stoicheia may refer to divine beings. He is contrasting stoicheia to salvation in Christ in some way. Since Paul is speaking to both Jews and Gentiles, he might also be using the term in different ways with respect to each audience. Stoicheia as law would make little sense to Gentiles, though it would strike a chord with Jews. My view is that in Gal 4:3 Paul's use of stoicheia likely refers to the law and religious teaching with a Jewish audience in view (cf. Gal 4:1–7). The audience shifts to Gentiles in 4:8–11, and so it seems coherent to see stoicheia in Gal 4:9 as referring to divine beings, probably astral deities (the "Fates"). Gal 4:8 transitions to pagans, since the Jews would have known about the true God. The reference to "times and seasons and years" (4:10) would therefore point to astrological beliefs, not the Jewish calendar. Paul is therefore denying the idea that the celestial objects (sun, moon, stars) are deities. His Gentile readers should not be enslaved by the idea that these objects controlled their destiny. As a related issue, Paul's wording here cannot therefore be taken as a denial of the existence of other gods. Paul does deny their existence in 1 Cor 8:4–6, which must not be interpreted against the context of 1 Cor 10:20–21, as it relates to the same subject matter. Paul is just denying that celestial bodies are gods that control one's fate. This approach is also useful with respect to Col 2:8, 20, where the contexts seem to be pagan angel worship (i.e., worship of divine beings thought to have power over basic elements of the material world) and pagan asceticism. See E. Schweizer, "Slaves of the Elements and Worshipers of Angels: Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 18, 20," Journal of Biblical Literature 107 (1988): 455–68; Clinton E. Arnold, "Returning to the Domain of the Powers: 'Stoicheia' as Evil Spirits in Galatians 4:3, 9," Novum Testamentum 38.1 (January 1996): 55–76.

17. The usage of stoicheia in Heb 5:12 is a clear reference to religious teachings (the law). Second Peter 3:10, 12 refers more literally to elements of the physical world. There is no consensus among scholars on Paul's use of the term (Gal 4:3, 9; Col 2:8, 20). The question is whether Paul is using the term of spiritual entities/star deities in Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 20. Three of these four instances append the word to "of the world" (kosmos; i.e., "stoicheia of the world"), but this doesn't provide much clarity. Paul's discussion in Gal 4 and Col 2 includes spiritual forces (angels, principalities and powers, false gods) in the context, which suggests stoicheia may refer to divine beings. He is contrasting stoicheia to salvation in Christ in some way. Since Paul is speaking to both Jews and Gentiles, he might also be using the term in different ways with respect to each audience. Stoicheia as law would make little sense to Gentiles, though it would strike a chord with Jews. My view is that in Gal 4:3 Paul's use of stoicheia likely refers to the law and religious teaching with a Jewish audience in view (cf. Gal 4:1–7). The audience shifts to Gentiles in 4:8–11, and so it seems coherent to see stoicheia in Gal 4:9 as referring to divine beings, probably astral deities (the "Fates"). Gal 4:8 transitions to pagans, since the Jews would have known about the true God. The reference to "times and seasons and years" (4:10) would therefore point to astrological beliefs, not the Jewish calendar. Paul is therefore denying the idea that the celestial objects (sun, moon, stars) are deities. His Gentile readers should not be enslaved by the idea that these objects controlled their destiny. As a related issue, Paul's wording here cannot therefore be taken as a denial of the existence of other gods. Paul does deny their existence in 1 Cor 8:4–6, which must not be interpreted against the context of 1 Cor 10:20–21, as it relates to the same subject matter. Paul is just denying that celestial bodies are gods that control one's fate. This approach is also useful with respect to Col 2:8, 20, where the contexts seem to be pagan angel worship (i.e., worship of divine beings thought to have power over basic elements of the material world) and pagan asceticism. See E. Schweizer, "Slaves of the Elements and Worshipers of Angels: Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 18, 20," Journal of Biblical Literature 107 (1988): 455–68; Clinton E. Arnold, "Returning to the Domain of the Powers: 'Stoicheia' as Evil Spirits in Galatians 4:3, 9," Novum Testamentum 38.1 (January 1996): 55–76.

17. The usage of stoicheia in Heb 5:12 is a clear reference to religious teachings (the law). Second Peter 3:10, 12 refers more literally to elements of the physical world. There is no consensus among scholars on Paul's use of the term (Gal 4:3, 9; Col 2:8, 20). The question is whether Paul is using the term of spiritual entities/star deities in Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 20. Three of these four instances append the word to "of the world" (kosmos; i.e., "stoicheia of the world"), but this doesn't provide much clarity. Paul's discussion in Gal 4 and Col 2 includes spiritual forces (angels, principalities and powers, false gods) in the context, which suggests stoicheia may refer to divine beings. He is contrasting stoicheia to salvation in Christ in some way. Since Paul is speaking to both Jews and Gentiles, he might also be using the term in different ways with respect to each audience. Stoicheia as law would make little sense to Gentiles, though it would strike a chord with Jews. My view is that in Gal 4:3 Paul's use of stoicheia likely refers to the law and religious teaching with a Jewish audience in view (cf. Gal 4:1–7). The audience shifts to Gentiles in 4:8–11, and so it seems coherent to see stoicheia in Gal 4:9 as referring to divine beings, probably astral deities (the "Fates"). Gal 4:8 transitions to pagans, since the Jews would have known about the true God. The reference to "times and seasons and years" (4:10) would therefore point to astrological beliefs, not the Jewish calendar. Paul is therefore denying the idea that the celestial objects (sun, moon, stars) are deities. His Gentile readers should not be enslaved by the idea that these objects controlled their destiny. As a related issue, Paul's wording here cannot therefore be taken as a denial of the existence of other gods. Paul does deny their existence in 1 Cor 8:4–6, which must not be interpreted against the context of 1 Cor 10:20–21, as it relates to the same subject matter. Paul is just denying that celestial bodies are gods that control one's fate. This approach is also useful with respect to Col 2:8, 20, where the contexts seem to be pagan angel worship (i.e., worship of divine beings thought to have power over basic elements of the material world) and pagan asceticism. See E. Schweizer, "Slaves of the Elements and Worshipers of Angels: Gal 4:3, 9 and Col 2:8, 18, 20," Journal of Biblical Literature 107 (1988): 455–68; Clinton E. Arnold, "Returning to the Domain of the Powers: 'Stoicheia' as Evil Spirits in Galatians 4:3, 9," Novum Testamentum 38.1 (January 1996): 55–76.

8. See Theodotian's Greek text of Daniel. Michael is also called an archangel in Jude 9. The term refers to one who outranks other angels (i.e., has ruling authority over them; see J. W. van Henten, "Archangel," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999], 80–82). But Michael is not the only archangel. First Thess 4:16 lacks the definite article before archangelou. That passage also distinguishes the term from the returning Jesus. In chapters 16–18 I discuss the evidence for the concept of a Godhead in the Old Testament—the evidence for two Yahweh figures in various passages who were interchangeable yet distinct. The second Yahweh is visible and embodied in human form. The most telling evidence is that of the Angel of Yahweh, in whom resided the very presence of Yahweh (the "name"). The motifs associated with this second Yahweh in human form lay the groundwork for the incarnation of Yahweh as Jesus. I raise the issue of this content here because I do not consider Michael to be this second Yahweh figure. Briefly, I reject this equation for the following reasons. Michael is referred to as the prince of Israel (Dan 10:21; 12:1) and one of an unidentified number of "chief princes" (Dan 10:13). These statements must inform our reading of Dan 8:11, where the little horn of Daniel's vision "became great, even as great as the Prince of the host" (italics mine). The phrase "prince of the host" transparently describes a leader of the entire heavenly host (i.e., all divine beings besides Yahweh). It is never used of Michael in the Bible. Dan 8:11 leaves this figure unidentified. Consequently, linking Michael to this phrase is arbitrary. This fact is important in view of Dan 8:25, where the earlier "prince of the host" is called "the prince of princes." In Dan 8, this figure, exalted above all divine beings under Yahweh, is assaulted by the little horn. Dan 11:36 describes this same assault with slightly different language. There the earthly "king" who is the analogy to the little horn "shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak astonishing things against the God of gods" (RSV). Since Dan 8's "prince of the host" who is "prince of princes" is correlated with "God of gods" in Dan 11:36, it would be coherent to see this unidentified figure as a second Yahweh figure who, as I describe in detail later, is identified with Jesus. In fact, in the Septuagint, the "commander of Yahweh's army" (Josh 5:13–15) is described with archistrategos, a word that occurs as a synonym for archangelos in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., Testament of Abraham, long rescension 1:4 and 14:10; 3 Baruch (Greek Apocalypse) 11:8). I will argue in chapters 16–

18 that this figure is the second embodied Yahweh. But none of this fits Michael. The phrases of Dan 8 are never used of Michael, and so an identification of Michael with this figure (and therefore "the God of gods" and Jesus) lacks scriptural support. Michael is merely one of several chief princes (Dan 10:13). He is not exalted over all other princes (Dan 8:11, 25). The most complete recent scholarly survey of Michael in Jewish and Christian tradition is Darrell D. Hannah, Michael and Christ: Michael Traditions and Angel Christology in Early Christianity (Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 109, second series; Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 1999). See also Gillian Bampfylde, "The Prince of the Host in the Book of Daniel and the Dead Sea Scrolls," Journal for the Study of Judaism in the Persian, Hellenistic, and Roman Periods 14.2 (1983): 129–34; Benedikt Otzen, "Michael and Gabriel: Angelological Problems in the Book of Daniel," in The Scriptures and the Scrolls: Studies in Honor of A. S. van der Woude on the Occasion of his 65th Birthday (ed. F. Garcia Martinez, A. Hilhorst, and C. J. Labuschagne; Leiden: Brill, 1992), 114–24. On the efforts of some to divorce the son of man of Dan 7:13 from the prince of the host (and, by extension, Jesus), see chapter 7 of my dissertation on the companion website.

2. Only one passage in the New Testament suggests a differentiation between body, soul, and spirit: 1 Thess 5:23. Since the Old Testament clearly sees two parts to humans (body and soul/spirit; material and immaterial), it is best to interpret this single verse the same way for theological consistency. Many scholars do not consider soul and spirit in this verse as discrete, separate items. This verse is similar to the shema (Deut 6:4; cf. Matt 22:37; Mark 12:29–30), which tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, and might. The point is totality, not that heart, soul, might (and mind in the gospel references) are separable. The Old Testament uses both nephesh and ruach to describe the source of these inner parts. Totality is also the point of Heb 4:12 (which actually uses four items, not three).

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2

Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^B version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug ("darkness"), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as "lawless ones" (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila ("giant") to translate Hebrew kesil ("Orion"). See L. Zalcman, "Orion," in

Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, "Pleiades," in ibid., 657–58.

12. The identification with Satan is argued on two grounds: (1) the fact that the title here is similar to the epithet "ruler of this world" in the Gospel of John (John 12:31; 14:30; 16:11), whose identity would be difficult to reconcile with any other divine being than Satan; and (2) Paul's identification of the deception of people in the eschaton with Satan (2 Thess 2:9–10).

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

2. See, for example, Matt 12:28; Mark 1:15; Luke 8:1, 10; 16:16; 21:31; Rom 14:17; Col 1:13; cf. 1 Cor 15:24, 50; 2 Tim 4:1, 18.

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

5. Deut 33:1–2; Acts 7:52–53; Gal 3:19; Heb 2:2; See chapter 21.

2. Only one passage in the New Testament suggests a differentiation between body, soul, and spirit: 1 Thess 5:23. Since the Old Testament clearly sees two parts to humans (body and soul/spirit; material and immaterial), it is best to interpret this single verse the same way for theological consistency. Many scholars do not consider soul and spirit in this verse as discrete, separate items. This verse is similar to the shema (Deut 6:4; cf. Matt 22:37; Mark 12:29–30), which tells us to love God with all our heart, soul, and might. The point is totality, not that heart, soul, might (and mind in the gospel references) are separable. The Old Testament uses both nephesh and ruach to describe the source of these inner parts. Totality is also the point of Heb 4:12 (which actually uses four items, not three).

22. For a lengthy overview of Paul's adoption of this worldview, see Ronn Johnson, "The Old Testament Background for Paul's Principalities and Powers," (PhD diss., Dallas Theological Seminary, 2004). For brief discussions of individual terms see D. G. Reid, "Principalities and Powers," in Dictionary of Paul and His Letters, 746–752. Much of what we've discussed to this point with respect to contextualizing New Testament theology (chs. 31–36) by means of Old Testament theology, itself articulated within its own ancient Near Eastern context, presumes the Deut 32 worldview. Concepts such as the original goal of Eden, why the other nations have other gods, the divine sonship of Israel, Yahweh's covenantal relationship with Israel, and the need to reclaim the nations via a human, Davidic incarnation of Yahweh are inextricably tied to this worldview. As we saw in chapter 34, both testaments frame this theology in terms of the 70 nations of Gen 10, the world known to the biblical writers. We of course know that the world is a bigger place than these nations—and so did God. That God's vision included all nations of the world as we (and he) knew it is evidenced by the "universality" of humanity's lost condition and the command to evangelize (e.g., Rom 3:9, 23; 5:12, 18; Titus 2:11; Heb 5:9). The Deut 32 worldview is no more restricted to the known nations of Gen 10 and Israel than the gospel is so confined. The theology of the Deut 32 worldview is straightforward and applies to all nations of the earth at any time period. All nations whose God is not Yahweh are under the dominion of lesser gods. All people whose God is not Yahweh are enslaved to lesser gods who cannot provide salvation, and who are unjust and unloving. This spiritual dilemma and its solution (believing loyalty to Yahweh) are the same today as in biblical times. This parsing of the human, earthly condition is the result of humanity's rebellion (at various stages), Yahweh's just punishment of those nations, and his subsequent decision to revive his original Edenic vision through a new people, Israel, whom he would create from a couple of his choosing. They would in turn be the conduit through whom disinherited humanity could be redeemed. While specific details are often lacking because readers are centuries removed from the ancient Near Eastern context of the Old Testament discussed in this book, a number of early church writers had an inkling of the Deut 32 worldview and its relationship to the gods of other nations. The best resource overviewing the thinking of early Christian writers on this subject is Gerald R. McDermott, God's Rivals: Why Has God Allowed Different Religions? Insights from the Bible and the Early Church (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2007). McDermott is professor of religion and philosophy at Roanoke College in Salem, Virginia. He is familiar with the idea of the divine council (e.g., p. 16 and his third chapter: "The Lord of Hosts: The Old Testament and the Real Existence of Other Gods").

8. In chapter 37 I briefly discuss two related items: (1) Paul's comments in 1 Cor 2:8 that, had "the rulers of this age" known what God's plan of redemption was—that the messiah must die to accomplish salvation—they "would not have crucified the Lord of glory"; and (2) the meaning of Jas 2:19 ("You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe—and shudder!" [ESV]). In regard to the first item, the gospel accounts of demons recognizing Jesus make it clear that the powers of darkness knew that the messiah had arrived. Only demons address Jesus as "son of the Most High" in Scripture (Mark 5:7; Luke 8:28). However, they did not know God's means for accomplishing salvation and the restoration of the Edenic kingdom—hence Paul's statement. The complete messianic profile and plan of salvation was cryptically scattered and veiled throughout the Old Testament.

1. Readers may presume I've missed verse 16 (v. 17 in the Hebrew text): "They have pierced my hands and feet." (That rendering is the ESV translation.) I have not. Most Hebrew manuscripts of this verse do not have a reference to piercing the hands and feet, but read something to the effect: "Like the lion they are at my hands and feet" (LEB) or "my hands and feet have shriveled" (NRSV). The verse is arguably one of the most textually difficult in the Old Testament. With respect to our ensuing discussion, the lion imagery is interesting, since that imagery is applied to the devil in the New Testament (1 Pet 5:8). For piercing, see Zech 12:10. The scholarly literature on this verse is copious. A sampling illustrates the interpretive quandary: John Kaltner, "Psalm 22:17b: Second Guessing 'The Old Guess,' " Journal of Biblical Literature 117:3 (1998): 503–06; Brent A. Strawn, "Psalm 22:17b: More Guessing," Journal of Biblical Literature 119:3 (2000): 439–51; Kristin M. Swenson, "Psalm 22:17: Circling around the Problem Again," Journal of Biblical Literature 123:4 (2004): 637–48.

13. The phrase "held captive in Tartarus" in 2 Pet 2:4 is the translation of a verb lemma (tartaroo) that points to the term from classical Greek literature for the destination of the divine Titans, a term that is also used of their semidivine offspring. The terminology clearly informs us that, for Peter and Jude, an antisupernaturalist interpretation of Gen 6:1–4 was not in view. See G. Mussies, “Titans,” in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 2nd ed. (ed. Karel van der Toorn, Bob Becking, and Pieter W. van der Horst; Leiden; Boston; Cologne; Grand Rapids, MI; Cambridge: Brill; Eerdmans, 1999), 872–874; G. Mussies, “Giants,” in ibid., 343–345; David M. Johnson, “Hesiod’s Descriptions of Tartarus (Theogony 721–819),” The Phoenix 53:1–2 (1999): 8–28; J. Daryl Charles, “The Angels under Reserve in 2 Peter and Jude,” Bulletin for Biblical Research 15.1 (2005): 39–48.

3. As we’ll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to “angels” being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton’s Paradise Lost. References to “angels that sinned” look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like “evil spirits” either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly, Dale Martin’s recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today’s Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel’s Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, “When Did Angels Become Demons?” Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

11. Reconciling the first view with what 2 Pet 2:4–10 and Jude 6–7 say about “the angels who sinned” is straightforward, especially given the sexual nature of the events of Sodom and Gomorrah, which both writers use as analogous situations. The second approach doesn’t question the sexual language; it considers it euphemistic. Peter and Jude’s inclusion of sexual language is no surprise—it is present in the Old Testament. This approach would argue that there is no reason to insist that Peter and Jude did not also consider it euphemistic. In any respect, what cannot be coherently denied is that Peter and Jude have divine beings as the offenders, not mere humans.

11. Reconciling the first view with what 2 Pet 2:4–10 and Jude 6–7 say about “the angels who sinned” is straightforward, especially given the sexual nature of the events of Sodom and Gomorrah, which both writers use as analogous situations. The second approach doesn’t question the sexual language; it considers it euphemistic. Peter and Jude’s inclusion of sexual language is no surprise—it is present in the Old Testament. This approach would argue that there is no reason to insist that Peter and Jude did not also consider it euphemistic. In any respect, what cannot be coherently denied is that Peter and Jude have divine beings as the offenders, not mere humans.

5. See also Judg 5:20; Dan 8:10; 12:3; Rev 1:20; 12:4, 9.

9. Rev 2:7, 26–28; 3:21; 5:10; 21:24 [“kings” = rulers]. The idea of believers ruling over nations must be read in the context of the reclamation of the nations disinherited by God in Deut 32:8–9 (see chapter 15 and the final chapter of this book). The eschatological portrayal of glorified human rulers in a global Eden is why Hos 1:10 cannot be used to argue that the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4 are human. First, the phrase is not a precise parallel. Second, that passage must be viewed in the larger context of biblical theology. Hos 1:10 is eschatological. It looks to a distant future time when the northern kingdom of Israel will be restored as people of God. That eschatological event coincides with the ultimate glorification of believers—who are, and will be, children of the living God, ruling and reigning with Yahweh, as originally intended, in a new, global Eden. The fact that God will see his human family fulfill the original Edenic goal does not overturn the fact that God also has a divine family. At the last day, when human believers are glorified, the two families and councils merge. One family of God doesn't erase the other.

9. Rev 2:7, 26–28; 3:21; 5:10; 21:24 ["kings" = rulers]. The idea of believers ruling over nations must be read in the context of the reclamation of the nations disinherited by God in Deut 32:8–9 (see chapter 15 and the final chapter of this book). The eschatological portrayal of glorified human rulers in a global Eden is why Hos 1:10 cannot be used to argue that the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4 are human. First, the phrase is not a precise parallel. Second, that passage must be viewed in the larger context of biblical theology. Hos 1:10 is eschatological. It looks to a distant future time when the northern kingdom of Israel will be restored as people of God. That eschatological event coincides with the ultimate glorification of believers—who are, and will be, children of the living God, ruling and reigning with Yahweh, as originally intended, in a new, global Eden. The fact that God will see his human family fulfill the original Edenic goal does not overturn the fact that God also has a divine family. At the last day, when human believers are glorified, the two families and councils merge. One family of God doesn't erase the other.

9. Rev 2:7, 26–28; 3:21; 5:10; 21:24 ["kings" = rulers]. The idea of believers ruling over nations must be read in the context of the reclamation of the nations disinherited by God in Deut 32:8–9 (see chapter 15 and the final chapter of this book). The eschatological portrayal of glorified human rulers in a global Eden is why Hos 1:10 cannot be used to argue that the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4 are human. First, the phrase is not a precise parallel. Second, that passage must be viewed in the larger context of biblical theology. Hos 1:10 is eschatological. It looks to a distant future time when the northern kingdom of Israel will be restored as people of God. That eschatological event coincides with the ultimate glorification of believers—who are, and will be, children of the living God, ruling and reigning with Yahweh, as originally intended, in a new, global Eden. The fact that God will see his human family fulfill the original Edenic goal does not overturn the fact that God also has a divine family. At the last day, when human believers are glorified, the two families and councils merge. One family of God doesn't erase the other.

3. As we'll see as the discussion continues, daimon and daimonion are neutral terms, requiring context to determine if a good or evil spiritual being is in view. References to "angels" being evil or sinister are infrequent in the New Testament (Matt 25:41; 1 Cor 6:3; 11:10; 2 Cor 11:14; 2 Pet 2:4; Rev 9:11), and in no case are we told of a primeval angelic fall before or during the Genesis creation or before the fall of humankind. Such an idea comes from Church tradition and widely influential writings like Milton's Paradise Lost. References to "angels that sinned" look back to Genesis 6:1–4, the only passage in the Bible that describes a rebellion of a group of divine beings. More generally, phrases like "evil spirits" either convey the broad notion that the great enemy, the Devil or Satan, has divine allies, or might perhaps draw on the origin of evil spirits via the death of Nephilim giants in Second Temple Jewish literature (e.g., 1 Enoch). On that topic, see Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013). Lastly, Dale Martin's recent article contains some good analysis of how Christian thinking after the New Testament influences today's Christian demonology in ways that lacks biblical support. However, Martin inexplicably misses the connection of what Paul says about demons to Deut 32 and Israel's Old Testament experience with idolatry (i.e., Martin connects it only to Graeco-Roman idolatry). See Dale Basil Martin, "When Did Angels Become Demons?" Journal of Biblical Literature 129.4 (2010): 657–77. See the ensuing discussion and related sources in the footnotes along with chapter 38.

3. Compare Isa 14:13–14. Astral religion and solar mythology were common in the ancient world. The notion that stars were animate divine beings was part of Israelite thinking. The stars had names (Psa 147:4), were created by God (Gen 1:16), were thought of as a divine army (Judg

5:20; Isa 40:25–26; Dan 8:10; Rev 12:1–9). The idea persisted well into the New Testament era. See Mark S. Smith, “Astral Religion and the Representation of Divinity: The Cases of Ugarit and Judah,” Prayer, Magic, and the Stars in the Ancient and Late Antique World (ed. Scott Noegel, Joel Walker, Brannon Wheeler; University Park: Pennsylvania State University Press, 2003), 187–206; Alan Scott, Origen and the Life of the Stars: A History of an Idea, Oxford Early Christian Studies (Oxford: Oxford University Press, 1994); Elmer B. Smick, “Another Look at the Mythological Elements in the Book of Job,” Westminster Theological Journal 40 (1978): 213–28; Ulf Oldenburg, “Above the Stars of El: El in Ancient South Arabic Religion,” Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 82 (1970): 187–208.

5. See also Judg 5:20; Dan 8:10; 12:3; Rev 1:20; 12:4, 9.

6. Rev 12:7–17, a passage often referenced for such an idea, clearly situates the battle described there as following the birth of the messiah (Rev 12:5) and in association with the messianic birth. The major scholarly study on demonic origins in Jewish thought is Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013).

12. Some interpreters imagine a prefall rebellion of angels that might fit with 2 Peter. The Bible records no such event. The closest one comes to it is in Rev 12:7–9. Not only is Revelation the last book of the Bible written, which means it cannot be the referent of 2 Peter, but Rev 12:7–9 associates the war in heaven with the first coming of the messiah, not events before the flood. There is no biblical evidence for a prefall angelic rebellion. The idea comes from Milton’s Paradise Lost, not the Bible.

6. Rev 12:7–17, a passage often referenced for such an idea, clearly situates the battle described there as following the birth of the messiah (Rev 12:5) and in association with the messianic birth. The major scholarly study on demonic origins in Jewish thought is Archie T. Wright, The Origin of Evil Spirits: The Reception of Genesis 6:1–4 in Early Jewish Literature, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 198, second series (Tübingen: Mohr Siebeck, 2013).

9. Given the connection made in the New Testament between the nachash (serpent) figure and the Hebrew word satan ("adversary") in Rev 12:9, the judicial role of the satan described in the Hebrew Bible (Job 1–2) becomes noteworthy. The role of the satan in Job involved roaming through the earth. In the context of the divine courtroom scene of Job 1–2, the ostensible purpose was to see, among humanity, who was (or wasn't) obedient to God. This precipitates God's words about Job. The satan issues a challenge to God's assessment, and perhaps to the justness of God's ordering of the world. Job becomes the focus of that challenge, as his integrity (and, by implication, God's) is questioned. Presuming this accusatorial role, when the New Testament writers have Satan expelled from heaven in Luke 10:17–18, the theological message would be that, with the commencement of the kingdom of God, Satan's role as "accuser of the brethren" is finished. God is no longer listening to challenges as to whom he deems righteous. That this phrase ("accuser of the brethren") occurs uniquely in Rev 12:10, right after the only verse in the New Testament that connects the terms Satan, devil, and dragon (cf. the serpent) cannot be coincidental. The inauguration of the kingdom of God by the messiah means that Satan, the lord of the dead, has no "legal" authority in God's court (council) by which to condemn any member of that kingdom. On Job 1–2 and the accuser, see Peggy Day, An Adversary in Heaven: sātān in the Hebrew Bible, Harvard Semitic Monographs 43 (Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1988), 79–83. For a scholarly treatment of the divine courtroom, tracing its constituent ideas from the Hebrew Bible through the Second Temple period on into the New Testament, see Meira Z. Kensky, Trying Man, Trying God, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 289, second series (Tübingen: Mohr-Siebeck, 2010).

5. See also Judg 5:20; Dan 8:10; 12:3; Rev 1:20; 12:4, 9.

9. Given the connection made in the New Testament between the nachash (serpent) figure and the Hebrew word satan ("adversary") in Rev 12:9, the judicial role of the satan described in the Hebrew Bible (Job 1–2)

becomes noteworthy. The role of the satan in Job involved roaming through the earth. In the context of the divine courtroom scene of Job 1–2, the ostensible purpose was to see, among humanity, who was (or wasn't) obedient to God. This precipitates God's words about Job. The satan issues a challenge to God's assessment, and perhaps to the justness of God's ordering of the world. Job becomes the focus of that challenge, as his integrity (and, by implication, God's) is questioned. Presuming this accusatorial role, when the New Testament writers have Satan expelled from heaven in Luke 10:17–18, the theological message would be that, with the commencement of the kingdom of God, Satan's role as "accuser of the brethren" is finished. God is no longer listening to challenges as to whom he deems righteous. That this phrase ("accuser of the brethren") occurs uniquely in Rev 12:10, right after the only verse in the New Testament that connects the terms Satan, devil, and dragon (cf. the serpent) cannot be coincidental. The inauguration of the kingdom of God by the messiah means that Satan, the lord of the dead, has no "legal" authority in God's court (council) by which to condemn any member of that kingdom. On Job 1–2 and the accuser, see Peggy Day, An Adversary in Heaven: sātān in the Hebrew Bible, Harvard Semitic Monographs 43 (Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1988), 79–83. For a scholarly treatment of the divine courtroom, tracing its constituent ideas from the Hebrew Bible through the Second Temple period on into the New Testament, see Meira Z. Kensky, Trying Man, Trying God, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 289, second series (Tübingen: Mohr-Siebeck, 2010).

3. I know of one evangelical scholar who makes these connections. See Meredith Kline, "Har Magedon: The End of the Millennium," Journal of the Evangelical Theological Society 39.2 (June 1996): 207–22. Kline uses these points to argue in favor of a recapitulation view of the book of Revelation. Doing so allows him to see Rev 20:7–10 as an episodic repetition of Rev 16 and 19, thereby requiring the admission that the "thousand years" refrain of Rev 20:1–6 does not speak of a literal millennial kingdom following the Church Age, but actually is the Church Age. Hence he argues "the end of the millennium." My own eschatological views are not those of Kline's (amillennial), nor would my views align with any of the other systems. Nevertheless, Kline clearly grasped what was going on with the term Armageddon and sees the implications. See also C. C. Torrey, "Armageddon," Harvard Theological Review 31 (1938): 237–48. Greg Beale notes in regard to Kline's analysis: "[Kline] demonstrates organic parallels with the immediate and broad contexts. Presupposing the correctness of deriving 'Armageddon' ultimately from har mo'ed, Kline's contextual analysis of Revelation is quite plausible" (see G. K. Beale, The Book of Revelation: A Commentary on the Greek Text, New International Greek Testament Commentary [Grand Rapids, MI; Carlisle, Cumbria: Eerdmans; Paternoster Press, 1999], 840).

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·rᵉqat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·rᵉqat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with 'lightning.' In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald." See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·r^{e}qat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·r^{e}qat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with 'lightning.' In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald." See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

9. Rev 2:7, 26–28; 3:21; 5:10; 21:24 ["kings" = rulers]. The idea of believers ruling over nations must be read in the context of the reclamation of the nations disinherited by God in Deut 32:8–9 (see chapter 15 and the final chapter of this book). The eschatological portrayal of glorified human rulers in a global Eden is why Hos 1:10 cannot be used to argue that the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4 are human. First, the phrase is not a precise parallel. Second, that passage must be viewed in the larger context of biblical theology. Hos 1:10 is eschatological. It looks to a distant future time when the northern kingdom of Israel will be restored as people of God. That eschatological event coincides with the ultimate glorification of believers—who are, and will be, children of the living God, ruling and reigning with Yahweh, as originally intended, in a new, global Eden. The fact that God will see his human family fulfill the original Edenic goal does not overturn the fact that God also has a divine family. At the last day, when human believers are glorified, the two families and councils merge. One family of God doesn't erase the other.

9. Rev 2:7, 26–28; 3:21; 5:10; 21:24 ["kings" = rulers]. The idea of believers ruling over nations must be read in the context of the reclamation of the nations disinherited by God in Deut 32:8–9 (see chapter 15 and the final chapter of this book). The eschatological portrayal of glorified human rulers in a global Eden is why Hos 1:10 cannot be used to argue that the sons of God in Gen 6:1–4 are human. First, the phrase is not a precise parallel. Second, that passage must be viewed in the larger context of biblical theology. Hos 1:10 is eschatological. It looks to a distant future time when the northern kingdom of Israel will be restored as people of God. That eschatological event coincides with the ultimate glorification of believers—who are, and will be, children of the living God, ruling and reigning with Yahweh, as originally intended, in a new, global Eden. The fact that God will see his human family fulfill the original Edenic goal does not overturn the fact that God also has a divine family. At the last day, when human believers are glorified, the two families and councils merge. One family of God doesn't erase the other.

3. The source of the quotation is 1 Enoch 1:9. See chapter 38 for more New Testament connections to Enoch's role (in 1 Enoch) in delivering the sentence of doom to the fallen sons of God.

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2 Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^{B} version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug ("darkness"), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as "lawless ones" (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila ("giant") to translate Hebrew kesil ("Orion"). See L. Zalcman, "Orion," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, "Pleiades," in ibid., 657–58.

16. As was the case with the Septuagint, the Greek manuscripts of 1 Enoch use gigas ("giant") when describing the offspring of the Watchers. See 1 Enoch 7:2, 4; 9:9.

16. As was the case with the Septuagint, the Greek manuscripts of 1 Enoch use gigas ("giant") when describing the offspring of the Watchers. See 1 Enoch 7:2, 4; 9:9.

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2 Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^{B} version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug ("darkness"), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as "lawless ones" (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila ("giant") to translate Hebrew kesil ("Orion"). See L. Zalcman, "Orion," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, "Pleiades," in ibid., 657–58.

16. As was the case with the Septuagint, the Greek manuscripts of 1 Enoch use gigas ("giant") when describing the offspring of the Watchers. See 1 Enoch 7:2, 4; 9:9.

7. See Kelley Coblentz Bautch, A Study of the Geography of 1 Enoch 17–19: 'No One Has Seen What I Have Seen' (Leiden: Brill, 2003), 107–15. Bautch's work also discusses Mesopotamian backgrounds to 1 Enoch 18:1–6. See van Dijk and his footnoted references in Ezekiel's

Prophecy on Tyre, 118–23, for Mesopotamian connections to the motifs in Ezek 28:12–19. The Septuagint translation of Ezek 28 provides another indication that the "stones of fire" refers to the divine abode. All the stones in Ezek 28:13 except one are used elsewhere to describe the supernatural Jerusalem (Rev 21), which is obviously the divine abode and throne room. This is entirely consistent with the portrayal of divinity in terms of luminescence. The lone exception is the Septuagint's anthrax (for Hebrew tar·shish). That word is used elsewhere in Ezekiel to describe the divine throne (Ezek 10:9) as well as in Isaiah to describe the new Jerusalem (Isa 54:11). Readers who check the Greek closely may presume a point of incongruence with one other item in the Septuagint rendering of Ezek 28:13—onychion (for Hebrew bā·rᵉqat) is not found in Rev 21. The supposed discrepancy is a misperception. The word onychion is "a kind of onyx, Thphr.Lap.31, LXXEx. 28:20: as Adj. onychios (sc. lithos), Suid" (Henry George Liddell et al., A Greek-English Lexicon [Oxford: Clarendon Press, 1996], 1234). Instead of onychion we see sardonyx in Rev 21:19. Both terms describe the gem onyx, thus allowing an identification of all the gemstones in Ezek 28 (Septuagint) with the description of the supernatural Jerusalem in Rev 21. See James Harrell, "Gemstones," UCLA Encyclopedia of Egyptology 1.1 (2012): 5 (table 1, pts. 5–6). Harrell notes that both onyx and sardonyx were referred to by onychion. Several other scholars have argued for a close connection between the gemstone description of Rev 21 and Ezek 28: F. Petrie, "Precious Stones," Dictionary of the Bible, vol. 4 (ed. J. Hastings; New York: Scribner, 1919), 619–21; J. L. Myres, "Stones (Precious)," Encyclopedia Biblica, vol. 4 (ed. T. K. Cheyne and J. S. Black; New York: Macmillan, 1903), 4799–4812; and E. F. Jourdain, "The Twelve Stones in the Apocalypse," Expository Times 22 (1911): 448–50. Daniel Block appears to misidentify the LXX rendering of bā·rᵉqat when he says the word is "a derivation from bāraq, 'to flash, shine,' [which] connects the word with 'lightning.' In Exod 28:17 LXX renders it smaragdos, which is probably to be identified with emerald." See Block, Book of Ezekiel, Chapters 25–48, 109. For the equation of bā·rᵉqat with onychion, see Emanuel Tov, The Parallel Aligned Hebrew-Aramaic and Greek Texts of Jewish Scripture (Bellingham, WA: Logos Bible Software, 2003). See the companion website for further discussion.

5. See, for example, 1 Enoch 39:7 ("And I saw a dwelling place underneath the wings of the Lord of the Spirits; and all the righteous and the elect before him shall be as intense as the light of fire"); 104:1–4 ("I swear unto you that in heaven the angels will remember you for good before the glory of the Great One; and your names shall be written before the glory of the Great One. Be hopeful, because formerly you have pined away through evil and toil. But now you shall shine like the lights of heaven, and you shall be seen.… Be hopeful, and do not abandon your hope, because there shall be a fire for you; you are about to be making a great rejoicing like the angels of heaven"). The translation comes from James H. Charlesworth, ed., The Old Testament Pseudepigrapha (New Haven: Yale University Press, 1983), 1:85.

12. The connection "is also expressed in extra-biblical sources … [of] an eschatological tyrant (1 Enoch 90:9–16; Assumption of Moses 8; 2 Baruch (Syriac Apocalypse) 36–40; 70; 4 Ezra 5:1–13; 12:29–33; 13:25–38" (see L. J. Lietaert Peerbolte, "Antichrist," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 62). Some other conceptual links are illustrative. First, the Septuagint at times interchanges the names Gog and Og, the giant of Bashan. One scholar notes: "In the LXX^{B} version of Deut 3:1, 13; 4:47, Gog stands for Hebrew Og (king of Bashan). On the other hand, P 967 reads Og instead of Gog in Ez 38:2" (see J. Lust, "Gog," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 374). Second, the name "Gog" in Ezek 38–39 may reflect a personification of spiritual darkness if it derives from the Sumerian word gug ("darkness"), though this is uncertain. See Daniel I. Block, The Book of Ezekiel: Chapters 25–48, New International Commentary on the Old Testament (Grand Rapids, MI: Eerdmans, 1997–1998), 433–31 (Block cites this possibility from a study by P. Heinisch, Das Buch Ezechiel (Bonn: Hanstein, 1923), 183. Third, the Septuagint text of Amos 7:1 mentions Gog as the king of the locust invasion described in that chapter. Locust imagery for invading armies is familiar in the Old Testament, but Rev 9 connects that language with demonic entities from the abyss. This is significant not only since the abyss (a Greek term, abyssos) is connected to the Underworld/Sheol, but also because the original offending sons of God of Gen 6 (cf. 2 Pet 2:4; Jude 6; 1 Enoch 6–11) were imprisoned in such a place. Rev 9 may therefore describe their release at the end of days to participate in a climactic confrontation with God and Jesus. This matrix of ideas may be designed to tell us that the Gog invasion does not describe an earthly enemy but a supernatural, demonic enemy. But as we have seen, both reality planes are frequently connected in the biblical epic. Fourth, the Nephilim giants are described as "lawless ones" (anomon) in 1 Enoch 7:6, using the same Greek lemma used to describe the antichrist figure in 2 Thess 2:8. Fifth, Jewish tradition has the great flood (and so, the episode of Gen 6:1–4) coinciding astronomically with the appearance of the Pleiades. This is significant since the Pleiades are connected astronomically with the constellation Orion (the giant), which constellation is mentioned in an Aramaic Targum of the book of Job from Qumran, which uses nephila ("giant") to translate Hebrew kesil ("Orion"). See L. Zalcman, "Orion," in Dictionary of Deities and Demons in the Bible, 648; Zalcman, "Pleiades," in ibid., 657–58.

29. See 1QH 10:8; 2 Enoch 22:7, 10; Martyrdom and Ascension of Isaiah 9:32; Philo, Spec. Leg. 1.45; T. Jud. 25:2; T. Levi 18:5.

29. See 1QH 10:8; 2 Enoch 22:7, 10; Martyrdom and Ascension of Isaiah 9:32; Philo, Spec. Leg. 1.45; T. Jud. 25:2; T. Levi 18:5.

14. See Alice Wood, Of Wings and Wheels: A Synthetic Study of the Biblical Cherubim (Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 385; Berlin: Walter de Gruyter, 2008). Wood provides an excellent concise summary of the morphological, grammatical, and text-critical difficulties in Ezek 28:11–19 that become part of the effort to identify the figure (divine or human?) lurking in the background of this passage. See the companion website for interaction with her work. Bernard F. Batto takes a similar perspective. He describes the Edenic rebel this way: "The 'serpent' [was] a semi-divine creature with wings and feet like the seraphs in Isa 6:2, whose function was to guard sacred persons and sacred objects such as the tree of divine wisdom" (In the Beginning: Essays on Creation Motifs in the Bible and the Ancient Near East [Siphrut: Literature and Theology of the Hebrew Scriptures 9; Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2013], 47).

1. The Jewish community that inherited the Old Testament was well aware of this. For centuries Judaism felt no discomfort with the notion of two Yahweh figures. The idea was referred to as the "two powers in heaven" and was endorsed within Judaism until the second century AD. It is important to note that the two powers were both holy. This is not dualism, where two equal deities exist, one good, the other evil. The major work on Judaism's two-powers teaching was published originally in 1971 by the late Alan Segal. Segal was Jewish and his career focused on Second Temple and Rabbinic Judaism. His work documents how the two-powers idea became a heresy in Judaism in the second century AD. It was recently reprinted. See Alan F. Segal, Two Powers in Heaven: Early Rabbinic Reports about Christianity and Gnosticism (reprint, Waco, TX: Baylor University Press, 2012). The Old Testament roots of the two-powers doctrine were one of the major focus points of my doctoral dissertation. The logic of the two Yahweh figures in the Old Testament reflects an Israelite adaptation of the Canaanite structuring of the top tier of the Canaanite divine council. See Michael S. Heiser, "The Divine Council in Late Canonical and Non-Canonical Second Temple Jewish Literature" (PhD diss., University of Wisconsin–Madison, 2004).

9. Given the connection made in the New Testament between the nachash (serpent) figure and the Hebrew word satan ("adversary") in Rev 12:9, the judicial role of the satan described in the Hebrew Bible (Job 1–2) becomes noteworthy. The role of the satan in Job involved roaming through the earth. In the context of the divine courtroom scene of Job 1–2, the ostensible purpose was to see, among humanity, who was (or wasn't) obedient to God. This precipitates God's words about Job. The satan issues a challenge to God's assessment, and perhaps to the justness of God's ordering of the world. Job becomes the focus of that challenge, as his integrity (and, by implication, God's) is questioned. Presuming this accusatorial role, when the New Testament writers have Satan expelled from heaven in Luke 10:17–18, the theological message would be that, with the commencement of the kingdom of God, Satan's role as "accuser of the brethren" is finished. God is no longer listening to challenges as to whom he deems righteous. That this phrase ("accuser of the brethren") occurs uniquely in Rev 12:10, right after the only verse in the New Testament that connects the terms Satan, devil, and dragon (cf. the serpent) cannot be coincidental. The inauguration of the kingdom of God by the messiah means that Satan, the lord of the dead, has no "legal" authority in God's court (council) by which to condemn any member of that kingdom. On Job 1–2 and the accuser, see Peggy Day, An Adversary in Heaven: sātān in the Hebrew Bible, Harvard Semitic Monographs 43 (Atlanta: Scholars Press, 1988), 79–83. For a scholarly treatment of the divine courtroom, tracing its constituent ideas from the Hebrew Bible through the Second Temple period on into the New Testament, see Meira Z. Kensky, Trying Man, Trying God, Wissenschaftliche Untersuchungen zum Neuen Testament 289, second series (Tübingen: Mohr-Siebeck, 2010).

5. As I noted in chapter 28 and briefly discuss in chapter 37, the powers of darkness were not aware of God's plan of salvation. They, like Satan in the wilderness, knew that Yahweh's messiah had come and that at least one purpose was the repatriation of the nations of the world under Yahweh's dominion. But they did not discern that the death of the messiah was the lynchpin to the plan, The death, burial, and resurrection of the messiah would result in the reconstitution of God's family as one body united to Christ, the Church, which was “circumcision neutral” and not tied to physical descent from Abraham.

14. See Alice Wood, Of Wings and Wheels: A Synthetic Study of the Biblical Cherubim (Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 385; Berlin: Walter de Gruyter, 2008). Wood provides an excellent concise summary of the morphological, grammatical, and text-critical difficulties in Ezek 28:11–19 that become part of the effort to identify the figure (divine or human?) lurking in the background of this passage. See the companion website for interaction with her work. Bernard F. Batto takes a similar perspective. He describes the Edenic rebel this way: "The 'serpent' [was] a semi-divine creature with wings and feet like the seraphs in Isa 6:2, whose function was to guard sacred persons and sacred objects such as the tree of divine wisdom" (In the Beginning: Essays on Creation Motifs in the Bible and the Ancient Near East [Siphrut: Literature and Theology of the Hebrew Scriptures 9; Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2013], 47).

14. See Alice Wood, Of Wings and Wheels: A Synthetic Study of the Biblical Cherubim (Beihefte zur Zeitschrift für die alttestamentliche Wissenschaft 385; Berlin: Walter de Gruyter, 2008). Wood provides an excellent concise summary of the morphological, grammatical, and text-critical difficulties in Ezek 28:11–19 that become part of the effort to identify the figure (divine or human?) lurking in the background of this passage. See the companion website for interaction with her work. Bernard F. Batto takes a similar perspective. He describes the Edenic rebel this way: "The 'serpent' [was] a semi-divine creature with wings and feet like the seraphs in Isa 6:2, whose function was to guard sacred persons and sacred objects such as the tree of divine wisdom" (In the Beginning: Essays on Creation Motifs in the Bible and the Ancient Near East [Siphrut: Literature and Theology of the Hebrew Scriptures 9; Winona Lake, IN: Eisenbrauns, 2013], 47).

Bible References

Part 1: First Things

Chapter 2: Rules of Engagement

1 Peter 3:14–22 But even if you might suffer for the sake of righteousness, you are blessed. And do not be afraid of their intimidation or be disturbed, 15 but set Christ apart as Lord in your hearts, always ready to make a defense to anyone who asks you for an accounting concerning the hope that is in you. 16 But do so with courtesy and respect, having a good conscience, so that in the things in which you are slandered, the ones who malign your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. 17 For it is better to suffer for doing good, if God wills it, than for doing evil.

> 18 For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,
> in order that he could bring you to God,
> being put to death in the flesh,
> but made alive in the spirit, > 19 in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, 20 who > were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the > days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few > —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. 21 And also, > corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of > dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience > through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, 22 who is at the right hand > of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and > powers having been subjected to him.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil.”

Genesis 3:22 And Yahweh God said, “Look—the man has become as one of us, to know good and evil. What if he stretches out his hand and takes also from the tree of life and eats, and lives forever?”

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 15:1 After these things the word of Yahweh came to Abram in a vision, saying: “Do not be afraid, Abram; I am your shield, and your reward shall be very great.”

Genesis 48:15–16 And he blessed Joseph and said, “The God before whom my fathers, Abraham and Isaac, walked, The God who shepherded me all my life unto this day, 16 The angel who redeemed me from all evil, may he bless the boys.

And through them let my name be perpetuated,

and the name of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac.

And let them multiply into many in the midst of the earth.

Exodus 3:1–14 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, “Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?” 4 And Yahweh saw that he turned aside to see, and God called to him from the midst of the bush, and he said, “Moses, Moses.” And he said, “Here I am.” 5 And he said, “You must not come near to here. Take off your sandals from on your feet, because the place on which you are standing, it is holy ground.” [6] And he said, “I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.” And Moses hid his face because he was afraid of looking at God.

[7] And Yahweh said, “Surely I have seen the misery of my people who are in Egypt, and I have heard their cry of distress because of their oppressors, for I know their sufferings. [8] And I have come down to deliver them from the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them up from this land to a good and wide land, to a land flowing with milk and honey, to the place of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites. [9] And now, look, the cry of distress of the Israelites has come to me, and also I see the oppression with which the Egyptians are oppressing them. [10] And now come, and I will send you to Pharaoh, and you must bring my people, the Israelites, out from Egypt.”

[11] But Moses said to God, “Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh and that I should bring the Israelites out from Egypt?” [12] And he said, “Because I am with you, and this will be the sign for you that I myself have sent you: When you bring the people out from Egypt, you will serve God on this mountain.” [13] But Moses said to God, “Look, if I go to the Israelites and I say to them, ‘The God of your ancestors has sent me to you,’ and they say to me, ‘What is his name?’ then what shall I say to them?” [14] And God said to Moses, “I am that I am.” And he said, “So you must say to the Israelites, ‘I am sent me to you.’ ”

Exodus 23:20–23 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. [21] Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. [22] But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes. [23] When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. [33] There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Samuel 23:1–14 Now they told David, "Look, the Philistines are fighting in Keilah and they are raiding the threshing floors." [2] So David inquired of Yahweh, saying, "Shall I go and attack these Philistines?" And Yahweh said to David, "Go and attack the Philistines and save Keilah." [3] But David's men said to him, "Look, we are afraid here in Judah. How much more if we go to Keilah to the battle lines of the Philistines?" [4] So David again inquired of Yahweh, and Yahweh answered him and said, "Get up, go down to Keilah, for I am giving the Philistines into your hand." [5] So David and his men went to Keilah and fought with the Philistines. They drove off their livestock and dealt them a heavy blow. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

[6] Now when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech fled to David at Keilah, he went down with an ephod in his hand. [7] When it was told to Saul that David had gone to Keilah, Saul said, "God has given him into my hand, because he has shut himself in by going into a city with two barred gates. [8] Saul then summoned all of the army for the battle, to go down to Keilah to lay a siege against David and his men. [9] When David learned that Saul was plotting evil against him, he said to Abiathar the priest, "Bring the ephod here." [10] And David said, "O Yahweh, God of Israel, your servant has clearly heard that Saul is seeking to come to Keilah to destroy the city because of me. [11] Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me into his hand? Will Saul come down as your servant has heard? O Yahweh, God of Israel, please tell your servant!” And Yahweh said, “He will come down.” 12 Then David said, “Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul?” And Yahweh said, “They will deliver you.” 13 So David and his men got up, about six hundred men, and went out from Keilah and wandered wherever they could go. When it was told to Saul that David had escaped from Keilah, he stopped his pursuit.

14 David remained in the wilderness, in the strongholds, and in the hill country in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul sought him continually, but God did not give him into his hand.

1 Kings 22:1–15 They lived three years, and there was no war between Aram and Israel. 2 It happened in the third year, Jehoshaphat king of Judah went down to the king of Israel, 3 and the king of Israel said to his servants, “Do you know Ramoth-Gilead belongs to us, and we are doing nothing about taking it from the hand of the king of Aram?” 4 Then he said to Jehoshaphat, “Will you go with me to the battle for Ramoth-Gilead?” Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, “I am like you; my people are like your people; my horses are like your horses.”

5 Jehoshaphat also said to the king of Israel, “Please inquire for the word of Yahweh today.” 6 Then the king of Israel assembled the prophets, about four hundred men, and he said to them, “Shall I go against Ramoth-Gilead for the battle, or should I refrain?” Then they said, “Go up, for the Lord will give it into the hand of the king.” 7 So Jehoshaphat said, “Is there no prophet of Yahweh here that we might still inquire from him?” 8 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “There is still one man to inquire of Yahweh through him, but I despise him, for he never prophesies anything good concerning me, but only bad: Micaiah the son of Imlah.” Then Jehoshaphat said, “The king should not say so.” 9 The king of Israel summoned a certain court official, and he said, “Quickly fetch Micaiah son of Imlah.” 10 The king of Israel and Jehoshaphat king of Judah were each sitting on his throne, dressed in their robes, at the threshing floor at the entrance of the gate of Samaria, with all the prophets prophesying before them. 11 Zedekiah son of Kenaanah made horns of iron for himself and said,

“Thus says Yahweh: ‘With these you shall gore the Arameans until finishing them.’ ” [12] All of the prophets were likewise prophesying, saying, “Go up to Ramoth-Gilead and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.”

[13] Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” [14] Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” [15] When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.”

2 Kings 5:17–19 Then Naaman said, “If not, then please let a load of soil on a pair of mules be given to your servants, for your servant will never again bring a burnt offering and sacrifice to other gods, but only to Yahweh. [18] As far as this matter, may Yahweh pardon your servant when my master goes into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and he is leaning himself on my arm, that I also bow down in the house of Rimmon: when I bow down in the house of Rimmon, may Yahweh please pardon your servant in this matter.” [19] He said to him, “Go in peace,” so he went from him a short distance.

Isaiah 14:12–15 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

[13] And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

[14] I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’

[15] But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Ezekiel 28:11–19 And the word of Yahweh came to me, saying, [12] “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,
turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.
14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain;
you walked in the midst of stones of fire.
15 You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created, until wickedness was found in you.
16 In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.
17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.
I threw you on the ground before kings;
I have exposed you for viewing.
18 From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading,
I profaned your sanctuaries
and I brought fire from your midst;
it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.
19 All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;
you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Matthew 16:13–23 Now when Jesus came to the region of Caesarea Philippi, he began asking his disciples, saying, “Who do people say that the Son of Man is?” 14 And they said, Some say John the Baptist, but others Elijah, and others Jeremiah or one of the prophets.” 15 He said to them, “But who do you say that I am?” 16 And Simon Peter answered and said, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God!” 17 And Jesus answered and said to him, “Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah, because flesh and blood did not reveal this to you, but my Father who is in heaven. 18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it! 19 I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you release on earth will be released in heaven.” 20 Then he commanded the disciples that they should tell no one that he was the Christ.

21 From that time on Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things from the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised on the third day. 22 And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, God forbid, Lord! This will never happen to you!” 23 But he turned around and said to Peter, “Get behind me, Satan! You are a cause for stumbling to me, because you are not intent on the things of God, but the things of people!”

John 1:1–14 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. 2 This one was in the beginning with God. 3 All things came into being through him, and apart from him not one thing came into being that has come into being. 4 In him was life, and the life was the light of humanity. 5 And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it.

6 A man came, sent from God, whose name was John. 7 This one came for a witness, in order that he could testify about the light, so that all would believe through him. 8 That one was not the light, but came in order that he could testify about the light. 9 The true light, who gives light to every person, was coming into the world. 10 He was in the world, and the world came into being through him, and the world did not recognize him. 11 He came to his own things, and his own people did not receive him. [12] But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name—he gave to them authority to become children of God, [13] who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of a husband, but of God.

[14] And the Word became flesh and took up residence among us, and we saw his glory, glory as of the one and only from the Father, full of grace and truth.

John 10:34–35 Jesus answered them, “Is it not written in your law, ‘I said, “You are gods” ’? [35] If he called them ‘gods’ to whom the word of God came—and the scripture cannot be broken—

Romans 8:18–24 For I consider that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that is about to be revealed to us. [19] For the eagerly expecting creation awaits eagerly the revelation of the sons of God. [20] For the creation has been subjected to futility, not willingly, but because of the one who subjected it, in hope [21] that the creation itself also will be set free from its servility to decay, into the glorious freedom of the children of God. [22] For we know that the whole creation groans together and suffers agony together until now. [23] Not only this, but we ourselves also, having the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves while we await eagerly our adoption, the redemption of our body. [24] For in hope we were saved, but hope that is seen is not hope, for who hopes for what he sees?

Romans 15:24 whenever I travel to Spain. For I hope while I am passing through to see you and to be sent on my way by you, whenever I have first enjoyed your company for a while.

Romans 15:28 Therefore, after I have accomplished this and sealed this fruit for delivery to them, I will depart by way of you for Spain,

1 Corinthians 2:6–13 Now we do speak wisdom among the mature, but wisdom not of this age or of the rulers of this age, who are perishing, [7] but we speak the hidden wisdom of God in a mystery, which God predestined before the ages for our glory, [8] which none of the rulers of this age knew.

For if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. [9] But just as it is written, "Things which eye has not seen and ear has not heard, and have not entered into the heart of man,

all that God has prepared for those who love him."

[10] For to us God has revealed them through the Spirit. For the Spirit searches all things, even the depths of God. [11] For who among men knows the things of a man, except the spirit of the man that is in him? Thus also no one knows the things of God except the Spirit of God. [12] Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit who is from God, in order that we may know the things freely given to us by God, [13] things which we also speak, not in words taught by human wisdom, but in words taught by the Spirit, explaining spiritual things to spiritual people.

1 Corinthians 5:4–5 In the name of our Lord Jesus, when you are assembled, and my spirit, together with the power of our Lord Jesus, [5] I have decided to hand over such a person to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, in order that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord.

1 Corinthians 6:3 Do you not know that we will judge angels, not to mention ordinary matters?

1 Corinthians 10:18–22 Consider Israel according to the flesh: are not the ones who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar? [19] Therefore, what am I saying? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? [20] No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. [21] You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Galatians 3:19 Why then the law? It was added on account of transgressions, until the descendant should come to whom it had been promised, having been ordered through angels by the hand of a mediator.

Ephesians 6:10–12 Finally, become strong in the Lord and in the might of his strength. [11] Put on the full armor of God, so that you may be able to stand against the stratagems of the devil, [12] because our struggle is not against blood and flesh, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the world rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly places.

1 Peter 3:18–22 For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,

in order that he could bring you to God,

being put to death in the flesh,

but made alive in the spirit,

[19] in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, [20] who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. [21] And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, [22] who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and powers having been subjected to him.

2 Peter 1:3–4 because his divine power has bestowed on us all things that are necessary for life and godliness, through the knowledge of the one who called us by his own glory and excellence of character, [4] through which things he has bestowed on us his precious and very great promises, so that through these you may become sharers of the divine nature after escaping from the corruption that is in the world because of evil desire,

2 Peter 2:4–5 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment, [5] and did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, a proclaimer of righteousness, and seven others when he brought a flood on the world of the ungodly,

Jude 5–7 Now I want to remind you, although you know everything once and for all, that Jesus, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, the second time destroyed those who did not believe. [6] And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day, [7] as Sodom and Gomorrah and the towns around them indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural desire in the same way as these, are exhibited as an example by undergoing the punishment of eternal fire.

Revelation 2:26–28 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations, [27] and "he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay," [28] as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Part 2: The Households of God

Chapter 3: God's Entourage

Job 38:4–7 "Where were you at my laying the foundation of the earth?
Tell me, if you possess understanding.
5 Who determined its measurement? Yes, you do know.
Or who stretched the measuring line upon it?
6 On what were its bases sunk?
Or who laid its cornerstone,
7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Job 38:4 "Where were you at my laying the foundation of the earth?
Tell me, if you possess understanding.

Job 38:5 Who determined its measurement? Yes, you do know.
Or who stretched the measuring line upon it?

Job 38:6 On what were its bases sunk?
Or who laid its cornerstone,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Acts 17:28 for in him we live and move and exist, as even some of your own poets have said: 'For we also are his offspring.'

Psalm 82:1 God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 82:1 God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Genesis 14:18–22 And Melchizedek, the king of Salem, brought out bread and wine. (He was the priest of God Most High). [19] And he blessed him and said, “Blessed be Abram by God Most High, Maker of heaven and earth.

[20] And blessed be God Most High who delivered your enemies into your hand.”

And he gave to him a tenth of everything. [21] And the king of Sodom said to Abram, “Give me the people, but the possessions take for yourself.” [22] And Abram said to the king of Sodom, “I have raised my hand to Yahweh, God Most High, Maker of heaven and earth,

Numbers 24:16 the declaration of the hearer of God’s words, and the knower of the knowledge of the Most High, who sees the vision of Shaddai, who is falling, and his eyes are revealed.

Psalm 7:17 I will thank Yahweh according to his righteousness, and I will sing praise to the name of Yahweh, the Most High.

Psalm 18:13 And Yahweh thundered from the heavens, and the Most High uttered his voice with hail and coals of fire.

Psalm 47:2 For Yahweh Most High is awesome, a great king over all the earth.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Chapter 4: God Alone

Psalm 82:2–4 “How long will you judge unjustly and show favoritism to the wicked? Selah 3 Judge on behalf of the helpless and the orphan; provide justice to the afflicted and the poor.

4 Rescue the helpless and the needy; deliver them from the hand of the wicked.”

Psalm 82:7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Psalm 89:5–7 And so the heavens will praise your wonderful deed, O Yahweh, even your faithfulness, in the assembly of the holy ones.

6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God, 7 a God feared greatly in the council of the holy ones, and awesome above all surrounding him?

Psalm 89:6–8 And so the heavens will praise your wonderful deed, O Yahweh, even your faithfulness, in the assembly of the holy ones.

6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God, 7 a God feared greatly in the council of the holy ones, and awesome above all surrounding him?

Psalm 82:5 They do not know or consider.

They go about in the darkness, so that all the foundations of the earth are shaken.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Psalm 82:7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Psalm 29:2 Ascribe to Yahweh the glory due his name.

Worship Yahweh in holy array.

Psalm 29:1–2 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

[2] Ascribe to Yahweh the glory due his name.

Worship Yahweh in holy array.

Genesis 2:4–5 These are the generations of heaven and earth when they were created, in the day that Yahweh God made earth and heaven—[5] before any plant of the field was on earth, and before any plant of the field had sprung up, because Yahweh God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was no human being to cultivate the ground,

Deuteronomy 4:35 You yourselves were shown this wonder in order for you to acknowledge that Yahweh is the God; there is no other God besides him.

Psalm 82:1 God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Judges 11:24 Do you not possess what Chemosh your god gave you to possess? Whoever Yahweh our God has driven out before us, we will possess it.

1 Kings 11:33 because he has forsaken me, and they bowed down to Ashtoreth, the god of the Sidonians, to Chemosh, the god of Moab, and to Molech, the god of the Ammonites. They did not walk in my ways to do right in my eyes, my ordinances, or my judgments, as did David his father.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Samuel 28:13 The king said to her, “Do not be afraid! What do you see?” And the woman said to Saul, “I see a god coming up from the ground!”

Genesis 35:7 And he built an altar there and called the place El-Bethel, for there God had appeared to him when he fled before his brother.

Exodus 15:11 Who is like you among the gods, Yahweh?

> Who is like you—glorious in holiness, awesome in praiseworthy actions, doing wonders?

Deuteronomy 3:24 ‘Lord Yahweh, you have begun to show your servant your greatness and your strong hand, for what god is there in the heaven or on the earth who can do according to your works and according to your mighty deeds?

1 Kings 8:23 and he said, “O Yahweh, God of Israel, there is no god like you in the heavens above or on the earth beneath, keeping the covenant and the loyal love for your servants who are walking before you with all their heart.

Psalm 97:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.
You are highly exalted above all gods.

Jeremiah 32:17 ‘Ah Lord Yahweh! Look, you made the heavens and the earth by your great power and by your outstretched arm. Nothing is too difficult for you,

Jeremiah 32:27 “Look, I am Yahweh, the God of all flesh; is anything too difficult for me?”

Psalm 72:18 Blessed be Yahweh God, the God of Israel, who alone does wonderful things.

Psalm 115:3 But our God is in the heavens; all that he desires, he does.

Psalm 95:3 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods,

Daniel 4:35 And all the dwellers of the earth are regarded as nothing, and he does according to his desire in the host of heaven and among the dwellers of earth, and there is not one who can hold back his hand, or ask him, ‘What are you doing?’

1 Kings 22:19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand.

Psalm 148:1–5 Praise Yah.
Praise Yahweh from the heavens;
praise him in the heights.
2 Praise him, all his angels; praise him, all his hosts.
3 Praise him, sun and moon; praise him, all stars of light.
4 Praise him, highest heavens, and waters above the heavens.
5 Let them praise the name of Yahweh, because he commanded and they were created.

Nehemiah 9:6 “You alone are Yahweh. You alone have made the heavens, the heavens of the heavens, and all of their army, the earth and all that is in it, the waters and all that is in them. You give life to all of them, and the army of the heavens worship you.

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:25–26 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 1:17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shadow of change.

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Nehemiah 9:6 “You alone are Yahweh. You alone have made the heavens, the heavens of the heavens, and all of their army, the earth and all that is in it, the waters and all that is in them. You give life to all of them, and the army of the heavens worship you.

1 Kings 22:19–22 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’

John 4:24 God is spirit, and the ones who worship him must worship in spirit and truth.”

Hebrews 1:14 Are they not all spirits engaged in special service, sent on assignment for the sake of those who are going to inherit salvation?

Revelation 1:4 John, to the seven churches in Asia: grace to you and peace from the one who is and the one who was and the one who is coming, and from the seven spirits who are before his throne,

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 106:37 They even sacrificed their sons and daughters to the demons,

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them

when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 4:35 You yourselves were shown this wonder in order for you to acknowledge that Yahweh is the God; there is no other God besides him.

Isaiah 47:8 Therefore now hear this, luxuriant one who sits in security, who says in her heart, "I am, and besides me there is no one.

I shall not sit as a widow, and I shall not know the loss of children."

Zephaniah 2:15 This is the city of rejoicing that lived securely;

the one saying in her heart,

“I am, and there is none besides me.”

How she has become a desolation,

a lair for wild animals!

Everyone who passes by her hisses and shakes his fist.

Psalm 97:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.

You are highly exalted above all gods.

Psalm 29:1–2 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

2 Ascribe to Yahweh the glory due his name.

Worship Yahweh in holy array.

1 Corinthians 10:18–22 Consider Israel according to the flesh: are not the ones who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar? 19 Therefore, what am I saying? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? 20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. 21 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. 22 Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

1 Corinthians 8:4 Therefore, concerning the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that “an idol is nothing in the world” and that “there is no God except one.”

John 1:14 And the Word became flesh and took up residence among us, and we saw his glory, glory as of the one and only from the Father, full of grace and truth.

John 1:18 No one has seen God at any time; the one and only, God, the one who is in the bosom of the Father—that one has made him known.

John 3:16 For in this way God loved the world, so that he gave his one and only Son, in order that everyone who believes in him will not perish, but will have eternal life.

John 3:18 The one who believes in him is not judged, but the one who does not believe has already been judged, because he has not believed in the name of the one and only Son of God.

1 John 4:9 By this the love of God is revealed in us: that God sent his one and only Son into the world in order that we may live through him.

Hebrews 11:17 By faith Abraham, when he was tested, offered Isaac, and the one who received the promises was ready to offer his one and only son, Genesis 16:15 And Hagar had a child for Abram, a son. And Abram called the name of his son whom Hagar bore to him, Ishmael.

Genesis 21:3 And Abraham called the name of his son who was born to him, whom Sarah bore to him, Isaac.

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Chapter 5: As in Heaven, so on Earth

Matthew 6:9–15 Therefore you pray in this way: “Our Father who is in heaven, may your name be treated as holy.

10 May your kingdom come, may your will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

11 Give us today our daily bread, 12 and forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors.

13 And do not bring us into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one.

14 For if you forgive people their sins, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. 15 But if you do not forgive people, neither will your Father forgive your sins.

Matthew 6:10 May your kingdom come, may your will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

Genesis 1:26–28 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.” 27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them. 28 And God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Genesis 1:28 And God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Genesis 1:27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Genesis 2:7 when Yahweh God formed the man of dust from the ground, and he blew into his nostrils the breath of life, and the man became a living creature.

Genesis 1:20 And God said, "Let the waters swarm with swarms of living creatures, and let birds fly over the earth across the face of the vaulted dome of heaven.

Genesis 1:30 And to every kind of animal of the earth and to every bird of heaven, and to everything that moves upon the earth in which there is life I am giving every green plant as food." And it was so.

1 Samuel 1:15 But Hannah answered and said, "No, my lord. I am a woman deeply distressed, but I have not drunk wine or strong drink. Rather, I have poured out my soul before Yahweh.

Job 7:11 "Even I will not restrain my mouth; I will speak in my spirit's anguish;

I will complain in my inner self's bitterness.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and

over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:26–27 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.” 27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Genesis 1:28 And God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

John 1:12 But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name—he gave to them authority to become children of God,

1 John 3:1–3 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him. 2 Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is. 3 And everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as that one is pure.

Galatians 4:5 in order that he might redeem those under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption.

Ephesians 1:5 having predestined us to adoption through Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will,

Chapter 6: Gardens and Mountains

Genesis 2:8 And Yahweh God planted a garden in Eden in the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed.

1 Kings 22:13–27 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

24 Then Zedekiah son of Kenaanah came near and slapped Micaiah on the cheek and said, “When did the Spirit of Yahweh pass from me to speak with you?” [25] Then Micaiah said, “Behold, you are about to see on that day when you go from room to room to hide.” [26] The king of Israel said, “Take Micaiah and return him to Amon the commander of the city and to Jehoash the son of the king; [27] and say, ‘Thus says the king: “Put this fellow in the house of imprisonment and feed him reduced rations of food and water until I come in peace.” ’ ”

Psalm 48:1–2 Yahweh is great and very worthy of praise in the city of our God, in his holy mountain.

[2] Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven;
I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;
and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Exodus 24:9–10 And Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel went up. [10] And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness.

Genesis 2:5–14 before any plant of the field was on earth, and before any plant of the field had sprung up, because Yahweh God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was no human being to cultivate the ground, [6] but a stream would rise from the earth and water the whole face of the ground—[7] when Yahweh God formed the man of dust from the ground, and he blew into his nostrils the breath of life, and the man became a living creature.

[8] And Yahweh God planted a garden in Eden in the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed. [9] And Yahweh God caused to grow from the ground every tree that was pleasing to the sight and good for food. And the tree of life was in the midst of the garden, along with the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

[10] Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches. [11] The name of the first is the

Pishon. It went around all the land of Havilah, where there is gold. [12] (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.) [13] And the name of the second is Gihon. It went around all the land of Cush. [14] And the name of the third is Tigris. It flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 28:14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God's holy mountain;

you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

Isaiah 33:20–22 Look on Zion, the city of our appointed festivals!

Your eyes will see Jerusalem, an undisturbed settlement,

a tent that is not moved.

No one will ever pull out its tent pegs, and none of its ropes will be torn in two.

[21] Rather, there Yahweh will be mighty for us, a place of rivers and broad streams, a galley ship with oars cannot go in it, and a mighty ship cannot pass through it.

[22] For Yahweh is our judge; Yahweh is our lawgiver.

Yahweh is our king; he is the one who will save us.

Ezekiel 47:1–12 And he brought me back to the doorway of the temple and, look! There was water coming out from under the threshold of the temple eastward, because the face of the temple was eastwards; and the water was coming down from under the south side of the temple, from south of the altar. [2] And he brought me out by the way of the north gate and he led me around by the way leading to the outside of the outer gate by way of the gate facing east, and look, there was water trickling from the south side. [3] As the man went eastward a measuring line was in his hand, and he measured a thousand cubits. And he led me through on into the water; it was ankle deep. [4] And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was knee deep. And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was waist deep. [5] And he measured a thousand cubits, and it became a stream that I was not able to cross, because the water rose, waters a person could swim in, and became a stream that could not be crossed. [6] And he asked me, "Son of man, did you see this?" And he made me go, and he brought me back along the bank of the stream.

[7] When I returned, then look! On the bank of the river were many trees on both sides. [8] And he said to me, "These waters are going out to the eastern region, and they go down to the Jordan Valley, and they come to the sea and flow into the sea where they issue out, and the waters in the sea will be healed. [9] And then every living creature with which it teems, to every place the waters come it will live; and very many fish will live because these waters came there, and so the water will be healed and everything will be alive everywhere that the stream will come. [10] And then fishers from En Gedi and on up to En Eglaim will stand beside it, a sea-girt drying yard for nets; their fish for the dragnets will be of every kind, like the fish of the great sea, and very many. [11] But its marshes and its swamps will not be cured, for they were given for salt. [12] And along the stream will go up on its banks from both sides every tree producing food; its leaf will not wither and it will not cease producing its fruit. Every month it will bear early fruit, for its waters are going out from the sanctuary, and its fruit will be as food, and its leaf for healing."

Zechariah 14:8 And then on that day, living waters will flow out from Jerusalem, half of them to the eastern sea, and the other half to the western sea; it will happen both in the summer and in the winter.

Joel 3:18 And it will happen on that day; the mountains will drip new wine, and the hills will flow with milk,

and all the channels of Judah will flow with water.
A spring from the house of Yahweh will come forth,
and it will water the valley of Acacia Trees.

John 1:12 But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name —he gave to them authority to become children of God,

1 John 3:1–3 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him. [2] Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is. [3] And everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as that one is pure.

Ezekiel 28:2 "Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Because your heart was haughty,
and you said, 'I am a god;
I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!'
But you are a human, not a god,
and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Chapter 7: Eden—Like No Place on Earth

Genesis 2:8–14 And Yahweh God planted a garden in Eden in the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed. [9] And Yahweh God caused to grow from the ground every tree that was pleasing to the sight and good for food. And the tree of life was in the midst of the garden, along with the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

[10] Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches. [11] The name of the first is the Pishon. It went around all the land of Havilah, where there is gold. [12] (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.) [13] And the name of the second is Gihon. It went around all the land of Cush. [14] And the name of the third is Tigris. It flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

Genesis 2:10 Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches.

Genesis 2:11 The name of the first is the Pishon. It went around all the land of Havilah, where there is gold.

Genesis 2:12 (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.)

Genesis 2:13 And the name of the second is Gihon. It went around all the land of Cush.

Genesis 2:14 And the name of the third is Tigris. It flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

Genesis 2:10–14 Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches. [11] The name of the first is the Pishon. It went around all the land of Havilah, where there is gold. [12] (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.) [13] And the name of the second is Gihon. It went around all the land of Cush. [14] And the name of the third is Tigris. It flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

Genesis 1:26–27 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.” [27] So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Genesis 1:28 And God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:28 And God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 2:8 And Yahweh God planted a garden in Eden in the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed.

Genesis 2:15 And Yahweh God took the man and set him in the garden of Eden to cultivate it and to keep it.

Genesis 1:28 And God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:31 And God saw everything that he had made and, behold, it was very good. And there was evening, and there was morning, a sixth day.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Joshua 20:8 Beyond the Jordan east of Jericho, they appointed Bezer in the wilderness on the plateau, from the tribe of Reuben, Ramoth in Gilead, from the tribe of Gad, and Golan in the Bashan, from the tribe of Manasseh.

Joshua 21:38 From the tribe of Gad, Ramoth in Gilead, the city of refuge for the killer, and its pasturelands, Mahanaim and its pasturelands,

1 Chronicles 6:80 And out of the tribe of Gad: Ramoth in Gilead with its pasturelands, Mahanaim with its pasturelands, Deuteronomy 4:43 He set apart Bezer in the wilderness in the land of the plateau of the Reubenites; Ramoth in Gilead of the Gadites, and Golan in Bashan of the Manassites.

1 Kings 22:16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?”

1 Kings 22:17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ”

1 Kings 22:18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

1 Kings 22:19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand.

1 Kings 22:20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another.

1 Kings 22:21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’

1 Kings 22:22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’

1 Kings 22:23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

1 Kings 22:16–23 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

1 Kings 22:19–22 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’

1 Kings 22:20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another.

1 Kings 22:21–22 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’

Daniel 4:13 “ ‘I was looking in the vision of my head as I lay on my bed, and look, a watcher, and a holy one, came down from heaven.

Daniel 4:17 The sentence is by the decree of the watchers, and the decision by the command of the holy ones, in order that the living will know > that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of humankind, > and to whomever he wills he gives it,

> and he even sets the humblest of men over it.”

Daniel 4:23 And inasmuch that the king saw the watcher, a holy one coming down from heaven and he said, “Cut down the tree and destroy it, but the stump of its root in the earth leave with a band of iron and bronze in the grass of the field, and let it be watered with the dew of heaven and let his lot be with the animals of the field until seven times have passed over him."

Daniel 4:13–16 " 'I was looking in the vision of my head as I lay on my bed, and look, a watcher, and a holy one, came down from heaven.

14 He cried aloud and so he said: "Cut down the tree and chop off its branches; shake off its foliage and scatter its fruit.

Let the animals flee from under it, and the birds from its branches.

15 But the stump of its roots leave in the earth, along with a band of iron and bronze;

leave it in the grass of the field.

And in the dew of heaven

let it be watered,

and with the animals

let his lot be in the grass of the earth.

16 Let his mind be changed from that of a human, and let the mind of an animal be given to him, and let seven times pass over him.

Daniel 4:17 The sentence is by the decree of the watchers, and the decision by the command of the holy ones, in order that the living will know that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of humankind, and to whomever he wills he gives it,

and he even sets the humblest of men over it."

Daniel 4:17 The sentence is by the decree of the watchers, and the decision by the command of the holy ones, in order that the living will know that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of humankind, and to whomever he wills he gives it,

and he even sets the humblest of men over it."

Daniel 4:24 This is the explanation, O king, and it is a decree of the Most High that has come upon my lord the king:

Daniel 4:17 The sentence is by the decree of the watchers, and the decision by the command of the holy ones, in order that the living will know > that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of humankind, > and to whomever he wills he gives it,

>
> and he even sets the humblest of men over it."

Daniel 4:25 you will be driven away from human society and you will dwell with the animals of the field, and you will be caused to graze grass like the oxen yourself, and you will be watered with the dew of heaven, and seven periods of time will pass over you until that you have acknowledged that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of humankind, and to whom he wills he gives it.

Daniel 4:26 And in that they said to leave alone the stump of the tree's root, so your kingdom will be restored for you when you acknowledge that heaven is sovereign.

Daniel 4:25–26 you will be driven away from human society and you will dwell with the animals of the field, and you will be caused to graze grass like the oxen yourself, and you will be watered with the dew of heaven, and seven periods of time will pass over you until that you have acknowledged that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of humankind, and to whom he wills he gives it. [26] And in that they said to leave alone the stump of the tree's root, so your kingdom will be restored for you when you acknowledge that heaven is sovereign.

Daniel 4:25 you will be driven away from human society and you will dwell with the animals of the field, and you will be caused to graze grass like the oxen yourself, and you will be watered with the dew of heaven, and seven periods of time will pass over you until that you have acknowledged that the Most High is sovereign over the kingdom of humankind, and to whom he wills he gives it.

Chapter 8: Only God Is Perfect

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 1:7 So Yahweh said to Satan, “From where have you come?”

Then Satan answered Yahweh and said, “From roaming on the earth and from walking about in it.”

Job 1:6–9 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst. 7 So Yahweh said to Satan, “From where have you come?”

Then Satan answered Yahweh and said, “From roaming on the earth and from walking about in it.”

8 So Yahweh said to Satan, “Have you considered my servant Job? Indeed, there is no one like him on the earth—a blameless man and upright and God-fearing and turning away from evil.”

9 Then Satan answered Yahweh and said, “Does Job fear God for nothing?

Job 1:12 So Yahweh said to Satan, “Look, all that belongs to him is in your power. Only do not stretch out your hand against him.” So Satan went out from Yahweh’s presence.

Job 2:1–4 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh. 2 So Yahweh asked Satan, “From where have you come?”

And Satan answered Yahweh and said, “From roaming on the earth and from walking about in it.”

3 So Yahweh asked Satan, “Have you considered my servant Job? Indeed, there is no one like him on the earth—a blameless man and upright and God-fearing and turning away from evil. And still he persists in his blamelessness even though you incited me against him to destroy him for nothing.”

4 Then Satan answered him and said, “Skin for skin! All that that man has he will give for his life.

Job 2:6–7 So Yahweh said to Satan, “All right, he is in your power. Only spare his life.”

7 So Satan went out from Yahweh’s presence, and he inflicted Job with loathsome skin sores from the sole of his foot up to the crown of his head.

Zechariah 3:1–2 And he showed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of Yahweh; and Satan was standing on his right to accuse him. 2 But Yahweh said to Satan, “Yahweh rebukes you, O Satan! Yahweh who has chosen Jerusalem rebukes you! Is this not a stick snatched from the fire?”

Numbers 22:22–23 But God became angry because he was going, and the angel of Yahweh stood in the road as an adversary to him; he was riding on his donkey, and two servants were with him. 23 The donkey saw the angel of Yahweh standing in the road with his sword drawn in his hand, and the donkey turned aside from the road and went into the field. And Balaam struck the donkey to turn her back to the road.

Job 3:11 “Why did I not die at birth?

Why did I not come forth from the womb and expire?

Job 4:6 Is not your fear in God your confidence?

Is not your hope even the integrity of your ways?

Job 1:8 So Yahweh said to Satan, “Have you considered my servant Job? Indeed, there is no one like him on the earth—a blameless man and upright and God-fearing and turning away from evil.”

Job 4:17 ‘Can a human being be more righteous than God, or can a man be more pure than his Maker?

Job 4:18 Look, he does not trust in his servants and he charges his angels with error.

Job 4:19 How much more dwellers in clay houses, whose foundation is in the dust?

They are crushed like a moth.

Job 4:17–19 ‘Can a human being be more righteous than God, or can a man be more pure than his Maker?

18 Look, he does not trust in his servants and he charges his angels with error.

19 How much more dwellers in clay houses, whose foundation is in the dust?

They are crushed like a moth.

Job 15:14–15 “What is a human being, that he can be clean, or that one born of a woman can be righteous?

15 Look, he does not trust his holy ones, and the heavens are not clean in his eyes.

Job 15:14 “What is a human being, that he can be clean, or that one born of a woman can be righteous?

Job 15:15 Look, he does not trust his holy ones, and the heavens are not clean in his eyes.

Genesis 1:27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Genesis 6:6 And Yahweh regretted that he had made humankind on the earth, and he was grieved in his heart.

Isaiah 54:6–7 For Yahweh has called you like a wife forsaken and hurt of spirit, like the wife of childhood when she is rejected, says your God.

[7] I abandoned you for a short moment, but I will gather you with great compassion.

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil."

Chapter 9: Peril and Providence

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil.”

Genesis 3:22 And Yahweh God said, “Look—the man has become as one of us, to know good and evil. What if he stretches out his hand and takes also from the tree of life and eats, and lives forever?”

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil.”

Psalm 82:1 God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Genesis 3:22 And Yahweh God said, “Look—the man has become as one of us, to know good and evil. What if he stretches out his hand and takes also from the tree of life and eats, and lives forever?”

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil.”

Psalm 8:5 And you made him a little lower than heavenly beings, and with glory and with majesty you crowned him.

Hebrews 2:7 You made him for a short time lower than the angels; you crowned him with glory and honor;

Psalm 8:5 And you made him a little lower than heavenly beings, and with glory and with majesty you crowned him.

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil."

Deuteronomy 1:39 And your little children, who you thought shall become plunder, and your sons, who do not today know good or bad, shall themselves go there, and I will give it to them, and they shall take possession of it.

1 Samuel 23:1–13 Now they told David, "Look, the Philistines are fighting in Keilah and they are raiding the threshing floors." [2] So David inquired of Yahweh, saying, "Shall I go and attack these Philistines?" And Yahweh said to David, "Go and attack the Philistines and save Keilah." [3] But David's men said to him, "Look, we are afraid here in Judah. How much more if we go to Keilah to the battle lines of the Philistines?" [4] So David again inquired of Yahweh, and Yahweh answered him and said, "Get up, go down to Keilah, for I am giving the Philistines into your hand." [5] So David and his men went to Keilah and fought with the Philistines. They drove off their livestock and dealt them a heavy blow. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

[6] Now when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech fled to David at Keilah, he went down with an ephod in his hand. [7] When it was told to Saul that David had gone to Keilah, Saul said, "God has given him into my hand, because he has shut himself in by going into a city with two barred gates. [8] Saul then summoned all of the army for the battle, to go down to Keilah to lay a siege against David and his men. [9] When David learned that Saul was plotting evil against him, he said to Abiathar the priest, "Bring the ephod here." [10] And David said, "O Yahweh, God of Israel, your servant has clearly heard that Saul is seeking to come to Keilah to destroy the city because of me. [11] Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me into his hand? Will Saul come down as your servant has heard? O Yahweh, God of Israel, please tell your servant!" And Yahweh said, "He will come down." [12] Then David said, "Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul?" And Yahweh said, "They will deliver you." [13] So David and his men got up, about six hundred men, and went out from Keilah and wandered wherever they could go. When it was told to Saul that David had escaped from Keilah, he stopped his pursuit.

1 Samuel 23:1 Now they told David, "Look, the Philistines are fighting in Keilah and they are raiding the threshing floors."

1 Samuel 23:2 So David inquired of Yahweh, saying, "Shall I go and attack these Philistines?" And Yahweh said to David, "Go and attack the Philistines and save Keilah."

1 Samuel 23:3 But David's men said to him, "Look, we are afraid here in Judah. How much more if we go to Keilah to the battle lines of the Philistines?"

1 Samuel 23:4 So David again inquired of Yahweh, and Yahweh answered him and said, "Get up, go down to Keilah, for I am giving the Philistines into your hand."

1 Samuel 23:5 So David and his men went to Keilah and fought with the Philistines. They drove off their livestock and dealt them a heavy blow. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

1 Samuel 23:6 Now when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech fled to David at Keilah, he went down with an ephod in his hand.

1 Samuel 23:7 When it was told to Saul that David had gone to Keilah, Saul said, "God has given him into my hand, because he has shut himself in by going into a city with two barred gates.

1 Samuel 23:8 Saul then summoned all of the army for the battle, to go down to Keilah to lay a siege against David and his men.

1 Samuel 23:9 When David learned that Saul was plotting evil against him, he said to Abiathar the priest, "Bring the ephod here."

1 Samuel 23:10 And David said, “O Yahweh, God of Israel, your servant has clearly heard that Saul is seeking to come to Keilah to destroy the city because of me.

1 Samuel 23:11 Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me into his hand? Will Saul come down as your servant has heard? O Yahweh, God of Israel, please tell your servant!” And Yahweh said, “He will come down.”

1 Samuel 23:12 Then David said, “Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul?” And Yahweh said, “They will deliver you.”

1 Samuel 23:13 So David and his men got up, about six hundred men, and went out from Keilah and wandered wherever they could go. When it was told to Saul that David had escaped from Keilah, he stopped his pursuit.

1 Samuel 23:1–5 Now they told David, “Look, the Philistines are fighting in Keilah and they are raiding the threshing floors.” [2] So David inquired of Yahweh, saying, “Shall I go and attack these Philistines?” And Yahweh said to David, “Go and attack the Philistines and save Keilah.” [3] But David’s men said to him, “Look, we are afraid here in Judah. How much more if we go to Keilah to the battle lines of the Philistines?” [4] So David again inquired of Yahweh, and Yahweh answered him and said, “Get up, go down to Keilah, for I am giving the Philistines into your hand.” [5] So David and his men went to Keilah and fought with the Philistines. They drove off their livestock and dealt them a heavy blow. So David saved the inhabitants of Keilah.

1 Samuel 23:6–13 Now when Abiathar the son of Ahimelech fled to David at Keilah, he went down with an ephod in his hand. [7] When it was told to Saul that David had gone to Keilah, Saul said, “God has given him into my hand, because he has shut himself in by going into a city with two barred gates. [8] Saul then summoned all of the army for the battle, to go down to Keilah to lay a siege against David and his men. [9] When David learned that Saul was plotting evil against him, he said to Abiathar the priest, “Bring the ephod here.” [10] And David said, “O Yahweh, God of Israel, your servant has clearly heard that Saul is seeking to come to Keilah to destroy the city because of me. [11] Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me into his hand? Will Saul come down as your servant has heard? O Yahweh, God of Israel, please tell your servant!” And Yahweh said, “He will come down.” 12 Then David said, “Will the rulers of Keilah deliver me and my men into the hand of Saul?” And Yahweh said, “They will deliver you.” 13 So David and his men got up, about six hundred men, and went out from Keilah and wandered wherever they could go. When it was told to Saul that David had escaped from Keilah, he stopped his pursuit.

1 Samuel 23:13 So David and his men got up, about six hundred men, and went out from Keilah and wandered wherever they could go. When it was told to Saul that David had escaped from Keilah, he stopped his pursuit.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you."

Hebrews 1:14 Are they not all spirits engaged in special service, sent on assignment for the sake of those who are going to inherit salvation?

Hebrews 2:10–18 For it was fitting for him for whom are all things and through whom are all things in bringing many sons to glory to perfect the originator of their salvation through sufferings. [11] For both the one who sanctifies and the ones who are sanctified are all from one, for which reason he is not ashamed to call them brothers, [12] saying, "I will proclaim your name to my brothers;

in the midst of the assembly I will sing in praise of you."

[13] And again, "I will trust in him."

And again,

"Behold, I and the children God has given me."

[14] Therefore, since the children share in blood and flesh, he also in like manner shared in these same things, in order that through death he could destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, [15] and could set free these who through fear of death were subject to slavery throughout all their lives. [16] For surely he is not concerned with angels, but he is concerned with the descendants of Abraham. [17] Therefore he was obligated to be made like his brothers in all respects, in order that he could become a merciful and faithful high priest in the things relating to God, in order to make atonement for the sins of the people. [18] For in that which he himself suffered when he was tempted, he is able to help those who are tempted.

Part 3: Divine Transgressions

Chapter 10: Trouble in Paradise

2 Corinthians 11:3 But I am afraid lest somehow, as the serpent deceived Eve by his craftiness, your minds may be led astray from the sincerity and the purity of devotion to Christ.

1 Thessalonians 3:5 Because of this, I also, when I could endure it no longer, sent in order to know your faith, lest somehow the tempter tempted you and our labor should be in vain.

Revelation 12:9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil."

Genesis 3:22 And Yahweh God said, "Look—the man has become as one of us, to know good and evil. What if he stretches out his hand and takes also from the tree of life and eats, and lives forever?"

Genesis 2:8–10 And Yahweh God planted a garden in Eden in the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed. [9] And Yahweh God caused to grow from the ground every tree that was pleasing to the sight and good for food. And the tree of life was in the midst of the garden, along with the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

[10] Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches.

Genesis 2:15–16 And Yahweh God took the man and set him in the garden of Eden to cultivate it and to keep it. [16] And Yahweh God commanded the man, saying, "From every tree of the garden you may freely eat,

Genesis 3:1–3 Now the serpent was more crafty than any other wild animal which Yahweh God had made. He said to the woman, “Did God indeed say, ‘You shall not eat from any tree in the garden’?” 2 The woman said to the serpent, “From the fruit of the trees of the garden we may eat, 3 but from the fruit of the tree that is in the midst of the garden, God said, ‘You shall not eat from it, nor shall you touch it, lest you die’.”

Genesis 3:8 Then they heard the sound of Yahweh God walking in the garden at the windy time of day. And the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of Yahweh God among the trees of the garden.

Genesis 3:10 And he replied, “I heard the sound of you in the garden, and I was afraid because I am naked, so I hid myself.”

Genesis 3:23–24 And Yahweh God sent him out from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from which he was taken. 24 So he drove the man out, and placed cherubim east of the garden of Eden, and a flaming, turning sword to guard the way to the tree of life.

Genesis 2:6 but a stream would rise from the earth and water the whole face of the ground—

Genesis 2:10–14 Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches. [11] The name of the first is the Pishon. It went around all the land of Havilah, where there is gold. [12] (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.) [13] And the name of the second is Gihon. It went around all the land of Cush. [14] And the name of the third is Tigris. It flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty, and you said, ‘I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god, and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty, and you said, ‘I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god, and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Ezekiel 28:13–14 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God's holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

Ezekiel 28:1–8 And the word of Yahweh came to me, saying, 2 "Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Because your heart was haughty, and you said, 'I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!'

But you are a human, not a god, and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

3 Look, are you wiser than Daniel, so that no secret is hidden from you?

4 By your wisdom and by your understanding you have gained for yourself wealth, and you have amassed gold and silver in your treasuries.

5 By the abundance of your wisdom in your trading you have increased your wealth and your heart was proud in your wealth." ' "

6 Therefore thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Because of your regarding your mind like the mind of a god, 7 therefore look! I am bringing strangers over you, the most ruthless of the peoples, and they will draw their swords against the beauty of your wisdom, and they will defile your splendor.

8 They will thrust you down to the pit, and you will die a violent death in the heart of the seas.

Ezekiel 28:2 "Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Because your heart was haughty, and you said, 'I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!'

But you are a human, not a god, and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Ezekiel 28:9 Will you indeed still say "I am a god!"

before the face of your killers?

And in fact you are a human and not a god in the hand of those who pierce you.

Genesis 14:20 And blessed be God Most High who delivered your enemies into your hand."

And he gave to him a tenth of everything.

Genesis 14:22 And Abram said to the king of Sodom, "I have raised my hand to Yahweh, God Most High, Maker of heaven and earth,

Ezekiel 28:2–6 "Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Because your heart was haughty, and you said, 'I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!'

But you are a human, not a god, and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

3 Look, are you wiser than Daniel, so that no secret is hidden from you?

4 By your wisdom and by your understanding you have gained for yourself wealth, and you have amassed gold and silver in your treasuries.

5 By the abundance of your wisdom in your trading you have increased your wealth and your heart was proud in your wealth." ' "

6 Therefore thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Because of your regarding your mind like the mind of a god,

Ezekiel 28:9 Will you indeed still say "I am a god!"

before the face of your killers?

And in fact you are a human and not a god in the hand of those who pierce you.

Ezekiel 28:10 You will die the death of the uncircumcised by the hand of strangers, for I myself have spoken!" declares the Lord Yahweh.

Ezekiel 32:21 The chiefs of the warriors will speak to him from the middle of Sheol; with his helpers they have gone down; the uncircumcised lie still, those slain by the sword.

Ezekiel 32:24–30 Elam is there and all of its hordes, all around its grave, all of them dead who fell by the sword, those who went down uncircumcised to the depths of the underworld, those who spread their terror to the land of the living, and now they bear their disgrace with the people going down to the grave. [25] In the midst of the slain they made a bed for her with all of her hordes all around its graves, all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword, for their terror was spread in the land of the living, and they now bear their disgrace with the people going down to the grave; in the midst of the slain it was placed.

[26] Meshech and Tubal are there and all of its hordes, all around him its graves, all of them uncircumcised and killed by the sword, for they gave their terror in the land of the living. [27] And they do not lie with warriors fallen from long ago, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, and they placed their sword under their heads, and their shields were on their bones, for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living. [28] And you too in the midst of uncircumcised people will be broken, and you will lie with those slain by the sword.

[29] There is Edom, its kings and all of its leaders who are laid along with their might with those killed by the sword; they will lie with the uncircumcised and with the people going down to the grave.

[30] There are also the princes of the north, all of them, all of the Sidonians who have gone down, being ashamed to lie with the slain because of their terror that they caused from their might, and they lie uncircumcised with those killed by the sword, and they bear their disgrace along with the people going down to the grave.

Ezekiel 32:32 “For he spread my terror in the land of the living, and so he will be laid down in the midst of the uncircumcised with those killed by the sword: Pharaoh and all of his hordes,”declares the Lord Yahweh.

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 28:12 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 28:12–13 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 28:12b–13 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

[13] You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Exodus 28:17–20 And you will fill it with stone mounting, four rows of stone, a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald is the first row; [18] and the second row is a malachite, a sapphire, and a moonstone; [19] and the third row is a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst; [20] and the fourth row is a turquoise and an onyx and a jasper. Their settings will be woven with gold.

Exodus 39:10–13 And they filled it with four rows of stone; a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald was the first row; [11] and the second row was a malachite, a sapphire, and a moonstone; [12] and the third row was a jacinth, an agate, and an amethyst; [13] and the fourth row was a turquoise, an onyx, and a jasper. They were set with gold filigree settings in their mountings.

Ezekiel 28:14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God's holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

Ezekiel 28:15 You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created, until wickedness was found in you.

Ezekiel 28:16 In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

Ezekiel 28:17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings; I have exposed you for viewing.

Ezekiel 28:14–17 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God's holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

15 You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created, until wickedness was found in you.

16 In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings; I have exposed you for viewing.

Ezekiel 28:17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings; I have exposed you for viewing.

Ezekiel 28:12b “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your
mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 1:4–7 And I looked, and look! A storm wind was coming from the north, a great cloud, and fire flashing back and forth, and brightness around and within it, and from its midst it was like the outward appearance of amber stone from the midst of the fire. 5 And from its midst was the likeness of four living creatures, and this was their appearance: a human form, 6 and each had four faces, and each of them had four wings. 7 And their legs were straight legs, and the sole of their feet was like the sole of the foot of a calf, and they were sparkling like the outward appearance of polished bronze.

Ezekiel 1:27–28 And I saw something like the outward appearance of amber, something like the appearance of fire, with a covering around it, from the likeness of his loins and upward. And from the likeness of his loins and downward I saw something like the appearance of fire, and it was radiant all around. [28] Like the appearance of a bow that is in the cloud on a rainy day, such was the radiance around it; thus was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of Yahweh. And I saw, and I fell on my face, and I heard a voice speaking.

Ezekiel 10:19–20 And the cherubim lifted up their wings, and they rose from the earth before my eyes. At their going out, the wheels were beside them. And he stood at the doorway of the eastern gate of the temple of Yahweh, and the glory of the God of Israel was over them.

[20] This was the living creature that I saw under the God of Israel at the Kebar River, and I knew that they were cherubim.

Daniel 10:6 Now his body was like turquoise, and his face was like the appearance of lightning, and his eyes were like torches of fire, and his arms and his legs were like the gleam of polished bronze, and the sound of his words was like the sound of a multitude.

Revelation 1:15 and his feet were like fine bronze when it has been fired in a furnace, and his voice was like the sound of many waters,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Isaiah 14:12–13 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

[13] And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Jonah 2:6 I went down to the foundations of the mountains; the Underworld —its bars were around me forever.

But you brought up my life from the pit, Yahweh my God.

Ezekiel 32:21 The chiefs of the warriors will speak to him from the middle of Sheol; with his helpers they have gone down; the uncircumcised lie still, those slain by the sword.

Ezekiel 32:24–30 Elam is there and all of its hordes, all around its grave, all of them dead who fell by the sword, those who went down uncircumcised to the depths of the underworld, those who spread their terror to the land of the living, and now they bear their disgrace with the people going down to the grave. 25 In the midst of the slain they made a bed for her with all of her hordes all around its graves, all of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword, for their terror was spread in the land of the living, and they now bear their disgrace with the people going down to the grave; in the midst of the slain it was placed.

26 Meshech and Tubal are there and all of its hordes, all around him its graves, all of them uncircumcised and killed by the sword, for they gave their terror in the land of the living. 27 And they do not lie with warriors fallen from long ago, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, and they placed their sword under their heads, and their shields were on their bones, for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living. 28 And you too in the midst of uncircumcised people will be broken, and you will lie with those slain by the sword.

29 There is Edom, its kings and all of its leaders who are laid along with their might with those killed by the sword; they will lie with the uncircumcised and with the people going down to the grave.

30 There are also the princes of the north, all of them, all of the Sidonians who have gone down, being ashamed to lie with the slain because of their terror that they caused from their might, and they lie uncircumcised with those killed by the sword, and they bear their disgrace along with the people going down to the grave.

Ezekiel 32:32 “For he spread my terror in the land of the living, and so he will be laid down in the midst of the uncircumcised with those killed by the sword: Pharaoh and all of his hordes,”declares the Lord Yahweh.

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 28:11–19 And the word of Yahweh came to me, saying, [12] “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

[13] You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone, turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

[14] You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

[15] You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created, until wickedness was found in you.

[16] In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

[17] Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings; I have exposed you for viewing.

[18] From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading, I profaned your sanctuaries and I brought fire from your midst; it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.

[19] All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;

you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Chapter 11: Like the Most High?

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty, and you said, ‘I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god, and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Isaiah 14:4 that you will take this taunt against the king of Babylon, and you will say:

“How the oppressor has ceased!

his insolence has ceased.

Isaiah 14:4 that you will take this taunt against the king of Babylon, and you will say:

“How the oppressor has ceased!

his insolence has ceased.

Isaiah 14:5–6 Yahweh has broken the staff of the wicked, the scepter of rulers, 6 that struck the peoples in wrath, a blow without ceasing, that ruled the nations in anger with unrestrained persecution.

Isaiah 14:7–8 All of the earth rests and is quiet; they break forth into singing.

8 Even the cypresses rejoice over you, the cedars of Lebanon:

‘Since you were laid down,

no wood cutter comes up against us.’

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Isaiah 14:10 All of them will respond and say to you, ‘You yourself also were made weak like us!

You have become the same as us!’

Isaiah 14:11 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed, and your covering is worms.

Isaiah 14:9–11 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

10 All of them will respond and say to you, ‘You yourself also were made weak like us!

You have become the same as us!’

11 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed, and your covering is worms.

Isaiah 14:11 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed, and your covering is worms.

Isaiah 14:12–15 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

14 I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’

15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Isaiah 14:12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!
You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;
and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Isaiah 14:14 I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Isaiah 14:12–15 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!
You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;
and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;
14 I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’
15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Isaiah 14:12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!
You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Isaiah 14:12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!
You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty, and you said, ‘I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god,

and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Isaiah 14:12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Isaiah 14:12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Genesis 3:5 For God knows that on the day you both eat from it, then your eyes will be opened and you both shall be like gods, knowing good and evil.”

Genesis 3:22 And Yahweh God said, “Look—the man has become as one of us, to know good and evil. What if he stretches out his hand and takes also from the tree of life and eats, and lives forever?”

Psalm 82:1 God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty, and you said, ‘I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god,

and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;

and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Genesis 2:8–10 And Yahweh God planted a garden in Eden in the east, and there he put the man whom he had formed. 9 And Yahweh God caused to grow from the ground every tree that was pleasing to the sight and good for food. And the tree of life was in the midst of the garden, along with the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.

10 Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches.

Genesis 2:15–16 And Yahweh God took the man and set him in the garden of Eden to cultivate it and to keep it. 16 And Yahweh God commanded the man, saying, “From every tree of the garden you may freely eat,

Genesis 3:1–3 Now the serpent was more crafty than any other wild animal which Yahweh God had made. He said to the woman, “Did God indeed say, ‘You shall not eat from any tree in the garden’?” 2 The woman said to the serpent, “From the fruit of the trees of the garden we may eat, 3 but from the fruit of the tree that is in the midst of the garden, God said, ‘You shall not eat from it, nor shall you touch it, lest you die’.”

Genesis 3:8 Then they heard the sound of Yahweh God walking in the garden at the windy time of day. And the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of Yahweh God among the trees of the garden.

Genesis 3:10 And he replied, “I heard the sound of you in the garden, and I was afraid because I am naked, so I hid myself.”

Genesis 3:23–24 And Yahweh God sent him out from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from which he was taken. 24 So he drove the man out, and placed cherubim east of the garden of Eden, and a flaming, turning sword to guard the way to the tree of life.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Genesis 2:6 but a stream would rise from the earth and water the whole face of the ground—

Genesis 2:10–14 Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches. [11] The name of the first is the Pishon. It went around all the land of Havilah, where there is gold. [12] (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.) [13] And the name of the second is Gihon. It went around all the land of Cush. [14] And the name of the third is Tigris. It flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

Ezekiel 47:1–12 And he brought me back to the doorway of the temple and, look! There was water coming out from under the threshold of the temple eastward, because the face of the temple was eastwards; and the water was coming down from under the south side of the temple, from south of the altar. [2] And he brought me out by the way of the north gate and he led me around by the way leading to the outside of the outer gate by way of the gate facing east, and look, there was water trickling from the south side. [3] As the man went eastward a measuring line was in his hand, and he measured a thousand cubits. And he led me through on into the water; it was ankle deep. [4] And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was knee deep. And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was waist deep. [5] And he measured a thousand cubits, and it became a stream that I was not able to cross, because the water rose, waters a person could swim in, and became a stream that could not be crossed. [6] And he asked me, “Son of man, did you see this?” And he made me go, and he brought me back along the bank of the stream.

[7] When I returned, then look! On the bank of the river were many trees on both sides. [8] And he said to me, “These waters are going out to the eastern region, and they go down to the Jordan Valley, and they come to the sea and flow into the sea where they issue out, and the waters in the sea will be healed. [9] And then every living creature with which it teems, to every place the waters come it will live; and very many fish will live because these waters came there, and so the water will be healed and everything will be alive everywhere that the stream will come. [10] And then fishers from En Gedi and on up to En Eglaim will stand beside it, a sea-girt drying yard for nets; their fish for the dragnets will be of every kind, like the fish of the great sea, and very many. [11] But its marshes and its swamps will not be cured, for they were given for salt. [12] And along the stream will go up on its banks from both sides every tree producing food; its leaf will not wither and it will not cease producing its fruit. Every month it will bear early fruit, for its waters are going out from the sanctuary, and its fruit will be as food, and its leaf for healing."

Zechariah 14:8 And then on that day, living waters will flow out from Jerusalem, half of them to the eastern sea, and the other half to the western sea; it will happen both in the summer and in the winter.

Ezekiel 28:2 "Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Because your heart was haughty, and you said, 'I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!'

But you are a human, not a god,

and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Psalm 48:1–2 Yahweh is great and very worthy of praise in the city of our God, in his holy mountain.

[2] Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Ezekiel 40:2 in visions from God. He brought me to the land of Israel and put me on a very high mountain, and on it was something like a structure of a city to the south.

Isaiah 14:13–14 And you yourself said in your heart, 'I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;

and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

[14] I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.'

Exodus 24:15 And Moses went up to the mountain, and the cloud covered the mountain.

Psalm 68:15–17 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

[16] Why do you look with hostility, O many-peaked mountains?

This mountain God desires for his dwelling.

Yes, Yahweh will abide in it forever.

[17] The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, with thousands doubled.

The Lord is among them at Sinai, distinctive in victory.

Deuteronomy 33:1–2 Now this is the blessing with which Moses, the man of God, blessed the Israelites before his death.

[2] Then he said, "Yahweh came from Sinai,

and he dawned upon them from Seir;

he shone forth from Mount Paran,

and he came with myriads of holy ones,

at his right hand a fiery law for them.

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, 'I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;

and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Isaiah 27:13 And this shall happen: on that day, a great trumpet will be blown, and those who were lost in the land of Assyria will come, and those who were scattered in the land of Egypt, and they will bow down to Yahweh on the holy mountain at Jerusalem.

Ezekiel 47:1–12 And he brought me back to the doorway of the temple and, look! There was water coming out from under the threshold of the temple eastward, because the face of the temple was eastwards; and the water was coming down from under the south side of the temple, from south of the altar. [2] And he brought me out by the way of the north gate and he led me around by the way leading to the outside of the outer gate by way of the gate facing east, and look, there was water trickling from the south side. 3 As the man went eastward a measuring line was in his hand, and he measured a thousand cubits. And he led me through on into the water; it was ankle deep. 4 And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was knee deep. And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was waist deep. 5 And he measured a thousand cubits, and it became a stream that I was not able to cross, because the water rose, waters a person could swim in, and became a stream that could not be crossed. 6 And he asked me, “Son of man, did you see this?” And he made me go, and he brought me back along the bank of the stream.

7 When I returned, then look! On the bank of the river were many trees on both sides. 8 And he said to me, “These waters are going out to the eastern region, and they go down to the Jordan Valley, and they come to the sea and flow into the sea where they issue out, and the waters in the sea will be healed. 9 And then every living creature with which it teems, to every place the waters come it will live; and very many fish will live because these waters came there, and so the water will be healed and everything will be alive everywhere that the stream will come. 10 And then fishers from En Gedi and on up to En Eglaim will stand beside it, a sea-girt drying yard for nets; their fish for the dragnets will be of every kind, like the fish of the great sea, and very many. 11 But its marshes and its swamps will not be cured, for they were given for salt. 12 And along the stream will go up on its banks from both sides every tree producing food; its leaf will not wither and it will not cease producing its fruit. Every month it will bear early fruit, for its waters are going out from the sanctuary, and its fruit will be as food, and its leaf for healing.”

Psalm 82:1 God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 89:7 a God feared greatly in the council of the holy ones, and awesome above all surrounding him?

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;

and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty,

and you said, ‘I am a god; I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god,

and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

1 Chronicles 4:12 And Eshton fathered Beth-Rapha, Paseah, and Tehinnah, the father of the city of Nahash. These are the men of Recah.

Daniel 10:6 Now his body was like turquoise, and his face was like the appearance of lightning, and his eyes were like torches of fire, and his arms and his legs were like the gleam of polished bronze, and the sound of his words was like the sound of a multitude.

Genesis 3:17–19 And to Adam he said, “Because you listened to the voice of your wife and you ate from the tree from which I forbade you to eat, the ground shall be cursed on your account.

In pain you shall eat from it all the days of your life.

18 And thorns and thistles shall sprout for you, and you shall eat the plants of the field.

19 By the sweat of your brow you shall eat bread, until your return to the ground.

For from it you were taken;

for you are dust,

and to dust you shall return.”

Genesis 3:15 And I will put hostility between you and between the woman, and between your offspring and between her offspring; he will strike you on the head, and you will strike him on the heel.”

Genesis 3:16 To the woman he said, “I will greatly increase your pain in childbearing;
in pain you shall bear children.
And to your husband shall be your desire.
And he shall rule over you.”

Genesis 3:15 And I will put hostility between you and between the woman, and between your offspring and between her offspring; he will strike you on the head, and you will strike him on the heel.”

Genesis 3:15 And I will put hostility between you and between the woman, and between your offspring and between her offspring; he will strike
you on the head, and you will strike him on the heel.”

Genesis 3:15 And I will put hostility between you and between the woman, and between your offspring and between her offspring; he will strike
you on the head, and you will strike him on the heel.”

Genesis 3:24 So he drove the man out, and placed cherubim east of the garden of Eden, and a flaming, turning sword to guard the way to the tree of life.

1 Timothy 2:15 But she will be saved through the bearing of children, if she continues in faith and love and holiness with self-control.

Genesis 3:1–2 Now the serpent was more crafty than any other wild animal which Yahweh God had made. He said to the woman, “Did God indeed say, ‘You shall not eat from any tree in the garden’?” 2 The woman said to the serpent, “From the fruit of the trees of the garden we may eat, Genesis 3:4 But the serpent said to the woman, “You shall not surely die.

Genesis 3:13–14 Then Yahweh God said to the woman, “What is this you have done?” And the woman said, “The serpent deceived me, and I ate.” 14 Then Yahweh God said to the serpent, “Because you have done this,
you will be cursed

more than any domesticated animal
and more than any wild animal.
On your belly you shall go

and dust you shall eat

all the days of your life.

Ezekiel 28:12 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

Isaiah 14:12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 28:8 They will thrust you down to the pit, and you will die a violent death in the heart of the seas.

Ezekiel 28:17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings;

I have exposed you for viewing.

Isaiah 14:11–12 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed,

and your covering is worms.

12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Genesis 3:14 Then Yahweh God said to the serpent, “Because you have done this,

you will be cursed

more than any domesticated animal
and more than any wild animal.
On your belly you shall go

and dust you shall eat

all the days of your life.

Ezekiel 28:17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings;

I have exposed you for viewing.

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Isaiah 14:11–12 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed,

and your covering is worms.

12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Ezekiel 28:17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings;

I have exposed you for viewing.

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 28:8 They will thrust you down to the pit, and you will die a violent death in the heart of the seas.

Ezekiel 28:17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.
I threw you on the ground before kings;
I have exposed you for viewing.

Isaiah 14:11–12 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed,
and your covering is worms.

12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!
You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Ezekiel 28:17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.
I threw you on the ground before kings;
I have exposed you for viewing.

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;
it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.
It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Isaiah 14:11–12 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your
harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed,
and your covering is worms.

12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!
You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Chapter 12: Divine Transgression

John 8:44 You are of your father the devil, and you want to do the desires of your father! That one was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand firm in the truth, because truth is not in him. Whenever he speaks the lie, he speaks from his own nature, because he is a liar and the father of lies.

Matthew 23:33 Serpents! Offspring of vipers! How will you escape from the condemnation to hell?

1 John 3:8 The one who practices sin is of the devil, because the devil has been sinning from the beginning. For this reason the Son of God was revealed: in order to destroy the works of the devil.

1 John 3:9 Everyone who is fathered by God does not practice sin, because his seed resides in him, and he is not able to sin, because he has been fathered by God.

1 John 3:10 By this the children of God and the children of the devil are evident: everyone who does not practice righteousness is not of God, namely, the one who does not love his brother.

1 John 3:11 For this is the message that you have heard from the beginning: that we should love one another,

1 John 3:12 not as Cain, who was of the evil one and violently murdered his brother. And for what reason did he violently murder him? Because his deeds were evil and the deeds of his brother were righteous.

1 John 3:8–12 The one who practices sin is of the devil, because the devil has been sinning from the beginning. For this reason the Son of God was revealed: in order to destroy the works of the devil. 9 Everyone who is fathered by God does not practice sin, because his seed resides in him, and he is not able to sin, because he has been fathered by God. 10 By this the children of God and the children of the devil are evident: everyone who does not practice righteousness is not of God, namely, the one who does not love his brother.

11 For this is the message that you have heard from the beginning: that we should love one another, 12 not as Cain, who was of the evil one and violently murdered his brother. And for what reason did he violently murder him? Because his deeds were evil and the deeds of his brother were righteous.

1 Peter 1:23 because you have been born again, not from perishable seed but imperishable, through the living and enduring word of God.

Genesis 6:5 And Yahweh saw that the evil of humankind was great upon the earth, and every inclination of the thoughts of his heart was always only evil.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them.

Genesis 6:2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose.

Genesis 6:3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years."

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:5 And Yahweh saw that the evil of humankind was great upon the earth, and every inclination of the thoughts of his heart was always only evil.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 4:25–26 Then Adam knew his wife again, and she gave birth to a son. And she called his name Seth, for she said “God has appointed to me another child in the place of Abel, because Cain killed him.” [26] And as for Seth, he also fathered a son, and he called his name Enosh. At that time he began to call on the name of Yahweh.

Genesis 5:3–4 And when Adam had lived one hundred and thirty years, he fathered a child in his likeness, according to his image. And he called his name Seth. [4] And the days of Adam after he fathered Seth were eight hundred years. And he fathered sons and daughters.

Genesis 4:26 And as for Seth, he also fathered a son, and he called his name Enosh. At that time he began to call on the name of Yahweh.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 4:26 And as for Seth, he also fathered a son, and he called his name Enosh. At that time he began to call on the name of Yahweh.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them.

Genesis 6:2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Exodus 4:23 And I said to you, "Release my son and let him serve me," but you refused to release him. Look, I am about to kill your son, your firstborn.' "

Psalm 2:7 I will tell the decree; Yahweh said to me:

"You are my son;

today I have begotten you.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Psalm 82:1b God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Peter 2:1 But there were also false prophets among the people, as there will be false teachers among you also, who will bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, thus bringing on themselves swift destruction.

2 Peter 2:3 And in greediness they will exploit you with false words, whose condemnation from long ago is not idle, and their destruction is not asleep.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

2 Peter 2:5 and did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, a proclaimer of righteousness, and seven others when he brought a flood on the world of the ungodly,

2 Peter 2:6 and condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to destruction, reducing them to ashes, having appointed them as an example for those who are going to be ungodly,

2 Peter 2:7 and rescued righteous Lot, worn down by the way of life of lawless persons in licentiousness

2 Peter 2:8 (for that righteous man, as he lived among them day after day, was tormenting his righteous soul by the lawless deeds he was seeing and hearing),

2 Peter 2:9 then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials and to reserve the unrighteous to be punished at the day of judgment,

2 Peter 2:10 and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings,

2 Peter 2:1–10 But there were also false prophets among the people, as there will be false teachers among you also, who will bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, thus bringing on themselves swift destruction. [2] And many will follow their licentious ways, because of whom the way of truth will be reviled. [3] And in greediness they will exploit you with false words, whose condemnation from long ago is not idle, and their destruction is not asleep.

[4] For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment, [5] and did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, a proclaimer of righteousness, and seven others when he brought a flood on the world of the ungodly, [6] and condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to destruction, reducing them to ashes, having appointed them as an example for those who are going to be ungodly, [7] and rescued righteous Lot, worn down by the way of life of lawless persons in licentiousness [8] (for that righteous man, as he lived among them day after day, was tormenting his righteous soul by the lawless deeds he was seeing and hearing), [9] then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials and to reserve the unrighteous to be punished at the day of judgment, [10] and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings,

Jude 5 Now I want to remind you, although you know everything once and for all, that Jesus, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, the second time destroyed those who did not believe.

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

Jude 7 as Sodom and Gomorrah and the towns around them indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural desire in the same way as these, are exhibited as an example by undergoing the punishment of eternal fire.

Jude 5–7 Now I want to remind you, although you know everything once and for all, that Jesus, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, the second time destroyed those who did not believe. 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day, 7 as Sodom and Gomorrah and the towns around them indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural desire in the same way as these, are exhibited as an example by undergoing the punishment of eternal fire.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Zephaniah 1:1–7 The word of Yahweh that came to Zephaniah the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah, the son of Amariah, the son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah son of Amon, king of Judah.

2 “I will surely destroy everything from the face of the earth”—a declaration of Yahweh.

3 “I will destroy humanity and beast; I will destroy the birds of the sky and the fish of the sea, and the stumbling blocks with the wicked.
And I will cut off humankind from the face of the earth”—a declaration of Yahweh.

4 “And I will stretch out my hand against Judah and against all the inhabitants of Jerusalem.
And I will cut off from this place
the remnant of Baal, and the name of idolatrous priests with the priests, 5 and those who bow down on the rooftops to the host of heaven, and those who bow down, swearing to Yahweh but also swearing by Milkom, 6 and those who turned back from following Yahweh, and who did not seek Yahweh, and did not inquire of him.”

7 Be silent before the Lord Yahweh, for the day of Yahweh draws near, for Yahweh has provided a sacrifice and has consecrated his guests.

Revelation 16:14 For they are the spirits of demons performing signs that go out to the kings of the whole inhabited world, to gather them for the battle of the great day of God the All-Powerful.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Chapter 13: The Bad Seed

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days

shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Daniel 1:1–7 In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon came to Jerusalem and besieged it. [2] And the Lord gave Jehoiakim the king of Judah into his hand and some of of the utensils of the temple of God, and he brought them to the land of Shinar to the temple of his gods, and he brought the utensils to the treasury of his gods.

[3] And the king ordered Ashpenaz, the commander of his court officials, to bring some of the Israelites from the royal family and from the lords, [4] youths who have no physical defect, and who are handsome, and who are prudent in all wisdom and endowed with knowledge, and who understand insight, and who have the ability in them to serve in the palace of the king. And the king ordered him to teach them the literature and the language of the Chaldeans. [5] And the king assigned to them his daily portion from the fine food of the king, and from the wine that he drank, and instructed that they were to be educated for three years. And at the end of their training, they were to be stationed before the king. [6] Now there was among them from the Judeans, Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. [7] And the commander of the court officials gave them names, and he called Daniel, Belteshazzar; and Hananiah, Shadrach; and Mishael, Meshach; and Azariah, Abednego.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:5 And Yahweh saw that the evil of humankind was great upon the earth, and every inclination of the thoughts of his heart was always only evil.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Peter 2:1–4 But there were also false prophets among the people, as there will be false teachers among you also, who will bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, thus bringing on themselves swift destruction. [2] And many will follow their licentious ways, because of whom the way of truth will be reviled. [3] And in greediness they will exploit you with false words, whose condemnation from long ago is not idle, and their destruction is not asleep.

[4] For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

2 Peter 2:2 And many will follow their licentious ways, because of whom the way of truth will be reviled.

2 Peter 2:10 and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings,

Jude 8 Despite that, in the same way also these men, because of their dreams, defile the flesh and reject authority and blaspheme majestic beings.

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Peter 2:9–11 then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials and to reserve the unrighteous to be punished at the day of judgment, [10] and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings, [11] whereas angels, who are greater in strength and power, do not bring against them a demeaning judgment.

Jude 8–10 Despite that, in the same way also these men, because of their dreams, defile the flesh and reject authority and blaspheme majestic beings. [9] But Michael the archangel, when he argued with the devil, disputing concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, "The Lord rebuke you!" [10] But these persons blaspheme all that they do not understand, and all that they understand by instinct like the irrational animals, by these things they are being destroyed.

Genesis 6:9 These are the generations of Noah. Noah was a righteous man, without defect in his generations. Noah walked with God.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Exodus 4:23 And I said to you, "Release my son and let him serve me," but you refused to release him. Look, I am about to kill your son, your firstborn.' "

Psalm 2:7 I will tell the decree; Yahweh said to me:

"You are my son;

today I have begotten you.

Luke 3:36 the son of Cainan, the son of Arphaxad, the son of Shem, the son of Noah, the son of Lamech, Luke 3:38 the son of Enosh, the son of Seth, the son of Adam, the son of God.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Chapter 14: Divine Allotment

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 10:6–12 And the sons of Ham: Cush, Egypt, Put, and Canaan. [7] And the sons of Cush: Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. The sons of Raamah: Sheba and Dedan. [8] And Cush fathered Nimrod. He was the first on earth to be a mighty warrior. [9] He was a mighty hunter before Yahweh. Therefore it was said, “Like Nimrod a mighty hunter before Yahweh.” [10] Now, the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, Erech, Akkad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar. [11] From that land he went out to Assyria, and he built Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah, [12] Resen between Nineveh and Calah; that is the great city.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words. [2] And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. [3] And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. [4] And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth."

5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. 6 And Yahweh said, "Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. 7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other's language." 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Genesis 11:1 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words.

Genesis 11:2 And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there.

Genesis 11:3 And they said to each other, "Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly." And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar.

Genesis 11:4 And they said, "Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth."

Genesis 11:5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building.

Genesis 11:6 And Yahweh said, "Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them.

Genesis 11:7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other's language."

Genesis 11:8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city.

Genesis 11:9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Genesis 11:7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other's language."

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Genesis 11:8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Romans 1:18–25 For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all impiety and unrighteousness of people, who suppress the truth in unrighteousness, [19] because what can be known about God is evident among them, for God made it clear to them. [20] For from the creation of the world, his invisible attributes, both his eternal power and deity, are discerned clearly, being understood in the things created, so that they are without excuse. [21] For although they knew God, they did not honor him as God or give thanks, but they became futile in their reasoning, and their senseless hearts were darkened. [22] Claiming to be wise, they became fools, [23] and exchanged the glory of the immortal God with the likeness of an image of mortal human beings and birds and quadrupeds and reptiles.

[24] Therefore God gave them over in the desires of their hearts to immorality, that their bodies would be dishonored among themselves, [25] who exchanged the truth of God with a lie, and worshiped and served the creation rather than the Creator, who is blessed for eternity. Amen.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 4:19 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven.

Deuteronomy 4:20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> 9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 9:1 And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Exodus 19:6 but you, you will belong to me as a kingdom of priests and a holy nation.’ These are the words that you will speak to the Israelites.”

Deuteronomy 10:17 For Yahweh your God, he is God of the gods and Lord of the lords, the great and mighty God, the awesome one who is not partial, and he does not take bribes.

Chapter 15: Cosmic Geography

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Samuel 26:17 Then Saul recognized David's voice and said, "Is this your voice, my son David?" And David said, "It is my voice, my lord the king."

1 Samuel 26:18 Then he said, "Why is my lord pursuing after his servant? For what have I done? And what evil is in my hand?

1 Samuel 26:19 And so then, please let my lord the king listen to the words of his servant: If Yahweh has incited you against me, may he delight in an offering; but if it is mortals, may they be accursed before Yahweh, for they have driven me away today from sharing in the inheritance of Yahweh, saying, 'Go, serve other gods!'

1 Samuel 26:17–19 Then Saul recognized David's voice and said, "Is this your voice, my son David?" And David said, "It is my voice, my lord the king." 18 Then he said, "Why is my lord pursuing after his servant? For what have I done? And what evil is in my hand? 19 And so then, please let my lord the king listen to the words of his servant: If Yahweh has incited you against me, may he delight in an offering; but if it is mortals, may they be accursed before Yahweh, for they have driven me away today from sharing in the inheritance of Yahweh, saying, 'Go, serve other gods!'

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Samuel 7:2 From the day the ark stayed in Kiriath Jearim, days multiplied and became twenty years while all the house of Israel mourned after Yahweh.

2 Kings 5:15 When he returned to the man of God, he and all of his army, he came and stood before him and said, “Please now, I know that there is no God in all of the world except in Israel. So then, please take a gift from your servant.”

2 Kings 5:16 And he said, “As Yahweh lives, before whom I stand, I surely will not take it.” Still he urged him to take it, but he refused.

2 Kings 5:17 Then Naaman said, “If not, then please let a load of soil on a pair of mules be given to your servants, for your servant will never again bring a burnt offering and sacrifice to other gods, but only to Yahweh.

2 Kings 5:18 As far as this matter, may Yahweh pardon your servant when my master goes into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and he is leaning himself on my arm, that I also bow down in the house of Rimmon: when I bow down in the house of Rimmon, may Yahweh please pardon your servant in this matter.”

2 Kings 5:19 He said to him, “Go in peace,” so he went from him a short distance.

2 Kings 5:15–19 When he returned to the man of God, he and all of his army, he came and stood before him and said, “Please now, I know that there is no God in all of the world except in Israel. So then, please take a gift from your servant.” 16 And he said, “As Yahweh lives, before whom I stand, I surely will not take it.” Still he urged him to take it, but he refused. 17 Then Naaman said, “If not, then please let a load of soil on a pair of mules be given to your servants, for your servant will never again bring a burnt offering and sacrifice to other gods, but only to Yahweh. 18 As far as this matter, may Yahweh pardon your servant when my master goes into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and he is leaning himself on my arm, that I also bow down in the house of Rimmon: when I bow down in the house of Rimmon, may Yahweh please pardon your servant in this matter.” 19 He said to him, “Go in peace,” so he went from him a short distance.

2 Kings 5:15 When he returned to the man of God, he and all of his army, he came and stood before him and said, “Please now, I know that there is no God in all of the world except in Israel. So then, please take a gift from your servant.”

Daniel 10:6 Now his body was like turquoise, and his face was like the appearance of lightning, and his eyes were like torches of fire, and his arms and his legs were like the gleam of polished bronze, and the sound of his words was like the sound of a multitude.

Daniel 10:12 And he said to me, “You must not fear, Daniel, for from the first day that you set your heart to understand and to humble yourself before your God, your words were heard, and I myself have come because of your words.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 10:14 And I have come to instruct you about what will happen to your people in the future, for there is a further vision here for the future.

Daniel 10:12–14 And he said to me, “You must not fear, Daniel, for from the first day that you set your heart to understand and to humble yourself before your God, your words were heard, and I myself have come because of your words. 13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians. 14 And I have come to instruct you about what will happen to your people in the future, for there is a further vision here for the future.

Daniel 10:20 Then he asked, “Do you know why I have come to you? And now I return to fight against the prince of Persia and I myself am going, and look, the prince of Javan will come.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 10:20 Then he asked, “Do you know why I have come to you? And now I return to fight against the prince of Persia and I myself am going, and look, the prince of Javan will come.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Acts 17:26–27 And he made from one man every nation of humanity to live on all the face of the earth, determining their fixed times and the fixed boundaries of their habitation, 27 to search for God, if perhaps indeed they might feel around for him and find him. And indeed he is not far away from each one of us,

Acts 17:26 And he made from one man every nation of humanity to live on all the face of the earth, determining their fixed times and the fixed boundaries of their habitation,

Acts 17:27 to search for God, if perhaps indeed they might feel around for him and find him. And indeed he is not far away from each one of us,

Acts 17:26–27 And he made from one man every nation of humanity to live on all the face of the earth, determining their fixed times and the fixed boundaries of their habitation, [27] to search for God, if perhaps indeed they might feel around for him and find him. And indeed he is not far away from each one of us,

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words. [2] And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. [3] And they said to each other, "Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly." And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. [4] And they said, "Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth."

[5] Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. [6] And Yahweh said, "Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. [7] Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Acts 17:27 to search for God, if perhaps indeed they might feel around for him and find him. And indeed he is not far away from each one of us,

Genesis 12:3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Acts 17:30–31 Therefore although God has overlooked the times of ignorance, he now commands all people everywhere to repent, [31] because he has set a day on which he is going to judge the world in righteousness by the man who he has appointed, having provided proof to everyone by raising him from the dead.”

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind,

he fixed the boundaries of the peoples,

according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

1 Corinthians 2:6 Now we do speak wisdom among the mature, but wisdom not of this age or of the rulers of this age, who are perishing,

1 Corinthians 2:8 which none of the rulers of this age knew. For if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

Ephesians 3:10 in order that the many-sided wisdom of God might be made known now to the rulers and the authorities in the heavenly places through the church,

Ephesians 2:2 in which you formerly walked according to the course of this world, according to the ruler of the authority of the air, the spirit now working in the sons of disobedience,

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind,

he fixed the boundaries of the peoples,

according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Ephesians 6:12 because our struggle is not against blood and flesh, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the world rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly places.

Ephesians 1:20–21 which he has worked in Christ, raising him from the dead and seating him at his right hand in the heavenly places, 21 above all rule and authority and power and lordship and every name named, not only in this age but also in the coming one,

Ephesians 3:10 in order that the many-sided wisdom of God might be made known now to the rulers and the authorities in the heavenly places through the church,

Colossians 2:15 When he had disarmed the rulers and the authorities, he made a display of them in public, triumphing over them by it.

Section Summary

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit

shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words. [2] And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. [3] And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. [4] And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

[5] Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. [6] And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. [7] Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” [8] So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. [9] Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind,

he fixed the boundaries of the peoples,

according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 3:8 Then they heard the sound of Yahweh God walking in the garden at the windy time of day. And the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of Yahweh God among the trees of the garden.

Part 4: Yahweh and His Portion

Chapter 16: Abraham's Word

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind,

he fixed the boundaries of the peoples,

according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:4 And Abram went out as Yahweh had told him, and Lot went with him. Now Abram was seventy-five years old when he went out from Haran.

Genesis 11:31–32 And Terah took Abram his son, and Lot, the son of Haran, his grandson, and Sarai his daughter-in-law, the wife of Abram his son, and went out with them from Ur of the Chaldeans to go to the land of Canaan. And they went to Haran, and they settled there. 32 And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years, and Terah died in Haran.

Acts 7:2–4 So he said, "Men—brothers and fathers—listen: The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham while he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Haran, 3 and said to him, 'Go out from your land and from your relatives and come to the land that I will show you.' 4 Then he went out from the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. And from there, after his father died, he caused him to move to this land in which you now live.

Acts 7:2–4 So he said, "Men—brothers and fathers—listen: The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham while he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Haran, 3 and said to him, 'Go out from your land and from your relatives and come to the land that I will show you.' 4 Then he went out from the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. And from there, after his father died, he caused him to move to this land in which you now live.

Acts 7:3 and said to him, ‘Go out from your land and from your relatives and come to the land that I will show you.’

Acts 7:4 Then he went out from the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. And from there, after his father died, he caused him to move to this land in which you now live.

Genesis 12:1 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you.

Genesis 12:2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing.

Genesis 12:3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Genesis 12:6–7 And Abram traveled through the land up to the place of Shechem, to the Oak of Moreh. Now the Canaanites were in the land at that time. 7 And Yahweh appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land.” And he built an altar there to Yahweh, who had appeared to him.

Genesis 12:6 And Abram traveled through the land up to the place of Shechem, to the Oak of Moreh. Now the Canaanites were in the land at that time.

Genesis 12:7 And Yahweh appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land.” And he built an altar there to Yahweh, who had appeared to him.

Genesis 12:6–7 And Abram traveled through the land up to the place of Shechem, to the Oak of Moreh. Now the Canaanites were in the land at that time. 7 And Yahweh appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land.” And he built an altar there to Yahweh, who had appeared to him.

Genesis 15:1–6 After these things the word of Yahweh came to Abram in a vision, saying: “Do not be afraid, Abram; I am your shield, and your reward shall be very great.” 2 Then Abram said, “O Yahweh, my Lord, what will you give me? I continue to be childless, and my heir is Eliezer of Damascus.” 3 And Abram said, “Look, you have not given me a descendant, and here, a member of my household is my heir.” 4 And behold, the word of Yahweh came to him saying, “This person will not be your heir, but your own son will be your heir.” 5 And he brought him outside and said, “Look toward the heavens and count the stars if you are able to count them.” And he said to him, “So shall your offspring be.” 6 And he believed in Yahweh, and he reckoned it to him as righteousness.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Genesis 15:1 After these things the word of Yahweh came to Abram in a vision, saying: “Do not be afraid, Abram; I am your shield, and your reward shall be very great.”

Genesis 15:2 Then Abram said, “O Yahweh, my Lord, what will you give me? I continue to be childless, and my heir is Eliezer of Damascus.”

Genesis 15:3 And Abram said, “Look, you have not given me a descendant, and here, a member of my household is my heir.”

Genesis 15:4 And behold, the word of Yahweh came to him saying, “This person will not be your heir, but your own son will be your heir.”

Genesis 15:5 And he brought him outside and said, “Look toward the heavens and count the stars if you are able to count them.” And he said to him, “So shall your offspring be.”

Genesis 15:6 And he believed in Yahweh, and he reckoned it to him as righteousness.

Genesis 15:1–6 After these things the word of Yahweh came to Abram in a vision, saying: “Do not be afraid, Abram; I am your shield, and your reward shall be very great.” 2 Then Abram said, “O Yahweh, my Lord, what will you give me? I continue to be childless, and my heir is Eliezer of Damascus.” 3 And Abram said, “Look, you have not given me a descendant, and here, a member of my household is my heir.” 4 And behold, the word of Yahweh came to him saying, “This person will not be your heir, but your own son will be your heir.” 5 And he brought him outside and said, “Look toward the heavens and count the stars if you are able to count them.” And he said to him, “So shall your offspring be.” 6 And he believed in Yahweh, and he reckoned it to him as righteousness.

Genesis 15:4 And behold, the word of Yahweh came to him saying, “This person will not be your heir, but your own son will be your heir.”

John 1:1 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

John 1:14 And the Word became flesh and took up residence among us, and we saw his glory, glory as of the one and only from the Father, full of grace and truth.

John 8:56 Abraham your father rejoiced that he would see my day, and he saw it and was glad.”

John 8:58 Jesus said to them, “Truly, truly I say to you, before Abraham was, I am!”

Galatians 3:8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: “In you all the nations will be blessed.”

1 Samuel 3:10 Then Yahweh came and stood there and called out as before, “Samuel! Samuel!” And Samuel said, “Speak, because your servant is listening.”

1 Samuel 3:19 And Samuel grew up, and Yahweh was with him. He did not allow any of his prophecies to go unfulfilled.

1 Samuel 3:20 All Israel from Dan to Beersheba realized that Samuel was faithful as a prophet to Yahweh.

1 Samuel 3:21 And Yahweh appeared again in Shiloh, for Yahweh revealed himself to Samuel in Shiloh through the word of Yahweh.

1 Samuel 3:19–21 And Samuel grew up, and Yahweh was with him. He did not allow any of his prophecies to go unfulfilled. 20 All Israel from Dan to Beersheba realized that Samuel was faithful as a prophet to Yahweh. 21 And Yahweh appeared again in Shiloh, for Yahweh revealed himself to Samuel in Shiloh through the word of Yahweh.

1 Samuel 3:21 And Yahweh appeared again in Shiloh, for Yahweh revealed himself to Samuel in Shiloh through the word of Yahweh.

Genesis 18:1 And Yahweh appeared to him by the oaks of Mamre. And he was sitting in the doorway of the tent at the heat of the day.

Genesis 18:2 And he lifted up his eyes and saw, and behold, three men were standing near him. And he saw them and ran from the doorway of the tent to meet them. And he bowed down to the ground.

Genesis 18:3 And he said, “My lord, if I have found favor in your eyes do not pass by your servant.

Genesis 18:4 Let a little water be brought and wash your feet, and rest under the tree.

Genesis 18:5 And let me bring a piece of bread, then refresh yourselves. Afterward you can pass on, once you have passed by with your servant." Then they said, "Do so as you have said."

Genesis 18:1–5 And Yahweh appeared to him by the oaks of Mamre. And he was sitting in the doorway of the tent at the heat of the day. 2 And he lifted up his eyes and saw, and behold, three men were standing near him. And he saw them and ran from the doorway of the tent to meet them. And he bowed down to the ground. 3 And he said, "My lord, if I have found favor in your eyes do not pass by your servant. 4 Let a little water be brought and wash your feet, and rest under the tree. 5 And let me bring a piece of bread, then refresh yourselves. Afterward you can pass on, once you have passed by with your servant." Then they said, "Do so as you have said."

Genesis 18:4–5 Let a little water be brought and wash your feet, and rest under the tree. 5 And let me bring a piece of bread, then refresh yourselves. Afterward you can pass on, once you have passed by with your servant." Then they said, "Do so as you have said."

Genesis 18:8 Then he took curds and milk, and the calf which he prepared, and set it before them. And he was standing by them under the tree while they ate.

Genesis 18:25 Far be it from you to do such a thing as this, to kill the righteous with the wicked, that the righteous would be as the wicked! Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?"

Jeremiah 1:6 Then I said, "Ah, Lord Yahweh! Look, I do not know how to speak, for I am a youth."

Jeremiah 1:9 Then Yahweh stretched out his hand and he touched my mouth, and Yahweh said to me, "Look, I have put my words in your mouth.

Chapter 17: Yahweh Visible and Invisible

Genesis 16:7–11 And the angel of Yahweh found her at a spring of water in the wilderness, at the spring by the road of Shur. 8 And he said to Hagar, the female slave of Sarai, “From where have you come, and where are you going?” And she said, “I am fleeing from the presence of Sarai my mistress.” 9 Then the angel of Yahweh said to her, “Return to your mistress and submit yourself under her authority.” 10 And the angel of Yahweh said to her, “I will greatly multiply your offspring, so that they cannot be counted for their abundance.” 11 And the angel of Yahweh said to her: “Behold, you are pregnant and shall have a son.

And you shall call his name Ishmael, for Yahweh has listened to your suffering.

Genesis 21:17 And God heard the cry of the boy and the angel of God called to Hagar from the heavens and said to her, “What is the matter Hagar? Do not be afraid, for God has heard the cry of the boy from where he is.

Genesis 22:1–9 And it happened that after these things, God tested Abraham. And he said to him, “Abraham!” And he said, “Here I am.” 2 And he said, “Take your son, your only child, Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains where I will tell you.” 3 And Abraham rose up early in the morning and saddled his donkey. And he took two of his servants with him, and Isaac his son. And he chopped wood for a burnt offering. And he got up and went to the place which God had told him. 4 On the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and he saw the place at a distance. 5 And Abraham said to his servants, “You stay here with the donkey, and I and the boy will go up there. We will worship, then we will return to you.” [6] And Abraham took the wood of the burnt offering and placed it on Isaac his son. And he took the fire in his hand and the knife, and the two of them went together. [7] And Isaac said to Abraham his father, “My father!” And he said, “Here I am, my son.” And he said, “Here is the fire and the wood, but where is the lamb for a burnt offering?” [8] And Abraham said, “God will provide the lamb for a burnt offering, my son.” And the two of them went together.

[9] And they came to the place that God had told him. And Abraham built an altar there and arranged the wood. Then he bound Isaac his son and placed him on the altar atop the wood.

Genesis 22:10 And Abraham stretched out his hand and took the knife to slaughter his son.

Genesis 22:10 And Abraham stretched out his hand and took the knife to slaughter his son.

Genesis 22:11 And the angel of Yahweh called to him from heaven and said, “Abraham! Abraham!” And he said, “Here I am.”

Genesis 22:12 And he said, “Do not stretch out your hand against the boy; do not do anything to him. For now I know that you are one who fears God, since you have not withheld your son, your only child, from me.”

Genesis 22:13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes and looked. And behold, a ram was caught in the thicket by his horns. And Abraham went and took the ram, and offered it as a burnt offering in place of his son.

Genesis 22:14 And Abraham called the name of that place “Yahweh will provide,” for which reason it is said today, “on the mountain of Yahweh it shall be provided.”

Genesis 22:15 And the angel of Yahweh called to Abraham a second time from heaven.

Genesis 22:16 And he said, “I swear by myself, declares Yahweh, that because you have done this thing and have not withheld your son, your only child, Genesis 22:17 that I will certainly bless you and greatly multiply your offspring as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that is by the shore of the sea. And your offspring will take possession of the gate of his enemies.

Genesis 22:18 All the nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring, because you have listened to my voice."

Genesis 22:10–18 And Abraham stretched out his hand and took the knife to slaughter his son. 11 And the angel of Yahweh called to him from heaven and said, "Abraham! Abraham!" And he said, "Here I am." 12 And he said, "Do not stretch out your hand against the boy; do not do anything to him. For now I know that you are one who fears God, since you have not withheld your son, your only child, from me." 13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes and looked. And behold, a ram was caught in the thicket by his horns. And Abraham went and took the ram, and offered it as a burnt offering in place of his son. 14 And Abraham called the name of that place "Yahweh will provide," for which reason it is said today, "on the mountain of Yahweh it shall be provided." 15 And the angel of Yahweh called to Abraham a second time from heaven. 16 And he said, "I swear by myself, declares Yahweh, that because you have done this thing and have not withheld your son, your only child, 17 that I will certainly bless you and greatly multiply your offspring as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that is by the shore of the sea. And your offspring will take possession of the gate of his enemies. 18 All the nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring, because you have listened to my voice."

Genesis 22:11 And the angel of Yahweh called to him from heaven and said, "Abraham! Abraham!" And he said, "Here I am."

Genesis 22:1–2 And it happened that after these things, God tested Abraham. And he said to him, "Abraham!" And he said, "Here I am." 2 And he said, "Take your son, your only child, Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains where I will tell you."

Genesis 22:16 And he said, "I swear by myself, declares Yahweh, that because you have done this thing and have not withheld your son, your only child,

Genesis 22:11 And the angel of Yahweh called to him from heaven and said, “Abraham! Abraham!” And he said, “Here I am.”

Genesis 22:1–2 And it happened that after these things, God tested Abraham. And he said to him, “Abraham!” And he said, “Here I am.” 2 And he said, “Take your son, your only child, Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains where I will tell you.”

Genesis 26:1–5 And there was a famine in the land, besides the former famine which was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went to Abimelech, king of the Philistines, to Gerar. 2 And Yahweh appeared to him and said, “Do not go down to Egypt; dwell in the land which I will show to you. 3 Dwell as an alien in this land, and I will be with you, and will bless you, for I will give all these lands to you and to your descendants, and I will establish the oath that I swore to Abraham your father. 4 And I will multiply your descendants like the stars of heaven, and I will give to your descendants all these lands. And all nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring, 5 because Abraham listened to my voice and kept my charge: my commandments, my statutes, and my laws.”

Genesis 26:3–4 Dwell as an alien in this land, and I will be with you, and will bless you, for I will give all these lands to you and to your descendants, and I will establish the oath that I swore to Abraham your father. 4 And I will multiply your descendants like the stars of heaven, and I will give to your descendants all these lands. And all nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring, Genesis 26:23–25 And from there he went up to Beersheba. 24 And Yahweh appeared to him that night and said, “I am the God of your father Abraham. Do not be afraid, for I am with you, and I will bless you and make your descendants numerous for the sake of my servant Abraham.” 25 And he built an altar there and called on the name of Yahweh. And he pitched his tent there, and the servants of Isaac dug a well there.

Genesis 28:10–22 Then Jacob went out from Beersheba and went to Haran. 11 And he arrived at a certain place and spent the night there, because the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of the place and put it under his head and slept at that place. 12 And he dreamed, and behold, a stairway was set on the earth, and its top touched the heavens. And behold, angels of God were going up and going down on it. 13 And behold, Yahweh was standing beside him, and he said, “I am Yahweh, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The ground on which you were sleeping I will give to you and to your descendants. 14 Your descendants shall be like the dust of the earth, and you will spread out to the west, and to the east, and to the north and to the south. And all the families of the earth will be blessed through you and through your descendants. 15 Now behold, I am with you, and I will keep you wherever you go. And I will bring you to this land, for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised to you.” 16 Then Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, “Surely Yahweh is indeed in this place and I did not know!” 17 Then he was afraid and said, “How awesome is this place! This is nothing else than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven!” 18 And Jacob rose early in the morning, and he took the stone that he had put under his head and set it up as a stone pillar, and poured oil on top of it. 19 And he called the name of that place Bethel; however, the name of the city was formerly Luz. 20 And Jacob made a vow saying, “If God will be with me and protect me on this way that I am going, and gives me food to eat and clothing to wear, 21 and if I return in peace to the house of my father, then Yahweh will become my God. 22 And this stone that I have set up as a pillar shall be the house of God, and of all that you give to me I will certainly give a tenth to you.”

Genesis 26:1–2 And there was a famine in the land, besides the former famine which was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went to Abimelech, king of the Philistines, to Gerar. 2 And Yahweh appeared to him and said, “Do not go down to Egypt; dwell in the land which I will show to you.

Genesis 28:13 And behold, Yahweh was standing beside him, and he said, “I am Yahweh, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The ground on which you were sleeping I will give to you and to your descendants.

Genesis 28:15 Now behold, I am with you, and I will keep you wherever you go. And I will bring you to this land, for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised to you."

Genesis 28:19 And he called the name of that place Bethel; however, the name of the city was formerly Luz.

Genesis 28:18–19 And Jacob rose early in the morning, and he took the stone that he had put under his head and set it up as a stone pillar, and poured oil on top of it. [19] And he called the name of that place Bethel; however, the name of the city was formerly Luz.

Genesis 31:11 Then the angel of God said to me in the dream, 'Jacob,' and I said, 'Here I am.'

Genesis 31:12 And he said, 'Lift up your eyes and see—all the rams mounting the flock are streaked, speckled, and dappled, for I have seen all that Laban is doing to you.

Genesis 31:13 I am the God of Bethel where you anointed a stone pillar, where you made a vow to me. Now get up, go out from this land and return to the land of your birth.' "

Genesis 31:11–13 Then the angel of God said to me in the dream, 'Jacob,' and I said, 'Here I am.' [12] And he said, 'Lift up your eyes and see—all the rams mounting the flock are streaked, speckled, and dappled, for I have seen all that Laban is doing to you. [13] I am the God of Bethel where you anointed a stone pillar, where you made a vow to me. Now get up, go out from this land and return to the land of your birth.' "

Genesis 31:13 I am the God of Bethel where you anointed a stone pillar, where you made a vow to me. Now get up, go out from this land and return to the land of your birth.' "

Genesis 32:1 And Jacob went on his way, and angels of God met him.

Genesis 32:22–23 That night he arose and took his two wives, his two female slaves, and his eleven children and crossed the ford of the Jabbok. [23] And he took them and sent them across the stream. Then he sent across all his possessions.

Genesis 32:24 And Jacob remained alone, and a man wrestled with him until the breaking of the dawn.

Genesis 32:25 And when he saw that he could not prevail against him, he struck his hip socket, so that Jacob's hip socket was sprained as he wrestled with him.

Genesis 32:26 Then he said, "Let me go, for dawn is breaking." But he answered, "I will not let you go unless you bless me."

Genesis 32:27 Then he said to him, "What is your name?" And he said, "Jacob."

Genesis 32:28 And he said, "Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel, for you have struggled with God and with men and have prevailed."

Genesis 32:29 Then Jacob asked and said, "Please tell me your name." And he said, "Why do you ask this—for my name?" And he blessed him there.

Genesis 32:30 Then Jacob called the name of the place Peniel which means "I have seen God face to face and my life was spared."

Genesis 32:24–30 And Jacob remained alone, and a man wrestled with him until the breaking of the dawn. [25] And when he saw that he could not prevail against him, he struck his hip socket, so that Jacob's hip socket was sprained as he wrestled with him. [26] Then he said, "Let me go, for dawn is breaking." But he answered, "I will not let you go unless you bless me." [27] Then he said to him, "What is your name?" And he said, "Jacob." [28] And he said, "Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel, for you have struggled with God and with men and have prevailed." [29] Then Jacob asked and said, "Please tell me your name." And he said, "Why do you ask this—for my name?" And he blessed him there. [30] Then Jacob called the name of the place Peniel which means “I have seen God face to face and my life was spared.”

Genesis 32:28–29 And he said, “Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel, for you have struggled with God and with men and have prevailed.” [29] Then Jacob asked and said, “Please tell me your name.” And he said, “Why do you ask this—for my name?” And he blessed him there.

Hosea 12:3–4 In the womb he deceived his brother, and in his manhood he struggled with God.

[4] He struggled with the angel and prevailed; he pleaded for his mercy.

He met him at Bethel,

and there he spoke with him.

Hosea 12:3 In the womb he deceived his brother, and in his manhood he struggled with God.

Hosea 12:4 He struggled with the angel and prevailed; he pleaded for his mercy.

He met him at Bethel,

and there he spoke with him.

Genesis 31:13 I am the God of Bethel where you anointed a stone pillar, where you made a vow to me. Now get up, go out from this land and return to the land of your birth.’ ”

Genesis 31:15–16 Are we not regarded as foreigners by him, because he has sold us and completely consumed our money? [16] For all the wealth that God has taken away from our father, it belongs to us and to our sons. So now, all that God has said to you, do.”

Genesis 48:1 And it happened that after these things, it was said to Joseph, “Behold, your father is ill.” And he took his two sons with him, Manasseh and Ephraim.

Genesis 48:2 And it was told to Jacob, “Behold, your son Joseph has come to you.” Then Israel strengthened himself and he sat up in the bed.

Genesis 48:3 Then Jacob said to Joseph, “El-Shaddai appeared to me in Luz, in the land of Canaan, and blessed me,

Genesis 48:4 and said to me, ‘Behold, I will make you fruitful and make you numerous, and will make you a company of nations. And I will give this land to your offspring after you as an everlasting possession.’

Genesis 48:14 And Israel stretched out his right hand and put it on the head of Ephraim (now he was the younger), and his left hand on the head of Manasseh, crossing his hands, for Manasseh was the firstborn.

Genesis 48:15 And he blessed Joseph and said, “The God before whom my fathers, Abraham and Isaac, walked,

The God who shepherded me all my life unto this day,

Genesis 48:16 The angel who redeemed me from all evil, may he bless the boys.

And through them let my name be perpetuated,

and the name of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac.

And let them multiply into many in the midst of the earth.

Genesis 48:1–4 And it happened that after these things, it was said to Joseph, “Behold, your father is ill.” And he took his two sons with him, Manasseh and Ephraim. 2 And it was told to Jacob, “Behold, your son Joseph has come to you.” Then Israel strengthened himself and he sat up in the bed. 3 Then Jacob said to Joseph, “El-Shaddai appeared to me in Luz, in the land of Canaan, and blessed me, 4 and said to me, ‘Behold, I will make you fruitful and make you numerous, and will make you a company of nations. And I will give this land to your offspring after you as an everlasting possession.’

Genesis 48:14–16 And Israel stretched out his right hand and put it on the head of Ephraim (now he was the younger), and his left hand on the head of Manasseh, crossing his hands, for Manasseh was the firstborn. 15 And he blessed Joseph and said, “The God before whom my fathers, Abraham and Isaac, walked,

The God who shepherded me all my life unto this day,
16 The angel who redeemed me from all evil, may he bless the boys.
And through them let my name be perpetuated,
and the name of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac.
And let them multiply into many in the midst of the earth.

Chapter 18: What's in a Name?

Exodus 3:1 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb.

Exodus 3:2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed.

Exodus 3:3 And Moses said, "Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?"

Exodus 3:4 And Yahweh saw that he turned aside to see, and God called to him from the midst of the bush, and he said, "Moses, Moses." And he said, "Here I am."

Exodus 3:5 And he said, "You must not come near to here. Take off your sandals from on your feet, because the place on which you are standing, it is holy ground."

Exodus 3:6 And he said, "I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob." And Moses hid his face because he was afraid of looking at God.

Exodus 3:1–6 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, "Let me turn aside and see this great sight.

Why does the bush not burn up?” [4] And Yahweh saw that he turned aside to see, and God called to him from the midst of the bush, and he said, “Moses, Moses.” And he said, “Here I am.” [5] And he said, “You must not come near to here. Take off your sandals from on your feet, because the place on which you are standing, it is holy ground.” [6] And he said, “I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.” And Moses hid his face because he was afraid of looking at God.

Exodus 3:2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed.

Exodus 3:3 And Moses said, “Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?”

Exodus 3:4 And Yahweh saw that he turned aside to see, and God called to him from the midst of the bush, and he said, “Moses, Moses.” And he said, “Here I am.”

Exodus 3:6 And he said, “I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.” And Moses hid his face because he was afraid of looking at God.

Acts 7:30–35 “And when forty years had been completed, an angel appeared to him in the desert of Mount Sinai in the flame of a burning bush. [31] And when Moses saw it, he was astonished at the sight, and when he approached to look at it, the voice of the Lord came: [32] ‘I am the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham and of Isaac and of Jacob!’ So Moses began trembling and did not dare to look at it. [33] And the Lord said to him, ‘Untie the sandals from your feet, for the place on which you are standing is holy ground. [34] I have certainly seen the mistreatment of my people who are in Egypt and have heard their groaning, and I have come down to deliver them. And now come, I will send you to Egypt.’ [35] This Moses whom they had repudiated, saying, ‘Who appointed you a ruler and a judge?’—this man God sent as both ruler and redeemer with the help of the angel who appeared to him in the bush.

Acts 7:30 “And when forty years had been completed, an angel appeared to him in the desert of Mount Sinai in the flame of a burning bush.

Acts 7:35 This Moses whom they had repudiated, saying, ‘Who appointed you a ruler and a judge?’—this man God sent as both ruler and redeemer with the help of the angel who appeared to him in the bush.

Exodus 3:7 And Yahweh said, “Surely I have seen the misery of my people who are in Egypt, and I have heard their cry of distress because of their oppressors, for I know their sufferings.

Exodus 3:14 And God said to Moses, “I am that I am.” And he said, “So you must say to the Israelites, ‘I am sent me to you.’ ”

Exodus 23:20 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared.

Exodus 23:21 Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him.

Exodus 23:22 But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes.

Exodus 23:20–22 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. 21 Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. 22 But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes.

Exodus 23:21 Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him.

Leviticus 11:45 because I am Yahweh, who brought you up from the land of Egypt to be for you as God. Thus you shall be holy, because I am holy.

Deuteronomy 4:35 You yourselves were shown this wonder in order for you to acknowledge that Yahweh is the God; there is no other God besides him.

Deuteronomy 4:36 From heaven he made you hear his voice to teach you, and on the earth he showed you his great fire, and you heard his words from the midst of the fire.

Deuteronomy 4:37 And because he loved your ancestors he chose their descendants after them. And he brought you forth from Egypt with his own presence, by his great strength, Deuteronomy 4:38 to drive out nations greater and more numerous than you from before you, to bring you and to give to you their land as an inheritance, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 4:35–38 You yourselves were shown this wonder in order for you to acknowledge that Yahweh is the God; there is no other God besides him. 36 From heaven he made you hear his voice to teach you, and on the earth he showed you his great fire, and you heard his words from the midst of the fire. 37 And because he loved your ancestors he chose their descendants after them. And he brought you forth from Egypt with his own presence, by his great strength, 38 to drive out nations greater and more numerous than you from before you, to bring you and to give to you their land as an inheritance, as it is this day.

Joshua 24:17–18a for Yahweh our God brought us and our ancestors from the land of Egypt, from the house of slavery, and did these great signs before our eyes. He protected us along the entire way that we went, and among all the peoples through whose midst we passed. 18 And Yahweh drove out all the people before us, the Amorites who live in the land. We will serve Yahweh, for he is our God."

Judges 2:1 And the angel of Yahweh went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said, "I brought you up from Egypt, and I brought you to the land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, 'I will never break my covenant with you.

Deuteronomy 4:37 And because he loved your ancestors he chose their descendants after them. And he brought you forth from Egypt with his own presence, by his great strength,

Exodus 23:20–23 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. [21] Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. [22] But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes. [23] When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

Isaiah 30:27–28 Look! The name of Yahweh comes from afar, burning with his anger and heaviness of cloud.

His lips are full of indignation,

and his tongue is like a devouring fire.

[28] And his breath is like an overflowing river; it reaches up to the neck to shake the nations with the sieve of worthlessness; and a bridle that leads astray is on the jawbones of the peoples.

Isaiah 30:27 Look! The name of Yahweh comes from afar, burning with his anger and heaviness of cloud.

His lips are full of indignation,

and his tongue is like a devouring fire.

Isaiah 30:28 And his breath is like an overflowing river; it reaches up to the neck to shake the nations with the sieve of worthlessness; and a bridle that leads astray is on the jawbones of the peoples.

Psalm 20:1 May Yahweh answer you in the day of trouble.

May the name of Jacob’s God protect you.

Psalm 20:7 Some boast in chariots and others in horses, but we boast in the name of Yahweh, our God.

Psalm 20:1 May Yahweh answer you in the day of trouble.
May the name of Jacob's God protect you.

Psalm 20:7 Some boast in chariots and others in horses, but we boast in the name of Yahweh, our God.

Deuteronomy 12:2 You must completely demolish all of the places there where they served their gods, that is, the nations whom you are about to dispossess, on the high mountains, and on the hills and under each leafy green tree.

Deuteronomy 12:4 You shall not worship Yahweh your God like this.

Deuteronomy 12:5 But only to the place that Yahweh your God will choose from all of your tribes to place his name there as his dwelling shall you seek, and there you shall go.

Deuteronomy 12:11 and then at the place that Yahweh your God will choose, to let his name dwell there, there you shall bring all the things I am commanding you, your burnt offerings and your sacrifices, your tithes and your donations, and all of the choice things, your votive gifts that you vow to Yahweh.

Deuteronomy 12:2 You must completely demolish all of the places there where they served their gods, that is, the nations whom you are about to dispossess, on the high mountains, and on the hills and under each leafy green tree.

Deuteronomy 12:4–5 You shall not worship Yahweh your God like this. 5 But only to the place that Yahweh your God will choose from all of your tribes to place his name there as his dwelling shall you seek, and there you shall go.

Deuteronomy 12:11 and then at the place that Yahweh your God will choose, to let his name dwell there, there you shall bring all the things I am commanding you, your burnt offerings and your sacrifices, your tithes and your donations, and all of the choice things, your votive gifts that you vow to Yahweh.

Joshua 5:13 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?”

Joshua 5:14 And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?”

Joshua 5:15 The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” 14 And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?” 15 The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

Numbers 22:23 The donkey saw the angel of Yahweh standing in the road with his sword drawn in his hand, and the donkey turned aside from the road and went into the field. And Balaam struck the donkey to turn her back to the road.

1 Chronicles 21:16 And David lifted his eyes and saw the angel of Yahweh standing between earth and heaven, with his sword drawn in his hand, stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders, clothed in sackcloth, fell upon their faces.

Exodus 3:5 And he said, “You must not come near to here. Take off your sandals from on your feet, because the place on which you are standing, it is holy ground.”

Exodus 23:20–23 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. 21 Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. [22] But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes. [23] When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

Judges 2:1 And the angel of Yahweh went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said, “I brought you up from Egypt, and I brought you to the land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, ‘I will never break my covenant with you.

Judges 2:2 And as for you, do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land; break down their altars.’ But you did not listen to my voice. Why would you do such a thing?

Judges 2:3 Now I say, I will not drive them out from before you; they will become as thorns for you, and their gods will be a trap for you.”

Judges 2:4 And as the angel of Yahweh spoke these words to all the Israelites, the people wept bitterly.

Judges 2:1–4 And the angel of Yahweh went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said, “I brought you up from Egypt, and I brought you to the land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, ‘I will never break my covenant with you. [2] And as for you, do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land; break down their altars.’ But you did not listen to my voice. Why would you do such a thing? [3] Now I say, I will not drive them out from before you; they will become as thorns for you, and their gods will be a trap for you.” [4] And as the angel of Yahweh spoke these words to all the Israelites, the people wept bitterly.

Judges 6:11 The angel of Yahweh came and sat under the oak that was at Ophrah that belonged to Jehoash the Abiezrite; and Gideon his son was threshing wheat in the winepress to hide it from the Midianites.

Judges 6:12 The angel of Yahweh appeared to him and said to him, "Yahweh is with you, you mighty warrior."

Judges 6:13 Gideon said to him, "Excuse me, my lord. If Yahweh is with us, why then has all this happened to us? Where are all his wonderful deeds that our ancestors recounted to us, saying, 'Did not Yahweh bring us up from Egypt?' But now Yahweh has forsaken us; he has given us into the palm of Midian."

Judges 6:14 And Yahweh turned to him and said, "Go in this your strength, and you will deliver Israel from the palm of Midian. Did I not send you?"

Judges 6:15 He said to him, "Excuse me, my lord. How will I deliver Israel? Look, my clan is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the youngest in my father's house."

Judges 6:16 And Yahweh said to him, "But I will be with you, and you will defeat Midian as if they are one man."

Judges 6:17 And he said to him, "Please, if I have found favor in your eyes, show me a sign that you are speaking with me.

Judges 6:18 Please, do not depart from here until I come back to you and bring out my gift and set it out before you." And he said, "I will stay until you return."

Judges 6:19 And Gideon went and prepared a young goat and unleavened cakes from an ephah of flour; he put meat in a basket, and the broth he put in a pot, and he brought them to him under the oak and presented them.

Judges 6:20 The angel of God said to him, "Take the meat and the unleavened cakes and put them on this rock; pour the broth over it." And he did so.

Judges 6:21 Then the angel of Yahweh reached out the tip of the staff that was in his hand, and he touched the meat and the unleavened cakes; and fire went up from the rock and consumed the meat and the unleavened cakes. And the angel of Yahweh went from his sight.

Judges 6:22 And Gideon realized that he was the angel of Yahweh; and Gideon said, “Oh, my lord Yahweh! For now I have seen the angel of Yahweh face to face.”

Judges 6:23 And Yahweh said to him, “Peace be with you. Do not fear; you will not die.”

Judges 6:24 And Gideon built there an altar to Yahweh, and he called it “Yahweh is peace.” To this day it is still in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

Judges 6:11–24 The angel of Yahweh came and sat under the oak that was at Ophrah that belonged to Jehoash the Abiezrite; and Gideon his son was threshing wheat in the winepress to hide it from the Midianites. 12 The angel of Yahweh appeared to him and said to him, “Yahweh is with you, you mighty warrior.” 13 Gideon said to him, “Excuse me, my lord. If Yahweh is with us, why then has all this happened to us? Where are all his wonderful deeds that our ancestors recounted to us, saying, ‘Did not Yahweh bring us up from Egypt?’ But now Yahweh has forsaken us; he has given us into the palm of Midian.” 14 And Yahweh turned to him and said, “Go in this your strength, and you will deliver Israel from the palm of Midian. Did I not send you?” 15 He said to him, “Excuse me, my lord. How will I deliver Israel? Look, my clan is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the youngest in my father’s house.” 16 And Yahweh said to him, “But I will be with you, and you will defeat Midian as if they are one man.” 17 And he said to him, “Please, if I have found favor in your eyes, show me a sign that you are speaking with me. 18 Please, do not depart from here until I come back to you and bring out my gift and set it out before you.” And he said, “I will stay until you return.”

19 And Gideon went and prepared a young goat and unleavened cakes from an ephah of flour; he put meat in a basket, and the broth he put in a pot, and he brought them to him under the oak and presented them. 20 The angel of God said to him, “Take the meat and the unleavened cakes and put them on this rock; pour the broth over it.” And he did so. [21] Then the angel of Yahweh reached out the tip of the staff that was in his hand, and he touched the meat and the unleavened cakes; and fire went up from the rock and consumed the meat and the unleavened cakes. And the angel of Yahweh went from his sight. [22] And Gideon realized that he was the angel of Yahweh; and Gideon said, “Oh, my lord Yahweh! For now I have seen the angel of Yahweh face to face.” [23] And Yahweh said to him, “Peace be with you. Do not fear; you will not die.” [24] And Gideon built there an altar to Yahweh, and he called it “Yahweh is peace.” To this day it is still in Ophrah of the Abiezrites.

Judges 6:11 The angel of Yahweh came and sat under the oak that was at Ophrah that belonged to Jehoash the Abiezrite; and Gideon his son was threshing wheat in the winepress to hide it from the Midianites.

Judges 6:12 The angel of Yahweh appeared to him and said to him, “Yahweh is with you, you mighty warrior.”

Judges 6:13 Gideon said to him, “Excuse me, my lord. If Yahweh is with us, why then has all this happened to us? Where are all his wonderful deeds that our ancestors recounted to us, saying, ‘Did not Yahweh bring us up from Egypt?’ But now Yahweh has forsaken us; he has given us into the palm of Midian.”

Judges 6:14–16 And Yahweh turned to him and said, “Go in this your strength, and you will deliver Israel from the palm of Midian. Did I not send you?” [15] He said to him, “Excuse me, my lord. How will I deliver Israel? Look, my clan is the weakest in Manasseh, and I am the youngest in my father’s house.” [16] And Yahweh said to him, “But I will be with you, and you will defeat Midian as if they are one man.”

Judges 6:19 And Gideon went and prepared a young goat and unleavened cakes from an ephah of flour; he put meat in a basket, and the broth he put in a pot, and he brought them to him under the oak and presented them.

Judges 6:19 And Gideon went and prepared a young goat and unleavened cakes from an ephah of flour; he put meat in a basket, and the broth he put in a pot, and he brought them to him under the oak and presented them.

Judges 6:21 Then the angel of Yahweh reached out the tip of the staff that was in his hand, and he touched the meat and the unleavened cakes; and fire went up from the rock and consumed the meat and the unleavened cakes. And the angel of Yahweh went from his sight.

Judges 6:23 And Yahweh said to him, “Peace be with you. Do not fear; you will not die.”

Chapter 19: Who Is like Yahweh?

Genesis 32:27–28 Then he said to him, “What is your name?” And he said, “Jacob.” 28 And he said, “Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel, for you have struggled with God and with men and have prevailed.”

Genesis 46:3–4 Then he said, “I am God, the God of your father. Do not be afraid to go down to Egypt, for I will make you a great nation there. 4 I myself will go down with you to Egypt, and I myself will also bring you up. And Joseph will place his hand over your eyes.”

Genesis 15:13–16 And he said to Abram, “You must surely know that your descendants shall be as aliens in a land not their own. And they shall serve them and they shall oppress them four hundred years. 14 And also the nation that they serve I will judge. Then afterward they shall go out with great possessions. 15 And as for you, you shall go to your ancestors in peace; you shall be buried in a good old age. 16 And the fourth generation shall return here, for the guilt of the Amorites is not yet complete.”

Genesis 46:4 I myself will go down with you to Egypt, and I myself will also bring you up. And Joseph will place his hand over your eyes.”

Exodus 5:2 And Pharaoh said, “Who is Yahweh that I should listen to his voice to release Israel? I do not know Yahweh, and also I will not release Israel.”

Joshua 2:8–10 Before they went to sleep, she came up to them on the roof [9] and said to the men, “I know that Yahweh has given you the land, and that dread of you has fallen on us, and that all the inhabitants of the land melt away in fear because of your presence. [10] For we have heard how Yahweh dried up the waters of the Red Sea before you when you went out from Egypt, and what you did to the two kings of the Amorites that were beyond the Jordan, Sihon and Og, whom you utterly destroyed.

Exodus 15:16–18 Terror and dread fell on them; at the greatness of your arm they became silent like the stone, until your people passed by, Yahweh, until the people whom you bought passed by.

[17] You brought them and planted them on the mountain of your inheritance, a place you made for yourself to inhabit, Yahweh, a sanctuary, Lord, that your hands established.

[18] Yahweh will reign as king forever and ever.”

Joshua 9:9 And they said to him, “Your servants have come from a very far land because of the name of Yahweh your God; we have heard of his reputation, of all that he did in Egypt, Exodus 18:11 Now I know that Yahweh is greater than all the gods, even in the matter where they the Egyptians dealt arrogantly against the Israelites.”

Numbers 14:15–16 But if you destroy this people all at once, the nations that will have heard your message will say, [16] ‘Yahweh was unable to bring this people in the land that he swore by an oath, and he slaughtered them in the desert.’

Deuteronomy 9:28 lest the people of the land from which you brought us out from there say, “Because Yahweh was not able to bring them to the land that he promised to them and because of his hatred toward them, he has brought them out to kill them in the desert.”

Joshua 7:9 The Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land will hear of this, and they will surround us and cut off our name from the land. What will you do, for your great name?”

2 Samuel 7:23 Who is like your people, like Israel? Israel is the one nation on earth whose God led them, in order to redeem a people for himself, and to make a name for himself, and to do for you the great and awesome things for your land in the presence of your people whom he redeemed for himself from Egypt, from the nations and their gods.

Exodus 5:2 And Pharaoh said, “Who is Yahweh that I should listen to his voice to release Israel? I do not know Yahweh, and also I will not release Israel.”

Exodus 12:12 “And I will go through the land of Egypt during this night, and I will strike all of the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from human to animal, and I will do punishments among all of the gods of Egypt. I am Yahweh.

Numbers 33:4 while the Egyptians were burying all the firstborn among them whom Yahweh struck. Yahweh also executed punishments among their gods.

Exodus 4:23 And I said to you, “Release my son and let him serve me,” but you refused to release him. Look, I am about to kill your son, your firstborn.’ ”

Hosea 11:1 When Israel was a child, I loved him, and out of Egypt I called my son.

Exodus 12:12 “And I will go through the land of Egypt during this night, and I will strike all of the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from human to animal, and I will do punishments among all of the gods of Egypt. I am Yahweh.

Exodus 12:23 And Yahweh will go through to strike Egypt, and he will see the blood on the lintel and on the two doorposts, and Yahweh will pass over the doorway and will not allow the destroyer to come to your houses to strike you.

Exodus 12:23 And Yahweh will go through to strike Egypt, and he will see the blood on the lintel and on the two doorposts, and Yahweh will pass over the doorway and will not allow the destroyer to come to your houses to strike you.

2 Samuel 24:16 When the angel stretched out his hand to destroy Jerusalem, Yahweh regretted about the evil, and he said to the angel who brought destruction among the people, “Enough, now relax your hand.” Now the angel of Yahweh was at the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.

1 Chronicles 21:15 And God sent an angel to Jerusalem to destroy it, and as he was about to destroy it, Yahweh saw and was grieved on account of the calamity. Then he said to the angel, the destroyer, “It is enough; slacken your hand.” And the angel of Yahweh was standing by the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite.

2 Samuel 24:16–17a When the angel stretched out his hand to destroy Jerusalem, Yahweh regretted about the evil, and he said to the angel who brought destruction among the people, “Enough, now relax your hand.” Now the angel of Yahweh was at the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite. 17 David spoke to Yahweh when he saw the angel destroying among the people, and he said, “Look, I have sinned and I have done wrong, but these sheep, what did they do? Please let your hand be against me and against the house of my father.”

2 Samuel 24:16 When the angel stretched out his hand to destroy Jerusalem, Yahweh regretted about the evil, and he said to the angel who brought destruction among the people, “Enough, now relax your hand.” Now the angel of Yahweh was at the threshing floor of Araunah the Jebusite.

2 Samuel 24:17 David spoke to Yahweh when he saw the angel destroying among the people, and he said, “Look, I have sinned and I have done wrong, but these sheep, what did they do? Please let your hand be against me and against the house of my father.”

Zechariah 12:8–10 On that day Yahweh will put a shield around the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the one who stumbles among them on that day will be like David, and the house of David will be like God, like the angel of Yahweh, before them. 9 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.

10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Zechariah 12:8 On that day Yahweh will put a shield around the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the one who stumbles among them on that day will be like David, and the house of David will be like God, like the angel of Yahweh, before them.

Zechariah 12:9 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Zechariah 12:8–10 On that day Yahweh will put a shield around the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and the one who stumbles among them on that day will be like David, and the house of David will be like God, like the angel of Yahweh, before them. 9 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.
10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Isaiah 37:36 And the angel of Yahweh set out and struck one hundred and eighty-five thousand in the camp of the Assyrians. When they rose in the morning, look! All of them were dead corpses.

Psalm 74:12–17 But God has been my king from long ago, working salvation in the midst of the earth.

13 You split open the sea by your strength; You broke the heads of the sea monsters in the waters.

14 You crushed the heads of Leviathan; you gave him as food to the desert dwelling creatures.

15 You split open spring and wadi.

You dried up ever-flowing rivers.

16 Yours is the day, yours is the night also.

You established light and the sun.

17 You defined all the boundaries of the earth; Summer and winter—you formed them.

Psalm 74:12 But God has been my king from long ago, working salvation in the midst of the earth.

Psalm 74:13 You split open the sea by your strength; You broke the heads of the sea monsters in the waters.

Psalm 74:14 You crushed the heads of Leviathan; you gave him as food to the desert dwelling creatures.

Psalm 74:15 You split open spring and wadi.

You dried up ever-flowing rivers.

Psalm 74:16 Yours is the day, yours is the night also.

You established light and the sun.

Psalm 74:17 You defined all the boundaries of the earth; Summer and winter—you formed them.

Genesis 1:6–7 And God said, “Let there be a vaulted dome in the midst of the waters, and let it cause a separation between the waters.” 7 So God made the vaulted dome, and he caused a separation between the waters which were under the vaulted dome and between the waters which were over the vaulted dome. And it was so.

Psalm 74:16–17 Yours is the day, yours is the night also.

You established light and the sun.

17 You defined all the boundaries of the earth; Summer and winter—you formed them.

Genesis 1:4–5 And God saw the light, that it was good, and God caused there to be a separation between the light and between the darkness. 5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And there was evening and there was morning, the first day.

Genesis 1:9–10 And God said, “Let the waters under heaven be gathered to one place, and let the dry ground appear.” And it was so. 10 And God called the dry ground “earth,” and he called the collection of the waters “seas.” And God saw that it was good.

Genesis 1:14–18 And God said, “Let there be lights in the vaulted dome of heaven to separate day from night, and let them be as signs and for appointed times, and for days and years, 15 and they shall be as lights in the vaulted dome of heaven to give light on the earth.” And it was so. 16 And God made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day and the smaller light to rule the night, and the stars. 17 And God placed them in the vaulted dome of heaven to give light on the earth 18 and to rule over the day and over the night, and to separate light from darkness. And God saw that it was good.

Exodus 15:11 Who is like you among the gods, Yahweh?

Who is like you—glorious in holiness, awesome in praiseworthy actions, doing wonders?

Chapter 20: Retooling the Template

Exodus 4:22 And you must say to Pharaoh, ‘Thus says Yahweh, “Israel is my son, my firstborn.”

Hosea 11:1 When Israel was a child, I loved him, and out of Egypt I called my son.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Psalm 2:7 I will tell the decree; Yahweh said to me:

> “You are my son;
>
> today I have begotten you.

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Exodus 24:1 And to Moses he said, “Go up to Yahweh—you and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel—and you will worship at a distance.

Exodus 24:2 And Moses alone will come near to Yahweh, and they will not come near, and the people will not go up with him."

Exodus 24:9 And Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel went up.

Exodus 24:10 And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness.

Exodus 24:1–2 And to Moses he said, "Go up to Yahweh—you and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel—and you will worship at a distance. 2 And Moses alone will come near to Yahweh, and they will not come near, and the people will not go up with him."

Exodus 24:9–10 And Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel went up. 10 And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed, for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Isaiah 24:21 And this shall happen on that day: Yahweh will punish the host of heaven in heaven, and the kings of the earth on the earth.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed,

for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Isaiah 24:21 And this shall happen on that day: Yahweh will punish the host of heaven in heaven,

and the kings of the earth on the earth.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed, for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

John 1:12 But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name—he gave to them authority to become children of God,

1 John 3:1 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him.

1 Corinthians 6:3 Do you not know that we will judge angels, not to mention ordinary matters?

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, 'I will ascend to heaven;

I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;

and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Genesis 37:9 Then he dreamed yet another dream and told it to his brothers. And he said, "Behold, I dreamed a dream again, and behold, the sun and the moon and eleven stars were bowing down to me."

Revelation 1:20 As for the mystery of the seven stars which you saw in my right hand and the seven gold lampstands—the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

Revelation 22:16 “I, Jesus, sent my angel to testify to you about these things for the churches. I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star.”

Revelation 2:28 as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Daniel 12:2–3 And many from those sleeping in the dusty ground will awake, some to everlasting life and some to disgrace and everlasting contempt. [3] But the ones having insight will shine like the brightness of the expanse, and the ones providing justice for the many will be like the stars forever and ever.

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Genesis 15:5 And he brought him outside and said, “Look toward the heavens and count the stars if you are able to count them.” And he said to him, “So shall your offspring be.”

Romans 4:18 who against hope believed in hope, so that he became the father of many nations, according to what was said, “so will your descendants be.”

Romans 4:13 For the promise to Abraham or to his descendants, that he would be heir of the world, was not through the law, but through the righteousness by faith.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

2 Peter 1:4 through which things he has bestowed on us his precious and very great promises, so that through these you may become sharers of the divine nature after escaping from the corruption that is in the world because of evil desire,

1 John 3:1–3 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him. [2] Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is. [3] And everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as that one is pure.

1 Corinthians 15:35–49 But someone will say, "How are the dead raised? And with what sort of body do they come?" [36] Foolish person! What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. [37] And what you sow is not the body which it will become, but you sow the bare seed, whether perhaps of wheat or of some of the rest. [38] But God gives to it a body just as he wishes, and to each one of the seeds its own body. [39] Not all flesh is the same, but there is one flesh of human beings, and another flesh of animals, and another flesh of birds, and another of fish, [40] and heavenly bodies and earthly bodies. But the glory of the heavenly bodies is of one kind, and the glory of the earthly bodies is of another kind. [41] There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars, for star differs from star in glory.

[42] Thus also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruptibility. [43] It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power. [44] It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. [45] Thus also it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living soul”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. [46] But the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual. [47] The first man is from the earth, made of earth; the second man is from heaven. [48] As the one who is made of earth, so also are those who are made of earth, and as the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly. [49] And just as we have borne the image of the one who is made of earth, we will also bear the image of the heavenly.

Genesis 2:10–14 Now a river flowed out from Eden that watered the garden, and from there it diverged and became four branches. [11] The name of the first is the Pishon. It went around all the land of Havilah, where there is gold. [12] (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.) [13] And the name of the second is Gihon. It went around all the land of Cush. [14] And the name of the third is Tigris. It flows east of Assyria. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

Ezekiel 28:13–14 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

[14] You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain;

you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty,

and you said, ‘I am a god;

I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god,

and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Ezekiel 28:2 “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Because your heart was haughty,

and you said, ‘I am a god;

I sit in the seat of the gods, I sit in the heart of the seas!’

But you are a human, not a god,

and you gave your heart to be like the heart of a god.

Ezekiel 28:13–14 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain;

you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

Exodus 24:9–11 And Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel went up. 10 And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness. 11 And toward the leaders of the Israelites he did not stretch out his hand, and they beheld God, and they ate, and they drank.

Exodus 24:10 And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness.

Exodus 19:16 And on the third day, when it was morning, there was thunder and lightning, and a heavy cloud over the mountain and a very loud ram’s horn sound, and all the people who were in the camp trembled.

Exodus 19:18 And Mount Sinai was all wrapped in smoke because Yahweh went down on it in the fire, and its smoke went up like the smoke of a smelting furnace, and the whole mountain trembled greatly.

Exodus 20:18 And all the people were seeing the thunder and the lightning and the sound of the ram's horn and the mountain smoking, and the people saw, and they trembled, and they stood at a distance.

Deuteronomy 5:4–5 Face to face Yahweh spoke with you at the mountain from the midst of the fire. [5] I was standing between Yahweh and you at that time to report to you the word of Yahweh, for you were afraid because of the presence of the fire, and so you did not go up the mountain. He said,

Deuteronomy 5:22–26 "These words Yahweh spoke to your whole assembly at the mountain from the midst of the fire and the very thick cloud with a loud voice, and he did not add anything, and then he wrote them on two tablets of stone and gave them to me. [23] And then when you heard the voice from the midst of the darkness, and as the mountain was burning with fire, and and all the heads of your tribes and your elders approached me, [24] you said, 'Look, Yahweh our God has shown us his glory and his greatness, and we have heard his voice from the midst of the fire; this day we have seen that God can speak with a human being, yet he remains alive. [25] And so then why shall we die, for this great fire will consume us if we continue to hear the voice of Yahweh our God any longer, and so we shall die? [26] For who is there of all flesh who has heard the voice of the living God speaking from the midst of the fire as we have heard it and remained alive?

Daniel 7:9 "I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire.

Daniel 7:10 A stream of fire issued forth and flowed from his presence; thousands upon thousands served him and ten thousand upon ten thousand stood before him. The judge sat, and the books were opened.

Daniel 7:9–10 "I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire. [10] A stream of fire issued forth and flowed from his presence; thousands upon thousands served him and ten thousand upon ten thousand stood before him. The judge sat, and the books were opened.

Acts 7:52 Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? And they killed those who announced beforehand about the coming of the Righteous One, whose betrayers and murderers you have now become,

Acts 7:53 you who received the law by directions of angels and have not observed it!"

Acts 7:52–53 Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? And they killed those who announced beforehand about the coming of the Righteous One, whose betrayers and murderers you have now become, [53] you who received the law by directions of angels and have not observed it!"

Hebrews 2:1 Because of this, it is all the more necessary that we pay attention to the things we have heard, lest we drift away.

Hebrews 2:2 For if the word spoken through angels was binding and every transgression and act of disobedience received a just penalty,

Hebrews 2:3 how will we escape if we neglect so great a salvation which had its beginning when it was spoken through the Lord and was confirmed to us by those who heard,

Hebrews 2:1–3a Because of this, it is all the more necessary that we pay attention to the things we have heard, lest we drift away. [2] For if the word spoken through angels was binding and every transgression and act of disobedience received a just penalty, [3] how will we escape if we neglect so great a salvation which had its beginning when it was spoken through the Lord and was confirmed to us by those who heard,

Chapter 21: God's Law, God's Council

Romans 7:22 For I joyfully agree with the law of God in my inner person,

Psalm 19:7 The law of Yahweh is perfect, reviving life.

The testimony of Yahweh is firm, making wise the simple.

Psalm 19:8 The precepts of Yahweh are right, making the heart rejoice.

The command of Yahweh is pure, enlightening the eyes.

Psalm 19:7–8 The law of Yahweh is perfect, reviving life.

The testimony of Yahweh is firm, making wise the simple.

8 The precepts of Yahweh are right, making the heart rejoice.

The command of Yahweh is pure, enlightening the eyes.

Genesis 3:8 Then they heard the sound of Yahweh God walking in the garden at the windy time of day. And the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of Yahweh God among the trees of the garden.

Exodus 24:9–11 And Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel went up. 10 And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness. 11 And toward the leaders of the Israelites he did not stretch out his hand, and they beheld God, and they ate, and they drank.

Acts 7:53 you who received the law by directions of angels and have not observed it!”

Hebrews 2:2 For if the word spoken through angels was binding and every transgression and act of disobedience received a just penalty,

Psalm 68:15–18 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

16 Why do you look with hostility, O many-peaked mountains?

This mountain God desires for his dwelling.

Yes, Yahweh will abide in it forever.

17 The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, with thousands doubled.

The Lord is among them at Sinai, distinctive in victory.

18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Psalm 68:15 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

Psalm 68:16 Why do you look with hostility, O many-peaked mountains?

This mountain God desires for his dwelling.

Yes, Yahweh will abide in it forever.

Psalm 68:17 The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, with thousands doubled.

The Lord is among them at Sinai, distinctive in victory.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Deuteronomy 33:1–4 Now this is the blessing with which Moses, the man of God, blessed the Israelites before his death.

[2] Then he said, "Yahweh came from Sinai,

and he dawned upon them from Seir;

he shone forth from Mount Paran,

and he came with myriads of holy ones,

at his right hand a fiery law for them.

[3] Moreover, he loves his people, all the holy ones were in your hand, and they bowed down to your feet, each one accepted directions from you.

[4] A law Moses instructed for us, as a possession for the assembly of Jacob.

Deuteronomy 33:2 Then he said, "Yahweh came from Sinai,

and he dawned upon them from Seir;

he shone forth from Mount Paran,

and he came with myriads of holy ones,

at his right hand a fiery law for them.

Deuteronomy 33:3 Moreover, he loves his people, all the holy ones were in your hand, and they bowed down to your feet, each one accepted directions from you.

Acts 7:52–53 Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? And they killed those who announced beforehand about the coming of the Righteous One, whose betrayers and murderers you have now become, 53 you who received the law by directions of angels and have not observed it!”

Hebrews 2:1–2 Because of this, it is all the more necessary that we pay attention to the things we have heard, lest we drift away. 2 For if the word spoken through angels was binding and every transgression and act of disobedience received a just penalty,

Galatians 3:19 Why then the law? It was added on account of transgressions, until the descendant should come to whom it had been promised, having been ordered through angels by the hand of a mediator.

Galatians 3:19 Why then the law? It was added on account of transgressions, until the descendant should come to whom it had been promised, having been ordered through angels by the hand of a mediator.

Deuteronomy 9:9–10 When I went up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant that Yahweh made with you, and remained on the mountain forty days and forty nights, I did not eat food and I did not drink water. 10 And Yahweh gave me the two tablets of stone written with the finger of God, and on them was writing according to all the words that Yahweh spoke with you at the mountain, from the midst of the fire on the day of the assembly.

Deuteronomy 9:9 When I went up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant that Yahweh made with you, and remained on the mountain forty days and forty nights, I did not eat food and I did not drink water.

Deuteronomy 9:10 And Yahweh gave me the two tablets of stone written with the finger of God, and on them was writing according to all the words that Yahweh spoke with you at the mountain, from the midst of the fire on the day of the assembly.

Deuteronomy 33:1–4 Now this is the blessing with which Moses, the man of God, blessed the Israelites before his death.

2 Then he said,

"Yahweh came from Sinai,
and he dawned upon them from Seir;
he shone forth from Mount Paran,
and he came with myriads of holy ones,
at his right hand a fiery law for them.

3 Moreover, he loves his people, all the holy ones were in your hand, and they bowed down to your feet,
each one accepted directions from you.

4 A law Moses instructed for us, as a possession for the assembly of Jacob.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 15:1–6 After these things the word of Yahweh came to Abram in a vision, saying: "Do not be afraid, Abram; I am your shield, and your reward shall be very great." [2] Then Abram said, "O Yahweh, my Lord, what will you give me? I continue to be childless, and my heir is Eliezer of Damascus." [3] And Abram said, "Look, you have not given me a descendant, and here, a member of my household is my heir." [4] And behold, the word of Yahweh came to him saying, "This person will not be your heir, but your own son will be your heir." [5] And he brought him outside and said, "Look toward the heavens and count the stars if you are able to count them." And he said to him, "So shall your offspring be." [6] And he believed in Yahweh, and he reckoned it to him as righteousness.

Genesis 22:18 All the nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring, because you have listened to my voice."

Genesis 26:4 And I will multiply your descendants like the stars of heaven, and I will give to your descendants all these lands. And all nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring,

Genesis 27:29 Let peoples serve you, and nations bow down to you;

Be lord of your brothers, and may the sons of your mother bow down to you.

Cursed be those cursing you, and blessed be those blessing you."

Genesis 28:14 Your descendants shall be like the dust of the earth, and you will spread out to the west, and to the east, and to the north and to the south. And all the families of the earth will be blessed through you and through your descendants.

Exodus 3:7–8 And Yahweh said, “Surely I have seen the misery of my people who are in Egypt, and I have heard their cry of distress because of their oppressors, for I know their sufferings. 8 And I have come down to deliver them from the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them up from this land to a good and wide land, to a land flowing with milk and honey, to the place of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites.

Exodus 3:16–22 Go and gather the elders of Israel and say to them, ‘Yahweh, the God of your ancestors, appeared to me, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saying, “I have carefully attended to you and what has been done to you in Egypt.” 17 And I said, “I will bring you up from the misery of Egypt to the land of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, to a land flowing with milk and honey.” ’ 18 And they will listen to your voice, and you will go, you and the elders of Israel, to the king of Egypt, and you will say to him, ‘Yahweh, the God of the Hebrews has met with us, and now let us please go on a journey of three days into the desert, and let us sacrifice to Yahweh our God.’

19 But I myself know that the king of Egypt will not allow you to go unless compelled by a strong hand. 20 And I will stretch out my hand, and I will strike Egypt with all of my wonders that I will do in its midst, and afterward he will release you. 21 And I will give this people favor in the eyes of the Egyptians, and then when you go, you will not go empty-handed. 22 And a woman will ask from her neighbor and from the woman dwelling as an alien in her house for objects of silver and objects of gold and garments, and you will put them on your sons and on your daughters; and you will plunder Egypt.”

Exodus 6:4–6 And I not only established my covenant with them to give to them the land of Canaan, the land of their sojournings, in which they dwelt as aliens, 5 but also I myself heard the groaning of the Israelites, whom the Egyptians are making to work, and I remembered my covenant. 6 Therefore say to the Israelites, ‘I am Yahweh, and I will bring you out from under the forced labor of Egypt, and I will deliver you from their slavery, and I will redeem you with an outstretched arm and with great punishments.

Exodus 13:5 And when Yahweh brings you to the land of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Hivites and the Jebusites—which he swore to your ancestors to give to you, a land flowing with milk and honey—you will perform this service in this month.

Exodus 13:11 “And when Yahweh brings you to the land of the Canaanite, as he swore to you and to your ancestors, and he gives it to you, Exodus 1:6–10 And Joseph died and all of his brothers and all of that generation. 7 And the Israelites were fruitful and multiplied and were many and were very, very numerous, and the land was filled with them.

8 And a new king rose over Egypt who did not know Joseph. 9 And he said to his people, “Look, the people of the Israelites are greater and more numerous than us. 10 Come, we must deal shrewdly with them, lest they become many, and when war happens, they also will join our enemies and will fight against us and go up from the land.”

Genesis 15:13 And he said to Abram, “You must surely know that your descendants shall be as aliens in a land not their own. And they shall serve them and they shall oppress them four hundred years.

Genesis 15:9–10 And he said to him, “Take for me a three-year-old heifer, and a three-year-old female goat, and a three-year-old ram, and a turtledove and a young pigeon.” 10 And he took for him all these and cut them in pieces down the middle. And he put each piece opposite the other, but the birds he did not cut.

Exodus 24:3–8 And Moses came, and he told the people all the words of Yahweh and all the regulations. And all the people answered with one voice, and they said, “All the words that Yahweh has spoken we will do.”

4 And Moses wrote all the words of Yahweh, and he rose early in the morning, and he built an altar at the base of the mountain and set up twelve memorial stones for the twelve tribes of Israel. 5 And he sent young men from the Israelites, and they offered burnt offerings, and they sacrificed sacrifices as fellowship offerings to Yahweh using bulls. [6] And Moses took half of the blood, and he put it in bowls, and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar. [7] And he took the scroll of the covenant and read it in the hearing of the people, and they said, “All that Yahweh has spoken we will do, and we will listen.” [8] And Moses took the blood and sprinkled it on the people, and he said, “Look, the blood of the covenant that Yahweh has made with you in accordance with all these words.”

Exodus 24:9–11 And Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel went up. [10] And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness. [11] And toward the leaders of the Israelites he did not stretch out his hand, and they beheld God, and they ate, and they drank.

Psalm 19:7 The law of Yahweh is perfect, reviving life.

The testimony of Yahweh is firm, making wise the simple.

Psalm 78:5 For he established a testimony in Jacob, and appointed a law in Israel, which he commanded our ancestors to teach to their children,

Exodus 25:16 And you will put into the ark the testimony that I will give to you.

Exodus 25:22 And I will meet you there, and I will speak with you from over the atonement cover, from between the two cherubim that are to be on the ark of the testimony—all that I will command you to the Israelites.

Exodus 30:6 And you will put it before the curtain that is upon the ark of the testimony, before the atonement cover, which is on the testimony, there where I will meet with you.

Exodus 30:26 And you will anoint with it the tent of assembly and the ark of the testimony,

Exodus 39:35 the ark of the testimony and its poles and the atonement cover;

Exodus 40:3 And you will put there the ark of the testimony, and you will cover over the ark with the curtain.

Exodus 40:5 And you will put the gold altar for incense before the ark of the testimony, and you will set up the entrance screen for the tabernacle.

Exodus 40:21 And he brought the ark into the tabernacle, and he set up the curtain of the screening, and he shielded the ark of the testimony, as Yahweh had commanded Moses.

Exodus 38:21 These are the records of the tabernacle, the tabernacle of the testimony, which were recorded at the command of Moses, the work of the Levites, in the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

Numbers 1:50 You will appoint them over the tabernacle of the testimony, over all its vessels, and over all that belongs to it. They will carry the tabernacle and all its vessels, and they will care for it; and they will camp around the tabernacle.

Numbers 1:53 But the Levites will encamp around the tabernacle of the testimony, and there will not be wrath on the community of the Israelites; and the Levites will keep the requirements of the tabernacle of the testimony."

Numbers 10:11 And it happened, in the second year, in the second month, on the twentieth of the month the cloud was lifted from upon the tabernacle of the testimony.

Numbers 9:15 And on a day setting up the tabernacle, the cloud covered the tent of the tabernacle, the tent of the testimony; in the evening it was on the tabernacle as an appearance of fire until morning.

Numbers 17:7–8 Then, when the community had gathered against Moses and Aaron, they turned to the tent of assembly, and behold, the cloud covered it, and the glory of Yahweh appeared. [43] And Moses and Aaron came to the front of the tent of assembly,

Numbers 18:2 Moreover, bring your brothers with you, the tribe of Levi the tribe of your father, that they may be joined to you and minister to you, you and your sons with you before the tent of testimony.

2 Chronicles 24:6 So the king called Jehoiada the chief, and he said to him, “Why have you not required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax of Moses, the servant of Yahweh, and of the assembly of Israel for the tent of the testimony?”

Genesis 12:7 And Yahweh appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land.” And he built an altar there to Yahweh, who had appeared to him.

Genesis 13:18 So Abram pitched his tent, and he came and settled at the oaks of Mamre, which were at Hebron. And there he built an altar to Yahweh.

Exodus 17:15 And Moses built an altar, and he called its name Yahweh Is My Banner.

Exodus 24:4 And Moses wrote all the words of Yahweh, and he rose early in the morning, and he built an altar at the base of the mountain and set up twelve memorial stones for the twelve tribes of Israel.

Leviticus 19:2 “Speak to all the community of the Israelites, and say to them, ‘You must be holy, because I, Yahweh your God, am holy.

Deuteronomy 4:6–8 And you must observe them diligently, for that is your wisdom and your insight before the eyes of the people, who will hear all of these rules, and they will say, ‘Surely this great nation is a wise and discerning people.’ 7 For what great nation has for it a god near to it as Yahweh our God, whenever we call upon him? 8 And what other great nation has for it just rules and regulations just like this whole law that I am setting before you today?

Deuteronomy 28:9–10 Yahweh will establish you for himself as a holy people as he has sworn to you, if you keep the commandments of Yahweh your God and you walk in his ways. 10 And all of the peoples of the earth shall see that by the name of Yahweh you are called, and they shall fear you.

Exodus 19:6 but you, you will belong to me as a kingdom of priests and a holy nation.' These are the words that you will speak to the Israelites."

Isaiah 42:6 "I am Yahweh; I have called you in righteousness, and I have grasped your hand and watched over you;

and I have given you as a covenant of the people, as a light of the nations,

Isaiah 49:6 And he says, "It is trivial for you to be a servant for me, to raise up the tribes of Jacob

and to bring back the preserved of Israel.

I will give you as a light to the nations, to be my salvation to the end of the earth."

Isaiah 51:4 "Listen attentively to me, my people, and my nation, listen to me!

For a teaching will go out from me, and I will cause my justice to rest for a light to the peoples.

Isaiah 60:3 And nations shall come to your light, and kings to the bright light of your sunrise.

Revelation 5:10 and made them a kingdom and priests to our God, and they will reign on the earth."

Genesis 12:3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

1 Corinthians 9:21 To those outside the law I became as outside the law (although I am not outside the law of God, but subject to the law of Christ) in order that I may gain those outside the law.

Galatians 6:2 Carry the burdens of one another, and so fulfill the law of Christ.

Acts 4:12 And there is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven that is given among people by which we must be saved."

Romans 11:17–24 Now if some of the branches were broken off, and you, although you were a wild olive tree, were grafted in among them and became a sharer of the root of the olive tree's richness, [18] do not boast against the branches. But if you boast against them, you do not support the root, but the root supports you. [19] Then you will say, "Branches were broken off in order that I could be grafted in." [20] Well said! They were broken off because of unbelief, but you stand firm because of faith. Do not think arrogant thoughts, but be afraid. [21] For if God did not spare the natural branches, neither will he spare you. [22] See, then, the kindness and severity of God: severity upon those who have fallen, but upon you the kindness of God—if you continue in his kindness, for otherwise you also will be cut off. [23] And those also, if they do not persist in unbelief, will be grafted in, because God is able to graft them in again. [24] For if you were cut off from what is by nature a wild olive tree, and contrary to nature were grafted into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will these who are natural branches be grafted into their own olive tree?

Hebrews 3:19 And so we see that they were not able to enter because of unbelief.

Hebrews 10:22 let us approach with a true heart in the full assurance of faith, our hearts sprinkled clean from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water.

Hebrews 10:38–39 But my righteous one will live by faith, and if he shrinks back, my soul is not well pleased with him."

[39] But we are not among those who shrink back to destruction, but among those who have faith to the preservation of our souls.

Chapter 22: Realm Distinction

Leviticus 19:2 “Speak to all the community of the Israelites, and say to them, ‘You must be holy, because I, Yahweh your God, am holy.

Exodus 25:9 according to all that I show you—the pattern of the tabernacle and the pattern of all its equipment—and so you will do.

Exodus 25:40 And see and make all according to their pattern, which you were shown in the mountain.

Exodus 26:30 And you will erect the tabernacle according to its plan, which you have been shown on the mountain.

Isaiah 40:22 He is the one who sits above the circle of the earth, and its inhabitants are like grasshoppers; the one who stretches out the heavens like a veil and spreads them out like a tent to live in,

Isaiah 66:1 Thus says Yahweh: “Heaven is my throne,

and the earth is the footstool for my feet.

Where is this house that you would build for me?

And where is this resting place for me?

Job 9:8 He is the one who alone stretches out the heavens and who tramples on the waves of the sea.

Psalm 104:2 you who cover yourself with light as with a garment, who stretch out the heavens like a tent curtain, Leviticus 9:23 Then Moses and Aaron entered the tent of assembly. When they came out, they blessed the people, and Yahweh’s glory appeared to all the people.

Numbers 20:6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the doorway of the tent of assembly. They fell on their faces, and the glory of Yahweh appeared to them.

Deuteronomy 31:15 And Yahweh appeared in the tent in a column of cloud, and the column of the cloud stood at the entrance of the tent.

Exodus 40:34–35 And the cloud covered the tent of assembly, and the glory of Yahweh filled the tabernacle. 35 And Moses was unable to go into the tent of assembly because the cloud settled on it and the glory of Yahweh filled the tabernacle.

Exodus 25:31–36 “And you will make a lampstand of pure gold; the lampstand will be made of hammered work—its base and its branch, its cups, its buds, and its blossoms will be from it. 32 And six branches will be going out from its sides, three branches of the lampstand from its one side and three branches of the lampstand from its second side. 33 Three almond-flower cups will be on the one branch with a bud and a blossom, and three almond-flower cups will be on the one branch with a bud and a blossom—likewise for the six branches going out from the lampstand. 34 And on the lampstand will be four almond-flower cups, with its buds and its blossoms. 35 And a bud will be under the two branches that come from it, and a bud under the two branches from it, and a bud under the two branches from it, likewise for the six branches coming out from the lampstand. 36 Their buds and their branches will be from it, all of it one piece of pure gold hammered work.

Genesis 3:24 So he drove the man out, and placed cherubim east of the garden of Eden, and a flaming, turning sword to guard the way to the tree of life.

Genesis 2:12 (The gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx stones are there.)

1 Kings 6:20–22 In front, the inner sanctuary was twenty cubits long and twenty cubits wide and twenty cubits high, and he overlaid it with pure gold and covered the altar with cedar. 21 Solomon overlaid the temple on the inside with pure gold, and he drew across it with golden chains in front of the inner sanctuary, which he overlaid with gold.

22 All of the temple he overlaid with gold until all of the temple was finished; all of the altar which belonged to the inner sanctuary he overlaid with gold.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples,

according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Leviticus 16:7 And he shall take the two goats, and he shall present them before Yahweh at the tent of assembly's entrance.

Leviticus 16:8 Then Aaron shall cast lots for the two goats: one lot for Yahweh and one for Azazel.

Leviticus 16:9 And Aaron shall present the goat on which the lot for Yahweh fell, and he shall sacrifice it as a sin offering.

Leviticus 16:10 But he must present alive before Yahweh the goat on which the lot for Azazel fell to make atonement for himself, to send it away into the desert to Azazel.

Leviticus 16:8 Then Aaron shall cast lots for the two goats: one lot for Yahweh and one for Azazel.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Leviticus 17:7 And they may no longer sacrifice their sacrifices to the goat-idols after which they were prostituting. This is a lasting statute for them throughout their generations." '

Section Summary

Genesis 9:1 And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth.

Genesis 1:22 And God blessed them, saying, "Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let the birds multiply on the earth."

Genesis 1:28 And God blessed them, and God said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth."

Genesis 3:8 Then they heard the sound of Yahweh God walking in the garden at the windy time of day. And the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of Yahweh God among the trees of the garden.

Part 5: Conquest and Failure

Chapter 23: Giant Problems

Genesis 3:15 And I will put hostility between you and between the woman, and between your offspring and between her offspring;
he will strike you on the head, and you will strike him on the heel."

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Matthew 23:33 Serpents! Offspring of vipers! How will you escape from the condemnation to hell?

John 8:44 You are of your father the devil, and you want to do the desires of your father! That one was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand firm in the truth, because truth is not in him. Whenever he speaks the lie, he speaks from his own nature, because he is a liar and the father of lies.

Revelation 12:6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she had a place prepared there by God, so that they could feed her there for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days

shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

1 John 3:12 not as Cain, who was of the evil one and violently murdered his brother. And for what reason did he violently murder him? Because his deeds were evil and the deeds of his brother were righteous.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words. [2] And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. [3] And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. [4] And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

[5] Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. [6] And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. [7] Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” [8] So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. [9] Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Numbers 13:32 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. [33] There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Matthew 22:23–33 On that day Sadducees—who say there is no resurrection—came up to him and asked him, [24] saying, “Teacher, Moses said if someone dies without having children, his brother is to marry his wife and father descendants for his brother. [25] Now there were seven brothers with us. And the first died after getting married, and because he did not have descendants, he left his wife to his brother. [26] So also the second and the third, up to the seventh. [27] And last of all the woman died. [28] In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife of the seven will she be? For they all had her as wife.” [29] But Jesus answered and said to them, “You are mistaken, because you do not know the scriptures or the power of God! [30] For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels of God in heaven. [31] Now concerning the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken to you by God, who said, [32] “I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob”? He is not the God of the dead, but of the living!” [33] And when the crowds heard this, they were amazed at his teaching.

Matthew 22:30 For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels of God in heaven.

Matthew 22:23 On that day Sadducees—who say there is no resurrection—came up to him and asked him, Matthew 22:24 saying, “Teacher, Moses said if someone dies without having children, his brother is to marry his wife and father descendants for his brother.

Matthew 22:25 Now there were seven brothers with us. And the first died after getting married, and because he did not have descendants, he left his wife to his brother.

Matthew 22:26 So also the second and the third, up to the seventh.

Matthew 22:27 And last of all the woman died.

Matthew 22:28 In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife of the seven will she be? For they all had her as wife.”

Matthew 22:29 But Jesus answered and said to them, “You are mistaken, because you do not know the scriptures or the power of God!

Matthew 22:30 For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels of God in heaven.

Matthew 22:31 Now concerning the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken to you by God, who said, Matthew 22:32 “I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob”? He is not the God of the dead, but of the living!”

Matthew 22:33 And when the crowds heard this, they were amazed at his teaching.

Matthew 22:23–33 On that day Sadducees—who say there is no resurrection—came up to him and asked him, [24] saying, “Teacher, Moses said if someone dies without having children, his brother is to marry his wife and father descendants for his brother. [25] Now there were seven brothers with us. And the first died after getting married, and because he did not have descendants, he left his wife to his brother. [26] So also the second and the third, up to the seventh. [27] And last of all the woman died. [28] In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife of the seven will she be? For they all had her as wife.” [29] But Jesus answered and said to them, “You are mistaken, because you do not know the scriptures or the power of God! [30] For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels of God in heaven. [31] Now concerning the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken to you by God, who said, [32] “I am the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob”? He is not the God of the dead, but of the living!” [33] And when the crowds heard this, they were amazed at his teaching.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days

shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 18:1–8 And Yahweh appeared to him by the oaks of Mamre. And he was sitting in the doorway of the tent at the heat of the day. [2] And he lifted up his eyes and saw, and behold, three men were standing near him. And he saw them and ran from the doorway of the tent to meet them. And he bowed down to the ground. [3] And he said, “My lord, if I have found favor in your eyes do not pass by your servant. [4] Let a little water be brought and wash your feet, and rest under the tree. [5] And let me bring a piece of bread, then refresh yourselves. Afterward you can pass on, once you have passed by with your servant.” Then they said, “Do so as you have said.” [6] Then Abraham hastened into the tent to Sarah, and he said, “Quickly—make three seahs of fine flour for kneading and make bread cakes!” [7] And Abraham ran to the cattle and took a calf, tender and good, and gave it to the servant, and he made haste to prepare it. [8] Then he took curds and milk, and the calf which he prepared, and set it before them. And he was standing by them under the tree while they ate.

Genesis 19:10 Then the men reached out with their hands and brought Lot in to them, into the house, and they shut the door.

Genesis 32:22–31 That night he arose and took his two wives, his two female slaves, and his eleven children and crossed the ford of the Jabbok. [23] And he took them and sent them across the stream. Then he sent across all his possessions. [24] And Jacob remained alone, and a man wrestled with him until the breaking of the dawn. [25] And when he saw that he could not prevail against him, he struck his hip socket, so that Jacob’s hip socket was sprained as he wrestled with him. [26] Then he said, “Let me go, for dawn is breaking.” But he answered, “I will not let you go unless you bless me.” [27] Then he said to him, “What is your name?” And he said, “Jacob.” [28] And he said, “Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel, for you have struggled with God and with men and have prevailed.” [29] Then Jacob asked and said, “Please tell me your name.” And he said, “Why do you ask this—for my name?” And he blessed him there. [30] Then Jacob called the name of the place Peniel which means “I have seen God face to face and my life was spared.” [31] Then the sun rose upon him as he passed Penuel, and he was limping because of his hip.

Genesis 32:24 And Jacob remained alone, and a man wrestled with him until the breaking of the dawn.

Genesis 32:30–31 Then Jacob called the name of the place Peniel which means “I have seen God face to face and my life was spared.” [31] Then the sun rose upon him as he passed Penuel, and he was limping because of his hip.

Hosea 12:3–4 In the womb he deceived his brother, and in his manhood he struggled with God.

[4] He struggled with the angel and prevailed; he pleaded for his mercy.

He met him at Bethel,

and there he spoke with him.

Genesis 32:31–32 Then the sun rose upon him as he passed Penuel, and he was limping because of his hip. [32] Therefore the Israelites do not eat the sinew of the sciatic nerve that is upon the socket of the hip unto this day, because he struck the socket of the thigh of Jacob at the sinew of the sciatic nerve.

Matthew 4:11 Then the devil left him, and behold, angels came and began ministering to him.

Mark 1:13 And he was in the wilderness forty days being tempted by Satan. And he was with the wild animals, and the angels were ministering to him.

Matthew 28:5 But the angel answered and said to the women, “Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified.

Luke 1:11–21 And an angel of the Lord appeared to him, standing at the right side of the altar of incense. [12] And Zechariah was terrified when he saw the angel, and fear fell upon him. [13] But the angel said to him, “Do not be afraid, Zechariah, because your prayer has been heard, and your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you will call his name John.

14 And you will experience joy and exultation, and many will rejoice at his birth.
15 For he will be great in the sight of the Lord, and he must never drink wine or beer, and he will be filled with the Holy Spirit while he is still in his mother's womb.
16 And he will turn many of the sons of Israel to the Lord their God.
17 And he will go on before him in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the righteous, to prepare for the Lord a people made ready."

18 And Zechariah said to the angel, "By what will I know this? For I am an old man, and my wife is advanced in years!" 19 And the angel answered and said to him, "I am Gabriel, who stands in the presence of God, and I was sent to speak to you and to announce to you this good news. 20 And behold, you will be silent and not able to speak until the day these things take place, because you did not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in their time."

21 And the people were waiting for Zechariah, and began to wonder when he was delayed in the temple.

Luke 1:30–38 And the angel said to her, "Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found favor with God.

31 And behold, you will conceive in the womb and will give birth to a son, and you will call his name Jesus.
32 This one will be great, and he will be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God will give him the throne of his father David.
33 And he will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there will be no end.

[34] And Mary said to the angel, “How will this be, since I have not had sexual relations with a man?” [35] And the angel answered and said to her, “The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you.

Therefore also the one to be born will be called holy, the Son of God.

[36] And behold, your relative Elizabeth—she also has conceived a son in her old age, and this is the sixth month for her who was called barren. [37] For nothing will be impossible with God.”

[38] So Mary said, “Behold, the Lord’s female slave! May it happen to me according to your word.” And the angel departed from her.

Acts 10:3 About the ninth hour of the day, he saw clearly in a vision an angel of God coming to him and saying to him, “Cornelius.”

Acts 5:19 But during the night an angel of the Lord opened the doors of the prison and led them out and said,

Acts 12:7 And behold, an angel of the Lord stood near him, and a light shone in the prison cell. And striking Peter’s side, he woke him up, saying, “Get up quickly!” And his chains fell off of his hands.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Deuteronomy 2:10–11 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites. 11 They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim.

Deuteronomy 2:21 a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them,

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised."

Joshua 14:15 And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Genesis 6:9 These are the generations of Noah. Noah was a righteous man, without defect in his generations. Noah walked with God.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Chapter 24: The Place of the Serpent

Numbers 13:27 And they told him, “We came to the land that you sent us, and it is flowing of milk and honey; this is its fruit.

Numbers 14:33–35 And your children will be shepherds in the desert forty years, and you will bear your unfaithfulness until all your corpses have fallen in the desert. 34 According to the number of the days that you explored the land, forty days, a day for each year, you will bear your sins forty years, and you will know my opposition.’ 35 I, Yahweh, have spoken; I will surely do this to all this evil community who has banded together against me. In this desert they will come to an end, and there they will die.”

Deuteronomy 2:8 And so we passed by our brothers, the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, past the road of the Arabah, from Elath and Ezion Geber, and we turned and traveled along the route of the desert of Moab.

Deuteronomy 2:9 And Yahweh said to me, ‘You shall not attack Moab, and you shall not engage in war with them, for I will not give you any of his land as a possession; I have given Ar to the descendants of Lot as a possession.’

Deuteronomy 2:10 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites.

Deuteronomy 2:10 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites.

Deuteronomy 2:11 They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim.

Deuteronomy 2:12 The Horites previously lived in Seir, but the descendants of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from among themselves, as Israel did with respect to the land of their possession that Yahweh gave to them.)

Deuteronomy 2:17 Yahweh spoke to me, saying,

Deuteronomy 2:18 ‘You are about to cross over the boundary of Moab today at Ar.

Deuteronomy 2:19 When you approach the border of the Ammonites, you shall not harass them, and you shall not get involved in battle with them, for I have not given the land of the Ammonites to you as a possession; because I have given it to the descendants of Lot as a possession.

Deuteronomy 2:20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim,

Deuteronomy 2:21 a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them,

Deuteronomy 2:22 just as he did for the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed the Horites from before them and dispossessed them, and then they settled in their place up to this day.

Deuteronomy 2:23 And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

Deuteronomy 2:8–22 And so we passed by our brothers, the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, past the road of the Arabah, from Elath and Ezion Geber, and we turned and traveled along the route of the desert of Moab.

9 And Yahweh said to me, ‘You shall not attack Moab, and you shall not engage in war with them, for I will not give you any of his land as a possession; I have given Ar to the descendants of Lot as a possession.’ 10

(The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites. 11 They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim. 12 The Horites previously lived in Seir, but the descendants of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from among themselves, as Israel did with respect to the land of their possession that Yahweh gave to them.) 13 So now arise and cross over the wadi of Zered yourselves; and so we crossed the wadi of Zered. 14 Now the length of time that we had traveled from Kadesh Barnea until the time when we crossed the wadi of Zered was thirty-eight years, until the perishing of all of that generation; that is, the men of war from the midst of the camp as Yahweh had sworn to them. 15 The hand of Yahweh was against them to root them out from the midst of the camp until they perished completely.

16 "And then when all the men of war had died from among the people, 17 Yahweh spoke to me, saying, 18 'You are about to cross over the boundary of Moab today at Ar. 19 When you approach the border of the Ammonites, you shall not harass them, and you shall not get involved in battle with them, for I have not given the land of the Ammonites to you as a possession; because I have given it to the descendants of Lot as a possession. 20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, 21 a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them, 22 just as he did for the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed the Horites from before them and dispossessed them, and then they settled in their place up to this day.

Deuteronomy 2:10–11 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites. 11 They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim.

Deuteronomy 2:19–20 When you approach the border of the Ammonites, you shall not harass them, and you shall not get involved in battle with them, for I have not given the land of the Ammonites to you as a possession; because I have given it to the descendants of Lot as a possession. [20] (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, Deuteronomy 2:12 The Horites previously lived in Seir, but the descendants of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from among themselves, as Israel did with respect to the land of their possession that Yahweh gave to them.)

Deuteronomy 2:21 a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them,

Deuteronomy 2:10–11 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites. [11] They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. [33] There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Deuteronomy 2:11 They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim.

Deuteronomy 2:20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim,

Deuteronomy 2:27–29 ‘Let me cross through your land and only along the road I will go; I will not turn aside to the right or to the left. [28] Food for money you shall sell me, so that I may eat, and water for money you will give to me, so that I may drink; just let me cross on foot. [29] Just as the descendants of Esau did for me, who live in Seir, and the Moabites, who live in Ar, until I cross the Jordan into the land that Yahweh our God is giving to us.’

Deuteronomy 2:26 “So I sent messengers from the wilderness of Kedemoth to Sihon king of Heshbon; I sent terms of peace, saying,

Deuteronomy 2:27 ‘Let me cross through your land and only along the road I will go; I will not turn aside to the right or to the left.

Deuteronomy 2:28 Food for money you shall sell me, so that I may eat, and water for money you will give to me, so that I may drink; just let me cross on foot.

Deuteronomy 2:29 Just as the descendants of Esau did for me, who live in Seir, and the Moabites, who live in Ar, until I cross the Jordan into the land that Yahweh our God is giving to us.’

Deuteronomy 2:30 But Sihon king of Heshbon was not willing to let us cross through his territory because Yahweh your God hardened his spirit and made him obstinate in order to give him into your hand, just as he has now done.

Deuteronomy 2:26–30 “So I sent messengers from the wilderness of Kedemoth to Sihon king of Heshbon; I sent terms of peace, saying, 27 ‘Let me cross through your land and only along the road I will go; I will not turn aside to the right or to the left. 28 Food for money you shall sell me, so that I may eat, and water for money you will give to me, so that I may drink; just let me cross on foot. 29 Just as the descendants of Esau did for me, who live in Seir, and the Moabites, who live in Ar, until I cross the Jordan into the land that Yahweh our God is giving to us.’ 30 But Sihon king of Heshbon was not willing to let us cross through his territory because Yahweh your God hardened his spirit and made him obstinate in order to give him into your hand, just as he has now done.

Genesis 15:13 And he said to Abram, “You must surely know that your descendants shall be as aliens in a land not their own. And they shall serve them and they shall oppress them four hundred years.

Genesis 15:14 And also the nation that they serve I will judge. Then afterward they shall go out with great possessions.

Genesis 15:15 And as for you, you shall go to your ancestors in peace; you shall be buried in a good old age.

Genesis 15:16 And the fourth generation shall return here, for the guilt of the Amorites is not yet complete."

Genesis 15:13–16 And he said to Abram, "You must surely know that your descendants shall be as aliens in a land not their own. And they shall serve them and they shall oppress them four hundred years. 14 And also the nation that they serve I will judge. Then afterward they shall go out with great possessions. 15 And as for you, you shall go to your ancestors in peace; you shall be buried in a good old age. 16 And the fourth generation shall return here, for the guilt of the Amorites is not yet complete."

Deuteronomy 3:2 And Yahweh said to me, 'You should not fear him, for I have given him and all of his army and his land into your hand. And so you will do to him as you did to Sihon the king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon.'

Joshua 7:7 And Joshua said, "Ah, my Lord! Why did you bring this people across the Jordan to give us into the hand of the Amorites to destroy us? If only we had been content and stayed beyond the Jordan.

Genesis 15:19–21 the land of the Kenites, the Kenizzites, the Kadmonites, 20 the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaim, 21 the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites, and the Jebusites."

Amos 2:9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, who was as tall as cedars and was as strong as the oaks. I destroyed his fruit above and his roots beneath.

Amos 2:10 And I brought you up from the land of Egypt, and I led you in the wilderness forty years to take possession of the land of the Amorite.

Amos 2:9–10 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, who was as tall as cedars and was as strong as the oaks. I destroyed his fruit above and his roots beneath. 10 And I brought you up from the land of Egypt, and I led you in the wilderness forty years to take possession of the land of the Amorite.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. [33] There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Deuteronomy 3:2 And Yahweh said to me, ‘You should not fear him, for I have given him and all of his army and his land into your hand. And so you will do to him as you did to Sihon the king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon.’

Deuteronomy 3:3 And so Yahweh our God also gave Og the king of Bashan, and all of his army into our hand, and we struck him down until not a survivor remained to him.

Deuteronomy 3:6 And so we destroyed them just as we had done to Sihon the king of Heshbon; we destroyed utterly each town of males, the women, and the little children.

Deuteronomy 3:7 But all of the livestock and the booty of the towns we kept as spoil for ourselves.

Deuteronomy 3:8 “And so we took at that time the land from the control of the two kings of the Amorites who were on the other side of the Jordan, from the wadi of Arnon up to Mount Hermon.

Deuteronomy 3:9 (The Sidonians called Hermon ‘Sirion,’ and the Amorites called it ‘Senir.’)

Deuteronomy 3:10 All of the towns of the plateau and the whole of Gilead and all of Bashan up to Salecah and Edrei, the towns of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

Deuteronomy 3:11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

Deuteronomy 3:1–11 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei. 2 And Yahweh said to me, ‘You should not fear him, for I have given him and all of his army and his land into your hand. And so you will do to him as you did to Sihon the king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon.’ 3 And so Yahweh our God also gave Og the king of Bashan, and all of his army into our hand, and we struck him down until not a survivor remained to him. 4 And we captured all of his towns at that time; there was not a city that we did not take from them. 5 All of these were fortified towns with high walls, gates, and bars, apart from very many of the villages of the open country. 6 And so we destroyed them just as we had done to Sihon the king of Heshbon; we destroyed utterly each town of males, the women, and the little children. 7 But all of the livestock and the booty of the towns we kept as spoil for ourselves.

8 “And so we took at that time the land from the control of the two kings of the Amorites who were on the other side of the Jordan, from the wadi of Arnon up to Mount Hermon. 9 (The Sidonians called Hermon ‘Sirion,’ and the Amorites called it ‘Senir.’) 10 All of the towns of the plateau and the whole of Gilead and all of Bashan up to Salecah and Edrei, the towns of the kingdom of Og in Bashan. 11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 2:11 They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim.

Deuteronomy 2:20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, Deuteronomy 3:10 All of the towns of the plateau and the whole of Gilead and all of Bashan up to Salecah and Edrei, the towns of the kingdom of Og in Bashan.

Joshua 12:4–5 the territory of Og king of Bashan, one of the last of the Rephaites, who lived at Ashtaroth and Edrei [5] and ruled over Mount Hermon and Salecah and over all Bashan up to the border of the Geshurites and the Maacathites, and half of Gilead, as far as the border of Sihon king of Heshbon.

Joshua 12:4–5 the territory of Og king of Bashan, one of the last of the Rephaites, who lived at Ashtaroth and Edrei [5] and ruled over Mount Hermon and Salecah and over all Bashan up to the border of the Geshurites and the Maacathites, and half of Gilead, as far as the border of Sihon king of Heshbon.

Chapter 25: Holy War

Deuteronomy 3:1–11 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei. 2 And Yahweh said to me, ‘You should not fear him, for I have given him and all of his army and his land into your hand. And so you will do to him as you did to Sihon the king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon.’ 3 And so Yahweh our God also gave Og the king of Bashan, and all of his army into our hand, and we struck him down until not a survivor remained to him. 4 And we captured all of his towns at that time; there was not a city that we did not take from them. 5 All of these were fortified towns with high walls, gates, and bars, apart from very many of the villages of the open country. 6 And so we destroyed them just as we had done to Sihon the king of Heshbon; we destroyed utterly each town of males, the women, and the little children. 7 But all of the livestock and the booty of the towns we kept as spoil for ourselves.

8 “And so we took at that time the land from the control of the two kings of the Amorites who were on the other side of the Jordan, from the wadi of Arnon up to Mount Hermon. 9 (The Sidonians called Hermon ‘Sirion,’ and the Amorites called it ‘Senir.’) 10 All of the towns of the plateau and the whole of Gilead and all of Bashan up to Salecah and Edrei, the towns of the kingdom of Og in Bashan. 11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

Deuteronomy 3:6 And so we destroyed them just as we had done to Sihon the king of Heshbon; we destroyed utterly each town of males, the women, and the little children.

Leviticus 27:28 However, anything devoted that a man has devoted to Yahweh from all that he has, from human or animal, or from the field of his property, may not be sold, and it may not be redeemed; anything devoted is a most holy thing for Yahweh.

Numbers 18:14 All consecrated possessions in Israel will be for you.

Joshua 6:18 As for you, keep away from the things devoted to destruction so that you do not take them and bring about your own destruction, making the camp of Israel an object for destruction, bringing trouble upon it.

Micah 4:13 Arise and thresh, O daughter of Zion, for your horn I will make as iron and your hooves as bronze.

And you will break many peoples in pieces, and their gain you will devote to destruction to Yahweh, and their wealth to the Lord of the whole earth."

Exodus 22:20 " 'Whoever sacrifices to the gods—not to Yahweh, to him alone—will be destroyed.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind,

he fixed the boundaries of the peoples,

according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 2:34 So we captured all of his cities at that time, and we destroyed each town of males and the women and the children; we did not leave behind a survivor.

Deuteronomy 3:6 And so we destroyed them just as we had done to Sihon the king of Heshbon; we destroyed utterly each town of males, the women, and the little children.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Numbers 13:32 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Genesis 15:16 And the fourth generation shall return here, for the guilt of the Amorites is not yet complete."

Joshua 7:7 And Joshua said, "Ah, my Lord! Why did you bring this people across the Jordan to give us into the hand of the Amorites to destroy us? If only we had been content and stayed beyond the Jordan.

Genesis 12:6 And Abram traveled through the land up to the place of Shechem, to the Oak of Moreh. Now the Canaanites were in the land at that time.

Genesis 28:1 Then Isaac called Jacob and blessed him. And he instructed him and said to him, "You must not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan.

Genesis 28:6 Now Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob and sent him away to Paddan-Aram, to take for himself a wife from there, and he blessed him and instructed him, saying, "You must not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan,"

Numbers 13:28–29 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large; moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. [29] The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan."

Numbers 13:29 The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan."

Deuteronomy 7:1–2 "When Yahweh your God brings you into the land that you are about to enter into it to take possession of it, and he drives out many nations before you, the Hittites and the Girgashites and the Amorites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, seven nations mightier and more numerous than you, [2] and Yahweh your God will give them over to you and you defeat them, you must utterly destroy them; you shall not make a covenant with them, and you shall not show mercy to them.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Deuteronomy 7:1–2 “When Yahweh your God brings you into the land that you are about to enter into it to take possession of it, and he drives out many nations before you, the Hittites and the Girgashites and the Amorites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, seven nations mightier and more numerous than you, 2 and Yahweh your God will give them over to you and you defeat them, you must utterly destroy them; you shall not make a covenant with them, and you shall not show mercy to them.

Numbers 27:18–23 Then Yahweh said to Moses, “Take Joshua son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and place your hand on him. 19 Have him stand before Eleazar the priest and before the entire community, and commission him in their sight. 20 You will give to him from your authority so that the entire community of Israel will obey him. 21 He will stand before Eleazar the priest, who will ask for him by the decision of the Urim before Yahweh. On his command they will go out, and at his command they will come in, both he and all of the Israelites with him, the entire community.” 22 Moses did just as Yahweh commanded him, and he took Joshua and set him before Eleazar the priest and before the entire community. 23 And he placed his hands on him and commissioned him just as Yahweh spoke by the hand of Moses.

Deuteronomy 34:9 Now Joshua the son of Nun was full of the spirit of wisdom because Moses had placed his hands on him, and the Israelites listened to him, and they did as Yahweh had commanded Moses.

Joshua 6:18 As for you, keep away from the things devoted to destruction so that you do not take them and bring about your own destruction, making the camp of Israel an object for destruction, bringing trouble upon it.

Joshua 6:21 And they utterly destroyed by the edge of the sword all who were in the city, both men and women, young and old, ox, sheep, and donkey.

Joshua 8:26 For Joshua did not draw back his hand that was stretched out with the sword until he had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai.

Joshua 10:28 Joshua captured Makkedah on that day, and he struck it and its king with the edge of the sword; he utterly destroyed it and everyone that was in it. He did not leave behind a survivor. So he did to the king of Makkedah just as he did to the king of Jericho.

Joshua 10:29 And Joshua passed on, and all of Israel with him, from Makkedah to Libnah, and he fought against Libnah.

Joshua 10:30 And Yahweh also gave it into the hand of Israel, and its king and all the people in it he struck with the edge of the sword. He left in it no survivor. He did to its king just as he did to the king of Jericho.

Joshua 10:31 And Joshua passed on, and all of Israel with him, from Libnah to Lachish, and he laid siege to it and fought against it.

Joshua 10:32 And Yahweh gave Lachish into the hand of Israel, and he captured it on the second day. He struck it with the edge of the sword, and everyone in it, just as he did to Libnah.

Joshua 10:33 Then Horam king of Gezer came up to help Lachish, and Joshua struck him and his people until he left no survivor behind.

Joshua 10:34 And Joshua passed on, and all of Israel with him, from Lachish to Eglon, and they laid siege to it and fought against it.

Joshua 10:35 And they captured it on that day, and he struck it with the edge of the sword, and all the people that were in it on that day he utterly destroyed as he had done to Lachish.

Joshua 10:36 And Joshua went up, and all Israel with him, from Eglon to Hebron, and they fought against it

Joshua 10:37 and captured it, and they struck it with the edge of the sword, its king and all its cities, and all the people that were in it; he left behind no survivor, as he had done to Eglon, and he utterly destroyed it and all the people that were in it.

Joshua 10:38 Then Joshua returned to Debir, and all of Israel with him, and they fought against it, Joshua 10:39 and he captured it and its king and all its cities, and they struck them with the the edge of the sword, and they utterly destroyed all the people that were in it; he left behind no survivor, just as he had done to Hebron. Thus he did to Debir and its king what he had done to Libnah and its king.

Joshua 10:40 So Joshua struck all the land—the hill country, the Negev, the Shephelah, and the slopes—and all their kings; he left behind no survivor, and all that breathed he utterly destroyed as Yahweh the God of Israel commanded.

Joshua 10:41 Joshua struck them from Kadesh Barnea to Gaza, and all the land of Goshen up to Gibeon;

Joshua 10:42 all of these kings and their land Joshua captured at one time, because Yahweh the God of Israel fought for Israel.

Joshua 10:43 And Joshua returned, and all Israel with him, to the camp at Gilgal.

Joshua 10:28–42 Joshua captured Makkedah on that day, and he struck it and its king with the edge of the sword; he utterly destroyed it and everyone that was in it. He did not leave behind a survivor. So he did to the king of Makkedah just as he did to the king of Jericho.

29 And Joshua passed on, and all of Israel with him, from Makkedah to Libnah, and he fought against Libnah. 30 And Yahweh also gave it into the hand of Israel, and its king and all the people in it he struck with the edge of the sword. He left in it no survivor. He did to its king just as he did to the king of Jericho.

31 And Joshua passed on, and all of Israel with him, from Libnah to Lachish, and he laid siege to it and fought against it. 32 And Yahweh gave Lachish into the hand of Israel, and he captured it on the second day. He struck it with the edge of the sword, and everyone in it, just as he did to Libnah.

33 Then Horam king of Gezer came up to help Lachish, and Joshua struck him and his people until he left no survivor behind.

34 And Joshua passed on, and all of Israel with him, from Lachish to Eglon, and they laid siege to it and fought against it. 35 And they captured it on that day, and he struck it with the edge of the sword, and all the people that were in it on that day he utterly destroyed as he had done to Lachish.

36 And Joshua went up, and all Israel with him, from Eglon to Hebron, and they fought against it 37 and captured it, and they struck it with the edge of the sword, its king and all its cities, and all the people that were in it; he left behind no survivor, as he had done to Eglon, and he utterly destroyed it and all the people that were in it. 38 Then Joshua returned to Debir, and all of Israel with him, and they fought against it, 39 and he captured it and its king and all its cities, and they struck them with the the edge of the sword, and they utterly destroyed all the people that were in it; he left behind no survivor, just as he had done to Hebron. Thus he did to Debir and its king what he had done to Libnah and its king.

40 So Joshua struck all the land—the hill country, the Negev, the Shephelah, and the slopes—and all their kings; he left behind no survivor, and all that breathed he utterly destroyed as Yahweh the God of Israel commanded. 41 Joshua struck them from Kadesh Barnea to Gaza, and all the land of Goshen up to Gibeon; 42 all of these kings and their land Joshua captured at one time, because Yahweh the God of Israel fought for Israel.

Numbers 13:28–29 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large; moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. 29 The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan.”

Numbers 13:28–29 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large; moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. [29] The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan."

Joshua 11:3 to the Canaanites in the east and west, the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, and the Jebusites in the hill country, and the Hivites at the foot of Hermon in the land of Mizpah.

Joshua 11:4 They came out, they and all their armies with them, as a great army like the sand on the seashore, with very many horses and chariots.

Joshua 11:8 And Yahweh gave them into the hand of Israel, and they struck them and pursued them up to Great Sidon and Misrephoth Maim, and eastward up to the valley of Mizpeh. And they struck them until they left behind no survivor.

Joshua 11:12 And Joshua captured all the cities of these kings, and all their kings, and he utterly destroyed them with the edge of the sword, as Moses the servant of Yahweh commanded.

Joshua 11:21–23 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. [22] None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. [23] Joshua took all the land according to all that Yahweh had spoken to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel, according to their tribal divisions, and the land rested from war.

Joshua 11:21 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities.

Joshua 11:22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 11:23 Joshua took all the land according to all that Yahweh had spoken to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel, according to their tribal divisions, and the land rested from war.

Joshua 11:21–23 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. 23 Joshua took all the land according to all that Yahweh had spoken to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel, according to their tribal divisions, and the land rested from war.

Joshua 11:22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Numbers 13:28–29 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large; moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. 29 The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan."

Joshua 11:21–23 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. 23 Joshua took all the land according to all that Yahweh had spoken to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel, according to their tribal divisions, and the land rested from war.

Numbers 13:26–33 And they came to Moses and Aaron and to the entire community of the Israelites in the desert of Paran at Kadesh; they brought back word to them and to all the community, and they showed them the fruit of the land. 27 And they told him, "We came to the land that you sent us, and it is flowing of milk and honey; this is its fruit. 28 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large;

moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. [29] The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan."

[30] And Caleb silenced the people before Moses and said, "Surely, let us go up and let us take possession of it because surely we will be able to prevail over it." [31] And the men who went up with him said, "We are not able to go up to the people because they are stronger than us." [32] And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. [33] There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Joshua 11:21–23 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. [22] None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. [23] Joshua took all the land according to all that Yahweh had spoken to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel, according to their tribal divisions, and the land rested from war.

1 Samuel 17:4 Then a champion went out from the camps of the Philistines, whose name was Goliath from Gath. His height was six cubits and a span.

1 Samuel 17:4 Then a champion went out from the camps of the Philistines, whose name was Goliath from Gath. His height was six cubits and a span.

Section Summary

Judges 1:27–36 Manasseh did not drive out Beth-Sean and its towns, or Taanach and its towns, or the inhabitants of Dor and its towns, or the inhabitants of Ibleam and its towns, or the inhabitants of Megiddo and its towns; the Canaanites were determined to live in this land. [28] And it happened, when Israel grew strong, they put the Canaanites to forced labor, but they never totally drove them out. [29] Ephraim did not drive out the Canaanites living in Gezer, so the Canaanites lived in their midst in Gezer. [30] Zebulun did not drive out the inhabitants of Kitron or Nahalol, so the Canaanites lived in their midst and became subjected to forced labor. [31] Asher did not drive out the inhabitants of Acco, Sidon, Ahlab, Aczib, Helbah, Aphik, or Rehob, [32] so the Asherites lived in the midst of the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land, for they did not drive them out.

[33] Naphtali did not drive out the inhabitants of Beth Shemesh or Beth-anath, but lived in the midst of the Canaanites, the inhabitants of the land; the inhabitants of Beth Shemesh and Beth-anath became forced labor for them.

[34] The Amorites pressed the descendants of Dan to the hill country, and they did not allow them to come down to the plain; [35] the Amorites were determined to live in Har-heres, in Aijalon, and in Shaalbim, but the hand of the house of Joseph was heavy on them, and they became subjected to forced labor. [36] The border of the Amorites ran from the ascent of Akrabbim from Sela and upward.

Judges 2:2–3 And as for you, do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land; break down their altars.' But you did not listen to my voice. Why would you do such a thing? [3] Now I say, I will not drive them out from before you; they will become as thorns for you, and their gods will be a trap for you."

Judges 2:5 And they called the name of this place Bokim, and there they sacrificed to Yahweh.

Genesis 17:1–2 When Abram was ninety-nine years old Yahweh appeared to Abram. And he said to him, "I am El-Shaddai; walk before me and be blameless [2] so that I may make my covenant between me and you, and may multiply you exceedingly."

Genesis 17:8–10 And I will give to you and to your offspring after you the land in which you are living as an alien, all the land of Canaan, as an everlasting property. And I will be to them as God."

9 And God said to Abraham, “Now as for you, you must keep my covenant, you and your offspring after you, throughout their generations. 10
This is my covenant which you shall keep, between me and you, and also with your offspring after you: Every male among you shall be circumcised.

Genesis 22:15–18 And the angel of Yahweh called to Abraham a second time from heaven. 16 And he said, “I swear by myself, declares Yahweh, that because you have done this thing and have not withheld your son, your only child, 17 that I will certainly bless you and greatly multiply your offspring as the stars of heaven, and as the sand that is by the shore of the sea. And your offspring will take possession of the gate of his enemies. 18
All the nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring, because you have listened to my voice.”

Deuteronomy 4:25–27 “When you have had children and grandchildren and you have grown old in the land and you act corruptly and you make a divine image of the form of anything and you do evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God, thus provoking him to anger, 26 I call to witness against you today the heaven and the earth, that you will perish soon and completely from the land that you are crossing the Jordan into it to take possession of it; you will not live long on it, but you will be completely destroyed. 27 And Yahweh will scatter you among the peoples, and you will be left few in number among the nations to where Yahweh will lead you.

Deuteronomy 4:39–40 So you shall acknowledge today, and you must call to mind that Yahweh is God in heaven above and on the earth beneath.
There is no other God. 40 And you shall keep his rules and his commandments that I am commanding you today, so that it may go well for you and for your children after you, and so that you may remain a long time on the land that Yahweh your God is giving to you during all of those days.”

Deuteronomy 11:18–24 “And you shall put these, my words, on your heart and on your inner self, and you shall bind them as a sign on your hand and let them be as an emblem between your eyes. 19 And you shall teach them to your children by talking about them when you sit in your house and when you travel on the road and when you lie down and when you get up. 20 And you shall write them on the doorframes of your house and on your gates, [21] so that they may multiply your days and the days of your children on the land that Yahweh swore to your ancestors to give it to them as long as heaven endures over the earth. [22] Yes, if you diligently keep all this commandment that I am commanding you to observe it, by loving Yahweh your God by walking in all his ways and by holding fast to him, [23] then Yahweh will drive out all of these nations before you, and you will dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you. [24] Every place on which the sole of your foot treads, it shall be yours; your boundary shall be from the desert and Lebanon from the river, the river Euphrates, on up to the western sea.

Part 6: Thus Says the Lord

Chapter 26: Mountains and Valleys

Joshua 11:21–23 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod. 23 Joshua took all the land according to all that Yahweh had spoken to Moses; and Joshua gave it as an inheritance to Israel, according to their tribal divisions, and the land rested from war.

Exodus 26:30 And you will erect the tabernacle according to its plan, which you have been shown on the mountain.

Isaiah 40:22 He is the one who sits above the circle of the earth, and its inhabitants are like grasshoppers;
the one who stretches out the heavens like a veil and spreads them out like a tent to live in,

Isaiah 66:1 Thus says Yahweh: “Heaven is my throne,
and the earth is the footstool for my feet.
Where is this house that you would build for me?
And where is this resting place for me?

Judges 20:27 And the Israelites inquired of Yahweh (In those days the ark of the covenant of God was there,

Genesis 28:10–22 Then Jacob went out from Beersheba and went to Haran.
11 And he arrived at a certain place and spent the night there, because the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of the place and put it under his head and slept at that place. 12 And he dreamed, and behold, a stairway was set on the earth, and its top touched the heavens. And behold, angels of God were going up and going down on it. 13 And behold, Yahweh was standing beside him, and he said, “I am Yahweh, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The ground on which you were sleeping I will give to you and to your descendants. 14 Your descendants shall be like the dust of the earth, and you will spread out to the west, and to the east, and to the north and to the south. And all the families of the earth will be blessed through you and through your descendants. 15 Now behold, I am with you, and I will keep you wherever you go. And I will bring you to this land, for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised to you.” 16 Then Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, “Surely Yahweh is indeed in this place and I did not know!” 17 Then he was afraid and said, “How awesome is this place! This is nothing else than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven!” 18 And Jacob rose early in the morning, and he took the stone that he had put under his head and set it up as a stone pillar, and poured oil on top of it. 19 And he called the name of that place Bethel; however, the name of the city was formerly Luz. 20 And Jacob made a vow saying, “If God will be with me and protect me on this way that I am going, and gives me food to eat and clothing to wear, 21 and if I return in peace to the house of my father, then Yahweh will become my God. 22 And this stone that I have set up as a pillar shall be the house of God, and of all that you give to me I will certainly give a tenth to you.”

Genesis 32:1–5 And Jacob went on his way, and angels of God met him. 2 And when he saw them, Jacob said, “This is the camp of God!” And he called the name of that place Mahanaim.

3 Then Jacob sent messengers before him to Esau his brother, to the land of Seir, the territory of Edom. 4 And he instructed them, saying, “Thus you must say to my lord, to Esau, ‘Thus says your servant Jacob, I have dwelled as an alien with Laban, and I have remained there until now. 5 And I have acquired cattle, male donkeys, flocks, and male and female slaves, and I have sent to tell my lord, to find favor in your eyes.’ ”

Genesis 31:13 I am the God of Bethel where you anointed a stone pillar, where you made a vow to me. Now get up, go out from this land and return to the land of your birth.’ ”

Genesis 35:1–7 And God said to Jacob, “Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there, and make an altar to the God who appeared to you when you fled from before Esau your brother.” 2 Then Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, “Get rid of the foreign gods that are in your midst and purify yourselves and change your garments. 3 Then let us make ready and let us go up to Bethel, so that I can make an altar there to the God who answered me in the day of my trouble, and who has been with me on the way that I have gone.” 4 So they gave to Jacob all the foreign gods that were in their hands, and the ornamental rings that were in their ears. And Jacob buried them under the oak which was near Shechem. 5 Then they set out on their journey, and the terror of God was upon the cities that were all around them, so that they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob. 6 And Jacob came to Luz which was in the land of Canaan (that is Bethel), he and all the people that were with him. 7 And he built an altar there and called the place El-Bethel, for there God had appeared to him when he fled before his brother.

Judges 18:31 So they set up for themselves the carved divine image that Micah had made, all the days that the house of God was in Shiloh.

1 Samuel 1:24 Then she brought him up with her when she had weaned him, along with three bulls, one ephah of flour, and a skin of wine. She brought him to the house of Yahweh at Shiloh while the boy was still young.

Jeremiah 7:12 “For go now to my place that was in Shiloh, where I caused my name to dwell in the beginning, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel.

Judges 21:19 And they said, “Look, the annual feast of Yahweh is in Shiloh, which is to the north of Bethel, east of the main road that goes up from Bethel to Shechem, and south of Lebonah.

1 Samuel 1:3 Now this man used to go up from his town year by year to worship and to sacrifice to Yahweh of hosts in Shiloh, where the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were priests to Yahweh.

1 Samuel 5:5 (Therefore the priests of Dagon and all who come into the house of Dagon do not tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod until this very day.)

2 Samuel 6:17 They brought the ark of Yahweh and set it in its place in the middle of the tent which David had pitched for it. Then David offered up burnt offerings and fellowship offerings in the presence of Yahweh.

2 Chronicles 1:3–4 And Solomon and the whole assembly with him went to the high place that was at Gibeon, for the tent of assembly of God that Moses the servant of Yahweh had made in the desert was there. [4] (But the ark of God David had brought up from Kiriath-Jearim to the place David had prepared for it, for David had pitched a tent for it in Jerusalem.)

Psalm 48:1 Yahweh is great and very worthy of praise in the city of our God, in his holy mountain.

Psalm 48:2 Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Psalm 48:1–2 Yahweh is great and very worthy of praise in the city of our God, in his holy mountain.

[2] Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Zechariah 8:3 Thus says Yahweh: ‘I have returned to Zion, and I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and Jerusalem will be called the faithful city, and the mountain of Yahweh of hosts will be called the holy mountain.’

Isaiah 2:2 And it shall happen in the future of the days the mountain of the house of Yahweh shall be established; it will be among the highest of the mountains, and it shall be raised from the hills.

All of the nations shall travel to him;

Micah 4:1 And it will be that at the end of those days, the mountain of the house of Yahweh will be established as the highest of the mountains, and it will be lifted up above the hills,

and people will stream to it.

Ezekiel 40:2 in visions from God. He brought me to the land of Israel and put me on a very high mountain, and on it was something like a structure of a city to the south.

Ezekiel 40:31–34 And its porticos were to the outer courtyard, and palm tree images were on its pilasters, and eight steps were for its stairs.

[32] And he brought me to the inner courtyard by way of the east gate, and he measured the gate as just like the other measurements. [33] And its alcoves and its pilasters and its porticos were also like these measurements, and windows were for it and for its porticos all around; its length was fifty cubits, and it was twenty-five cubits wide. [34] And its porticos were toward the outer courtyard, and palm tree images were on its pilasters one each side, and eight steps served as it stairs.

Ezekiel 41:17–20 Above the doorway and up to the inner temple and on the outside, and on all of the wall all the way around in the inner and in the outer areas were patterns, [18] and it was made of cherubim and palm tree images; a palm tree image between cherub and cherub, and the cherub had two faces. [19] And the face of a human was toward the palm tree image on the one side, and the face of a fierce strong lion faced the palm tree image on the other side; this work was executed for the entire temple all the way around. [20] From the ground up to above the doorway, the cherubim and the palm tree images were made, and also the outer wall of the temple.

Ezekiel 47:1–12 And he brought me back to the doorway of the temple and, look! There was water coming out from under the threshold of the temple eastward, because the face of the temple was eastwards; and the water was coming down from under the south side of the temple, from south of the altar. [2] And he brought me out by the way of the north gate and he led me around by the way leading to the outside of the outer gate by way of the gate facing east, and look, there was water trickling from the south side. [3] As the man went eastward a measuring line was in his hand, and he measured a thousand cubits. And he led me through on into the water; it was ankle deep. [4] And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was knee deep. And he measured a thousand cubits, and he brought me over into the waters and it was waist deep. [5] And he measured a thousand cubits, and it became a stream that I was not able to cross, because the water rose, waters a person could swim in, and became a stream that could not be crossed. [6] And he asked me, “Son of man, did you see this?” And he made me go, and he brought me back along the bank of the stream.

[7] When I returned, then look! On the bank of the river were many trees on both sides. [8] And he said to me, “These waters are going out to the eastern region, and they go down to the Jordan Valley, and they come to the sea and flow into the sea where they issue out, and the waters in the sea will be healed. [9] And then every living creature with which it teems, to every place the waters come it will live; and very many fish will live because these waters came there, and so the water will be healed and everything will be alive everywhere that the stream will come. [10] And then fishers from En Gedi and on up to En Eglaim will stand beside it, a sea-girt drying yard for nets; their fish for the dragnets will be of every kind, like the fish of the great sea, and very many. [11] But its marshes and its swamps will not be cured, for they were given for salt. [12] And along the stream will go up on its banks from both sides every tree producing food; its leaf will not wither and it will not cease producing its fruit. Every month it will bear early fruit, for its waters are going out from the sanctuary, and its fruit will be as food, and its leaf for healing."

Micah 4:1 And it will be that at the end of those days, the mountain of the house of Yahweh

will be established as the highest of the mountains,
and it will be lifted up above the hills,
and people will stream to it.

Micah 4:2 And many nations will come and say, "Come! Let us go up to the mountain of Yahweh, and to the temple of the God of Jacob,

that he may teach us his ways,
and that we may walk in his paths,"
for the law will go out from Zion,
and the word of Yahweh from Jerusalem.

Micah 4:1–2 And it will be that at the end of those days, the mountain of the house of Yahweh

will be established as the highest of the mountains,
and it will be lifted up above the hills,
and people will stream to it.

2 And many nations will come and say, “Come! Let us go up to the mountain of Yahweh,
and to the temple of the God of Jacob,
that he may teach us his ways,
and that we may walk in his paths,”
for the law will go out from Zion,
and the word of Yahweh from Jerusalem.

Deuteronomy 2:11 They were reckoned also as Rephaim as the Anakites were; but the Moabites called them Emim.

Deuteronomy 2:20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim,

Deuteronomy 3:11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Joshua 11:22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

1 Samuel 17:4 Then a champion went out from the camps of the Philistines, whose name was Goliath from Gath. His height was six cubits and a span.

1 Samuel 17:23 While he was speaking to them, the champion, whose name was Goliath the Philistine from Gath, was coming up from the caves of the Philistines. He spoke just as he had previously, and David heard his words.

1 Chronicles 20:4 And after this there arose a war in Gezer with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite struck down Sippai, one of the descendants of the Rephaim. And they were subdued.

1 Chronicles 20:5 And again there was war with the Philistines. And Elhanan son of Jair struck down Lahmi, the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

1 Chronicles 20:6 And again there was war in Gath. And there was a very tall man there, and he had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all. He himself was also a descendant of the Rephaim.

1 Chronicles 20:7 And he taunted Israel, but Jehonathan son of Shimea, brother of David, struck him down.

1 Chronicles 20:8 These were born to the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

1 Chronicles 20:4–8 And after this there arose a war in Gezer with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite struck down Sippai, one of the descendants of the Rephaim. And they were subdued. 5 And again there was war with the Philistines. And Elhanan son of Jair struck down Lahmi, the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. 6 And again there was war in Gath. And there was a very tall man there, and he had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all. He himself was also a descendant of the Rephaim. 7 And he taunted Israel, but Jehonathan son of Shimea, brother of David, struck him down. 8 These were born to the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

2 Samuel 5:18 Now the Philistines had come, and they spread out in the Valley of Rephaim.

2 Samuel 5:22 Once again the Philistines came up and spread out in the Valley of Rephaim.

2 Samuel 23:13 Then three of the thirty leaders went down and came to David at the time of the harvest to the cave of Adullam, while a group of the Philistines were camping in the valley of the Rephaim.

Joshua 15:8 Then the border goes up by the Valley of Ben Hinnom to the slope of the Jebusites from the south (that is, Jerusalem); and the border goes up to the top of the mountain that lies opposite the valley of Hinnom to the west, which is at the end of the valley of Rephaim to the north;

Joshua 18:16 the border goes down to the foot of the mountain, which is opposite the Valley of Ben Hinnom, which is in the valley of Rephaim to the north; then it does down the valley of Hinnom to the slope of the Jebusites to the south, and then it goes down to En Rogel.

2 Chronicles 28:3 And he himself burned incense in the valley of Ben-Hinnom and burned his sons in the fire, according to the detestable practices of the nations whom Yahweh drove out before the Israelites.

2 Chronicles 33:6 And he himself burned his sons in the fire in the Valley of Ben-Hinnom. And he practiced sorcery and divination, and he engaged in witchcraft and dealt with mediums and spiritists. And he did much evil in the eyes of Yahweh, to provoke him to anger.

Jeremiah 7:32 Therefore look, days are about to come," declares Yahweh, "and it will no longer be called Topheth or the Valley of Ben Hinnom, but the Valley of the Slaughter, and they will bury in Topheth until there is no more place.

Jeremiah 19:6 "Therefore look, days are about to come," declares Yahweh, "when this place will no longer be called Topheth or the Valley of Ben Hinnom, but the Valley of the Slaughter.

Deuteronomy 1:4 This happened after defeating Sihon king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon, and Og the king of Bashan, who was reigning in Ashtaroth in Edrei.

Deuteronomy 9:10 And Yahweh gave me the two tablets of stone written with the finger of God, and on them was writing according to all the words that Yahweh spoke with you at the mountain, from the midst of the fire on the day of the assembly.

Deuteronomy 12:4 You shall not worship Yahweh your God like this.

1 Samuel 8:20 so that we also may be like all the nations, and our king may rule us and go out before us and fight our battles."

1 Samuel 9:2 He had a son whose name was Saul, a young and handsome man. There was not a man from the Israelites more handsome than he was; from his shoulders up, he was taller than all the people.

1 Kings 12:25 Then Jeroboam built Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and he resided in it. Then he went out from there and built Penuel.

1 Kings 12:26–33 Then Jeroboam said to himself, “Now the kingdom will return to the house of David [27] if this people go up to offer sacrifices in the house of Yahweh in Jerusalem. The heart of this people will return to their master Rehoboam the king of Judah, and they shall kill me and return to him.”

[28] And the king had decided, so he made two golden calves and he said to them, “You have been going up to Jerusalem long enough; here are your gods, O Israel, who brought you up from the land of Egypt.” [29] He put one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan. [30] This thing became a sin, and the people walked before the one as far as Dan. [31] Then he built the houses on the high places, and he appointed priests from all walks of life who were not from the sons of Levi. [32] Jeroboam also inaugurated a religious feast in the eighth month on the fifteenth day of the month, like the religious feast which was in Judah, and he offered sacrifices on the altar. Thus he did in Bethel, by sacrificing to the calves that he had made; and he placed in Bethel the priests of the high places which he had made. [33] He offered sacrifices on the altar which he had made in Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month which his heart had devised. He inaugurated a religious feast for the Israelites, and he went up to the altar to offer incense.

Chapter 27: Standing in the Council

1 Samuel 3:20 All Israel from Dan to Beersheba realized that Samuel was faithful as a prophet to Yahweh.

Job 15:7–8 “Were you born the firstborn of the human race?

And were you brought forth before the hills?

8 Have you listened in God’s confidential discussion?

And do you limit wisdom to yourself?

Genesis 3:8 Then they heard the sound of Yahweh God walking in the garden at the windy time of day. And the man and his wife hid themselves from the presence of Yahweh God among the trees of the garden.

Genesis 5:22 And Enoch walked with God after he fathered Methuselah three hundred years, and fathered sons and daughters.

Genesis 5:24 And Enoch walked with God, and he was no more, for God took him.

Genesis 5:22 And Enoch walked with God after he fathered Methuselah three hundred years, and fathered sons and daughters.

Genesis 5:24 And Enoch walked with God, and he was no more, for God took him.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Jude 14–15 And Enoch, the seventh from Adam, also prophesied about these people, saying, “Behold, the Lord came with tens of thousands of his holy ones [15] to execute judgment against all, and to convict all the ungodly concerning all their ungodly deeds that they have committed in an ungodly way, and concerning all the harsh things that ungodly sinners have spoken against him.

Genesis 6:9 These are the generations of Noah. Noah was a righteous man, without defect in his generations. Noah walked with God.

2 Peter 2:5 and did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, a proclaimer of righteousness, and seven others when he brought a flood on the world of the ungodly,

Genesis 12:1–7 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

[4] And Abram went out as Yahweh had told him, and Lot went with him. Now Abram was seventy-five years old when he went out from Haran. [5] And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his nephew, and all their possessions that they had gathered, and all the persons that they had acquired in Haran, and they went out to go to the land of Canaan. And they went to the land of Canaan. [6] And Abram traveled through the land up to the place of Shechem, to the Oak of Moreh. Now the Canaanites were in the land at that time. [7] And Yahweh appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land.” And he built an altar there to Yahweh, who had appeared to him.

Genesis 15:1–6 After these things the word of Yahweh came to Abram in a vision, saying: “Do not be afraid, Abram; I am your shield, and your reward shall be very great.” [2] Then Abram said, “O Yahweh, my Lord, what will you give me? I continue to be childless, and my heir is Eliezer of Damascus.” [3] And Abram said, “Look, you have not given me a descendant, and here, a member of my household is my heir.” [4] And behold, the word of Yahweh came to him saying, “This person will not be your heir, but your own son will be your heir.” [5] And he brought him outside and said, “Look toward the heavens and count the stars if you are able to count them.” And he said to him, “So shall your offspring be.” [6] And he believed in Yahweh, and he reckoned it to him as righteousness.

Acts 7:2–4 So he said, “Men—brothers and fathers—listen: The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham while he was in Mesopotamia, before he settled in Haran, [3] and said to him, ‘Go out from your land and from your relatives and come to the land that I will show you.’ [4] Then he went out from the land of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. And from there, after his father died, he caused him to move to this land in which you now live.

Genesis 12:6–7 And Abram traveled through the land up to the place of Shechem, to the Oak of Moreh. Now the Canaanites were in the land at that time. [7] And Yahweh appeared to Abram and said, “To your offspring I will give this land.” And he built an altar there to Yahweh, who had appeared to him.

Genesis 18:1 And Yahweh appeared to him by the oaks of Mamre. And he was sitting in the doorway of the tent at the heat of the day.

Job 15:7–8 “Were you born the firstborn of the human race?

And were you brought forth before the hills?

[8] Have you listened in God’s confidential discussion?

And do you limit wisdom to yourself?

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” [14] Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” [15] When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 26:1–5 And there was a famine in the land, besides the former famine which was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went to Abimelech, king of the Philistines, to Gerar. 2 And Yahweh appeared to him and said, “Do not go down to Egypt; dwell in the land which I will show to you. 3 Dwell as an alien in this land, and I will be with you, and will bless you, for I will give all these lands to you and to your descendants, and I will establish the oath that I swore to Abraham your father. 4 And I will multiply your descendants like the stars of heaven, and I will give to your descendants all these lands. And all nations of the earth will be blessed through your offspring, [5] because Abraham listened to my voice and kept my charge: my commandments, my statutes, and my laws."

Genesis 28:10–22 Then Jacob went out from Beersheba and went to Haran. [11] And he arrived at a certain place and spent the night there, because the sun had set. And he took one of the stones of the place and put it under his head and slept at that place. [12] And he dreamed, and behold, a stairway was set on the earth, and its top touched the heavens. And behold, angels of God were going up and going down on it. [13] And behold, Yahweh was standing beside him, and he said, "I am Yahweh, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The ground on which you were sleeping I will give to you and to your descendants. [14] Your descendants shall be like the dust of the earth, and you will spread out to the west, and to the east, and to the north and to the south. And all the families of the earth will be blessed through you and through your descendants. [15] Now behold, I am with you, and I will keep you wherever you go. And I will bring you to this land, for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised to you." [16] Then Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, "Surely Yahweh is indeed in this place and I did not know!" [17] Then he was afraid and said, "How awesome is this place! This is nothing else than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven!" [18] And Jacob rose early in the morning, and he took the stone that he had put under his head and set it up as a stone pillar, and poured oil on top of it. [19] And he called the name of that place Bethel; however, the name of the city was formerly Luz. [20] And Jacob made a vow saying, "If God will be with me and protect me on this way that I am going, and gives me food to eat and clothing to wear, [21] and if I return in peace to the house of my father, then Yahweh will become my God. [22] And this stone that I have set up as a pillar shall be the house of God, and of all that you give to me I will certainly give a tenth to you."

Genesis 31:11–13 Then the angel of God said to me in the dream, 'Jacob,' and I said, 'Here I am.' [12] And he said, 'Lift up your eyes and see—all the rams mounting the flock are streaked, speckled, and dappled, for I have seen all that Laban is doing to you. [13] I am the God of Bethel where you anointed a stone pillar, where you made a vow to me. Now get up, go out from this land and return to the land of your birth.’ ”

Genesis 32:22–32 That night he arose and took his two wives, his two female slaves, and his eleven children and crossed the ford of the Jabbok. 23 And he took them and sent them across the stream. Then he sent across all his possessions. 24 And Jacob remained alone, and a man wrestled with him until the breaking of the dawn. 25 And when he saw that he could not prevail against him, he struck his hip socket, so that Jacob’s hip socket was sprained as he wrestled with him. 26 Then he said, “Let me go, for dawn is breaking.” But he answered, “I will not let you go unless you bless me.” 27 Then he said to him, “What is your name?” And he said, “Jacob.” 28 And he said, “Your name shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel, for you have struggled with God and with men and have prevailed.” 29 Then Jacob asked and said, “Please tell me your name.” And he said, “Why do you ask this—for my name?” And he blessed him there. 30 Then Jacob called the name of the place Peniel which means “I have seen God face to face and my life was spared.” 31 Then the sun rose upon him as he passed Penuel, and he was limping because of his hip. 32 Therefore the Israelites do not eat the sinew of the sciatic nerve that is upon the socket of the hip unto this day, because he struck the socket of the thigh of Jacob at the sinew of the sciatic nerve.

Deuteronomy 34:10 And not again has a prophet arisen in Israel like Moses, whom Yahweh knew face to face,

Exodus 3:1–3 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, “Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?”

Exodus 24:15–18 And Moses went up to the mountain, and the cloud covered the mountain. 16 And the glory of Yahweh settled on Mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it for six days, and he called to Moses on the seventh day from the midst of the cloud. [17] And the appearance of the glory of Yahweh was like a consuming fire on the top of the mountain to the eyes of the Israelites. [18] And Moses went into the midst of the cloud, and he went up the mountain, and Moses was on the mountain forty days and forty nights.

Exodus 33:7–11 And Moses took the tent and pitched it outside the camp far from the camp, and he called it the tent of assembly, and all seeking Yahweh would go out to the tent of assembly, which was outside the camp. [8] And at the going out of Moses to the tent, all the people would rise and stand, each at the opening of his tent, and gaze after Moses until his entering the tent. [9] And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses. [10] And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent. [11] And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

Exodus 19:9 And Yahweh said to Moses, “Look, I am going to come to you in a thick cloud in order that the people will hear when I speak with you and will also trust in you forever.” And Moses told the words of the people to Yahweh.

Exodus 24:13 And Moses got up, and Joshua, his assistant, and Moses went up to the mountain of God.

Exodus 33:9–11 And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses. [10] And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent. [11] And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

Exodus 33:9 And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses.

Exodus 33:10 And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent.

Exodus 33:11 And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

Exodus 33:9–11 And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses. 10 And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent. 11 And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

Deuteronomy 31:14–23 Then Yahweh said to Moses, “Look, you are about to die; call Joshua and present yourselves in the tent of assembly, so that I may instruct him.” So Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves in the tent of assembly. 15 And Yahweh appeared in the tent in a column of cloud, and the column of the cloud stood at the entrance of the tent. 16 And Yahweh said to Moses, “Look, you are about to lie down with your ancestors, and this people will arise and they will play the prostitute after the foreign gods of the land to which they are going. 17 And my anger shall flare up against them on that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall become as prey, and disasters and troubles shall find them, and they shall say on that day, ‘Is it not because our God is not in our midst that these disasters have found us?’ 18 But I will certainly hide my face on that day, because of all of the evil that they did because they turned to other gods.

19 “And so then write this song for yourselves and teach it to the Israelites; put it in their mouth, so that this song may be for me as a witness against the Israelites. 20 For when I bring them into the land that I swore to their ancestors, a land flowing with milk and honey, they will eat their fill, and they will become fat, and then they will turn to other gods, and they will serve them, and they will spurn me, and they will break my covenant.
21 And then many disasters and troubles will come upon them, and this song will give evidence before them as a witness, because it will not be forgotten from out of the mouth of their descendants, for I know their inclination that they are having today before I have brought them into the land that I swore.” 22 And Moses wrote this song on that day and taught it to the Israelites.

23 Then he told Joshua the son of Nun, and said to him, “Be strong and be courageous, for you shall bring the Israelites into the land that I swore to them, and I will be with you.”

Isaiah 6:1–2 In the year of the death of Uzziah the king, I saw the Lord sitting on a high and raised throne, and the hem of his robe was filling the temple. 2 Seraphs were standing above him. Each had six wings: with two he covered his face, and with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew.

Isaiah 6:1 In the year of the death of Uzziah the king, I saw the Lord sitting on a high and raised throne, and the hem of his robe was filling the temple.

Isaiah 6:2 Seraphs were standing above him. Each had six wings: with two he covered his face, and with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew.

Isaiah 6:8 Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, “Whom shall I send?
And who will go for us?”

And I said,

“I am here!
Send me!”

Isaiah 6:8 Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, “Whom shall I send?
And who will go for us?”

And I said,

"I am here!

Send me!"

Ezekiel 1:1–15 And it was in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, and I was in the midst of the exiles by the Kebar River. The heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God. 2 On the fifth day of the month—it was the fifth year of the exile of the king Jehoiachin— 3 the word of Yahweh came clearly to Ezekiel the son of Buzi, the priest, in the land of the Chaldeans at the Kebar River, and the hand of Yahweh was on him there.

4 And I looked, and look! A storm wind was coming from the north, a great cloud, and fire flashing back and forth, and brightness around and within it, and from its midst it was like the outward appearance of amber stone from the midst of the fire. 5 And from its midst was the likeness of four living creatures, and this was their appearance: a human form, 6 and each had four faces, and each of them had four wings. 7 And their legs were straight legs, and the sole of their feet was like the sole of the foot of a calf, and they were sparkling like the outward appearance of polished bronze. 8 And under their wings were human hands on their four sides. And their faces and their wings for the four of them were as follows: 9 their wings were touching one another; each of them went straight forward, without turning right or left. 10 The likeness of their faces was the face of a human in front, and the face of a lion on the right of each of them, and the face of an ox on the left of each of them, and the face of an eagle for each of them. 11 So were their faces; their wings were spread out upward; each had two touching one another and two covering their bodies. 12 And each went straight forward; wherever the spirit went they went, and they did not turn as they went. 13 As for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like burning coals of fire, like the appearance of torches. It was moving to and fro between the living creatures, and the fire was very bright and lightning was going out from the fire. 14 And the living creatures were speeding to and fro like the appearance of lightning.

15 And I saw the living creatures, and look! A wheel was on the earth beside each of the living creatures that had four faces.

Ezekiel 2:1–3 And he said to me, “Son of man, stand on your feet, so that I can speak with you.” 2 And the Spirit came into me as he was speaking to me, and it set me on my feet, and I heard the one speaking to me. 3 And he said to me, “Son of man, I am sending you to the Israelites, to nations who are rebelling, who rebelled against me, they and their ancestors, they transgressed against me until this very day.

Ezekiel 1:1 And it was in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth day of the month, and I was in the midst of the exiles by the Kebar River. The heavens were opened, and I saw visions of God.

Ezekiel 1:4 And I looked, and look! A storm wind was coming from the north, a great cloud, and fire flashing back and forth, and brightness around and within it, and from its midst it was like the outward appearance of amber stone from the midst of the fire.

Ezekiel 1:5 And from its midst was the likeness of four living creatures, and this was their appearance: a human form,

Ezekiel 1:26 And from above the expanse that was above their heads there was the likeness of a throne, looking like a sapphire, and above the likeness of the throne was a likeness similar to the appearance of a human on it, but above it.

Ezekiel 1:28 Like the appearance of a bow that is in the cloud on a rainy day, such was the radiance around it; thus was the appearance of the likeness of the glory of Yahweh. And I saw, and I fell on my face, and I heard a voice speaking.

Ezekiel 2:1 And he said to me, “Son of man, stand on your feet, so that I can speak with you.”

Ezekiel 2:2 And the Spirit came into me as he was speaking to me, and it set me on my feet, and I heard the one speaking to me.

Ezekiel 2:3 And he said to me, “Son of man, I am sending you to the Israelites, to nations who are rebelling, who rebelled against me, they and their ancestors, they transgressed against me until this very day.

Jeremiah 1:7 But Yahweh said to me, “You must not say, ‘I am a youth,’ for to whomever I send you, you will go, and whatever I command you, you will speak.

Jeremiah 1:8 Do not be afraid of them, for I am with you to deliver you,” declares Yahweh.

Jeremiah 1:9 Then Yahweh stretched out his hand and he touched my mouth, and Yahweh said to me, “Look, I have put my words in your mouth.

Jeremiah 1:7–9 But Yahweh said to me, “You must not say, ‘I am a youth,’ for to whomever I send you, you will go, and whatever I command you, you will speak. 8 Do not be afraid of them, for I am with you to deliver you,” declares Yahweh. 9 Then Yahweh stretched out his hand and he touched my mouth, and Yahweh said to me, “Look, I have put my words in your mouth.

Jeremiah 23:16 Thus says Yahweh of hosts: “You must not listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you.

They are deluding you with visions of their mind, They do not speak from the mouth of Yahweh.

Jeremiah 23:17 They are continually saying to those who disregard the word of Yahweh, ‘Peace it will be to you,’ and to each one who walks in the stubbornness of his heart they say, ‘Calamity will not come upon you.’

Jeremiah 23:18 For who has stood in the council of Yahweh, that he has seen and heard his word?

Who has listened attentively to his word and heard it?

Jeremiah 23:21 I have not sent the prophets, yet they ran.

I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.

Jeremiah 23:22 But if they had stood in my council, then they would have proclaimed my words to my people, and they would have caused them to turn from their evil way, and from the evil of their deeds.

Jeremiah 23:16–18 Thus says Yahweh of hosts: “You must not listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you.

They are deluding you with visions of their mind, They do not speak from the mouth of Yahweh.

17 They are continually saying to those who disregard the word of Yahweh, ‘Peace it will be to you,’

and to each one who walks in the stubbornness of his heart they say, ‘Calamity will not come upon you.’

18 For who has stood in the council of Yahweh, that he has seen and heard his word?

Who has listened attentively to his word and heard it?

Jeremiah 23:21–22 I have not sent the prophets, yet they ran.

I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.

22 But if they had stood in my council, then they would have proclaimed my words to my people, and they would have caused them to turn from their evil way, and from the evil of their deeds.

1 Peter 1:12 to whom it was revealed that they were serving not themselves but you with reference to the same things which now have been announced to you through those who proclaimed the gospel to you by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven, things into which angels desire to look.

Chapter 28: Divine Misdirection

Jeremiah 31:33 “But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days,” declares Yahweh: “I will put my law in their inward parts and on their hearts I will write it, and I will be to them God, and they themselves will be to me people.

1 Corinthians 2:6–8 Now we do speak wisdom among the mature, but wisdom not of this age or of the rulers of this age, who are perishing, 7 but we speak the hidden wisdom of God in a mystery, which God predestined before the ages for our glory, 8 which none of the rulers of this age knew. For if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

Luke 24:44 And he said to them, “These are my words that I spoke to you while I was still with you, that everything that is written about me in the law of Moses and the prophets and psalms must be fulfilled.”

Luke 24:45 Then he opened their minds to understand the scriptures,

Luke 24:44–45 And he said to them, “These are my words that I spoke to you while I was still with you, that everything that is written about me in the law of Moses and the prophets and psalms must be fulfilled.” 45 Then he opened their minds to understand the scriptures,

Genesis 3:15 And I will put hostility between you and between the woman,
and between your offspring and between her offspring;
he will strike you on the head, and you will strike him on the heel.”

Romans 16:20 And in a short time the God of peace will crush Satan under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Matthew 3:17 And behold, there was a voice from heaven saying, “This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased.”

Mark 1:11 And a voice came from heaven, “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.”

Luke 3:22 and the Holy Spirit descended on him in bodily form like a dove, and a voice came from heaven, “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.”

1 Peter 1:12 to whom it was revealed that they were serving not themselves but you with reference to the same things which now have been announced to you through those who proclaimed the gospel to you by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven, things into which angels desire to look.

Genesis 2:15 And Yahweh God took the man and set him in the garden of Eden to cultivate it and to keep it.

Colossians 1:18 and he himself is the head of the body, the church, who is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, so that he himself may become first in everything, Revelation 1:5 and from Jesus Christ the faithful witness, the firstborn from the dead and the ruler of the kings of the earth.

To the one who loves us and released us from our sins by his blood

Exodus 4:23 And I said to you, “Release my son and let him serve me,” but you refused to release him. Look, I am about to kill your son, your firstborn.’ ”

Hosea 11:1 When Israel was a child, I loved him, and out of Egypt I called my son.

Isaiah 42:6 “I am Yahweh; I have called you in righteousness, and I have grasped your hand and watched over you;

and I have given you as a covenant of the people, as a light of the nations,

Isaiah 49:6 And he says, “It is trivial for you to be a servant for me, to raise up the tribes of Jacob

and to bring back the preserved of Israel.

I will give you as a light to the nations, to be my salvation to the end of the earth.”

Deuteronomy 15:6 When Yahweh your God has blessed you, just as he promised to you, then you will lend to many nations, but you will not borrow from them, and you will rule over many nations, but they will not rule over you.

Deuteronomy 26:19 and that he then will set you high above all the nations that he has made for his praise and for fame and for honor and for you to be a holy people to Yahweh your God, as he promised.”

Deuteronomy 28:1 “And it will happen that if you indeed listen to the voice of Yahweh your God, to diligently observe all his commandments that I am commanding you today, then Yahweh your God will set you above all the nations of the earth.

Romans 4:13 For the promise to Abraham or to his descendants, that he would be heir of the world, was not through the law, but through the righteousness by faith.

Psalm 22:28 Because the kingship belongs to Yahweh, and he rules over the nations.

Zechariah 9:9–10 Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion!

Shout aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem!

Look! Your king comes to you;

he is righteous and victorious, humble and riding on a donkey, and on a male donkey, the foal of a female donkey!

10 And I will cut off the chariot from Ephraim, and the horse from Jerusalem; the battle bow will be cut down, and he will announce peace to the nations.

His dominion will be from sea to sea, and from the River to the ends of the earth.

Psalm 89:27 I will also make him the firstborn, the highest of the kings of the earth.

Isaiah 41:8–9 But you, Israel, my servant, Jacob, whom I have chosen, you, the offspring of Abraham my friend,

9 you whom I grasped from the ends of the earth and called from its remotest parts and told, “You are my servant; I have chosen you and I have not rejected you.”

Isaiah 44:1–2 “But now hear, Jacob my servant, and Israel, whom I have chosen.

2 Thus says Yahweh, who made you, and who formed you in the womb and will help you: you must not fear, my servant Jacob,

and Jeshurun whom I have chosen.

Isaiah 44:21 “Remember these things, Jacob, and Israel, for you are my servant: I formed you; you are my servant; Israel, you will not be forgotten by me!

Isaiah 45:4 for the sake of my servant Jacob, and Israel my chosen one.

And I call you by your name;

I give you a name of honor, though you do not know me.

Isaiah 49:3 And he said to me, “You are my servant, Israel, in whom I will show my glory.”

Isaiah 2:6–8 For you have forsaken your people, house of Jacob, because they are full from the east, and of soothsayers like the Philistines, and they make alliances with the offspring of foreigners.

7 And its land is filled with silver and gold, and there is no end to its treasures;

and its land is filled with horses, and there is no end to its chariots.

8 Its land is filled with idols; they bow down to the work of their hands, to what they made with their fingers.

Jeremiah 13:10 This evil people, who refuse to listen to my words, who go in the stubbornness of their hearts, and have gone after other gods, to serve them, and to bow in worship to them, let them be like this loincloth which is not good for anything.

Romans 4:11–12 And he received the sign of circumcision as a seal of the righteousness by faith which he had while uncircumcised, so that he could be the father of all who believe although they are uncircumcised, so that righteousness could be credited to them, [12] and the father of those who are circumcised to those who are not only from the circumcision, but who also follow in the footsteps of the faith of our father Abraham which he had while uncircumcised.

Romans 4:16 Because of this, it is by faith, in order that it may be according to grace, so that the promise may be secure to all the descendants, not only to those of the law, but also to those of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all

Galatians 3:7 then understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham.

Galatians 3:23–29 But before faith came, we were detained under the law, imprisoned until the coming faith was revealed. [24] So then, the law became our guardian until Christ, in order that we could be justified by faith. [25] But after faith has come, we are no longer under a guardian. [26] For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Exodus 4:16 And he will speak for you to the people, and then he will be to you as a mouth, and you will be to him as a god.

Exodus 7:1 And Yahweh said to Moses, "See, I have made you as a god to Pharaoh, and Aaron your brother will be your prophet.

Exodus 14:31 And Israel saw the great hand that Yahweh displayed against Egypt, and the people feared Yahweh, and they believed in Yahweh and in Moses his servant.

Numbers 12:7 Not so with my servant Moses; in all my house he is faithful.

Deuteronomy 34:5 Then Moses, the servant of Yahweh, died there in the land of Moab according to the command of Yahweh.

Joshua 8:31 as Moses Yahweh's servant commanded the Israelites, as it is written in the scroll of the law of Moses: "an altar of unhewn stones on which no one has wielded an iron implement." And they offered burnt offerings on it and sacrificed fellowship offerings.

Numbers 20:1–12 Then the entire community of the Israelites came to the desert of Zin on the first month, and the people stayed in Kadesh; Miriam died and was buried there.

2 There was no water for the community, and they were gathered before Moses and Aaron. 3 And the people quarreled with Moses and spoke, saying, “If only we died when our brothers were dying before Yahweh! 4 Why have you brought the assembly of Yahweh, us and our livestock, into this desert to die here? 5 Why have you brought us from Egypt to bring us to this bad place? It is not a place of seed or figs or vines or pomegranate trees, and there is not water to drink.” 6 And Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the doorway of the tent of assembly. They fell on their faces, and the glory of Yahweh appeared to them. 7 Yahweh spoke to Moses, saying, 8 “Take the staff and summon the community, you and Aaron your brother, and speak to the rock before their eyes, and it will give water. Bring out for them water from the rock, and let the community and their livestock drink.”

9 So Moses took the staff from before Yahweh just as he command him, 10 and Moses and Aaron summoned the assembly to the presence of the rock, and he said to them, “Please listen, you rebels; can we bring out water for you from this rock?” 11 Then Moses lifted up his hand and struck the rock with his staff twice. And abundant water went out, and the community and their livestock drank. 12 But Yahweh said to Moses and Aaron, “Because you have not trusted in me, to regard me as holy in the sight of the Israelites, you will not bring this assembly into the land that I have given to them.”

Deuteronomy 1:37 Even with me Yahweh was angry because of you, saying, ‘Not even you shall enter there.

Deuteronomy 34:4–6 And Yahweh said to him, “This is the land that I swore to Abraham to Isaac and to Jacob, saying, ‘To your offspring I will give it.’ I have let you see it with your eyes, but you shall not cross into it.”
5 Then Moses, the servant of Yahweh, died there in the land of Moab according to the command of Yahweh. 6 And he buried him in the valley in the land of Moab opposite Beth Peor. But until this day no one knows his burial site.

Deuteronomy 34:4–6 And Yahweh said to him, “This is the land that I swore to Abraham to Isaac and to Jacob, saying, ‘To your offspring I will give it.’ I have let you see it with your eyes, but you shall not cross into it.” [5] Then Moses, the servant of Yahweh, died there in the land of Moab according to the command of Yahweh. [6] And he buried him in the valley in the land of Moab opposite Beth Peor. But until this day no one knows his burial site.

Matthew 17:1–4 And after six days Jesus took along Peter and James and John his brother, and led them up on a high mountain by themselves. [2] And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothing became bright as the light. [3] And behold, Moses and Elijah appeared to them, talking with him. [4] So Peter answered and said to Jesus, “Lord, it is good that we are here! If you want, I will make here three shelters, one for you and one for Moses and one for Elijah.”

Psalm 2:7 I will tell the decree; Yahweh said to me:

“You are my son;

today I have begotten you.

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler’s staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Psalm 2:2 The kings of the earth establish themselves, and the rulers conspire together against Yahweh and his anointed:

Psalm 45:6–7 Your throne, O God, is forever and ever.

A scepter of uprightness is the scepter of your kingdom.

[7] You love righteousness and hate wickedness.

Therefore God, your God, has anointed you
from among your companions with festive oil.

Psalm 89:27 I will also make him the firstborn, the highest of the kings of the earth.

Deuteronomy 18:15 “Yahweh your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from your midst, from your countrymen, and to him you shall listen.

Acts 3:22 Moses said, ‘The Lord God will raise up for you a prophet like me from your brothers. You will listen to him in everything that he says to you.

Acts 7:37 “This is the Moses who said to the sons of Israel, ‘God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your brothers.’

2 Samuel 3:18 So then, bring it about, because Yahweh had said to David, “Through the hand of David my servant I am about to save my people Israel from the hand of the Philistines and from the hand of all their enemies.”

2 Samuel 7:5 “Go and tell my servant David, ‘Thus says Yahweh: “Are you the one to build for me a house for my dwelling?

2 Samuel 7:8 So then, thus you shall say to my servant David, ‘Thus says Yahweh of hosts, “I took you from the pasture from following the sheep to be a leader over my people, over Israel, Psalm 89:3 “I made a covenant with my chosen one; I swore an oath to David my servant:

1 Kings 3:7 So then, O Yahweh, you are my God. You have made your servant king in place of David my father though I am a young boy. I do not know going out or coming in.

2 Chronicles 32:16 And still more his servants said against Yahweh God and against Hezekiah his servant.

Isaiah 11:1 And a shoot will come out from the stump of Jesse, and a branch from its roots will bear fruit.

Isaiah 49:5 And now Yahweh says, who formed me from the womb as a servant for him, to bring Jacob back to him, and that Israel might not be gathered, for I am honored in the eyes of Yahweh, and my God has become my strength.

Isaiah 49:3 And he said to me, “You are my servant, Israel, in whom I will show my glory.”

Jeremiah 23:5 “Look, days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “when I will raise up for David a righteous branch, and he will reign as king, and he will achieve success, and he will do justice and righteousness in the land.

Jeremiah 33:15 In those days and in that time I will make a branch of righteousness sprout for David, and he will execute justice and righteousness in the land.

Zechariah 3:8 Listen, please, O Joshua the high priest, you and your companions that are sitting before you. For the men are a sign that, look, I am going to bring my servant the Branch.

Zechariah 6:12 And say to him, ‘Thus says Yahweh of hosts: “Look, here is a man whose name is Branch, and from his place he will sprout, and he will build the temple of Yahweh.

Isaiah 53:1–9 Who has believed our message, and to whom has the arm of Yahweh been revealed?

2 For he went up like a shoot before him, and like a root from dry ground.

He had no form and no majesty that we should see him, and no appearance that we should take pleasure in him.

3 He was despised and rejected by men, a man of suffering, and acquainted with sickness, and like one from whom others hide their faces, he was despised, and we did not hold him in high regard.

[4] However, he was the one who lifted up our sicknesses, and he carried our pain,
yet we ourselves assumed him stricken,
struck down by God and afflicted.
[5] But he was pierced for our transgressions, crushed because of our iniquities;
the chastisement for our peace was upon him, and by his wounds we were healed.
[6] All of us have wandered about like sheep; we each have turned to his own way;
and Yahweh let fall on him
the iniquity of us all.
[7] He was oppressed and afflicted, yet he did not open his mouth;
he was brought like a lamb to the slaughter, and like a sheep is dumb before its shearers, so he did not open his mouth.
[8] He was taken by restraint of justice, and who concerned himself with his generation?
For he was cut off from the land of the living; he received a blow because of the transgression of my people.
[9] He made his grave with the wicked, and with the rich in his death, although he had done no violence, and there was no deceit in his mouth.

Isaiah 53:10 Yet Yahweh was pleased to crush him; he made him sick.
If she places his life a guilt offering,
he will see offspring.
He will prolong days,
and the will of Yahweh will succeed in his hand.

Isaiah 53:11 From the trouble of his life he will see; he will be satisfied.

In his knowledge, the righteous one, my servant, shall declare many righteous, and he is the one who will bear their iniquities.

Luke 24:26 Was it not necessary that the Christ suffer these things and enter into his glory?"

Chapter 29: The Rider of the Clouds

Daniel 7:1–8 In the first year of Belshazzar the king of Babylon, Daniel saw a dream and visions of his head as he lay on his bed; then he wrote down the dream and the summary of the words as follows: [2] Daniel explained and said, "I was looking in my vision in the night, and look, the four winds of heaven were stirring up the great sea. [3] And four great beasts were coming up from the sea, differing from one another. [4] The first was like a lion and had the wings of an eagle. I was watching until its wings were plucked off, and it was lifted up from the earth and it was raised on its feet like a human, and a human heart was given to it. [5] And look, another beast, a second one, looking like a bear. And it was raised up on one side and three tusks were in its mouth between its teeth, and so it was told, "Arise, eat much flesh!" [6] After this I was watching and look, another beast like a leopard; it had four wings of a bird on its back, and the beast had four heads, and dominion was given to it. [7] After this in the visions of the night I was looking and there was a fourth beast, terrifying and frightful and exceedingly strong, and it had great iron teeth, and it was devouring and crushing, and it stamped the remainder with its feet; and it was different from all the other beasts that preceded it and it had ten horns. [8] I was considering the horns, and look, another little horn came up among them, and three of the earlier horns were rooted out from before it, and there were eyes like the eyes of a human in this horn and also a mouth that was speaking boastfully.

Daniel 7:9 "I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire.

Daniel 7:10 A stream of fire issued forth and flowed from his presence; thousands upon thousands served him and ten thousand upon ten thousand stood before him. The judge sat, and the books were opened.

Daniel 7:9–10 “I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire. 10 A stream of fire issued forth and flowed from his presence; thousands upon thousands served him and ten thousand upon ten thousand stood before him. The judge sat, and the books were opened.

Ezekiel 1:26–27 And from above the expanse that was above their heads there was the likeness of a throne, looking like a sapphire, and above the likeness of the throne was a likeness similar to the appearance of a human on it, but above it. 27 And I saw something like the outward appearance of amber, something like the appearance of fire, with a covering around it, from the likeness of his loins and upward. And from the likeness of his loins and downward I saw something like the appearance of fire, and it was radiant all around.

Daniel 7:11–12 “I continued watching then because of the noise of the boastful words of the horn who was speaking; I continued watching until the beast was slain and its body was destroyed, and it was given over to burning with fire. 12 And as for the remainder of the beasts, their dominion was taken away, but a prolongation of their life was given to them for a season and a time.

Daniel 7:13–14 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him. 14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Daniel 7:14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Ezekiel 2:1–8 And he said to me, “Son of man, stand on your feet, so that I can speak with you.” [2] And the Spirit came into me as he was speaking to me, and it set me on my feet, and I heard the one speaking to me. [3] And he said to me, “Son of man, I am sending you to the Israelites, to nations who are rebelling, who rebelled against me, they and their ancestors, they transgressed against me until this very day. [4] And the children are impudent and stubborn, and so I am sending you to them, and you must say to them, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh!’ [5] And they, whether they listen or whether they fail to listen, for they are a rebellious house, they will know that a prophet was in their midst. [6] And you, son of man, you must not be afraid of them, and you must not be afraid of their words, because briers and thorns are with you, and you are sitting among scorpions. You must not be afraid of their words, and you must not be dismayed because of their looks, for they are a rebellious house. [7] And you must speak my words to them whether they listen or whether they fail to listen, for they are rebellious. [8] And you, son of man, hear what I am speaking to you: you must not be rebellious like the house of rebellion. Open your mouth and eat what I am giving to you.”

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Deuteronomy 33:26 “There is no one like God, O, Jeshurun, who rides through the heavens to your help, and with his majesty through the skies.

Psalm 68:32–33 O kingdoms of the earth, sing to God; sing praise to the Lord, Selah [33] to the one who rides in the highest heavens of old.

See, he gives forth his voice, a mighty voice.

Psalm 104:1–4 Bless Yahweh, O my soul.

O Yahweh my God, you are very great.

You clothe yourself with splendor and majesty, [2] you who cover yourself with light as with a garment, who stretch out the heavens like a tent curtain, [3] the one who sets beams in the waters for his upper chambers, who makes clouds his chariot, who rides on the wings of the wind, [4] who makes his messengers the winds, his attendants a flame of fire.

Isaiah 19:1 An oracle of Egypt: Look! Yahweh is riding on a swift cloud and is coming to Egypt.

And the idols of Egypt will tremble in front of him, and the heart of Egypt melts in his inner parts.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Luke 17:24–25 For just as the lightning shines forth, flashing from one place under heaven to another place under heaven, so the Son of Man will be in his day. [25] But first it is necessary for him to suffer many things, and to be rejected by this generation.

Luke 24:26 Was it not necessary that the Christ suffer these things and enter into his glory?”

Matthew 26:57 Now those who had arrested Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders had gathered.

Matthew 26:58 But Peter was following him from a distance, as far as the courtyard of the high priest. And he went inside and was sitting with the officers to see the outcome.

Matthew 26:59 Now the chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin were looking for false testimony against Jesus in order that they could put him to death.

Matthew 26:60 And they did not find it, although many false witnesses came forward. And finally two came forward

Matthew 26:61 and said, “This man said, ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God and rebuild it within three days.’ ”

Matthew 26:62 And the high priest stood up and said to him, “Do you reply nothing? What are these people testifying against you?”

Matthew 26:63 But Jesus was silent. And the high priest said to him, “I put you under oath by the living God, that you tell us if you are the Christ, the Son of God!”

Matthew 26:64 Jesus said to him, “You have said it. But I tell you, from now on you will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power and coming on the clouds of heaven.”

Matthew 26:65 Then the high priest tore his robes, saying, “He has blasphemed! What further need do we have of witnesses? Behold, you have just now heard the blasphemy!

Matthew 26:66 What do you think?” And they answered and said, “He deserves death!”

Matthew 26:57–66 Now those who had arrested Jesus led him away to Caiaphas the high priest, where the scribes and the elders had gathered. [58] But Peter was following him from a distance, as far as the courtyard of the high priest. And he went inside and was sitting with the officers to see the outcome. [59] Now the chief priests and the whole Sanhedrin were looking for false testimony against Jesus in order that they could put him to death. [60] And they did not find it, although many false witnesses came forward. And finally two came forward [61] and said, “This man said, ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God and rebuild it within three days.’ ” [62] And the high priest stood up and said to him, “Do you reply nothing? What are these people testifying against you?” 63 But Jesus was silent. And the high priest said to him, “I put you under oath by the living God, that you tell us if you are the Christ, the Son of God!” 64 Jesus said to him, “You have said it. But I tell you, from now on you will see the Son of Man sitting at the right hand of the Power and coming on the clouds of heaven.” 65 Then the high priest tore his robes, saying, “He has blasphemed! What further need do we have of witnesses? Behold, you have just now heard the blasphemy! 66 What do you think?” And they answered and said, “He deserves death!”

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Chapter 30: Prepare to Die

Daniel 7:11 “I continued watching then because of the noise of the boastful words of the horn who was speaking; I continued watching until the beast was slain and its body was destroyed, and it was given over to burning with fire.

Daniel 7:12 And as for the remainder of the beasts, their dominion was taken away, but a prolongation of their life was given to them for a season and a time.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Daniel 7:14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Daniel 7:11–14 “I continued watching then because of the noise of the boastful words of the horn who was speaking; I continued watching until the beast was slain and its body was destroyed, and it was given over to burning with fire. 12 And as for the remainder of the beasts, their dominion was taken away, but a prolongation of their life was given to them for a season and a time.

13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him. 14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Daniel 7:15–28 “As for me, Daniel, my spirit was troubled within me, and the visions of my head terrified me. 16 So I approached one of the attendants and I asked him about the truth concerning all this; and he told me that he would make known to me the explanation of the matter. 17 ‘These great beasts which are four in number are four kings who will arise from the earth. 18 But the holy ones of the Most High will receive the kingdom, and they will take possession of the kingdom forever, forever and ever.’

19 “Then I desired to make certain concerning the fourth beast that was different from all the others—exceedingly terrifying, with its iron teeth and its claws of bronze; it devoured and crushed and stamped the remainder with its feet—20 and concerning the horns that were on its head, and concerning the other horn that came up and before which three horns fell, and this horn had eyes and a mouth speaking boastfully, and its appearance was larger than its companions. 21 I continued watching, and this horn made war with the holy ones and it prevailed over them, 22 until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

23 “And he said, ‘The fourth beast is the fourth kingdom that will be on the earth that will be different from all the other kingdoms, and it will devour the whole earth and it will trample it and it will crush it. 24 And as for the ten horns coming from it, from this kingdom ten kings will arise, and another will arise after them. And he will be different from the earlier ones, and he will subdue three kings. 25 And he will speak words against the Most High, and he will wear out the holy ones of the Most High, and he will attempt to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand for a time and two times and half a time. 26 Then the court will sit, and his dominion will be removed, to be eradicated and to be destroyed totally. 27
And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.’

28 This is the end of the account. As for me, Daniel—my thoughts terrified me greatly and my face changed over me, but I kept the matter in my heart.”

Daniel 7:16 So I approached one of the attendants and I asked him about the truth concerning all this; and he told me that he would make known to me the explanation of the matter.

Daniel 7:17 ‘These great beasts which are four in number are four kings who will arise from the earth.

Daniel 7:18 But the holy ones of the Most High will receive the kingdom, and they will take possession of the kingdom forever, forever and ever.’

Daniel 7:15–18 “As for me, Daniel, my spirit was troubled within me, and the visions of my head terrified me. [16] So I approached one of the attendants and I asked him about the truth concerning all this; and he told me that he would make known to me the explanation of the matter. [17] ‘These great beasts which are four in number are four kings who will arise from the earth. [18] But the holy ones of the Most High will receive the kingdom, and they will take possession of the kingdom forever, forever and ever.’

Daniel 7:16 So I approached one of the attendants and I asked him about the truth concerning all this; and he told me that he would make known to me the explanation of the matter.

Daniel 7:13–14 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him. [14] And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Daniel 7:13–14 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him. [14] And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Daniel 7:19 “Then I desired to make certain concerning the fourth beast that was different from all the others—exceedingly terrifying, with its iron teeth and its claws of bronze; it devoured and crushed and stamped the remainder with its feet—

Daniel 7:20 and concerning the horns that were on its head, and concerning the other horn that came up and before which three horns fell, and this horn had eyes and a mouth speaking boastfully, and its appearance was larger than its companions.

Daniel 7:21 I continued watching, and this horn made war with the holy ones and it prevailed over them,

Daniel 7:22 until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

Daniel 7:19–22 “Then I desired to make certain concerning the fourth beast that was different from all the others—exceedingly terrifying, with its iron teeth and its claws of bronze; it devoured and crushed and stamped the remainder with its feet—[20] and concerning the horns that were on its head, and concerning the other horn that came up and before which three horns fell, and this horn had eyes and a mouth speaking boastfully, and its appearance was larger than its companions. [21] I continued watching, and this horn made war with the holy ones and it prevailed over them, [22] until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

Daniel 7:11 “I continued watching then because of the noise of the boastful words of the horn who was speaking; I continued watching until the beast was slain and its body was destroyed, and it was given over to burning with fire.

Daniel 7:23 “And he said, ‘The fourth beast is the fourth kingdom that will be on the earth that will be different from all the other kingdoms, and it will devour the whole earth and it will trample it and it will crush it.

Daniel 7:24 And as for the ten horns coming from it, from this kingdom ten kings will arise, and another will arise after them. And he will be different from the earlier ones, and he will subdue three kings.

Daniel 7:25 And he will speak words against the Most High, and he will wear out the holy ones of the Most High, and he will attempt to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand for a time and two times and half a time.

Daniel 7:26 Then the court will sit, and his dominion will be removed, to be eradicated and to be destroyed totally.

Daniel 7:27 And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.'

Daniel 7:28 This is the end of the account. As for me, Daniel—my thoughts terrified me greatly and my face changed over me, but I kept the matter in my heart."

Daniel 7:23–28 "And he said, 'The fourth beast is the fourth kingdom that will be on the earth that will be different from all the other kingdoms, and it will devour the whole earth and it will trample it and it will crush it. 24 And as for the ten horns coming from it, from this kingdom ten kings will arise, and another will arise after them. And he will be different from the earlier ones, and he will subdue three kings. 25 And he will speak words against the Most High, and he will wear out the holy ones of the Most High, and he will attempt to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand for a time and two times and half a time. 26 Then the court will sit, and his dominion will be removed, to be eradicated and to be destroyed totally. 27 And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.'

28 This is the end of the account. As for me, Daniel—my thoughts terrified me greatly and my face changed over me, but I kept the matter in my heart."

Daniel 7:25 And he will speak words against the Most High, and he will wear out the holy ones of the Most High, and he will attempt to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand for a time and two times and half a time.

Daniel 7:21 I continued watching, and this horn made war with the holy ones and it prevailed over them,

Daniel 7:27 And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.'

Daniel 7:18 But the holy ones of the Most High will receive the kingdom, and they will take possession of the kingdom forever, forever and ever.'

Daniel 7:22 until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

Daniel 7:14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Daniel 2:44–45 And in the day of those kings, the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be destroyed, and the kingdom will not be left for another nation, and it will bring an end to all these kingdoms, but it will stand forever. 45 Inasmuch as you saw that a stone from the mountain was chiseled out but not by hands, and that it crushed the iron, the bronze, the clay, the silver and the gold, thereby the great God made known to the king what will be in the future, and the dream is certain and its explanation trustworthy."

Daniel 2:44 And in the day of those kings, the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be destroyed, and the kingdom will not be left for another nation, and it will bring an end to all these kingdoms, but it will stand forever.

Psalm 89:5–7 And so the heavens will praise your wonderful deed, O Yahweh, even your faithfulness, in the assembly of the holy ones.

[6] For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God, [7] a God feared greatly in the council of the holy ones, and awesome above all surrounding him?

Daniel 7:27 And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.'

Galatians 3:7–9 then understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham. [8] And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: "In you all the nations will be blessed." [9] So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.

Galatians 3:23–29 But before faith came, we were detained under the law, imprisoned until the coming faith was revealed. [24] So then, the law became our guardian until Christ, in order that we could be justified by faith. [25] But after faith has come, we are no longer under a guardian. [26] For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Revelation 2:26 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations,

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Zechariah 14:1 Look! A day is coming for Yahweh, when your plunder will be divided in your midst.

Zechariah 14:2 I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city will be captured, and they will loot the houses, and the women will be raped; half of the city will go into exile, but the remainder of the people will not be cut off from the city.

Zechariah 14:3 Then Yahweh will go forth and fight against those nations, like when he fights on a day of battle.

Zechariah 14:4 On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split in half, from east to west, by a very great valley; and half of the mountain will withdraw toward the north, and the other half toward the south.

Zechariah 14:5 And you will flee by the valley of my mountains, because the valley of the mountains will reach to Azal, and you will flee like you fled from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. And Yahweh my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.

Zechariah 14:1–5 Look! A day is coming for Yahweh, when your plunder will be divided in your midst. 2 I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city will be captured, and they will loot the houses, and the women will be raped; half of the city will go into exile, but the remainder of the people will not be cut off from the city. 3 Then Yahweh will go forth and fight against those nations, like when he fights on a day of battle. 4 On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split in half, from east to west, by a very great valley; and half of the mountain will withdraw toward the north, and the other half toward the south. 5 And you will flee by the valley of my mountains, because the valley of the mountains will reach to Azal, and you will flee like you fled from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. And Yahweh my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.

Isaiah 24:21 And this shall happen on that day: Yahweh will punish the host of heaven in heaven,

and the kings of the earth on the earth.

Isaiah 24:22 And they will be gathered in a gathering, like a prisoner in a pit.

And they will be shut in a prison and be punished after many days.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed,

for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Isaiah 24:21–23 And this shall happen on that day: Yahweh will punish the host of heaven in heaven,

and the kings of the earth on the earth.

22 And they will be gathered in a gathering, like a prisoner in a pit.

And they will be shut in a prison and be punished after many days.

23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed,

for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Psalm 82:7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

Psalm 82:6–7 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

Psalm 82:8 Rise up, O God, judge the earth, because you shall inherit all the nations.

Psalm 82:8 Rise up, O God, judge the earth, because you shall inherit all the nations.

Isaiah 66:16 For Yahweh enters into judgment on all flesh with fire and his sword, and those slain by Yahweh shall be many.

Isaiah 66:17 Those who sanctify themselves and those who cleanse themselves to go into the gardens after the one in the middle, eating the flesh of swine

and detestable things and rodents together

shall come to an end!" declares Yahweh.

Isaiah 66:18 "And I—their works and thoughts!—am about to come to gather all nations and tongues, and they shall come and see my glory.

Isaiah 66:19 And I will set a sign among them, and I will send survivors from them to the nations: Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, who draw the bow; Tubal and Javan, the faraway coastlands that have not heard of my fame, and have not seen my glory.

And they shall declare my glory among the nations,

Isaiah 66:20 and bring all your countrymen from all the nations as an offering to Yahweh on horses and chariots and in litters and on mules and camels, to my holy mountain, Jerusalem," says Yahweh, "just as the sons of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel to the house of Yahweh.

Isaiah 66:21 And indeed, I will take some of them as priests and the Levites," says Yahweh.

Isaiah 66:22 "For just as the new heavens and earth that I am about to make shall stand before me," declares Yahweh, "so shall your descendants and your name stand.

Isaiah 66:16–22 For Yahweh enters into judgment on all flesh with fire and his sword, and those slain by Yahweh shall be many.

17 Those who sanctify themselves and those who cleanse themselves to go into the gardens after the one in the middle, eating the flesh of swine

and detestable things and rodents together

shall come to an end!” declares Yahweh.

18 “And I—their works and thoughts!—am about to come to gather all nations and tongues, and they shall come and see my glory.
19 And I will set a sign among them, and I will send survivors from them to the nations: Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, who draw the bow; Tubal and Javan, the faraway coastlands that have not heard of my fame, and have not seen my glory.

And they shall declare my glory among the nations, 20 and bring all your countrymen from all the nations as an offering to Yahweh on horses and chariots and in litters and on mules and camels, to my holy mountain, Jerusalem,” says Yahweh, “just as the sons of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel to the house of Yahweh. 21 And indeed, I will take some of them as priests and the Levites,” says Yahweh. 22 “For just as the new heavens and earth that I am about to make shall stand before me,” declares Yahweh, “so shall your descendants and your name stand.

Exodus 19:6 but you, you will belong to me as a kingdom of priests and a holy nation.’ These are the words that you will speak to the Israelites.”

Section Summary

2 Chronicles 5:1–14 When all the work that Solomon did for the house of Yahweh was finished, Solomon brought the holy objects of David his father: the silver, the gold, and all the objects he had put into the storehouses of the house of God. 2 Then Solomon assembled all the elders of Israel and all the heads of the tribes, the leaders of the families for the Israelites, to Jerusalem in order to bring up the ark of the covenant of Yahweh from the city of David, which is Zion. 3 And all the men of Israel assembled before the king at the feast that is in the seventh month. 4 And all the elders of Israel came, and the Levites took up the ark. 5 And they brought up the ark, the tent of assembly, and all the holy objects that were in the tent; the Levitical priests brought them up. 6 And King Solomon and the whole community of Israel that was assembled before him were before the ark, sacrificing sheep and cattle that could not be counted nor numbered for abundance. 7 Then the priests brought up the ark of the covenant of Yahweh to its place in the inner sanctuary of the house, into the most holy place, underneath the wings of the cherubim. 8 The cherubim were spreading their wings over the place of the ark, so that the cherubim were covering the ark and over its poles from above. 9 But the poles were so long that the ends of the poles from the ark were seen from before the inner sanctuary, but they could not be seen from the outside. And they are there until this day. 10 There was nothing in the ark but the two stone tablets that Moses had put inside at Horeb on which Yahweh had made a covenant with the Israelites when they went out from Egypt. 11 And when the priests came out of the sanctuary (for all the priests who were present sanctified themselves without keeping their divisions) 12 and all the Levitical singers—Asaph, Heman, Jeduthun, their sons, their brothers, dressed in fine linen, with cymbals, harps, and stringed instruments—they were standing to the east of the altar. And with them outside were one hundred and twenty priests who were trumpet blowers. 13 And it was the primary duty of the trumpeters and singers to make themselves heard with one voice, to praise and give thanks to Yahweh. And when a sound from the trumpets, cymbals, and other instruments of song was raised to Yahweh—for he is good, because his loyal love is everlasting—then the house, the house of Yahweh, was filled with a cloud. 14 And the priests were not able to stand to minister because of the cloud, for the glory of Yahweh filled the house of God.

1 Kings 4:21 Now Solomon was ruling over all the kingdoms from the River to the land of the Philistines, and up to the border of Egypt, who were bringing tribute and were serving Solomon all the days of his life.

Genesis 15:18 On that day Yahweh made a covenant with Abram saying, “To your offspring I will give this land, from the river of Egypt to the great river, the Euphrates river,

Part 7: The Kingdom Already

Chapter 31: Who Will Go for Us?

Exodus 23:20–23 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. [21] Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. [22] But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes. [23] When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

John 17:5 And now, Father, you glorify me at your side with the glory that I had at your side before the world existed.

John 17:6 “I have revealed your name to the men whom you gave me out of the world. They were yours, and you have given them to me, and they have kept your word.

John 17:11 And I am no longer in the world, and they are in the world, and I am coming to you. Holy Father, keep them in your name, which you have given to me, so that they may be one, just as we are.

John 17:12 When I was with them, I kept them in your name, which you have given to me, and guarded them, and none of them has perished except the son of destruction, in order that the scripture would be fulfilled.

John 17:25 Righteous Father, although the world does not know you, yet I have known you, and these men have come to know that you sent me.

John 17:26 And I made known to them your name, and will make it known, in order that the love with which you loved me may be in them, and I may be in them.”

John 17:5–6 And now, Father, you glorify me at your side with the glory that I had at your side before the world existed.

6 “I have revealed your name to the men whom you gave me out of the world. They were yours, and you have given them to me, and they have kept your word.

John 17:11–12 And I am no longer in the world, and they are in the world, and I am coming to you. Holy Father, keep them in your name, which you have given to me, so that they may be one, just as we are. 12 When I was with them, I kept them in your name, which you have given to me, and guarded them, and none of them has perished except the son of destruction, in order that the scripture would be fulfilled.

John 17:25–26 Righteous Father, although the world does not know you, yet I have known you, and these men have come to know that you sent me. 26 And I made known to them your name, and will make it known, in order that the love with which you loved me may be in them, and I may be in them.”

John 17:6 “I have revealed your name to the men whom you gave me out of the world. They were yours, and you have given them to me, and they have kept your word.

Exodus 3:1–14 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, “Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?” 4 And Yahweh saw that he turned aside to see, and God called to him from the midst of the bush, and he said, “Moses, Moses.” And he said, “Here I am.” 5 And he said, “You must not come near to here. Take off your sandals from on your feet, because the place on which you are standing, it is holy ground.” 6 And he said, “I am the God of your father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.” And Moses hid his face because he was afraid of looking at God.

7 And Yahweh said, “Surely I have seen the misery of my people who are in Egypt, and I have heard their cry of distress because of their oppressors, for I know their sufferings. 8 And I have come down to deliver them from the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them up from this land to a good and wide land, to a land flowing with milk and honey, to the place of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites. 9 And now, look, the cry of distress of the Israelites has come to me, and also I see the oppression with which the Egyptians are oppressing them. 10 And now come, and I will send you to Pharaoh, and you must bring my people, the Israelites, out from Egypt.”

11 But Moses said to God, “Who am I that I should go to Pharaoh and that I should bring the Israelites out from Egypt?” 12 And he said, “Because I am with you, and this will be the sign for you that I myself have sent you: When you bring the people out from Egypt, you will serve God on this mountain.” 13 But Moses said to God, “Look, if I go to the Israelites and I say to them, ‘The God of your ancestors has sent me to you,’ and they say to me, ‘What is his name?’ then what shall I say to them?” 14 And God said to Moses, “I am that I am.” And he said, “So you must say to the Israelites, ‘I am sent me to you.’ ”

Hebrews 1:3 who is the radiance of his glory and the representation of his essence, sustaining all things by the word of power. When he had made purification for sins through him, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high,

Exodus 23:20–23 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. [21] Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. [22] But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes. [23] When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

Romans 10:9 that if you confess with your mouth “Jesus is Lord” and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved.

Romans 10:10 For with the heart one believes, resulting in righteousness, and with the mouth one confesses, resulting in salvation.

Romans 10:11 For the scripture says, “Everyone who believes in him will not be put to shame.”

Romans 10:12 For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, for the same Lord is Lord of all, who is rich to all who call upon him.

Romans 10:13 For “everyone who calls upon the name of the Lord will be saved.”

Romans 10:9–13 that if you confess with your mouth “Jesus is Lord” and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. [10] For with the heart one believes, resulting in righteousness, and with the mouth one confesses, resulting in salvation. [11] For the scripture says, “Everyone who believes in him will not be put to shame.” [12] For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, for the same Lord is Lord of all, who is rich to all who call upon him. [13] For “everyone who calls upon the name of the Lord will be saved.”

Romans 10:13 For “everyone who calls upon the name of the Lord will be saved.”

Joel 2:32 And it will happen—everyone who calls on the name of Yahweh will be rescued, because on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem there will be those who escape, as Yahweh said, and among the survivors whom Yahweh is calling.

Romans 10:9 that if you confess with your mouth “Jesus is Lord” and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved.

Jude 5 Now I want to remind you, although you know everything once and for all, that Jesus, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, the second time destroyed those who did not believe.

Exodus 23:20–23 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. [21] Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. [22] But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes. [23] When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

Judges 2:1–2 And the angel of Yahweh went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said, “I brought you up from Egypt, and I brought you to the land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, ‘I will never break my covenant with you. [2] And as for you, do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land; break down their altars.’ But you did not listen to my voice. Why would you do such a thing?

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” [14] And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?” [15] The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

John 1:19–23 And this is the testimony of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem so that they could ask him, “Who are you?” 20 And he confessed—and he did not deny, and confessed—“I am not the Christ!” 21 And they asked him, “Then who are you? Are you Elijah?” And he said, “I am not!” “Are you the Prophet?” And he answered, “No!” 22 Then they said to him, “Who are you, so that we can give an answer to those who sent us? What do you say about yourself?”

23 He said, “I am ‘the voice of one crying out in the wilderness, “Make straight the way of the Lord,” ’

just as Isaiah the prophet said.”

John 1:29–31 On the next day he saw Jesus coming to him and said, “Look! The Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world! 30 This one is the one about whom I said, ‘After me is coming a man who is ahead of me, because he existed before me.’ 31 And I did not know him, but in order that he could be revealed to Israel, because of this I came baptizing with water.”

John 1:19 And this is the testimony of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem so that they could ask him, “Who are you?”

John 1:20 And he confessed—and he did not deny, and confessed—“I am not the Christ!”

John 1:21 And they asked him, “Then who are you? Are you Elijah?” And he said, “I am not!” “Are you the Prophet?” And he answered, “No!”

John 1:22 Then they said to him, “Who are you, so that we can give an answer to those who sent us? What do you say about yourself?”

John 1:23 He said, “I am ‘the voice of one crying out in the wilderness, “Make straight the way of the Lord,” ’

just as Isaiah the prophet said.”

John 1:29 On the next day he saw Jesus coming to him and said, “Look! The Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world!

John 1:30 This one is the one about whom I said, ‘After me is coming a man who is ahead of me, because he existed before me.’

John 1:31 And I did not know him, but in order that he could be revealed to Israel, because of this I came baptizing with water.”

John 1:19–23 And this is the testimony of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem so that they could ask him, “Who are you?” [20] And he confessed—and he did not deny, and confessed—“I am not the Christ!” [21] And they asked him, “Then who are you? Are you Elijah?” And he said, “I am not!” “Are you the Prophet?” And he answered, “No!” [22] Then they said to him, “Who are you, so that we can give an answer to those who sent us? What do you say about yourself?”

[23] He said, “I am ‘the voice of one crying out in the wilderness, “Make straight the way of the Lord,” ’

just as Isaiah the prophet said.”

John 1:29–31 On the next day he saw Jesus coming to him and said, “Look! The Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world! [30] This one is the one about whom I said, ‘After me is coming a man who is ahead of me, because he existed before me.’ [31] And I did not know him, but in order that he could be revealed to Israel, because of this I came baptizing with water.”

Isaiah 40:3 A voice is calling in the wilderness, “Clear the way of Yahweh!

Make a highway smooth in the desert for our God!

Isaiah 40:1 “Comfort; comfort my people,” says your God.

Isaiah 40:2 “Speak to the heart of Jerusalem, and call to her, that her compulsory labor is fulfilled, that her sin is paid for, that she has received from the hand of Yahweh double for all her sins.”

Isaiah 40:3 A voice is calling in the wilderness, “Clear the way of Yahweh!

Make a highway smooth in the desert for our God!

Isaiah 40:4 Every valley shall be lifted up, and every mountain and hill shall become low, And the rough ground shall be like a plain,

and the rugged ground like a valley-plain.

Isaiah 40:5 And the glory of Yahweh shall be revealed, and all humankind together shall see it, for the mouth of Yahweh has spoken."

Isaiah 40:1–5 "Comfort; comfort my people," says your God.

2 "Speak to the heart of Jerusalem, and call to her, that her compulsory labor is fulfilled, that her sin is paid for, that she has received from the hand of Yahweh double for all her sins."

3 A voice is calling in the wilderness, "Clear the way of Yahweh!
Make a highway smooth in the desert for our God!
4 Every valley shall be lifted up, and every mountain and hill shall become low, And the rough ground shall be like a plain,
and the rugged ground like a valley-plain.
5 And the glory of Yahweh shall be revealed, and all humankind together shall see it, for the mouth of Yahweh has spoken."

Isaiah 40:1 "Comfort; comfort my people," says your God.

Isaiah 40:1–2 "Comfort; comfort my people," says your God.

2 "Speak to the heart of Jerusalem, and call to her, that her compulsory labor is fulfilled, that her sin is paid for, that she has received from the hand of Yahweh double for all her sins."

Isaiah 40:3 A voice is calling in the wilderness, "Clear the way of Yahweh!
Make a highway smooth in the desert for our God!

Isaiah 40:3 A voice is calling in the wilderness, "Clear the way of Yahweh!
Make a highway smooth in the desert for our God!

Isaiah 6:8 Then I heard the voice of the Lord saying, "Whom shall I send?
And who will go for us?"

And I said,

"I am here!

Send me!”

Jeremiah 23:16–22 Thus says Yahweh of hosts: “You must not listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you.

They are deluding you with visions of their mind, They do not speak from the mouth of Yahweh.

17 They are continually saying to those who disregard the word of Yahweh, ‘Peace it will be to you,’

and to each one who walks in the stubbornness of his heart they say, ‘Calamity will not come upon you.’

18 For who has stood in the council of Yahweh, that he has seen and heard his word?

Who has listened attentively to his word and heard it?

19 Look, the storm of Yahweh has gone forth in wrath, even a whirling tempest.

It will whirl upon the head of the wicked.

20 The anger of Yahweh will not turn back until his doing and until his keeping the plans of his mind.

In latter days you will look closely at it with understanding.

21 I have not sent the prophets, yet they ran.

I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.

22 But if they had stood in my council, then they would have proclaimed my words to my people, and they would have caused them to turn from their evil way, and from the evil of their deeds.

Mark 1:9–11 And it happened that in those days Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized in the Jordan by John. 10 And immediately as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens being split apart and the Spirit descending like a dove on him. 11 And a voice came from heaven, “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.”

Mark 1:9 And it happened that in those days Jesus came from Nazareth in Galilee and was baptized in the Jordan by John.

Mark 1:10 And immediately as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens being split apart and the Spirit descending like a dove on him.

Mark 1:11 And a voice came from heaven, “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.”

Exodus 14:21 And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and Yahweh moved the sea with a strong east wind all night, and he made the sea become dry ground, and the waters were divided.

Exodus 15:11 Who is like you among the gods, Yahweh?

> Who is like you—glorious in holiness, awesome in praiseworthy actions, doing wonders?

Jude 5 Now I want to remind you, although you know everything once and for all, that Jesus, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, the second time destroyed those who did not believe.

Judges 2:1–2 And the angel of Yahweh went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said, “I brought you up from Egypt, and I brought you to the land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, ‘I will never break my covenant with you. 2 And as for you, do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land; break down their altars.’ But you did not listen to my voice. Why would you do such a thing?

Exodus 23:20–23 “ ‘Look, I am about to send an angel before you to guard you on the way and to bring you to the place that I have prepared. 21 Be attentive to him and listen to his voice; do not rebel against him, because he will not forgive your transgression, for my name is in him. 22 But if you listen attentively to his voice and do all that I say, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes. 23 When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

Mark 1:11 And a voice came from heaven, “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.”

2 Samuel 12:24–25 David consoled Bathsheba his wife, and he went to her and slept with her. She bore a son, and he called him Solomon, and Yahweh loved him. [25] He sent word by the hand of Nathan the prophet, so he called him Jedidiah because of Yahweh.

2 Samuel 12:24 David consoled Bathsheba his wife, and he went to her and slept with her. She bore a son, and he called him Solomon, and Yahweh loved him.

2 Samuel 12:25 He sent word by the hand of Nathan the prophet, so he called him Jedidiah because of Yahweh.

Chapter 32: Preeminent Domain

Acts 3:22 Moses said, ‘The Lord God will raise up for you a prophet like me from your brothers. You will listen to him in everything that he says to you.

Acts 7:37 “This is the Moses who said to the sons of Israel, ‘God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your brothers.’

Matthew 4:1 Then Jesus was led up into the wilderness by the Spirit to be tempted by the devil, Mark 1:12 And immediately the Spirit drove him out into the wilderness.

Luke 4:1–13 And Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness [2] forty days, being tempted by the devil. And he ate nothing during those days, and when they were completed, he was hungry. [3] So the devil said to him, “If you are the Son of God, order this stone that it become bread!” [4] And Jesus replied to him, “It is written, ‘Man will not live on bread alone.’ ”

[5] And he led him up and showed him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time. [6] And the devil said to him, “I will give you all this domain and their glory, because it has been handed over to me, and I can give it to whomever I want. [7] So if you will worship before me, all this will be yours.” [8] And Jesus answered and said to him, “It is written, ‘You shall worship the Lord your God, and serve only him.’ ”

[9] And he brought him to Jerusalem, and had him stand on the highest point of the temple and said to him, “If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here, [10] for it is written, ‘He will command his angels concerning you, to protect you,’

[11] and ‘on their hands they will lift you up, lest you strike your foot against a stone.’ ”

12 And Jesus answered and said to him, “It is said, ‘You are not to put to the test the Lord your God.’ ” 13 And when the devil had completed every temptation, he departed from him until a favorable time.

Matthew 3:1 Now in those days John the Baptist came preaching in the Judean wilderness

Exodus 4:23 And I said to you, “Release my son and let him serve me,” but you refused to release him. Look, I am about to kill your son, your firstborn.’ ”

Judges 2:11–15 The Israelites did evil in the eyes of Yahweh, and they served the Baals. 12 They abandoned Yahweh the God of their ancestors, who brought them out from the land of Egypt. They followed other gods from the gods of the people who were around them; and they bowed down to them, and they provoked the anger of Yahweh. 13 They abandoned Yahweh, and they served Baal and the Ashtaroth. 14 So the anger of Yahweh was kindled against Israel, and he gave them into the hand of plunderers; and they plundered them, and he sold them into the hand of their enemies from all sides. They were unable to withstand their enemies any longer. 15 Whenever they went out, the hand of Yahweh was against them to harm them, just as Yahweh warned, and just as Yahweh had sworn to them. And they were very distressed.

Deuteronomy 32:15–20 And Jeshurun grew fat, and he kicked; you grew fat, you bloated, and you became obstinate; and he abandoned God, his maker,

and he scoffed at the rock of his salvation.

16 They made him jealous with strange gods; with detestable things they provoked him.

17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

18 The rock who bore you, you neglected, and you forgot God, the one giving you birth.

[19] Then Yahweh saw, and he spurned them, because of the provocation of his sons and his daughters.
[20] So he said, ‘I will hide my face from them; I will see what will be their end, for they are a generation of perversity, children in whom there is no faithfulness.

Deuteronomy 8:3 And he humbled you and let you go hungry, and then he fed you with that which you did not know nor did your ancestors know, in order to make you know that not by bread alone but by all that goes out of the mouth of Yahweh humankind shall live.

Deuteronomy 6:16 You shall not put Yahweh your God to the test, as you tested him at Massah.

Deuteronomy 6:16 You shall not put Yahweh your God to the test, as you tested him at Massah.

Deuteronomy 6:17 You shall diligently keep the commandments of Yahweh your God and his legal provisions and his rules that he has commanded you.

Deuteronomy 6:16–17 You shall not put Yahweh your God to the test, as you tested him at Massah. [17] You shall diligently keep the commandments of Yahweh your God and his legal provisions and his rules that he has commanded you.

Matthew 4:8 Again the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory,

Matthew 4:9 and he said to him, “I will give to you all these things, if you will fall down and worship me.”

Matthew 4:8–9 Again the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory, [9] and he said to him, “I will give to you all these things, if you will fall down and worship me.”

John 12:31 Now is the judgment of this world! Now the ruler of this world will be thrown out!

Revelation 12:9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Luke 4:14–15 And Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit to Galilee, and news about him went out throughout all the surrounding region. 15 And he began to teach in their synagogues, and was praised by all.

Matthew 4:12–16 Now when he heard that John had been arrested, he withdrew into Galilee. 13 And leaving Nazareth, he went and lived in Capernaum by the sea, in the region of Zebulun and Naphtali, 14 in order that what was spoken by the prophet Isaiah would be fulfilled, who said, 15 "Land of Zebulun and land of Naphtali, toward the sea, on the other side of the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles— 16 the people who sit in darkness have seen a great light, > and the ones who sit in the land and shadow of death, a light has dawned on them."

Matthew 4:17 From that time on, Jesus began to preach and to say, "Repent, because the kingdom of heaven is near."

Mark 1:16–28 And as he was passing by along the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and Andrew, Simon's brother, casting a net into the sea (for they were fishermen). 17 And Jesus said to them, "Follow me and I will make you become fishers of people." 18 And immediately they left their nets and followed him. 19 And going on a little farther, he saw James the son of Zebedee and his brother John, and they were in the boat mending the nets. 20 And immediately he called them, and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men and went away after him. 21 And they went into Capernaum and immediately on the Sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue.

22 And they were amazed at his teaching, because he was teaching them like one who had authority, and not like the scribes. 23 And so then there was a man in their synagogue with an unclean spirit, and he cried out, 24 saying,

“Leave us alone, Jesus the Nazarene! Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are—the Holy One of God!” [25] And Jesus rebuked him, saying, “Be silent, and come out of him!” [26] And after convulsing him and crying out with a loud voice, the unclean spirit came out of him. [27] And they were all amazed, so that they began to discuss with one another, saying, “What is this? A new teaching with authority! He even commands the unclean spirits and they obey him.” [28] And the report about him then went out everywhere in the whole surrounding region of Galilee.

Luke 11:20 But if I expel demons by the finger of God, then the kingdom of God has come upon you!

Luke 9:1–6 And summoning the twelve, he gave them power and authority over all the demons and to cure diseases, [2] and he sent them out to proclaim the kingdom of God and to heal the sick. [3] And he said to them, “Take along nothing for the journey—neither a staff, nor a traveler’s bag, nor bread, nor money, nor to have two tunics apiece. [4] And into whatever house you enter, stay there and depart from there. [5] And as for all those who do not welcome you—when you depart from that town, shake off the dust from your feet for a testimony against them.” [6] So they departed and went throughout the villages, proclaiming the good news and healing everywhere.

Luke 10:1 And after these things, the Lord also appointed seventy-two others and sent them out two by two before him into every town and place where he was about to go.

Luke 10:17 And the seventy-two returned with joy, saying, “Lord, even the demons are subject to us in your name!”

Luke 10:18 So he said to them, “I saw Satan falling like lightning from heaven.

Matthew 16:13–20 Now when Jesus came to the region of Caesarea Philippi, he began asking his disciples, saying, “Who do people say that the Son of Man is?” [14] And they said, Some say John the Baptist, but others Elijah, and others Jeremiah or one of the prophets.” [15] He said to them, “But who do you say that I am?” [16] And Simon Peter answered and said, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God!” [17] And Jesus answered and said to him, “Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah, because flesh and blood did not reveal this to you, but my Father who is in heaven. [18] And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it! [19] I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you release on earth will be released in heaven.” [20] Then he commanded the disciples that they should tell no one that he was the Christ.

Matthew 16:18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

Matthew 16:17–18 And Jesus answered and said to him, “Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah, because flesh and blood did not reveal this to you, but my Father who is in heaven. [18] And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. [20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Mark 9:2 And after six days, Jesus took along Peter and James and John, and led them to a high mountain by themselves alone. And he was transfigured before them,

Mark 9:3 and his clothing became radiant—extremely white, like no cloth refiner on earth can make so white.

Mark 9:4 And Elijah appeared to them together with Moses, and they were talking with Jesus.

Mark 9:5 And Peter answered and said to Jesus, “Rabbi, it is good that we are here! And let us make three shelters, one for you and one for Moses and one for Elijah.”

Mark 9:6 (For he did not know what he should answer, because they were terrified.)

Mark 9:7 And a cloud came, overshadowing them, and a voice came from the cloud, “This is my beloved Son. Listen to him!”

Mark 9:8 And suddenly, looking around, they no longer saw anyone with them but Jesus alone.

Mark 9:2–8 And after six days, Jesus took along Peter and James and John, and led them to a high mountain by themselves alone. And he was transfigured before them, [3] and his clothing became radiant—extremely white, like no cloth refiner on earth can make so white. [4] And Elijah appeared to them together with Moses, and they were talking with Jesus. [5] And Peter answered and said to Jesus, “Rabbi, it is good that we are here! And let us make three shelters, one for you and one for Moses and one for Elijah.” [6] (For he did not know what he should answer, because they were terrified.) [7] And a cloud came, overshadowing them, and a voice came from the cloud, “This is my beloved Son. Listen to him!” [8] And suddenly, looking around, they no longer saw anyone with them but Jesus alone.

Matthew 17:1 And after six days Jesus took along Peter and James and John his brother, and led them up on a high mountain by themselves.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Chapter 33: A Beneficial Death

Matthew 27:35 And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among themselves by casting lots.

Matthew 27:36 And they sat down and were watching over him there.

Matthew 27:37 And they put above his head the charge against him in writing: “This is Jesus, the king of the Jews.”

Matthew 27:38 Then two robbers were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left.

Matthew 27:39 And those who passed by reviled him, shaking their heads

Matthew 27:40 and saying, “The one who would destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross!”

Matthew 27:41 In the same way also the chief priests, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking him, saying,

Matthew 27:42 “He saved others; he is not able to save himself! He is the king of Israel! Let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe in him!

Matthew 27:43 He trusts in God; let him deliver him now if he wants to, because he said, ‘I am the Son of God’!”

Matthew 27:44 And in the same way even the robbers who were crucified with him were reviling him.

Matthew 27:45 Now from the sixth hour, darkness came over all the land until the ninth hour.

Matthew 27:46 And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, “Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?” (that is, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?”)

Matthew 27:35–46 And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among themselves by casting lots. [36] And they sat down and were watching over him there. [37] And they put above his head the charge against him in writing: “This is Jesus, the king of the Jews.” [38] Then two robbers were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left. [39] And those who passed by reviled him, shaking their heads [40] and saying, “The one who would destroy the temple and rebuild it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross!” [41] In the same way also the chief priests, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking him, saying, [42] “He saved others; he is not able to save himself! He is the king of Israel! Let him come down now from the cross, and we will believe in him! [43] He trusts in God; let him deliver him now if he wants to, because he said, ‘I am the Son of God’!” [44] And in the same way even the robbers who were crucified with him were reviling him.

[45] Now from the sixth hour, darkness came over all the land until the ninth hour. [46] And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, “Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?” (that is, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?”)

Matthew 27:35 And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among themselves by casting lots.

Psalm 22:18 They divide my garments among them, and for my clothing they cast lots.

Matthew 27:39 And those who passed by reviled him, shaking their heads

Matthew 27:41 In the same way also the chief priests, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking him, saying,

Psalm 22:7 All who see me mock me.

They open wide their lips; they shake the head, saying:

Psalm 22:17 I can count all my bones; they gaze, they look at me.

Matthew 27:46 And about the ninth hour Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?" (that is, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?")

Psalm 22:1 My God, my God why have you forsaken me?

Why are you far from helping me, far from the words of my groaning?

Psalm 22:14 I am poured out like water, and all my bones are out of joint.

My heart is like wax;

it is melted within me.

Psalm 22:15 My strength is dry like a potsherd, and my tongue is sticking to my jaws; and you have placed me in the dust of death.

Psalm 22:12 Many bulls have encircled me; mighty bulls of Bashan have surrounded me.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

1 Kings 12:25–33 Then Jeroboam built Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and he resided in it. Then he went out from there and built Penuel. [26] Then Jeroboam said to himself, "Now the kingdom will return to the house of David [27] if this people go up to offer sacrifices in the house of Yahweh in Jerusalem. The heart of this people will return to their master Rehoboam the king of Judah, and they shall kill me and return to him."

[28] And the king had decided, so he made two golden calves and he said to them, "You have been going up to Jerusalem long enough; here are your gods, O Israel, who brought you up from the land of Egypt." [29] He put one in Bethel, and the other he put in Dan. [30] This thing became a sin, and the people walked before the one as far as Dan. [31] Then he built the houses on the high places, and he appointed priests from all walks of life who were not from the sons of Levi. [32] Jeroboam also inaugurated a religious feast in the eighth month on the fifteenth day of the month, like the religious feast which was in Judah, and he offered sacrifices on the altar. Thus he did in Bethel, by sacrificing to the calves that he had made; and he placed in Bethel the priests of the high places which he had made. [33] He offered sacrifices on the altar which he had made in Bethel on the fifteenth day of the eighth month which his heart had devised. He inaugurated a religious feast for the Israelites, and he went up to the altar to offer incense.

Amos 4:1 Hear this word, you cows of Bashan who live on the mountain of Samaria, who oppress the powerless, who crush the poor, who say to their husbands, “Bring something so that we may drink!”

Amos 4:2 My Lord Yahweh has sworn by his holiness that, “Behold, the days are coming upon you when they will take you away with hooks, even the last of you with fishing hooks.

Amos 4:1–2 Hear this word, you cows of Bashan who live on the mountain of Samaria, who oppress the powerless, who crush the poor, who say to their husbands, “Bring something so that we may drink!” [2] My Lord Yahweh has sworn by his holiness that, “Behold, the days are coming upon you when they will take you away with hooks, even the last of you with fishing hooks.

Psalm 82:3–4 Judge on behalf of the helpless and the orphan; provide justice to the afflicted and the poor.

> [4] Rescue the helpless and the needy; deliver them from the hand of the wicked.”

Psalm 68:15–23 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

> [16] Why do you look with hostility, O many-peaked mountains?
>
> This mountain God desires for his dwelling.

Yes, Yahweh will abide in it forever.

[17] The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, with thousands doubled.

The Lord is among them at Sinai, distinctive in victory.

[18] You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

[19] Blessed be the Lord. Daily he loads us with benefits, the God of our salvation. Selah [20] Our God is a God of deliverances, and to the Yahweh the Lord belong escapes from death.

[21] But God will shatter the head of his enemies, the hairy scalp of the one who continues on in his guilt.

[22] The Lord said, "I will bring them back from Bashan; I will bring them back from the depths of the sea, [23] so that your foot may shatter them bloody for the tongues of your dogs to have their share from the enemies."

Psalm 68:15 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

Psalm 68:16 Why do you look with hostility, O many-peaked mountains?

This mountain God desires for his dwelling.

Yes, Yahweh will abide in it forever.

Psalm 68:17 The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, with thousands doubled.

The Lord is among them at Sinai, distinctive in victory.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Psalm 68:15 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

Psalm 68:17 The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, with thousands doubled.

The Lord is among them at Sinai, distinctive in victory.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Ephesians 4:8 Therefore it says, “Ascending on high he led captivity captive; he gave gifts to men.”

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Ephesians 4:8 Therefore it says, “Ascending on high he led captivity captive;

he gave gifts to men.”

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Colossians 2:15 When he had disarmed the rulers and the authorities, he made a display of them in public, triumphing over them by it.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Ephesians 4:8 Therefore it says, “Ascending on high he led captivity captive;

he gave gifts to men.”

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Ephesians 4:11 And he himself gave some as apostles and some as prophets and some as evangelists and some as pastors and teachers

Ephesians 4:9–10 Now “he ascended,” what is it, except that he also descended to the lower regions of the earth? [10] The one who descended himself is also the one who ascended above all the heavens, in order that he might fill all things.

Psalm 68:18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Ephesians 4:8 Therefore it says, “Ascending on high he led captivity captive;

he gave gifts to men.”

Ephesians 4:8 Therefore it says, “Ascending on high he led captivity captive;

he gave gifts to men.”

Ephesians 4:9 Now “he ascended,” what is it, except that he also descended to the lower regions of the earth?

1 Peter 3:18–22 For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,

in order that he could bring you to God,

being put to death in the flesh,

but made alive in the spirit,

19 in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, 20 who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. 21 And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, 22 who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and powers having been subjected to him.

Ephesians 4:9–10 Now “he ascended,” what is it, except that he also descended to the lower regions of the earth? 10 The one who descended himself is also the one who ascended above all the heavens, in order that he might fill all things.

Matthew 3:16 Now after he was baptized, Jesus immediately went up from the water, and behold, the heavens opened and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove coming upon him.

Matthew 4:1 Then Jesus was led up into the wilderness by the Spirit to be tempted by the devil,

Matthew 28:18–20 And Jesus approached and spoke to them, saying, “All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. [19] Therefore, go and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, [20] teaching them to observe everything I have commanded you, and behold, I am with you all the days until the end of the age.”

Acts 7:55 But he, being full of the Holy Spirit, looked intently into heaven and saw the glory of God, and Jesus standing at the right hand of God.

John 14:26 But the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name—that one will teach you all things, and will remind you of everything that I said to you.

John 15:26 “When the Advocate comes, whom I will send to you from the Father—the Spirit of truth, who proceeds from the Father—that one will testify about me.

Luke 24:49 And behold, I am sending out what was promised by my Father upon you, but you stay in the city until you are clothed with power from on high.”

Acts 16:6 And they traveled through the Phrygian and Galatian region, having been prevented by the Holy Spirit from speaking the message in Asia.

Acts 16:7 And when they came to Mysia, they attempted to go into Bithynia, and the Spirit of Jesus did not permit them.

Acts 16:6–7 And they traveled through the Phrygian and Galatian region, having been prevented by the Holy Spirit from speaking the message in Asia. [7] And when they came to Mysia, they attempted to go into Bithynia, and the Spirit of Jesus did not permit them.

Romans 8:9 But you are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if indeed the Spirit of God lives in you. But if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, this person does not belong to him.

Romans 8:10 But if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the Spirit is life because of righteousness.

Romans 8:9–10 But you are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if indeed the Spirit of God lives in you. But if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, this person does not belong to him. [10] But if Christ is in you, the body is dead because of sin, but the Spirit is life because of righteousness.

Philippians 1:19 for I know that this will turn out to me for deliverance through your prayer and the support of the Spirit of Jesus Christ,

Galatians 4:4 But when the fullness of time came, God sent out his Son, born of a woman, born under the law,

Galatians 4:5 in order that he might redeem those under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption.

Galatians 4:6 And because you are sons, God sent out the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying out, “Abba! (Father!),”

Galatians 4:4–6 But when the fullness of time came, God sent out his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, [5] in order that he might redeem those under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption. [6] And because you are sons, God sent out the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying out, “Abba! (Father!),”

1 Peter 1:10 Concerning this salvation, the prophets who prophesied about the grace meant for you sought and made careful inquiry,

1 Peter 1:11 investigating for what person or which time the Spirit of Christ in them was indicating when he testified beforehand to the sufferings with reference to Christ and the glories after these things,

1 Peter 1:10–11 Concerning this salvation, the prophets who prophesied about the grace meant for you sought and made careful inquiry, [11] investigating for what person or which time the Spirit of Christ in them was indicating when he testified beforehand to the sufferings with reference to Christ and the glories after these things,

Chapter 34: Infiltration

Acts 2:1 And when the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in the same place.

Acts 2:2 And suddenly a sound like a violent rushing wind came from heaven and filled the whole house where they were sitting.

Acts 2:3 And divided tongues like fire appeared to them and rested on each one of them.

Acts 2:4 And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages as the Spirit gave them ability to speak out.

Acts 2:5 Now there were Jews residing in Jerusalem, devout men from every nation under heaven.

Acts 2:6 And when this sound occurred, the crowd gathered and was in confusion, because each one was hearing them speaking in his own language.

Acts 2:7 And they were astounded and astonished, saying, “Behold, are not all these who are speaking Galileans?

Acts 2:8 And how do we hear, each one of us, in our own native language?

Acts 2:9 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia,

Acts 2:10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town,

Acts 2:11 both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own languages the great deeds of God!”

Acts 2:12 And all were amazed and greatly perplexed, saying to one another, “What can this mean?”

Acts 2:13 But others jeered and said, “They are full of sweet new wine!”

Acts 2:1–13 And when the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in the same place. 2 And suddenly a sound like a violent rushing wind came from heaven and filled the whole house where they were sitting. 3 And divided tongues like fire appeared to them and rested on each one of them. 4 And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages as the Spirit gave them ability to speak out.

5 Now there were Jews residing in Jerusalem, devout men from every nation under heaven. 6 And when this sound occurred, the crowd gathered and was in confusion, because each one was hearing them speaking in his own language. 7 And they were astounded and astonished, saying, “Behold, are not all these who are speaking Galileans? 8 And how do we hear, each one of us, in our own native language? 9 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, 10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town, 11 both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own languages the great deeds of God!” 12 And all were amazed and greatly perplexed, saying to one another, “What can this mean?” 13 But others jeered and said, “They are full of sweet new wine!”

2 Kings 2:1 When Yahweh was about to take Elijah up in the storm to heaven, Elijah and Elisha went from Gilgal.

2 Kings 2:11 Then they were walking, talking as they went. Suddenly a fiery chariot with horses of fire appeared and separated between the two of them. Elijah went up in the storm to the heavens

Job 38:1 Then Yahweh answered Job from the storm, and he said,

Job 40:6 Then Yahweh answered Job from the storm, and he said,

Ezekiel 1:4 And I looked, and look! A storm wind was coming from the north, a great cloud, and fire flashing back and forth, and brightness around and within it, and from its midst it was like the outward appearance of amber stone from the midst of the fire.

Isaiah 30:30 And Yahweh will cause the majesty of his voice to be heard, and he will cause the descent of his arm to be seen, in furious anger and a flame of devouring fire, with a cloudburst and a rainstorm and stones of hail.

Ezekiel 1:4 And I looked, and look! A storm wind was coming from the north, a great cloud, and fire flashing back and forth, and brightness around and within it, and from its midst it was like the outward appearance of amber stone from the midst of the fire.

Isaiah 6:4 And the pivots of the thresholds shook from the sound of those who called, and the house was filled with smoke.

Isaiah 6:6 Then one of the seraphs flew to me, and in his hand was a hot coal he had taken from the altar with tongs.

Daniel 7:9 “I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire.

Exodus 3:2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed.

Exodus 19:18 And Mount Sinai was all wrapped in smoke because Yahweh went down on it in the fire, and its smoke went up like the smoke of a smelting furnace, and the whole mountain trembled greatly.

Exodus 20:18 And all the people were seeing the thunder and the lightning and the sound of the ram’s horn and the mountain smoking, and the people saw, and they trembled, and they stood at a distance.

Isaiah 4:5 Then Yahweh will create over all of the site of Mount Zion and over her assembly a cloud by day and smoke and the brightness of flaming fire by night.
Indeed, over all the glory there will be a canopy,

Judges 13:20 And when the flame went up toward the heaven from the altar, the angel of Yahweh went up in the flame of the altar to heaven while Manoah and his wife were watching. And they fell on their faces to the ground.

Psalm 104:4 who makes his messengers the winds, his attendants a flame of fire.

Acts 2:6 And when this sound occurred, the crowd gathered and was in confusion, because each one was hearing them speaking in his own language.

Genesis 11:7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other's language."

Acts 2:9–11 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, [10] Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town, [11] both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own languages the great deeds of God!"

Acts 2:3 And divided tongues like fire appeared to them and rested on each one of them.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 10:4 And the sons of Javan: Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim.

Acts 1:8 But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the farthest part of the earth.”

Acts 2:9–11 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, [10] Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town, [11] both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own languages the great deeds of God!”

Acts 2:9 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia,

Acts 2:10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town,

Acts 2:11 both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own languages the great deeds of God!”

Acts 2:9–11 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, [10] Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town, [11] both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—we hear them speaking in our own languages the great deeds of God!”

Acts 2:9 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia,

1 Maccabees 15:15–22 In the mean season came Numenius and his company from Rome, having letters to the kings and countries; wherein were written these things: [16] Lucius, consul of the Romans unto king Ptolemee, greeting: [17] The Jews’ ambassadors, our friends and confederates, came unto us to renew the old friendship and league, being sent from Simon the high priest, and from the people of the Jews: [18] And they brought a shield of gold of a thousand pound. [19] We thought it good therefore to write unto the kings and countries, that they should do them no harm, nor fight against them, their cities, or countries, nor yet aid their enemies against them. [20] It seemed also good to us to receive the shield of them. [21] If therefore there be any pestilent fellows, that have fled from their country unto you, deliver them unto Simon the high priest, that he may punish them according to their own law.

[22] The same things wrote he likewise unto Demetrius the king, and Attalus, to Ariarathes, and Arsaces,

2 Kings 17:6 In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria captured Samaria and deported Israel to Assyria. He placed them in Halah, in Habor, in the river regions of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

2 Kings 18:11 Then the king of Assyria deported Israel to Assyria and settled them in Halah, in Habor, in the river regions of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes, Esther 1:19 If it pleases the king, let a royal edict go out from him, and let it be written among the laws of Persia and Media so that it will not be altered, that Vashti cannot come before King Ahasuerus; and let the king give her royal position to her neighbor who is better than she.

Daniel 5:28 " 'Peres'—your kingdom has been divided and given to the Medes and Persians.' "

Daniel 6:8 Now, O king, establish the edict and you must sign the document so that it cannot be changed, according to the law of the Medes and Persians which cannot be revoked."

Daniel 6:12 Then they approached and spoke with the king concerning the edict of the king, "Did you not sign an edict that any person who would seek anything from any God or human within thirty days except from you, O king, would be thrown into the lion pit?" The king answered and said, "The matter as you have just stated is certain according to the law of the Medes and Persians which cannot be revoked."

Daniel 6:15 Then these men came as a group to the king and said, “Recall, O king, that with respect to the law of the Medes and Persians that any decree or edict that the king establishes cannot be changed.”

Jeremiah 25:25 and all the kings of Zimri, and all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of Media;

Titus 1:5 On account of this, I left you behind in Crete, in order that what remains may be set in order and you may appoint elders in every town, as I ordered you.

Galatians 1:15–17 But when the one who set me apart from my mother’s womb and called me by his grace was pleased [16] to reveal his Son in me in order that I would proclaim the gospel about him among the Gentiles, immediately I did not consult with flesh and blood, [17] nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me, but I went away to Arabia and I returned again to Damascus.

Acts 8:26–40 Now an angel of the Lord spoke to Philip, saying, “Get up and go toward the south on the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza.” (This is a desert road.) [27] And he got up and went, and behold, there was a man, an Ethiopian eunuch (a court official of Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, who was over all her treasury) who had come to worship in Jerusalem [28] and was returning and sitting in his chariot, and reading aloud the prophet Isaiah. [29] And the Spirit said to Philip, “Approach and join this chariot.” [30] So Philip ran up to it and heard him reading aloud Isaiah the prophet and said, “So then, do you understand what you are reading?” [31] And he said, “So how could I, unless someone will guide me?” And he invited Philip to come up and sit with him. [32] Now the passage of scripture that he was reading aloud was this: “He was led like a sheep to the slaughter, > and like a lamb before its shearer is silent, so he did not open his mouth.

>
> [33] In his humiliation justice was taken from him.
>
> Who can describe his descendants?

For his life was taken away from the earth.”

34 And the eunuch answered and said to Philip, “I ask you, about whom does the prophet say this—about himself or about someone else?” 35 So Philip opened his mouth and beginning from this scripture, proclaimed the good news to him about Jesus. 36 And as they were traveling down the road, they came to some water. And the eunuch said, “Look! Water! What prevents me from being baptized?” 38 And he ordered the chariot to stop, and they both went down into the water—Philip and the eunuch—and he baptized him. 39 And when they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord carried Philip away, and the eunuch did not see him any longer, for he went on his way rejoicing. 40 But Philip found himself at Azotus, and as he passed through, he proclaimed the good news to all the towns until he came to Caesarea.

Acts 11:20 But some of them were men from Cyprus and Cyrene, who, when they came to Antioch, began to speak to the Hellenists also, proclaiming the good news about the Lord Jesus.

Acts 13:1 Now there were prophets and teachers in Antioch in the church that was there: Barnabas, and Simeon (who was called Niger), and Lucius the Cyrenian, and Manaen (a close friend of Herod the tetrarch), and Saul.

Romans 1:16 For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, to the Jew first and also to the Greek.

Acts 2:41 So those who accepted his message were baptized, and on that day about three thousand souls were added.

Romans 15:24 whenever I travel to Spain. For I hope while I am passing through to see you and to be sent on my way by you, whenever I have first enjoyed your company for a while.

Romans 15:28 Therefore, after I have accomplished this and sealed this fruit for delivery to them, I will depart by way of you for Spain,

Romans 15:22 For this reason also I was hindered many times from coming to you,

Romans 15:23 and now, no longer having a place in these regions, but having a desire for many years to come to you

Romans 15:24 whenever I travel to Spain. For I hope while I am passing through to see you and to be sent on my way by you, whenever I have first enjoyed your company for a while.

Romans 15:25 But now I am traveling to Jerusalem, serving the saints.

Romans 15:26 For Macedonia and Achaia were pleased to make some contribution for the poor among the saints in Jerusalem.

Romans 15:27 For they were pleased to do so, and they are obligated to them. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual things, they ought also to serve them in material things.

Romans 15:28 Therefore, after I have accomplished this and sealed this fruit for delivery to them, I will depart by way of you for Spain,

Romans 15:22–28 For this reason also I was hindered many times from coming to you, [23] and now, no longer having a place in these regions, but having a desire for many years to come to you [24] whenever I travel to Spain. For I hope while I am passing through to see you and to be sent on my way by you, whenever I have first enjoyed your company for a while. [25] But now I am traveling to Jerusalem, serving the saints. [26] For Macedonia and Achaia were pleased to make some contribution for the poor among the saints in Jerusalem. [27] For they were pleased to do so, and they are obligated to them. For if the Gentiles have shared in their spiritual things, they ought also to serve them in material things. [28] Therefore, after I have accomplished this and sealed this fruit for delivery to them, I will depart by way of you for Spain,

Romans 15:24 whenever I travel to Spain. For I hope while I am passing through to see you and to be sent on my way by you, whenever I have first enjoyed your company for a while.

Romans 15:28 Therefore, after I have accomplished this and sealed this fruit for delivery to them, I will depart by way of you for Spain,

Romans 11:25 For I do not want you to be ignorant, brothers, of this mystery, so that you will not be wise in your own sight, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel, until the full number of the Gentiles has come in,

Romans 11:26 and so all Israel will be saved, just as it is written, “The deliverer will come out of Zion;

he will turn away ungodliness from Jacob.

Romans 11:27 And this is the covenant from me with them when I take away their sins.”

Romans 11:25–27 For I do not want you to be ignorant, brothers, of this mystery, so that you will not be wise in your own sight, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel, until the full number of the Gentiles has come in, 26 and so all Israel will be saved, just as it is written, “The deliverer will come out of Zion;

he will turn away ungodliness from Jacob.

27 And this is the covenant from me with them when I take away their sins.”

Isaiah 66:15–23 For look! Yahweh will come in fire, and his chariots like the storm wind, to give back his anger in wrath,

and his rebuke in flames of fire.

16 For Yahweh enters into judgment on all flesh with fire and his sword, and those slain by Yahweh shall be many.

17 Those who sanctify themselves and those who cleanse themselves to go into the gardens after the one in the middle, eating the flesh of swine

and detestable things and rodents together

shall come to an end!” declares Yahweh.

18 “And I—their works and thoughts!—am about to come to gather all nations and tongues, and they shall come and see my glory.
19 And I will set a sign among them, and I will send survivors from them to the nations:
Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, who draw the bow; Tubal and Javan, the faraway coastlands
that have not heard of my fame, and have not seen my glory.
And they shall declare my glory among the nations, 20 and bring all your countrymen from all the nations as an offering to Yahweh on horses and chariots and in litters and on mules and camels, to my holy mountain, Jerusalem,” says Yahweh, “just as the sons of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel to the house of Yahweh. 21 And indeed, I will take some of them as priests and the Levites,” says Yahweh. 22 “For just as the new heavens and earth that I am about to make shall stand before me,” declares Yahweh, “so shall your descendants and your name stand.
23 And this shall happen: From new moon to new moon and from Sabbath to Sabbath all flesh shall come to bow in worship before me,” says Yahweh.

Isaiah 66:15–23 For look! Yahweh will come in fire, and his chariots like the storm wind,
to give back his anger in wrath,
and his rebuke in flames of fire.
16 For Yahweh enters into judgment on all flesh with fire and his sword,
and those slain by Yahweh shall be many.
17 Those who sanctify themselves and those who cleanse themselves to go into the gardens after the one in the middle, eating the flesh of swine
and detestable things and rodents together
shall come to an end!” declares Yahweh.

18 “And I—their works and thoughts!—am about to come to gather all nations and tongues, and they shall come and see my glory.

19 And I will set a sign among them, and I will send survivors from them to the nations:
Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, who draw the bow; Tubal and Javan, the
faraway coastlands
that have not heard of my fame, and have not seen my glory.
And they shall declare my glory among the nations, 20 and bring all your countrymen from all the nations as an offering to Yahweh on horses and chariots and in litters and on mules and camels, to my holy mountain, Jerusalem," says Yahweh, "just as the sons of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel to the house of Yahweh. 21 And indeed, I will take some of them as priests and the Levites," says Yahweh. 22 "For just as the new heavens and earth that I am about to make shall stand before me," declares Yahweh, "so shall your descendants and your name stand.
23 And this shall happen: From new moon to new moon and from Sabbath to Sabbath all flesh shall come to bow in worship before me," says Yahweh.

Isaiah 66:15–16 For look! Yahweh will come in fire, and his chariots like the storm wind,
to give back his anger in wrath,
and his rebuke in flames of fire.
16 For Yahweh enters into judgment on all flesh with fire and his sword, and those slain by Yahweh shall be many.

Acts 2:2–3 And suddenly a sound like a violent rushing wind came from heaven and filled the whole house where they were sitting. 3 And divided tongues like fire appeared to them and rested on each one of them.

Psalm 68:15–18 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.
16 Why do you look with hostility, O many-peaked mountains?
This mountain God desires for his dwelling.
Yes, Yahweh will abide in it forever.
17 The chariots of God are twice ten thousand, with thousands doubled.

The Lord is among them at Sinai, distinctive in victory.

18 You have ascended on high; you have led away captives.

You have received gifts from among humankind, and even from the rebellious, so that Yah God may dwell there.

Isaiah 66:18 “And I—their works and thoughts!—am about to come to gather all nations and tongues, and they shall come and see my glory.

Acts 2:5 Now there were Jews residing in Jerusalem, devout men from every nation under heaven.

Psalm 66:19 However, God has listened; he has attended to the sound of my prayer.

Acts 2:9–10 Parthians and Medes and Elamites and those residing in Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, 10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town,

Isaiah 66:20–21 and bring all your countrymen from all the nations as an offering to Yahweh on horses and chariots and in litters and on mules and camels, to my holy mountain, Jerusalem,” says Yahweh, “just as the sons of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel to the house of Yahweh. 21 And indeed, I will take some of them as priests and the Levites,” says Yahweh.

Isaiah 66:22–23 “For just as the new heavens and earth that I am about to make shall stand before me,” declares Yahweh, “so shall your descendants and your name stand.

23 And this shall happen: From new moon to new moon and from Sabbath to Sabbath all flesh shall come to bow in worship before me,” says Yahweh.

Romans 11:25–27 For I do not want you to be ignorant, brothers, of this mystery, so that you will not be wise in your own sight, that a partial hardening has happened to Israel, until the full number of the Gentiles has come in, 26 and so all Israel will be saved, just as it is written, “The deliverer will come out of Zion;

he will turn away ungodliness from Jacob.

[27] And this is the covenant from me with them when I take away their sins.”

Acts 2:10 Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya toward Cyrene, and the Romans who were in town, Romans 15:16 with the result that I am a servant of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles, serving the gospel of God as a priest, in order that the offering of the Gentiles may become acceptable, sanctified by the Holy Spirit.

Chapter 35: Sons of God, Seed of Abraham

Genesis 12:3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Ephesians 3:1 On account of this I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for the sake of you Gentiles

Ephesians 3:2 —if indeed you have heard about the stewardship of God’s grace given to me for you.

Ephesians 3:3 According to revelation the mystery was made known to me, just as I wrote beforehand in brief,

Ephesians 3:4 so that you may be able when you read to understand my insight into the mystery of Christ

Ephesians 3:5 (which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men as it has now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit):

Ephesians 3:6 that the Gentiles are fellow heirs, and fellow members of the body, and fellow sharers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel,

Ephesians 3:1–6 On account of this I, Paul, the prisoner of Christ Jesus for the sake of you Gentiles [2] —if indeed you have heard about the stewardship of God’s grace given to me for you. [3] According to revelation the mystery was made known to me, just as I wrote beforehand in brief, [4] so that you may be able when you read to understand my insight into the mystery of Christ [5] (which in other generations was not made known to the sons of men as it has now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit): [6] that the Gentiles are fellow heirs, and fellow members of the body, and fellow sharers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel,

Galatians 3:6 Just as Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him for righteousness,

Galatians 3:7 then understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham.

Galatians 3:8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: “In you all the nations will be blessed.”

Galatians 3:9 So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.

Galatians 3:26 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, Galatians 3:27 for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ.

Galatians 3:28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus.

Galatians 3:29 And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Galatians 3:6–9 Just as Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him for righteousness, [7] then understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham. [8] And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: “In you all the nations will be blessed.” [9] So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

John 1:11 He came to his own things, and his own people did not receive him.

John 1:12 But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name—he gave to them authority to become children of God,

John 1:13 who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of a husband, but of God.

John 1:11–13 He came to his own things, and his own people did not receive him. [12] But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name—he gave to them authority to become children of God, [13] who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of a husband, but of God.

1 John 3:1 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him.

1 John 3:2 Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is.

1 John 3:1–2 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him. [2] Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is.

Galatians 4:4 But when the fullness of time came, God sent out his Son, born of a woman, born under the law,

Galatians 4:5 in order that he might redeem those under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption.

Galatians 4:6 And because you are sons, God sent out the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying out, “Abba! (Father!),”

Galatians 4:7 so that you are no longer a slave but a son, and if a son, also an heir through God.

Galatians 4:4–7 But when the fullness of time came, God sent out his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, [5] in order that he might redeem those under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption. [6] And because you are sons, God sent out the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying out, “Abba! (Father!),” [7] so that you are no longer a slave but a son, and if a son, also an heir through God.

Romans 8:15 For you have not received a spirit of slavery leading to fear again, but you have received the Spirit of adoption, by whom we cry out, “Abba! Father!”

Romans 8:16 The Spirit himself confirms to our spirit that we are children of God, Romans 8:17 and if children, also heirs—heirs of God and fellow heirs with Christ, if indeed we suffer together with him so that we may also be glorified together with him.

Romans 8:15–17 For you have not received a spirit of slavery leading to fear again, but you have received the Spirit of adoption, by whom we cry out, “Abba! Father!” [16] The Spirit himself confirms to our spirit that we are children of God, [17] and if children, also heirs—heirs of God and fellow heirs with Christ, if indeed we suffer together with him so that we may also be glorified together with him.

Ephesians 1:4 just as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before him in love,

Ephesians 1:5 having predestined us to adoption through Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will,

Ephesians 1:4–5 just as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before him in love, [5] having predestined us to adoption through Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will,

Ephesians 3:6 that the Gentiles are fellow heirs, and fellow members of the body, and fellow sharers of the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel,

Ephesians 1:5 having predestined us to adoption through Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will,

Ephesians 1:11–19 in whom also we were chosen, having been predestined according to the purpose of the One who works all things according to the counsel of his will, 12 that we who hoped beforehand in Christ should be for the praise of his glory, 13 in whom also you, when you heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, in whom also when you believed you were sealed with the promised Holy Spirit, 14 who is the down payment of our inheritance, until the redemption of the possession, to the praise of his glory.
15 Because of this I also, hearing of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for all the saints, 16 do not cease giving thanks for you, making mention in my prayers, 17 that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious Father, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him 18 (the eyes of your hearts having been enlightened), so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance among the saints, 19 and what is the surpassing greatness of his power toward us who believe, according to the working of his mighty strength

Ephesians 1:5 having predestined us to adoption through Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will,

Ephesians 1:11 in whom also we were chosen, having been predestined according to the purpose of the One who works all things according to the counsel of his will,

Ephesians 1:12 that we who hoped beforehand in Christ should be for the praise of his glory,

Ephesians 1:13 in whom also you, when you heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, in whom also when you believed you were sealed with the promised Holy Spirit,

Ephesians 1:14 who is the down payment of our inheritance, until the redemption of the possession, to the praise of his glory.

Ephesians 1:15 Because of this I also, hearing of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love for all the saints,

Ephesians 1:16 do not cease giving thanks for you, making mention in my prayers,

Ephesians 1:17 that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the glorious Father, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him

Ephesians 1:18 (the eyes of your hearts having been enlightened), so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance among the saints,

Ephesians 1:19 and what is the surpassing greatness of his power toward us who believe, according to the working of his mighty strength

Ephesians 1:18 (the eyes of your hearts having been enlightened), so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance among the saints,

Job 5:1 “Call now, is there anyone answering you?

And to which of the holy ones will you turn?

Job 15:15 Look, he does not trust his holy ones, and the heavens are not clean in his eyes.

Psalm 89:5–7 And so the heavens will praise your wonderful deed, O Yahweh, even your faithfulness, in the assembly of the holy ones.

6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God, 7 a God feared greatly in the council of the holy ones, and awesome above all surrounding him?

Zechariah 14:5 And you will flee by the valley of my mountains, because the valley of the mountains will reach to Azal, and you will flee like you fled from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. And Yahweh my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.

Ephesians 1:18 (the eyes of your hearts having been enlightened), so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance among the saints,

Psalm 16:3 With regard to the saints who are in the land, they are the noble ones in whom is all my desire.

Psalm 34:8 Taste and see that Yahweh is good; blessed is the man who takes refuge in him.

Leviticus 26:14–28 " 'But if you do not listen to me and you do not carry out all these commands, 15 and if you reject my statutes and if your inner self abhors my regulations, to not carry out all my commands by your breaking my covenant, 16 I in turn will do this to you: then I will summon onto you horror, the wasting disease, and the fever that wastes eyes and that drains away life; and you shall sow your seed in vain, and your enemies shall eat it. 17 And I will set my face against you, and you shall be defeated before your enemies; and your haters shall rule over you, and you shall flee away, but there shall not be anybody who is pursuing you.

18 " 'And if in spite of these things you do not listen to me, then I will continue to discipline you seven times for your sins. 19 And I will break the pride of your strength; and I will make your heaven like iron and your land like copper. 20 And your strength shall be consumed in vain; and your land shall not give its produce, and the land's trees shall not give their fruit.

21 " 'And if you go against me in hostility and you are not willing to listen to me, then I will add a plague onto you seven times according to your sins. 22 And I will send wild animals out among you, and they shall make you childless, and they shall cut down your domestic animals, and they shall make you fewer; and your roads shall be desolate.

23 " 'And if you do not accept correction from me through these things, but you go against me in hostility, 24 then I myself will also go against you in hostility, and I myself also will strike you seven times for your sins. 25 And I will bring upon you a sword that seeks vengeance for the covenant, and you shall be gathered to your cities; and I will send a plague in your midst, and you shall be given into the hand of an enemy. [26] At my breaking the supply of bread for you, then ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall return your bread by weight; and you shall eat it, and you shall not be satisfied.

[27] “ ‘And if through this you do not listen to me and you go against me in hostility, [28] then I will go against you in hostile anger, and also I myself will discipline you seven times for your sins.

Daniel 7:22 until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

Daniel 7:27 And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.’

Colossians 1:11–13 enabled with all power, according to his glorious might, for all steadfastness and patience with joy, [12] giving thanks to the Father who has qualified you for a share of the inheritance of the saints in light, [13] who has rescued us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of the Son he loves,

Colossians 1:11 enabled with all power, according to his glorious might, for all steadfastness and patience with joy,

Colossians 1:12 giving thanks to the Father who has qualified you for a share of the inheritance of the saints in light,

Colossians 1:13 who has rescued us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of the Son he loves,

1 Corinthians 6:3 Do you not know that we will judge angels, not to mention ordinary matters?

Revelation 2:25 Nevertheless, hold fast to what you have until I come.

Revelation 2:26 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations,

Revelation 2:27 and “he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay,”

Revelation 2:28 as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Revelation 2:25–28 Nevertheless, hold fast to what you have until I come. 26 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations, 27 and “he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay,” 28 as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Revelation 2:27 and “he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay,”

Psalm 2:7–8 I will tell the decree; Yahweh said to me:

> “You are my son;
>
> today I have begotten you.
>
> 8 Ask from me and I will make the nations your heritage, and your possession the ends of the earth.

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Revelation 3:20 Behold, I stand at the door and knock! If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, indeed I will come in to him and dine with him, and he with me.

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Revelation 3:20–21 Behold, I stand at the door and knock! If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, indeed I will come in to him and dine with him, and he with me. [21] The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Ephesians 1:18 (the eyes of your hearts having been enlightened), so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, what are the riches of the glory of his inheritance among the saints,

Revelation 2:28 as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Revelation 2:28 as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Numbers 24:17 I see him, but not now; I behold him, but not near;
a star will go out from Jacob,
and a scepter will rise from Israel;
it will crush the foreheads of Moab
and destroy all the children of Seth.

Numbers 24:17 I see him, but not now; I behold him, but not near;
a star will go out from Jacob,
and a scepter will rise from Israel;
it will crush the foreheads of Moab
and destroy all the children of Seth.

Revelation 22:16 “I, Jesus, sent my angel to testify to you about these things for the churches. I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star.”

Revelation 22:16 “I, Jesus, sent my angel to testify to you about these things for the churches. I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star.”

Revelation 2:28 as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Chapter 36: Lower than the Elohim

1 John 3:1–3 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him. [2] Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is. [3] And everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as that one is pure.

Hebrews 1:1 Although God spoke long ago in many parts and in many ways to the fathers by the prophets,

Hebrews 1:2 in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son, whom he appointed heir of all things, through whom also he made the world,

Hebrews 1:3 who is the radiance of his glory and the representation of his essence, sustaining all things by the word of power. When he had made purification for sins through him, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high,

Hebrews 1:4 having become by so much better than the angels, by as much as he has inherited a more excellent name than theirs.

Hebrews 1:1–4 Although God spoke long ago in many parts and in many ways to the fathers by the prophets, [2] in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son, whom he appointed heir of all things, through whom also he made the world, [3] who is the radiance of his glory and the representation of his essence, sustaining all things by the word of power. When he had made purification for sins through him, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, [4] having become by so much better than the angels, by as much as he has inherited a more excellent name than theirs.

Hebrews 1:4 having become by so much better than the angels, by as much as he has inherited a more excellent name than theirs.

Hebrews 1:5 For to which of the angels did he ever say, “You are my son, today I have begotten you,”

and again,

“I will be his father,
and he will be my son”?

Hebrews 1:6 And again, when he brings the firstborn into the world, he says, “And let all the angels of God worship him.”

Hebrews 1:5 For to which of the angels did he ever say, “You are my son, today I have begotten you,”

and again,

“I will be his father,
and he will be my son”?

Hebrews 1:6 And again, when he brings the firstborn into the world, he says, “And let all the angels of God worship him.”

Hebrews 1:5–6 For to which of the angels did he ever say, “You are my son, today I have begotten you,”

and again,

“I will be his father,
and he will be my son”?

6 And again, when he brings the firstborn into the world, he says, “And let all the angels of God worship him.”

Jeremiah 31:31–33 Look, the days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah, 32 not like the covenant that I made with their ancestors on the day of my grasping them by their hand, bringing them out from the land of Egypt, my covenant that they themselves broke, though I myself was a master over them,” declares Yahweh. 33 “But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days,” declares Yahweh: “I will put my law in their inward parts and on their hearts I will write it, and I will be to them God, and they themselves will be to me people.

Hebrews 1:7 And concerning the angels he says, “The one who makes his angels winds, and his servants a flame of fire,”

Hebrews 1:8 but concerning the Son, “Your throne, O God, is forever and ever, and the scepter of righteous is the scepter of your kingdom.

Hebrews 1:9 You have loved righteousness and hated lawlessness; because of this God, your God, has anointed you with the olive oil of joy more than your companions.

Hebrews 1:10 And, “You, Lord, laid the foundation of the earth in the beginning, and the heavens are the works of your hands;

Hebrews 1:11 they will perish, but you continue, and they will all become old like a garment,

Hebrews 1:12 and like a robe you will roll them up, and like a garment they will be changed;

but you are the same, and your years will not run out.”

Hebrews 1:13 But to which of the angels has he ever said, “Sit down at my right hand, until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet.”

Hebrews 1:14 Are they not all spirits engaged in special service, sent on assignment for the sake of those who are going to inherit salvation?

Hebrews 1:7–14 And concerning the angels he says, “The one who makes his angels winds, and his servants a flame of fire,”

8 but concerning the Son, “Your throne, O God, is forever and ever, and the scepter of righteous is the scepter of your kingdom.

[9] You have loved righteousness and hated lawlessness; because of this God, your God, has anointed you with the olive oil of joy more than your companions.

[10] And, “You, Lord, laid the foundation of the earth in the beginning, and the heavens are the works of your hands;

[11] they will perish, but you continue, and they will all become old like a garment,

[12] and like a robe you will roll them up, and like a garment they will be changed;

but you are the same, and your years will not run out.”

[13] But to which of the angels has he ever said, “Sit down at my right hand, until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet.”

[14] Are they not all spirits engaged in special service, sent on assignment for the sake of those who are going to inherit salvation?

1 Corinthians 6:3 Do you not know that we will judge angels, not to mention ordinary matters?

Hebrews 2:1 Because of this, it is all the more necessary that we pay attention to the things we have heard, lest we drift away.

Hebrews 2:2 For if the word spoken through angels was binding and every transgression and act of disobedience received a just penalty,

Hebrews 2:3 how will we escape if we neglect so great a salvation which had its beginning when it was spoken through the Lord and was confirmed to us by those who heard,

Hebrews 2:4 while God was testifying at the same time by signs and wonders and various miracles and distributions of the Holy Spirit according to his will.

Hebrews 2:1–4 Because of this, it is all the more necessary that we pay attention to the things we have heard, lest we drift away. [2] For if the word spoken through angels was binding and every transgression and act of disobedience received a just penalty, [3] how will we escape if we neglect so great a salvation which had its beginning when it was spoken through the Lord and was confirmed to us by those who heard, [4] while God was testifying at the same time by signs and wonders and various miracles and distributions of the Holy Spirit according to his will.

Ephesians 4:8–10 Therefore it says, “Ascending on high he led captivity captive;

he gave gifts to men.”

[9] Now “he ascended,” what is it, except that he also descended to the lower regions of the earth? [10] The one who descended himself is also the one who ascended above all the heavens, in order that he might fill all things.

Hebrews 2:5–8 For he did not subject to angels the world to come, about which we are speaking. [6] But someone testified somewhere, saying, “What is man, that you remember him, or the son of man, that you care for him?

[7] You made him for a short time lower than the angels; you crowned him with glory and honor;

[8] you subjected all things under his feet.

For in subjecting all things, he left nothing that was not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him,

Hebrews 2:5 For he did not subject to angels the world to come, about which we are speaking.

Hebrews 2:6 But someone testified somewhere, saying, “What is man, that you remember him, or the son of man, that you care for him?

Hebrews 2:7 You made him for a short time lower than the angels; you crowned him with glory and honor;

Hebrews 2:8 you subjected all things under his feet.

For in subjecting all things, he left nothing that was not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him,

Hebrews 2:5–8 For he did not subject to angels the world to come, about which we are speaking. [6] But someone testified somewhere, saying, “What is man, that you remember him, or the son of man, that you care for him?

[7] You made him for a short time lower than the angels; you crowned him with glory and honor;

[8] you subjected all things under his feet.

For in subjecting all things, he left nothing that was not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him,

Hebrews 2:6–8 But someone testified somewhere, saying, “What is man, that you remember him, or the son of man, that you care for him?

[7] You made him for a short time lower than the angels; you crowned him with glory and honor;

[8] you subjected all things under his feet.

For in subjecting all things, he left nothing that was not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him, and a child of humankind that you care for him?

Psalm 8:4–6 what is a human being that you think of him?

[5] And you made him a little lower than heavenly beings, and with glory and with majesty you crowned him.

[6] You make him over the works of your hands; all things you have placed under his feet:

Hebrews 2:9 but we see Jesus, for a short time made lower than the angels, because of the suffering of death crowned with glory and honor, so that apart from God he might taste death on behalf of everyone.

Hebrews 2:8–9 you subjected all things under his feet.

For in subjecting all things, he left nothing that was not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him, [9] but we see Jesus, for a short time made lower than the angels, because of the suffering of death crowned with glory and honor, so that apart from God he might taste death on behalf of everyone.

Hebrews 2:10 For it was fitting for him for whom are all things and through whom are all things in bringing many sons to glory to perfect the originator of their salvation through sufferings.

Hebrews 2:11 For both the one who sanctifies and the ones who are sanctified are all from one, for which reason he is not ashamed to call them brothers,

Hebrews 2:12 saying, “I will proclaim your name to my brothers;

in the midst of the assembly I will sing in praise of you.”

Hebrews 2:13 And again, “I will trust in him.”

And again,

“Behold, I and the children God has given me.”

Hebrews 2:14 Therefore, since the children share in blood and flesh, he also in like manner shared in these same things, in order that through death he could destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil,

Hebrews 2:15 and could set free these who through fear of death were subject to slavery throughout all their lives.

Hebrews 2:10–15 For it was fitting for him for whom are all things and through whom are all things in bringing many sons to glory to perfect the originator of their salvation through sufferings. [11] For both the one who sanctifies and the ones who are sanctified are all from one, for which reason he is not ashamed to call them brothers, [12] saying, “I will proclaim your name to my brothers;

in the midst of the assembly I will sing in praise of you.”

[13] And again, “I will trust in him.”

And again,

> “Behold, I and the children God has given me.”

14 Therefore, since the children share in blood and flesh, he also in like manner shared in these same things, in order that through death he could destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, 15 and could set free these who through fear of death were subject to slavery throughout all their lives.

Hebrews 2:10 For it was fitting for him for whom are all things and through whom are all things in bringing many sons to glory to perfect the originator of their salvation through sufferings.

Hebrews 2:16 For surely he is not concerned with angels, but he is concerned with the descendants of Abraham.

Hebrews 2:17 Therefore he was obligated to be made like his brothers in all respects, in order that he could become a merciful and faithful high priest in the things relating to God, in order to make atonement for the sins of the people.

Hebrews 2:18 For in that which he himself suffered when he was tempted, he is able to help those who are tempted.

Hebrews 2:16–18 For surely he is not concerned with angels, but he is concerned with the descendants of Abraham. 17 Therefore he was obligated to be made like his brothers in all respects, in order that he could become a merciful and faithful high priest in the things relating to God, in order to make atonement for the sins of the people. 18 For in that which he himself suffered when he was tempted, he is able to help those who are tempted.

Romans 8:29 because those whom he foreknew, he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, so that he should be the firstborn among many brothers.

2 Corinthians 3:18 And we all, with unveiled face, reflecting the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from glory into glory, just as from the Lord, the Spirit.

2 Corinthians 3:17–18 Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. [18] And we all, with unveiled face, reflecting the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from glory into glory, just as from the Lord, the Spirit.

1 John 3:2 Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is.

2 Peter 1:3 because his divine power has bestowed on us all things that are necessary for life and godliness, through the knowledge of the one who called us by his own glory and excellence of character,

2 Peter 1:4 through which things he has bestowed on us his precious and very great promises, so that through these you may become sharers of the divine nature after escaping from the corruption that is in the world because of evil desire,

2 Peter 1:2–4 May grace and peace be multiplied to you in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord, [3] because his divine power has bestowed on us all things that are necessary for life and godliness, through the knowledge of the one who called us by his own glory and excellence of character, [4] through which things he has bestowed on us his precious and very great promises, so that through these you may become sharers of the divine nature after escaping from the corruption that is in the world because of evil desire,

1 Corinthians 15:45 Thus also it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living soul”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit.

1 Corinthians 15:46 But the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual.

1 Corinthians 15:47 The first man is from the earth, made of earth; the second man is from heaven.

1 Corinthians 15:48 As the one who is made of earth, so also are those who are made of earth, and as the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly.

1 Corinthians 15:49 And just as we have borne the image of the one who is made of earth, we will also bear the image of the heavenly.

1 Corinthians 15:50 But I say this, brothers, that flesh and blood is not able to inherit the kingdom of God, nor can corruption inherit incorruptibility.

1 Corinthians 15:51 Behold, I tell you a mystery: we will not all fall asleep, but we will all be changed,

1 Corinthians 15:52 in a moment, in the blink of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed.

1 Corinthians 15:53 For it is necessary for this perishable body to put on incorruptibility, and this mortal body to put on immortality.

1 Corinthians 15:44–54 It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. [45] Thus also it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living soul”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. [46] But the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual. [47] The first man is from the earth, made of earth; the second man is from heaven. [48] As the one who is made of earth, so also are those who are made of earth, and as the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly. [49] And just as we have borne the image of the one who is made of earth, we will also bear the image of the heavenly.

[50] But I say this, brothers, that flesh and blood is not able to inherit the kingdom of God, nor can corruption inherit incorruptibility. [51] Behold, I tell you a mystery: we will not all fall asleep, but we will all be changed, [52] in a moment, in the blink of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed. [53] For it is necessary for this perishable body to put on incorruptibility, and this mortal body to put on immortality. [54] But whenever this perishable body puts on incorruptibility and this mortal body puts on immortality, then the saying that is written will take place: “Death is swallowed up in victory.

Hebrews 2:16 For surely he is not concerned with angels, but he is concerned with the descendants of Abraham.

Chapter 37: This Means War

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Psalm 82:6–8 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

8 Rise up, O God, judge the earth, because you shall inherit all the nations.

Revelation 12:12 Because of this, rejoice, you heavens, and those who live in them!

Woe to the earth and to the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great anger,

because he knows that he has little time!”

Psalm 82:8 Rise up, O God, judge the earth, because you shall inherit all the nations.

Luke 15:10 In the same way, I tell you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents.”

Hebrews 1:4–5 having become by so much better than the angels, by as much as he has inherited a more excellent name than theirs.

5 For to which of the angels did he ever say, “You are my son,

today I have begotten you,”

and again,

“I will be his father,

and he will be my son”?

Hebrews 2:7–9 You made him for a short time lower than the angels; you crowned him with glory and honor;

[8] you subjected all things under his feet.

For in subjecting all things, he left nothing that was not subject to him. But now we do not yet see all things subjected to him, [9] but we see Jesus, for a short time made lower than the angels, because of the suffering of death crowned with glory and honor, so that apart from God he might taste death on behalf of everyone.

Psalm 8:4–6 what is a human being that you think of him?

and a child of humankind that you care for him?

[5] And you made him a little lower than heavenly beings, and with glory and with majesty you crowned him.

[6] You make him over the works of your hands; all things you have placed under his feet:

Hebrews 2:7 You made him for a short time lower than the angels; you crowned him with glory and honor;

Psalm 8:5 what is a human being that you think of him?

and a child of humankind that you care for him?

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Isaiah 65:11 But you who forsake Yahweh, forgetting my holy mountain, who set a table for Fortune, and who pour out a jug of mixed wine for Destiny,

Psalm 96:5 For all the gods of the peoples are idols, but Yahweh made the heavens.

Psalm 95:5 For all the gods of the peoples are idols, but Yahweh made the heavens.

Psalm 91:6 or the plague that spreads in the darkness, or the destruction that devastates at noon.

Psalm 90:6 or the plague that spreads in the darkness, or the destruction that devastates at noon.

Luke 8:29 For he had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. (For it had seized him many times, and he was bound with chains and shackles and was guarded, and breaking the bonds he would be driven by the demon into the deserted places.)

Luke 9:42 And while he was still approaching, the demon threw him down and convulsed him. But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit and healed the boy, and gave him back to his father.

Luke 4:33 And in the synagogue there was a man who had the spirit of an unclean demon, and he cried out with a loud voice,

Luke 11:18 So if Satan also is divided against himself, how will his kingdom stand? For you say that I expel demons by Beelzebul.

Ephesians 6:11–12 Put on the full armor of God, so that you may be able to stand against the stratagems of the devil, [12] because our struggle is not against blood and flesh, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the world rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly places.

2 Corinthians 4:4 among whom the god of this age has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, so that they would not see the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God.

Isaiah 6:9–10 And he said, “Go and say to this people, ‘Keep on listening and do not comprehend!

And keep on looking and do not understand!’

10 Make the heart of this people insensitive, and make its ears unresponsive, and shut its eyes

so that it may not look with its eyes and listen with its ears and comprehend with its mind and turn back, and it may be healed for him.”

Ephesians 2:2 in which you formerly walked according to the course of this world, according to the ruler of the authority of the air, the spirit now working in the sons of disobedience,

Job 22:13 And you ask, ‘What does God know?

Can he judge through deep gloom?

Amos 9:6 who builds his upper chambers in the heavens and lays the foundation of his vault on the earth, who calls for the waters of the sea and pours them on the surface of the earth—Yahweh is his name.

Psalm 29:10 Yahweh sits enthroned at the flood, and Yahweh sits as king forever.

Psalm 148:4 Praise him, highest heavens, and waters above the heavens.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20–21 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. [21] You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 8:1–6 Now concerning food sacrificed to idols, we know that "we all have knowledge." Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up. [2] If anyone thinks he knows anything, he has not yet known as it is necessary to know. [3] But if anyone loves God, this one is known by him.

[4] Therefore, concerning the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that "an idol is nothing in the world" and that "there is no God except one." [5] For even if after all there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, just as there are many gods and many lords, [6] yet to us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things, and we are for him, and there is one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we are through him.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Ephesians 6:12 because our struggle is not against blood and flesh, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the world rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual forces of wickedness in the heavenly places.

Ephesians 1:20–21 which he has worked in Christ, raising him from the dead and seating him at his right hand in the heavenly places, [21] above all rule and authority and power and lordship and every name named, not only in this age but also in the coming one,

Ephesians 3:10 in order that the many-sided wisdom of God might be made known now to the rulers and the authorities in the heavenly places through the church,

Colossians 2:15 When he had disarmed the rulers and the authorities, he made a display of them in public, triumphing over them by it.

1 Corinthians 2:8 which none of the rulers of this age knew. For if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

Ephesians 1:21 above all rule and authority and power and lordship and every name named, not only in this age but also in the coming one,

1 Corinthians 8:5 For even if after all there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, just as there are many gods and many lords,

1 Corinthians 10:20–21 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. [21] You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

2 Peter 2:10 and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings,

Jude 8 Despite that, in the same way also these men, because of their dreams, defile the flesh and reject authority and blaspheme majestic beings.

1 Corinthians 3:16 Do you not know that you are God’s temple and the Spirit of God dwells in you?

1 Corinthians 6:19 Or do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, whom you have from God, and you are not your own?

Ephesians 2:19 Consequently, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but you are fellow citizens of the saints and members of the household of God,

Ephesians 2:20 built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus himself being the cornerstone,

Ephesians 2:21 in whom the whole building, joined together, grows into a holy temple in the Lord,

Ephesians 2:22 in whom you also are built up together into a dwelling place of God in the Spirit.

Ephesians 2:19–22 Consequently, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but you are fellow citizens of the saints and members of the household of God, [20] built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus himself being the cornerstone, [21] in whom the whole building, joined together, grows into a holy temple in the Lord, [22] in whom you also are built up together into a dwelling place of God in the Spirit.

2 Corinthians 5:1 For we know that if our earthly house, the tent, is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made by hands, eternal in the heavens.

2 Corinthians 5:2 For indeed, in this house we groan, because we desire to put on our dwelling from heaven,

2 Corinthians 5:1–2 For we know that if our earthly house, the tent, is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made by hands, eternal in the heavens. [2] For indeed, in this house we groan, because we desire to put on our dwelling from heaven,

1 Corinthians 6:19 Or do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, whom you have from God, and you are not your own?

2 Corinthians 5:1–4 For we know that if our earthly house, the tent, is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made by hands, eternal in the heavens. [2] For indeed, in this house we groan, because we desire to put on our dwelling from heaven, [3] if indeed, even after we have taken it off, we will not be found naked. [4] For indeed we who are in this tent groan, being burdened for this reason, that we do not want to be unclothed, but to be clothed, in order that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life.

Exodus 29:4 And you will bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the tent of assembly, and you will wash them with water.

Matthew 18:20 For where two or three are gathered in my name, I am there in the midst of them."

Isaiah 60:1 "Arise, shine! For your light has come, and the glory of Yahweh has risen on you.

Matthew 4:16 the people who sit in darkness have seen a great light, and the ones who sit in the land and shadow of death, a light has dawned on them."

Isaiah 42:16 And I will lead the blind by a road they do not know; I will cause them to tread on paths they have not known.

I will make darkness in their presence into light and rough places into level ground.

These are the things I will do, and I will not forsake them.

Isaiah 60:1–3 “Arise, shine! For your light has come, and the glory of Yahweh has risen on you.

2 For look! darkness shall cover the earth, and thick darkness the peoples, but Yahweh will rise on you, and his glory will appear over you.

3 And nations shall come to your light, and kings to the bright light of your sunrise.

Chapter 38: Choosing Sides

1 Peter 3:14–22 But even if you might suffer for the sake of righteousness, you are blessed. And do not be afraid of their intimidation or be disturbed, 15 but set Christ apart as Lord in your hearts, always ready to make a defense to anyone who asks you for an accounting concerning the hope that is in you. 16 But do so with courtesy and respect, having a good conscience, so that in the things in which you are slandered, the ones who malign your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. 17 For it is better to suffer for doing good, if God wills it, than for doing evil.

> 18 For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,
> in order that he could bring you to God,
> being put to death in the flesh,
> but made alive in the spirit,
> 19 in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, 20 who > were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the > days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few > —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. 21 And also, > corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of > dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience > through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, 22 who is at the right hand > of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and > powers having been subjected to him.

1 Peter 3:14 But even if you might suffer for the sake of righteousness, you are blessed. And do not be afraid of their intimidation or be disturbed,

1 Peter 3:15 but set Christ apart as Lord in your hearts, always ready to make a defense to anyone who asks you for an accounting concerning the hope that is in you.

1 Peter 3:16 But do so with courtesy and respect, having a good conscience, so that in the things in which you are slandered, the ones who malign your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame.

1 Peter 3:17 For it is better to suffer for doing good, if God wills it, than for doing evil.

1 Peter 3:18 For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,

in order that he could bring you to God,

being put to death in the flesh,

but made alive in the spirit,

1 Peter 3:19 in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison,

1 Peter 3:20 who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few—that is, eight souls—were rescued through water.

1 Peter 3:21 And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ,

1 Peter 3:22 who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and powers having been subjected to him.

1 Peter 3:14–22 But even if you might suffer for the sake of righteousness, you are blessed. And do not be afraid of their intimidation or be disturbed, 15 but set Christ apart as Lord in your hearts, always ready to make a defense to anyone who asks you for an accounting concerning the hope that is in you. 16 But do so with courtesy and respect, having a good conscience, so that in the things in which you are slandered, the ones who malign your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. 17 For it is better to suffer for doing good, if God wills it, than for doing evil.

18 For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,

in order that he could bring you to God,

being put to death in the flesh,

but made alive in the spirit,

19 in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, 20 who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. 21 And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, 22 who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and powers having been subjected to him.

Romans 5:14 But death reigned from Adam until Moses even over those who did not sin in the likeness of the transgression of Adam, who is a type of the one who is to come.

1 Peter 3:14–22 But even if you might suffer for the sake of righteousness, you are blessed. And do not be afraid of their intimidation or be disturbed, 15 but set Christ apart as Lord in your hearts, always ready to make a defense to anyone who asks you for an accounting concerning the hope that is in you. 16 But do so with courtesy and respect, having a good conscience, so that in the things in which you are slandered, the ones who malign your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. 17 For it is better to suffer for doing good, if God wills it, than for doing evil.

18 For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,

in order that he could bring you to God,

being put to death in the flesh,

but made alive in the spirit,

19 in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, 20 who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. 21 And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, 22 who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and powers having been subjected to him.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

1 Peter 3:19 in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison,

2 Peter 2:4–5 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment, [5] and did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, a proclaimer of righteousness, and seven others when he brought a flood on the world of the ungodly,

Genesis 5:21–24 When Enoch had lived sixty-five years, he fathered Methuselah. [22] And Enoch walked with God after he fathered Methuselah three hundred years, and fathered sons and daughters. [23] And all the days of Enoch were three hundred and sixty-five years. [24] And Enoch walked with God, and he was no more, for God took him.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

1 Peter 3:14–22 But even if you might suffer for the sake of righteousness, you are blessed. And do not be afraid of their intimidation or be disturbed, [15] but set Christ apart as Lord in your hearts, always ready to make a defense to anyone who asks you for an accounting concerning the hope that is in you. [16] But do so with courtesy and respect, having a good conscience, so that in the things in which you are slandered, the ones who malign your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. [17] For it is better to suffer for doing good, if God wills it, than for doing evil.

[18] For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,
in order that he could bring you to God,
being put to death in the flesh,
but made alive in the spirit,
[19] in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, [20] who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. [21] And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, [22] who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and powers having been subjected to him.

1 Peter 3:14–22 But even if you might suffer for the sake of righteousness, you are blessed. And do not be afraid of their intimidation or be disturbed, [15] but set Christ apart as Lord in your hearts, always ready to make a defense to anyone who asks you for an accounting concerning the hope that is in you. [16] But do so with courtesy and respect, having a good conscience, so that in the things in which you are slandered, the ones who malign your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. [17] For it is better to suffer for doing good, if God wills it, than for doing evil.

[18] For Christ also suffered once for sins, the just for the unjust,

in order that he could bring you to God,

being put to death in the flesh,

but made alive in the spirit,

[19] in which also he went and proclaimed to the spirits in prison, [20] who were formerly disobedient, when the patience of God waited in the days of Noah, while an ark was being constructed, in which a few —that is, eight souls—were rescued through water. [21] And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ, [22] who is at the right hand of God, having gone into heaven, with angels and authorities and powers having been subjected to him.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

1 Peter 3:21 And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ,

1 Peter 3:21 And also, corresponding to this, baptism now saves you, not the removal of dirt from the flesh, but an appeal to God for a good conscience through the resurrection of Jesus Christ,

1 Corinthians 8:1–6 Now concerning food sacrificed to idols, we know that “we all have knowledge.” Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up. 2 If anyone thinks he knows anything, he has not yet known as it is necessary to know. 3 But if anyone loves God, this one is known by him.

4 Therefore, concerning the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that “an idol is nothing in the world” and that “there is no God except one.” 5 For even if after all there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, just as there are many gods and many lords, 6 yet to us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things, and we are for him, and there is one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we are through him.

1 Corinthians 8:1 Now concerning food sacrificed to idols, we know that “we all have knowledge.” Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up.

1 Corinthians 8:2 If anyone thinks he knows anything, he has not yet known as it is necessary to know.

1 Corinthians 8:3 But if anyone loves God, this one is known by him.

1 Corinthians 8:4 Therefore, concerning the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that “an idol is nothing in the world” and that “there is no God except one.”

1 Corinthians 8:5 For even if after all there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, just as there are many gods and many lords,

1 Corinthians 8:6 yet to us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things, and we are for him, and there is one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we are through him.

1 Corinthians 8:4 Therefore, concerning the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that “an idol is nothing in the world” and that “there is no God except one.”

1 Corinthians 8:8 But food does not bring us close to God. For neither if we eat do we have more, nor if we do not eat do we lack.

1 Corinthians 8:9 But watch out lest somehow this right of yours becomes a cause for stumbling to the weak.

1 Corinthians 8:4–6 Therefore, concerning the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that “an idol is nothing in the world” and that “there is no God except one.” [5] For even if after all there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, just as there are many gods and many lords, [6] yet to us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things, and we are for him, and there is one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we are through him.

Deuteronomy 6:4 “Hear, Israel, Yahweh our God, Yahweh is unique.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:14–22 Therefore, my dear friends, flee from idolatry. [15] I am speaking as to sensible people; you judge what I am saying. [16] The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a participation in the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not a participation in the body of Christ? [17] Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all share from the one bread. [18] Consider Israel according to the flesh: are not the ones who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar? [19] Therefore, what am I saying? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? [20] No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. [21] You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

1 Corinthians 10:14 Therefore, my dear friends, flee from idolatry.

1 Corinthians 10:15 I am speaking as to sensible people; you judge what I am saying.

1 Corinthians 10:16 The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a participation in the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not a participation in the body of Christ?

1 Corinthians 10:17 Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all share from the one bread.

1 Corinthians 10:18 Consider Israel according to the flesh: are not the ones who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar?

1 Corinthians 10:19 Therefore, what am I saying? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything?

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

1 Corinthians 10:21 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

1 Corinthians 10:22 Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

1 Corinthians 10:14–22 Therefore, my dear friends, flee from idolatry. [15] I am speaking as to sensible people; you judge what I am saying. [16] The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a participation in the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not a participation in the body of Christ? [17]

Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all share from the one bread. [18] Consider Israel according to the flesh: are not the ones who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar? [19] Therefore, what am I saying? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? [20] No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. [21] You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:25 Eat everything that is sold in the meat market, asking no questions for the sake of the conscience,

Deuteronomy 32:16 They made him jealous with strange gods; with detestable things they provoked him.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:15 And Jeshurun grew fat, and he kicked; you grew fat, you bloated, and you became obstinate; and he abandoned God, his maker,

and he scoffed at the rock of his salvation.

Deuteronomy 32:16 They made him jealous with strange gods; with detestable things they provoked him.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:15–17 And Jeshurun grew fat, and he kicked; you grew fat, you bloated, and you became obstinate; and he abandoned God, his

maker,

and he scoffed at the rock of his salvation.

16 They made him jealous with strange gods; with detestable things they provoked him.

17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:14–18 Therefore, my dear friends, flee from idolatry. 15 I am speaking as to sensible people; you judge what I am saying. 16 The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not a participation in the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not a participation in the body of Christ? 17 Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all share from the one bread. 18 Consider Israel according to the flesh: are not the ones who eat the sacrifices sharers in the altar?

1 Corinthians 11:23–26 For I received from the Lord what I also passed on to you, that the Lord Jesus, on the night in which he was betrayed, took bread, 24 and after he had given thanks, he broke it and said, “This is my body which is for you. Do this in remembrance of me.” 25 Likewise also the cup, after they had eaten, saying, “This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me.” 26 For as often as you eat this bread and drink this cup, you proclaim the Lord’s death until he comes.

Galatians 6:10 So then, as we have opportunity, let us do good to all people, and especially to those who belong to the household of faith.

1 Corinthians 5:9–13 I wrote to you in the letter not to associate with sexually immoral people. 10 By no means did I mean the sexually immoral people of this world or the greedy people and swindlers or idolaters, since then you would have to depart out of the world. 11 But now I have written to you not to associate with any so-called brother, if he is a sexually immoral person or a greedy person or an idolater or an abusive person or a drunkard or a swindler—with such a person not even to eat. 12 For what is it to me to judge those outside? Should you not judge those inside? [13] But those outside God will judge. Remove the evil person from among yourselves.

1 Corinthians 5:5 I have decided to hand over such a person to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, in order that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord.

1 Corinthians 3:16–17 Do you not know that you are God's temple and the Spirit of God dwells in you? [17] If anyone destroys God's temple, God will destroy this one. For God's temple is holy, which you are.

Exodus 32:26 And Moses stood at the entrance of the camp, and he said, "Whoever is for Yahweh, to me." And all the sons of Levi were gathered to him.

John 1:14 And the Word became flesh and took up residence among us, and we saw his glory, glory as of the one and only from the Father, full of grace and truth.

Part 8: The Kingdom Not Yet

Chapter 39: Final Verdict

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 1:27–28 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them. [28] And God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth and subdue it, and rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of heaven, and over every animal that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 5:1 This is the record of the generations of Adam. When God created Adam, he made him in the likeness of God.

Genesis 11:6 And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them.

Genesis 9:1 And God blessed Noah and his sons, and said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth.

Genesis 11:7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Isaiah 6:1–7 In the year of the death of Uzziah the king, I saw the Lord sitting on a high and raised throne, and the hem of his robe was filling the temple. 2 Seraphs were standing above him. Each had six wings: with two he covered his face, and with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew.
3 And the one called to the other and said, “Holy, holy, holy is Yahweh of hosts!

The whole earth is full of his glory.”

4 And the pivots of the thresholds shook from the sound of those who called, and the house was filled with smoke.

5 And I said, “Woe to me! For I am destroyed! For I am a man of unclean lips, and I am living among a people of unclean lips, for my eyes have seen the king, Yahweh of hosts!”

6 Then one of the seraphs flew to me, and in his hand was a hot coal he had taken from the altar with tongs.

7 And he touched my mouth, and he said, “Look! This has touched your lips

and has removed your guilt, and your sin is annulled.”

Jeremiah 23:21–22 I have not sent the prophets, yet they ran.

I have not spoken to them, yet they prophesied.

22 But if they had stood in my council, then they would have proclaimed my words to my people, and they would have caused them to turn from their evil way, and from the evil of their deeds.

1 Kings 22:13–27 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” [14] Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” [15] When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” [16] Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” [17] So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” [18] Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

[19] And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

[24] Then Zedekiah son of Kenaanah came near and slapped Micaiah on the cheek and said, “When did the Spirit of Yahweh pass from me to speak with you?” [25] Then Micaiah said, “Behold, you are about to see on that day when you go from room to room to hide.” [26] The king of Israel said, “Take Micaiah and return him to Amon the commander of the city and to Jehoash the son of the king; [27] and say, ‘Thus says the king: “Put this fellow in the house of imprisonment and feed him reduced rations of food and water until I come in peace.” ’ ”

Daniel 7:9 “I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire.

Daniel 7:9–12 “I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire. 10 A stream of fire issued forth and flowed from his presence; thousands upon thousands served him and ten thousand upon ten thousand stood before him. The judge sat, and the books were opened.

11 “I continued watching then because of the noise of the boastful words of the horn who was speaking; I continued watching until the beast was slain and its body was destroyed, and it was given over to burning with fire. 12 And as for the remainder of the beasts, their dominion was taken away, but a prolongation of their life was given to them for a season and a time.

Daniel 7:1–8 In the first year of Belshazzar the king of Babylon, Daniel saw a dream and visions of his head as he lay on his bed; then he wrote down the dream and the summary of the words as follows: 2 Daniel explained and said, “I was looking in my vision in the night, and look, the four winds of heaven were stirring up the great sea. 3 And four great beasts were coming up from the sea, differing from one another. 4 The first was like a lion and had the wings of an eagle. I was watching until its wings were plucked off, and it was lifted up from the earth and it was raised on its feet like a human, and a human heart was given to it. 5 And look, another beast, a second one, looking like a bear. And it was raised up on one side and three tusks were in its mouth between its teeth, and so it was told, “Arise, eat much flesh!” 6 After this I was watching and look, another beast like a leopard; it had four wings of a bird on its back, and the beast had four heads, and dominion was given to it. 7 After this in the visions of the night I was looking and there was a fourth beast, terrifying and frightful and exceedingly strong, and it had great iron teeth, and it was devouring and crushing, and it stamped the remainder with its feet; and it was different from all the other beasts that preceded it and it had ten horns. 8 I was considering the horns, and look, another little horn came up among them, and three of the earlier horns were rooted out from before it, and there were eyes like the eyes of a human in this horn and also a mouth that was speaking boastfully.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Daniel 7:14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Daniel 7:22 until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

Daniel 7:27 And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.’

Psalm 82:6–8 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

8 Rise up, O God, judge the earth, because you shall inherit all the nations.

Isaiah 40:1 “Comfort; comfort my people,” says your God.

Isaiah 40:2 “Speak to the heart of Jerusalem, and call to her, that her compulsory labor is fulfilled, that her sin is paid for, that she has received from the hand of Yahweh double for all her sins.”

Isaiah 40:1–2 “Comfort; comfort my people,” says your God.

2 “Speak to the heart of Jerusalem, and call to her, that her compulsory labor is fulfilled, that her sin is paid for, that she has received from the hand of Yahweh double for all her sins.”

Isaiah 40:3 A voice is calling in the wilderness, “Clear the way of Yahweh!
Make a highway smooth in the desert for our God!

Isaiah 40:6 A voice is saying, “Call!”
And he said, “What shall I call?”
All humankind are grass, and all his loyalty is like the flowers of the field.

Revelation 4:1 After these things I looked, and behold, an open door in heaven, and the former voice that I had heard like a trumpet speaking with me was saying, “Come up here and I will show you the things which must take place after these things.”

Revelation 4:2 Immediately I was in the Spirit, and behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one was seated on the throne.

Revelation 4:3 And the one seated was similar in appearance to jasper and carnelian stone, and a rainbow was around the throne similar in appearance to emerald.

Revelation 4:4 And around the throne were twenty-four thrones, and seated on the thrones were twenty-four elders dressed in white clothing, and on their heads were gold crowns.

Revelation 4:5 And from the throne came out lightnings and sounds and thunders, and seven torches of fire were burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God.

Revelation 4:6 And before the throne was something like a sea of glass, like crystal, and in the midst of the throne and around the throne were four living creatures full of eyes in front and in back.

Revelation 4:7 And the first living creature was similar to a lion, and the second living creature was similar to an ox, and the third living creature had a face like a man’s, and the fourth living creature was similar to an eagle flying.

Revelation 4:8 And the four living creatures, each one of them, had six wings apiece, full of eyes around and inside, and they do not have rest day and night, saying, “Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God All-Powerful, the one who was and the one who is and the one who is coming!”

Revelation 4:1–8 After these things I looked, and behold, an open door in heaven, and the former voice that I had heard like a trumpet speaking with me was saying, “Come up here and I will show you the things which must take place after these things.” 2 Immediately I was in the Spirit, and behold, a throne was set in heaven, and one was seated on the throne. 3 And the one seated was similar in appearance to jasper and carnelian stone, and a rainbow was around the throne similar in appearance to emerald. 4 And around the throne were twenty-four thrones, and seated on the thrones were twenty-four elders dressed in white clothing, and on their heads were gold crowns. 5 And from the throne came out lightnings and sounds and thunders, and seven torches of fire were burning before the throne, which are the seven spirits of God. 6 And before the throne was something like a sea of glass, like crystal, and in the midst of the throne and around the throne were four living creatures full of eyes in front and in back. 7 And the first living creature was similar to a lion, and the second living creature was similar to an ox, and the third living creature had a face like a man’s, and the fourth living creature was similar to an eagle flying. 8 And the four living creatures, each one of them, had six wings apiece, full of eyes around and inside, and they do not have rest day and night, saying, “Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God All-Powerful, the one who was and the one who is and the one who is coming!”

Isaiah 6:3 And the one called to the other and said, “Holy, holy, holy is Yahweh of hosts!

The whole earth is full of his glory.”

Revelation 5:11 And I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels around the throne and of the living creatures and of the elders, and their number was ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands times thousands,

Revelation 6:9–11 And when he opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slaughtered because of the word of God and because of the testimony which they had, 10 and they cried out with a loud voice, saying, “How long, holy and true Lord, will you not judge and avenge our blood from those who live on the earth?” [11] And to each one of them a white robe was given, and it was said to them that they should rest yet a short time, until the number of their fellow slaves and their brothers who were about to be killed as they had been were completed also.

Revelation 4:4 And around the throne were twenty-four thrones, and seated on the thrones were twenty-four elders dressed in white clothing, and on their heads were gold crowns.

Revelation 6:11 And to each one of them a white robe was given, and it was said to them that they should rest yet a short time, until the number of their fellow slaves and their brothers who were about to be killed as they had been were completed also.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed, for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Isaiah 24:21 And this shall happen on that day: Yahweh will punish the host of heaven in heaven,

and the kings of the earth on the earth.

Isaiah 24:22 And they will be gathered in a gathering, like a prisoner in a pit.

And they will be shut in a prison and be punished after many days.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed,

for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Isaiah 24:21–23 And this shall happen on that day: Yahweh will punish the host of heaven in heaven,

and the kings of the earth on the earth.

[22] And they will be gathered in a gathering, like a prisoner in a pit.

And they will be shut in a prison and be punished after many days.

23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed,

for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed, for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Revelation 4:11 “You are worthy, our Lord and God, to receive glory and honor and power, because you have created all things, and because of your will they existed and were created.”

Revelation 5:11–12 And I looked, and I heard the voice of many angels around the throne and of the living creatures and of the elders, and their number was ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands times thousands, 12 saying with a loud voice, “Worthy is the Lamb who was slaughtered to receive power and riches

and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and praise!”

Revelation 5:1–5 And I saw in the right hand of the one who is seated on the throne a scroll, written inside and on the back, sealed up with seven seals. 2 And I saw a powerful angel proclaiming with a loud voice, “Who is worthy to open the scroll and to break its seals?” 3 And no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or to look into it. 4 And I began to weep loudly because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look into it. 5 And one of the elders said to me, “Do not weep! Behold, the lion of the tribe of Judah, the root of David, has conquered, so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals.

Revelation 5:10 and made them a kingdom and priests to our God, and they will reign on the earth.”

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed,

for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Chapter 40: Foe from the North

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Zephaniah 1:14–18 The great day of Yahweh draws near; it is near and coming very swiftly.

The sound of the day of Yahweh is bitterness; there, a warrior cries out!

15 That day will be a day of wrath, a day of trouble and distress, a day of disaster and ruination,
a day of darkness and deep gloom,
a day of clouds and thick clouds,

16 a day of trumpet and trumpet blast against the fortified cities and against the high corner towers.

17 And I will bring distress to all humankind, and they shall walk about like the blind, for they sinned against Yahweh; their blood shall be poured out like dust and their entrails like dung.

18 Moreover, their silver and their gold will not be able to save them on the day of the wrath of Yahweh.
And in the fire of his zeal,
the whole land shall be consumed, for a terrifying end he shall make for all the inhabitants of the land.

Zephaniah 2:4–15 For Gaza will be abandoned, and Ashkelon as a desolation.

As for Ashdod, at noon they will drive her away, and Ekron shall be uprooted.

5 Woe to you, inhabitants of the region of the sea, people of the Kerethites!

The word of Yahweh is against you, O Canaan, land of the Philistines.

I will destroy you until there is no inhabitant.

6 And you, O region of the sea, shall become pastures and meadows for shepherds and sheep pens for the flocks.

7 And it shall become a region for the remnant of the house of Judah; upon them they shall graze, and in the houses of Ashkelon they shall lie down in the evening.

For Yahweh their God shall be mindful of them, and he will restore their fortunes.

8 I have heard the reproaches of Moab and the scorning of the Ammonites, with which they have taunted my nation and made boasts against their territory.

9 "Therefore, as I live"—a declaration of Yahweh of hosts, the God of Israel— "Moab shall be as Sodom, and the Ammonites like Gomorrah, a place of weeds and salt pits and a desolation forever.

The remnant of my people shall plunder them, and the remainder of my nation shall possess them."

10 This shall be for them in place of their pride because they mocked and boasted against the people of Yahweh of hosts.

11 Yahweh will be awesome against them, for he will destroy all the gods of the earth and all the lands of the nations;

each in its place will bow down to him.

12 You also, O Cushites, they shall be killed by my sword.

13 And he will stretch out his hand against the north, and he will destroy Assyria and will make Nineveh a desolation, a dry wasteland like the desert.

14 Herds shall lie down in her midst, every wild animal of a nation;
even the desert owl and the screech owl shall lodge on her capitals.
A voice shall hoot in the window;
rubble on the threshold;
for the cedar is laid bare.

15 This is the city of rejoicing that lived securely;
the one saying in her heart,
"I am, and there is none besides me."
How she has become a desolation,
a lair for wild animals!
Everyone who passes by her hisses and shakes his fist.

Amos 1:13–15 Thus says Yahweh: "For three transgressions of Ammon and for four I will not revoke the punishment, because they ripped open the pregnant women of Gilead in order to enlarge their territory! 14 So I will kindle a fire against the wall of Rabbah and it will devour its citadel fortresses with a war cry on the day of battle, with a storm on the day of the violent tempest. 15 And their king will go into exile, he and his commanders together," says Yahweh.

Joel 3:11–12 Hurry and come, all the nations, from all around, and gather yourselves there.
Bring down your mighty warriors, O Yahweh!

12 Let the nations be roused and let them come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat, for there I will sit to judge
all the nations from all around.

Micah 5:15 And in anger and in wrath I will execute vengeance on the nations who did not obey.”

Isaiah 34:1–4 Come near, nations, to hear; and peoples, listen attentively!
Let the earth hear, and that which fills it; the world and all its offspring.
2 For the anger of Yahweh is against all the nations, and his wrath is against all their armies; he has put them under a ban, he has given them up for slaughter.
3 And their slain shall be cast out; as for their corpses, their stench shall go up.
And the mountains shall melt with their blood, 4 and all the host of heaven shall rot.
And the skies shall roll up like a scroll, and all their host shall wither like the withering of a leaf from a vine, or like the withering from a fig tree.

Psalm 89:38–52 But you have spurned and rejected; you are very angry with your anointed one.
39 You have repudiated the covenant with your servant; you have defiled his crown in the dirt.
40 You have broken down all his walls; you have made his fortifications a ruin.
41 All passing along the road plunder him; he has become a taunt to his neighbors.
42 You have raised the right hand of his adversaries.
You have made all his enemies rejoice.
43 You have also turned back the edge of his sword and have not helped him stand his ground in the battle.
44 You have made his splendor to cease, and cast his throne to the ground.
45 You have cut short the days of his youth; you have covered him with shame. Selah 46 How long, O Yahweh? Will you hide yourself forever?

Will your wrath burn like fire forever?

47 Remember what my lifespan is.

Remember for what vanity you have created all the children of humankind.

48 What man can live on and not see death?

Can he deliver his life from the power of Sheol? Selah 49 Where are your former acts of loyal love, O Lord, that you swore to David by your faithfulness?

50 Remember, O Lord the taunting of your servants, how I bear in my bosom the taunts of all the many peoples, 51 by which your enemies taunt, O Yahweh, by which they taunt the steps of your anointed one.

52 Blessed be Yahweh forever.

Amen and Amen.

Jeremiah 23:1–8 “Woe to the shepherds who destroy and scatter the flock of my pasture,” declares Yahweh. 2 Therefore thus says Yahweh, the God of Israel concerning the shepherds who shepherd my people, “You yourselves have scattered my flock, and you have driven them away, and you do not attend to them. Look, I will punish you for the evil of your deeds,” declares Yahweh. 3 “Then I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them, and I will bring them back to their grazing place, and they will be fruitful, and they will become numerous. 4 And I will raise up over them shepherds, and they will shepherd them, and they will no longer fear, and they will not be dismayed, and they will not be missing,” declares Yahweh.

5 “Look, days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “when I will raise up for David a righteous branch, and he will reign as king, and he will achieve success, and he will do justice and righteousness in the land.

6 In his days Judah will be saved, and Israel will dwell in safety, and this is his name by which he will be called: ‘Yahweh is our righteousness.’

7 “Therefore look, days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “when they will no longer say, ‘As Yahweh lives, who led up the Israelites from the land of Egypt,’ 8 but ‘As Yahweh lives, who led up, and who brought the offspring of the house of Israel from the land of the north and from all the lands where he had driven them.’ Then they will live in their land.”

Jeremiah 23:1 “Woe to the shepherds who destroy and scatter the flock of my pasture,” declares Yahweh.

Jeremiah 23:2 Therefore thus says Yahweh, the God of Israel concerning the shepherds who shepherd my people, “You yourselves have scattered my flock, and you have driven them away, and you do not attend to them. Look,
I will punish you for the evil of your deeds,” declares Yahweh.

Jeremiah 23:3 “Then I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them, and I will bring them back to their grazing place, and they will be fruitful, and they will become numerous.

Jeremiah 23:4 And I will raise up over them shepherds, and they will shepherd them, and they will no longer fear, and they will not be dismayed, and they will not be missing,” declares Yahweh.

Jeremiah 23:5 “Look, days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “when I will raise up for David a righteous branch, and he will reign as king, and he will achieve success, and he will do justice and righteousness in the land.

Jeremiah 23:6 In his days Judah will be saved, and Israel will dwell in safety,

and this is his name by which he will be called: ‘Yahweh is our righteousness.’

Jeremiah 23:7 “Therefore look, days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “when they will no longer say, ‘As Yahweh lives, who led up the Israelites from the land of Egypt,’

Jeremiah 23:8 but ‘As Yahweh lives, who led up, and who brought the offspring of the house of Israel from the land of the north and from all the lands where he had driven them.’ Then they will live in their land.”

Jeremiah 23:3 “Then I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them, and I will bring them back to their grazing place, and they will be fruitful, and they will become numerous.

Jeremiah 23:6 In his days Judah will be saved, and Israel will dwell in safety, and this is his name by which he will be called: ‘Yahweh is our righteousness.’

Ezekiel 37:16 “And you, son of man, take for yourself a piece of wood, and write on it, ‘For Judah and for the Israelites his associates,’ and take another piece of wood, and write on it, ‘For Joseph, the piece of wood of Ephraim and all of the house of Israel his associates.’

Ezekiel 37:17 And join them one to the other with respect to you as one piece of wood, so that they may become one in your hand.

Ezekiel 37:18 When your people say to you, saying, ‘Will you not inform us as to what these actions mean for you?’

Ezekiel 37:19 Then speak to them, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Look! I am taking the piece of wood for Joseph that is in the hand of Ephraim and the tribes of Israel its associates, and I will put them on it, the piece of wood of Judah, and I will make them into one piece of wood, so that they be one in my hand.’ ”

Ezekiel 37:20 And the pieces of wood on which you wrote will be in your hand before their eyes.

Ezekiel 37:21 And speak to them, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Look! I am taking the Israelites from among the nations to which they went, and I will gather them from everywhere, and I will bring them to their own soil.

Ezekiel 37:16–21 “And you, son of man, take for yourself a piece of wood, and write on it, ‘For Judah and for the Israelites his associates,’ and take another piece of wood, and write on it, ‘For Joseph, the piece of wood of Ephraim and all of the house of Israel his associates.’ [17] And join them one to the other with respect to you as one piece of wood, so that they may become one in your hand. [18] When your people say to you, saying, ‘Will you not inform us as to what these actions mean for you?’ [19] Then speak to them, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Look! I am taking the piece of wood for Joseph that is in the hand of Ephraim and the tribes of Israel its associates, and I will put them on it, the piece of wood of Judah, and I will make them into one piece of wood, so that they be one in my hand.’ ” [20] And the pieces of wood on which you wrote will be in your hand before their eyes. [21] And speak to them, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Look! I am taking the Israelites from among the nations to which they went, and I will gather them from everywhere, and I will bring them to their own soil.

Ezekiel 37:24 “ ‘ “And my servant David will be king over them, and one shepherd will be for all of them, and in my regulations they will go, and my statutes they will observe, and they will do them.

Ezekiel 37:25 And they will dwell on the land that I gave to my servant, to Jacob, in which your ancestors dwelled, and they will dwell on it, they and their children and the children of their children forever, and my servant David will be a leader for them forever.

Ezekiel 37:26 And I will make with them a covenant of peace; an everlasting covenant it will be with them. And I will establish them, and I will cause them to increase, and I will put my sanctuary in the midst of them forever.

Ezekiel 37:24–26 “ ‘ “And my servant David will be king over them, and one shepherd will be for all of them, and in my regulations they will go, and my statutes they will observe, and they will do them. [25] And they will dwell on the land that I gave to my servant, to Jacob, in which your ancestors dwelled, and they will dwell on it, they and their children and the children of their children forever, and my servant David will be a leader for them forever. [26] And I will make with them a covenant of peace; an everlasting covenant it will be with them. And I will establish them, and I will cause them to increase, and I will put my sanctuary in the midst of them forever.

Ezekiel 38:1–3 And the word of Yahweh came to me, saying, [2] "Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him. [3] And you must say, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Look! I am against you, Gog, the head leader of Meshach and Tubal,

Ezekiel 38:14–15 "Therefore prophesy, son of man, and you must say to Gog, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Will you not realize on that day when my people Israel are dwelling in safety, [15] and so you will come from your place, from the remote areas of the north, you and many people with you, horsemen all of them, a great crowd and a vast army,

Ezekiel 38:15 and so you will come from your place, from the remote areas of the north, you and many people with you, horsemen all of them, a great crowd and a vast army,

Ezekiel 39:2 and I will turn you around, and I will drag you along, and I will bring you up from the remote areas of the north, and I will bring you against the mountains of Israel,

Revelation 20:7–10 And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison [8] and he will go out to deceive the nations that are at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to assemble them for battle, whose number is like the sand of the sea. [9] And they went up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the fortified camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and consumed them. [10] And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and sulphur, where the beast and the false prophet also are, and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

Genesis 49:9–10 Judah is a lion's cub.

From the prey, my son, you have gone up.

He bowed down; he crouched like a lion and as a lioness.

Who shall rouse him?

10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler’s staff between his feet, until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Genesis 49:17 Dan shall be a serpent on the way, a viper on the road that bites the heels of a horse, so that its rider falls backward.

Deuteronomy 33:22 And of Dan he said, “Dan is a cub of a lion; he leaps from Bashan.”

Chapter 41: The Mount of Assembly

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Revelation 16:12–16 And the sixth poured out his bowl on the great river Euphrates, and its water was dried up, in order that the way would be prepared for the kings from the east. [13] And I saw coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet three unclean spirits like frogs. [14] For they are the spirits of demons performing signs that go out to the kings of the whole inhabited world, to gather them for the battle of the great day of God the All-Powerful. [15] (Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who is on the alert and who keeps his clothing, so that he does not walk around naked and they see his shamefulness!) [16] And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Revelation 16:12 And the sixth poured out his bowl on the great river Euphrates, and its water was dried up, in order that the way would be prepared for the kings from the east.

Revelation 16:13 And I saw coming out of the mouth of the dragon and out of the mouth of the beast and out of the mouth of the false prophet three unclean spirits like frogs.

Revelation 16:14 For they are the spirits of demons performing signs that go out to the kings of the whole inhabited world, to gather them for the battle of the great day of God the All-Powerful.

Revelation 16:15 (Behold, I am coming like a thief. Blessed is the one who is on the alert and who keeps his clothing, so that he does not walk around naked and they see his shamefulness!)

Revelation 19:11–21 And I saw heaven opened, and behold, a white horse, and the one seated on it was called “Faithful” and “True,” and with justice he judges and makes war. 12 Now his eyes were a flame of fire, and on his head were many royal headbands having a name written that no one except he himself knows. 13 And he was dressed in an outer garment dipped in blood, and his name is called the Word of God. 14 And the armies that are in heaven, dressed in clean, white fine linen, were following him on white horses. 15 And out of his mouth came a sharp sword, so that with it he could strike the nations. And he will shepherd them with an iron rod, and he stomps the winepress of the wine of the furious wrath of God, the All-Powerful. 16 And he has a name written on his outer garment and on his thigh: “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

17 And I saw one angel standing in the sun, and he cried out with a loud voice, saying to all the birds that fly directly overhead, “Come! Assemble for the great banquet of God, 18 in order that you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of military tribunes, and the flesh of the powerful, and the flesh of horses and those seated on them, and the flesh of all people, both free and slave, and small and great!”

19 And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies assembled to make war with the one who is seated on the horse and with his army. 20 And the beast was seized, and with him the false prophet who performed the signs before him, by which he deceived those who received the mark of the beast and those who had worshiped his image. The two were thrown alive into the lake of fire that burns with sulphur. 21 And the rest were killed by the sword of the one who is seated on the horse—the sword that comes out of his mouth—and all the birds gorged themselves on their flesh.

Revelation 16:16 And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Zechariah 12:9–11 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.

10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn. 11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:9 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:9–11 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.

10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn. 11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:9–11 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.

10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn. 11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Isaiah 14:12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Isaiah 14:14 I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’

Isaiah 14:15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Isaiah 14:12–15 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

14 I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’

15 But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.

Psalm 68:15–16 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

16 Why do you look with hostility, O many-peaked mountains?

This mountain God desires for his dwelling.

Yes, Yahweh will abide in it forever.

Psalm 48:1 Yahweh is great and very worthy of praise in the city of our God, in his holy mountain.

Psalm 48:2 Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Zechariah 12:9–11 And then on that day I will seek to destroy all the nations coming against Jerusalem.

10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn. 11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 14:3 Then Yahweh will go forth and fight against those nations, like when he fights on a day of battle.

Zechariah 14:4 On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split in half, from east to west, by a very great valley; and half of the mountain will withdraw toward the north, and the other half toward the south.

Zechariah 14:5 And you will flee by the valley of my mountains, because the valley of the mountains will reach to Azal, and you will flee like you fled from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. And Yahweh my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.

Zechariah 14:3–5 Then Yahweh will go forth and fight against those nations, like when he fights on a day of battle. 4 On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split in half, from east to west, by a very great valley; and half of the mountain will withdraw toward the north, and the other half toward the south. [5] And you will flee by the valley of my mountains, because the valley of the mountains will reach to Azal, and you will flee like you fled from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. And Yahweh my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.

Revelation 19:11–16 And I saw heaven opened, and behold, a white horse, and the one seated on it was called “Faithful” and “True,” and with justice he judges and makes war. [12] Now his eyes were a flame of fire, and on his head were many royal headbands having a name written that no one except he himself knows. [13] And he was dressed in an outer garment dipped in blood, and his name is called the Word of God. [14] And the armies that are in heaven, dressed in clean, white fine linen, were following him on white horses. [15] And out of his mouth came a sharp sword, so that with it he could strike the nations. And he will shepherd them with an iron rod, and he stomps the winepress of the wine of the furious wrath of God, the All-Powerful. [16] And he has a name written on his outer garment and on his thigh: “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

Revelation 19:11 And I saw heaven opened, and behold, a white horse, and the one seated on it was called “Faithful” and “True,” and with justice he judges and makes war.

Revelation 19:12 Now his eyes were a flame of fire, and on his head were many royal headbands having a name written that no one except he himself knows.

Revelation 19:13 And he was dressed in an outer garment dipped in blood, and his name is called the Word of God.

Revelation 19:14 And the armies that are in heaven, dressed in clean, white fine linen, were following him on white horses.

Revelation 19:15 And out of his mouth came a sharp sword, so that with it he could strike the nations. And he will shepherd them with an iron rod, and he stomps the winepress of the wine of the furious wrath of God, the All-Powerful.

Revelation 19:16 And he has a name written on his outer garment and on his thigh: “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

Matthew 25:31 Now when the Son of Man comes in his glory and all the angels with him, then he will sit on his glorious throne.

1 Thessalonians 3:13 so that your hearts may be established blameless in holiness before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his saints.

2 Thessalonians 1:7 and to you who are being afflicted, rest with us at the revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven with his powerful angels,

Jude 14–15 And Enoch, the seventh from Adam, also prophesied about these people, saying, “Behold, the Lord came with tens of thousands of his holy ones [15] to execute judgment against all, and to convict all the ungodly concerning all their ungodly deeds that they have committed in an ungodly way, and concerning all the harsh things that ungodly sinners have spoken against him.

Revelation 19:15 And out of his mouth came a sharp sword, so that with it he could strike the nations. And he will shepherd them with an iron rod, and he stomps the winepress of the wine of the furious wrath of God, the All-Powerful.

Psalm 2:2 The kings of the earth establish themselves, and the rulers conspire together

against Yahweh and his anointed:

Revelation 2:26–28 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations, [27] and “he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay,” [28] as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Revelation 2:26 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations,

Revelation 2:27 and “he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay,”

Revelation 2:28 as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Revelation 2:26–28 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations, [27] and “he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay,” [28] as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

1 Corinthians 6:3 Do you not know that we will judge angels, not to mention ordinary matters?

Chapter 42: Describing the Indescribable

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Psalm 82:6–8 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes."

8 Rise up, O God, judge the earth, because you shall inherit all the nations.

1 Corinthians 2:9 But just as it is written, "Things which eye has not seen and ear has not heard, and have not entered into the heart of man,

all that God has prepared for those who love him."

Galatians 3:7–9 then understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham. 8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: "In you all the nations will be blessed." 9 So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.

Galatians 3:23–28 But before faith came, we were detained under the law, imprisoned until the coming faith was revealed. 24 So then, the law became our guardian until Christ, in order that we could be justified by faith. 25 But after faith has come, we are no longer under a guardian. 26 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, 27 for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus.

John 1:11–12 He came to his own things, and his own people did not receive him. [12] But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name—he gave to them authority to become children of God,

1 John 3:1–3 See what sort of love the Father has given to us: that we should be called children of God, and we are! Because of this the world does not know us: because it did not know him. [2] Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been revealed. We know that whenever he is revealed we will be like him, because we will see him just as he is. [3] And everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as that one is pure.

2 Peter 1:2–4 May grace and peace be multiplied to you in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord, [3] because his divine power has bestowed on us all things that are necessary for life and godliness, through the knowledge of the one who called us by his own glory and excellence of character, [4] through which things he has bestowed on us his precious and very great promises, so that through these you may become sharers of the divine nature after escaping from the corruption that is in the world because of evil desire,

Galatians 4:4–6 But when the fullness of time came, God sent out his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, [5] in order that he might redeem those under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption. [6] And because you are sons, God sent out the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying out, “Abba! (Father!),”

Romans 8:15–23 For you have not received a spirit of slavery leading to fear again, but you have received the Spirit of adoption, by whom we cry out, “Abba! Father!” [16] The Spirit himself confirms to our spirit that we are children of God, [17] and if children, also heirs—heirs of God and fellow heirs with Christ, if indeed we suffer together with him so that we may also be glorified together with him.

18 For I consider that the sufferings of the present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that is about to be revealed to us. 19 For the eagerly expecting creation awaits eagerly the revelation of the sons of God. 20 For the creation has been subjected to futility, not willingly, but because of the one who subjected it, in hope 21 that the creation itself also will be set free from its servility to decay, into the glorious freedom of the children of God. 22 For we know that the whole creation groans together and suffers agony together until now. 23 Not only this, but we ourselves also, having the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves while we await eagerly our adoption, the redemption of our body.

Ephesians 1:4–5 just as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and blameless before him in love, 5 having predestined us to adoption through Jesus Christ to himself according to the good pleasure of his will,

Job 38:7–8 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

> 8 "Or who shut the sea in with doors at its bursting, when it went out of the womb,

Genesis 1:26–27 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth." 27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

1 Corinthians 15:35 But someone will say, "How are the dead raised? And with what sort of body do they come?"

1 Corinthians 15:36 Foolish person! What you sow does not come to life unless it dies.

1 Corinthians 15:37 And what you sow is not the body which it will become, but you sow the bare seed, whether perhaps of wheat or of some of the rest.

1 Corinthians 15:38 But God gives to it a body just as he wishes, and to each one of the seeds its own body.

1 Corinthians 15:39 Not all flesh is the same, but there is one flesh of human beings, and another flesh of animals, and another flesh of birds, and another of fish,

1 Corinthians 15:40 and heavenly bodies and earthly bodies. But the glory of the heavenly bodies is of one kind, and the glory of the earthly bodies is of another kind.

1 Corinthians 15:41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars, for star differs from star in glory.

1 Corinthians 15:42 Thus also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruptibility.

1 Corinthians 15:43 It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power.

1 Corinthians 15:44 It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body.

1 Corinthians 15:45 Thus also it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living soul”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit.

1 Corinthians 15:46 But the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual.

1 Corinthians 15:47 The first man is from the earth, made of earth; the second man is from heaven.

1 Corinthians 15:48 As the one who is made of earth, so also are those who are made of earth, and as the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly.

1 Corinthians 15:49 And just as we have borne the image of the one who is made of earth, we will also bear the image of the heavenly.

1 Corinthians 15:50 But I say this, brothers, that flesh and blood is not able to inherit the kingdom of God, nor can corruption inherit incorruptibility.

1 Corinthians 15:51 Behold, I tell you a mystery: we will not all fall asleep, but we will all be changed,

1 Corinthians 15:52 in a moment, in the blink of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed.

1 Corinthians 15:53 For it is necessary for this perishable body to put on incorruptibility, and this mortal body to put on immortality.

1 Corinthians 15:35–49 But someone will say, “How are the dead raised? And with what sort of body do they come?” [36] Foolish person! What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. [37] And what you sow is not the body which it will become, but you sow the bare seed, whether perhaps of wheat or of some of the rest. [38] But God gives to it a body just as he wishes, and to each one of the seeds its own body. [39] Not all flesh is the same, but there is one flesh of human beings, and another flesh of animals, and another flesh of birds, and another of fish, [40] and heavenly bodies and earthly bodies. But the glory of the heavenly bodies is of one kind, and the glory of the earthly bodies is of another kind. [41] There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars, for star differs from star in glory.

[42] Thus also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruptibility. [43] It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power. [44] It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. [45] Thus also it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living soul”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. [46] But the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual. [47] The first man is from the earth, made of earth; the second man is from heaven. [48] As the one who is made of earth, so also are those who are made of earth, and as the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly. [49] And just as we have borne the image of the one who is made of earth, we will also bear the image of the heavenly.

1 Corinthians 15:40 and heavenly bodies and earthly bodies. But the glory of the heavenly bodies is of one kind, and the glory of the earthly bodies is of another kind.

1 Corinthians 15:44 It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body.

1 Corinthians 15:52–53 in a moment, in the blink of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed. [53] For it is necessary for this perishable body to put on incorruptibility, and this mortal body to put on immortality.

1 Corinthians 15:45–49 Thus also it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living soul”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. [46] But the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual. [47] The first man is from the earth, made of earth; the second man is from heaven. [48] As the one who is made of earth, so also are those who are made of earth, and as the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly. [49] And just as we have borne the image of the one who is made of earth, we will also bear the image of the heavenly.

Daniel 12:2–3 And many from those sleeping in the dusty ground will awake, some to everlasting life and some to disgrace and everlasting contempt. [3] But the ones having insight will shine like the brightness of the expanse, and the ones providing justice for the many will be like the stars forever and ever.

Daniel 12:2 And many from those sleeping in the dusty ground will awake, some to everlasting life and some to disgrace and everlasting contempt.

Daniel 12:3 But the ones having insight will shine like the brightness of the expanse, and the ones providing justice for the many will be like the stars forever and ever.

Matthew 13:43 Then the righteous will shine like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. The one who has ears, let him hear!

Matthew 17:2 And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothing became bright as the light.

1 Corinthians 6:17 But the one who joins himself to the Lord is one spirit with him.

Philippians 3:21 who will transform our humble body to be conformed to his glorious body, in accordance with the power that enables him even to subject all things to himself.

2 Corinthians 3:18 And we all, with unveiled face, reflecting the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from glory into glory, just as from the Lord, the Spirit.

2 Corinthians 3:18 And we all, with unveiled face, reflecting the glory of the Lord, are being transformed into the same image from glory into glory, just as from the Lord, the Spirit.

Revelation 2:7 The one who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To the one who conquers, I will grant to him to eat from the tree of life which is in the paradise of God.’

Revelation 2:11 The one who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. The one who conquers will never be harmed by the second death.’

Revelation 2:11 The one who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. The one who conquers will never be harmed by the second death.’

Revelation 21:8 But as for the cowards and unbelievers and detestable persons and murderers and sexually immoral people and sorcerers and idolaters and all liars, their share is in the lake that burns with fire and sulphur, which is the second death.

Revelation 2:17 The one who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To the one who conquers, I will give to him some of the hidden manna, and I will give to him a white stone, and on the stone a new name written, that no one knows except the one who receives it.'

John 6:31–45 Our fathers ate the manna in the wilderness, just as it is written, 'He gave them bread from heaven to eat.'

32 Then Jesus said to them, "Truly, truly I say to you, Moses did not give you bread from heaven, but my Father is giving you the true bread from heaven! 33 For the bread of God is the one who comes down from heaven and gives life to the world." 34 So they said to him, "Sir, always give us this bread!"

35 Jesus said to them, "I am the bread of life. The one who comes to me will never be hungry, and the one who believes in me will never be thirsty again. 36 But I said to you that you have seen me and do not believe. 37 Everyone whom the Father gives to me will come to me, and the one who comes to me I will never throw out, 38 because I have come down from heaven not that I should do my will, but the will of the one who sent me. 39 Now this is the will of the one who sent me: that everyone whom he has given me, I would not lose any of them, but raise them up on the last day. 40 For this is the will of my Father, that everyone who looks at the Son and believes in him would have eternal life, and I will raise him up on the last day."

41 Now the Jews began to grumble about him because he said, "I am the bread that came down from heaven," 42 and they were saying, "Is this one not Jesus the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How does he now say, 'I have come down from heaven'?" 43 Jesus answered and said to them, "Do not grumble among yourselves! 44 No one is able to come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him, and I will raise him up on the last day. 45 It is written in the prophets, 'And they will all be taught by God.' Everyone who hears from the Father and learns comes to me.

Exodus 16:33 And Moses said to Aaron, "Take one jar and put there a full omer of manna. Leave it before Yahweh for safekeeping for your generations."

Hebrews 9:4 containing the golden incense altar and the ark of the covenant covered on all sides with gold, in which were a golden jar containing the manna and the rod of Aaron that budded and the tablets of the covenant.

Revelation 3:5 The one who conquers in this way will be dressed in white clothing, and I will never erase his name from the book of life, and I will declare his name before my Father and before his angels.

Revelation 3:12 The one who conquers, I will make him a pillar in the temple of my God, and he will never go outside again, and I will write on him the name of my God and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem that comes down from heaven from my God, and my new name.

1 Corinthians 3:16 Do you not know that you are God's temple and the Spirit of God dwells in you?

1 Corinthians 6:19 Or do you not know that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit who is in you, whom you have from God, and you are not your own?

Revelation 21:7 The one who conquers will inherit these things, and I will be his God and he will be my son.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Revelation 22:1 And he showed me the river of the water of life, clear as crystal, coming out from the throne of God and of the Lamb

Revelation 22:2 in the middle of its street, and on both sides of the river is the tree of life, producing twelve fruits—yielding its fruit according to every month—and the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations.

Revelation 22:3 And there will not be any curse any longer, and the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his slaves will serve him,

Revelation 22:14 Blessed are the ones who wash their robes, so that their authority will be over the tree of life and they may enter into the city through the gates.

Revelation 22:19 And if anyone takes away from the words of this book of prophecy, God will take away his share of the tree of life and from the holy city that are written in this book.

Revelation 22:1–3 And he showed me the river of the water of life, clear as crystal, coming out from the throne of God and of the Lamb [2] in the middle of its street, and on both sides of the river is the tree of life, producing twelve fruits—yielding its fruit according to every month—and the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations. [3] And there will not be any curse any longer, and the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his slaves will serve him,

Revelation 22:14 Blessed are the ones who wash their robes, so that their authority will be over the tree of life and they may enter into the city through the gates.

Revelation 22:19 And if anyone takes away from the words of this book of prophecy, God will take away his share of the tree of life and from the holy city that are written in this book.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Isaiah 29:18–19 And on that day, the deaf shall hear the words of a scroll, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of gloom and darkness.

> [19] And the meek have joy after joy in Yahweh, and the needy of the people shall rejoice in the holy one of Israel.

Isaiah 30:26 And the light of the full moon will be like the light of the sun, and the light of the sun will be sevenfold, like the light of seven days, on the day when Yahweh binds up the breakage of his people, and he heals the wound of his blow.

Micah 4:6–7 “In that day,” declares Yahweh, “I will assemble the one who limps,
and I will gather the one who has been scattered,
and those whom I have mistreated.
7 And I will make the one who limps a remnant, and the one driven far away a strong nation, and Yahweh will reign over them on Mount Zion from now to forever.

Isaiah 4:2 On that day the branch of Yahweh shall become beautiful and glorious, and the fruit of the land shall become the pride and glory of the survivors of Israel.

Isaiah 7:21–22 And this shall happen: on that day, a young man will keep a young cow of the herd and two sheep alive. 22 And this shall happen:
because of the abundance of milk production, he will eat curds, for every one that is left in the midst of the land will eat curds and honey.

Isaiah 25:6–9 And on this mountain Yahweh of hosts will make for all peoples a rich feast, a feast of aged wines, fat filled with marrow, filtered aged wine.
7 And on this mountain he will destroy the face of the shroud, the shroud over all peoples, and the woven covering over all nations.
8 He will destroy death forever, and the Lord Yahweh will wipe off the tears from all faces, and he will remove the disgrace of his people from all the earth, for Yahweh has spoken.

9 And one will say, on that day, “Look! This is our God! We have waited for him and he saved us!

This is Yahweh; we waited for him!
Let us be glad,
and let us rejoice in his salvation.”

Isaiah 30:23–24 And he will give rain for your seed with which you sow the ground, and grain, the produce of the ground, and it will be rich and fertile.
On that day, your cattle will graze in broad pastures; [24] and the oxen and the donkeys that till the ground will eat fodder, sorrel that has been winnowed with shovel and pitchfork.

Joel 3:18 And it will happen on that day; the mountains will drip new wine,
and the hills will flow with milk,
and all the channels of Judah will flow with water.
A spring from the house of Yahweh will come forth,
and it will water the valley of Acacia Trees.

Amos 9:13–15 “Look, days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “when the one who plows will overtake the one who reaps, the one who treads grapes will catch up with the one who sows the seed. And the mountains will drip sweet wine and all of the hills will flow with it. [14] And I will restore the fortunes of my people Israel, and they will rebuild the desolated cities and will inhabit them. And they will plant vineyards and will drink their wine, and they will make gardens and will eat their fruit. [15] And I will plant them on their land and they will not be uprooted again from their land that I have given to them,” says Yahweh your God.

Hosea 2:18 I will make a covenant for them on that day, with the animals of the field, with the birds of the heaven, and with the creeping things of the ground; the bow, the sword, and the war I will abolish from the land, and I will let them lie down in safety.

Isaiah 11:1–10 And a shoot will come out from the stump of Jesse, and a branch from its roots will bear fruit.

[2] And the spirit of Yahweh shall rest on him— a spirit of wisdom and understanding,
a spirit of counsel and might,
a spirit of knowledge and the fear of Yahweh.
[3] And his breath is in the fear of Yahweh.
And he shall judge not by his eyesight, and he shall rebuke not by what he hears with his ears.
[4] But he shall judge the poor with righteousness, and he shall decide for the needy of the earth with rectitude.
And he shall strike the earth with the rod of his mouth, and he shall kill the wicked person with the breath of his lips.
[5] And righteousness shall be the belt around his waist, and faithfulness the belt around his loins.
[6] And a wolf shall stay with a lamb, and a leopard shall lie down with a kid, and a calf and a lion and a fatling together as a small boy leads them.
[7] And a cow and a bear shall graze; their young shall lie down together.
And a lion shall eat straw like the cattle.
[8] And an infant shall play over a serpent's hole, and a toddler shall put his hand on a viper's hole.
[9] They will not injure and they will not destroy on all of my holy mountain, for the earth will be full of the knowledge of Yahweh, as the waters cover the sea.

[10] And this shall happen on that day: the nations shall inquire of the root of Jesse, which shall be standing as a signal to the peoples, and his resting place shall be glorious.

Ezekiel 34:25–28 And I will make them a covenant of peace, and I will put an end to wild animals from the land, and they will dwell in the desert safely, and they will sleep in the forest. [26] And I will make them and the area all around my hill a blessing, and I will let the rain go down at its appointed time; they will be rains of blessing. [27] And the tree of the field will give its fruit, and the land will give its produce, and they will be on their land safely, and they will know that I am Yahweh when I break their yoke, and I will deliver them from the hand of the ones enslaving them. [28] And they will not be any longer plunder to the nations, and the animals of the land will not eat them, and they will dwell in safety, and there will not be anyone frightening them.

Isaiah 10:20 And this shall happen: on that day, the remnant of Israel and the survivors of the house of Jacob will not continue to lean on the one who struck it but will lean on Yahweh, the holy one of Israel, in truth.

Isaiah 52:6 Therefore my people shall know my name, therefore in that day, that I am the one who speaks. Here am I."

Ezekiel 39:22 "And the house of Israel will know that I am Yahweh their God from that day and beyond, Isaiah 19:19–25 On that day, there will be an altar for Yahweh in the middle of the land of Egypt, and a stone pillar for Yahweh at her border. [20] And it will be a sign and a witness to Yahweh of hosts in the land of Egypt; when they cry out to Yahweh because of oppressors, he will send them a savior and a defender, and he will deliver them. [21] And Yahweh will make himself known to Egypt, and Egypt will know Yahweh on that day, and they will worship with sacrifice and offering, and they will make vows to Yahweh, and they will fulfill them. [22] And Yahweh will strike Egypt, striking and healing; and they will return to Yahweh, and he will respond to their prayer, and he will heal them.

[23] On that day, there will be a highway from Egypt to Assyria, and Assyria will come into Egypt, and Egypt into Assyria, and Egypt will worship together with Assyria.

[24] On that day, Israel will be the third with Egypt and Assyria, a blessing in the midst of the earth, [25] whom Yahweh of hosts blessed, saying, "May Egypt my people be blessed, and Assyria, the work of my hands, and my inheritance, Israel."

Ezekiel 38:23 And so I will exalt myself, and I will show myself holy, and I will make myself known before the eyes of many nations, and they will know that I am Yahweh.' "

Revelation 21:1 And I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea did not exist any longer.

Psalm 74:14 You crushed the heads of Leviathan; you gave him as food to the desert dwelling creatures.

Psalm 89:10 You yourself crushed Rahab like one who is slain; you scattered your enemies with your strong arm.

Genesis 1:2 Now the earth was formless and empty, and darkness was over the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God was hovering over the surface of the waters.

Epilogue

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Hebrews 1:14 Are they not all spirits engaged in special service, sent on assignment for the sake of those who are going to inherit salvation?

Isaiah 14:13–14 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven;

I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;
and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;
[14] I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like
the Most High.’

Psalm 147:4 He counts the number of the stars; he gives names to all of them.

Genesis 1:16 And God made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day and the smaller light to rule the night, and the stars.

Judges 5:20 The stars fought from heaven; from their courses they fought against Sisera.

Isaiah 40:25–26 “And to whom you will compare me, and am I equal?”
says the holy one.

[26] Lift your eyes up on high, and see! Who created these?

The one who brings out their host by number.
He calls all them by name.
Because he is great of power and mighty of power, not one is missing.

Daniel 8:10 And it grew up to the host of heaven, and it threw down to the ground some of the host and some of the stars and trampled them.

Revelation 12:1–9 And a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun and with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars, 2 and who was pregnant and was crying out because she was having birth pains, and was in torment to give birth. 3 And another sign appeared in heaven, and behold, a great fiery red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads were seven royal headbands. 4 And his tail swept away a third of the stars from heaven and threw them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, in order that whenever she gave birth to her child he could devour it. 5 And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is going to shepherd all the nations with an iron rod, and her child was snatched away to God and to his throne. 6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she had a place prepared there by God, so that they could feed her there for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

7 And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. 8 And they did not prevail, nor was a place found for them any longer in heaven. 9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Exodus 22:7–9 " 'If a man gives to his neighbor money or objects to watch over and it is stolen from the house of the man, if the thief is found, he will make double restitution. 8 If the thief is not found, the owner of the house will be brought to the sanctuary to learn whether or not he reached out his hand to his neighbor's possession. 9 Concerning every account of transgression—concerning an ox, concerning a donkey, concerning small livestock, concerning clothing, concerning all lost property—where someone says, “This belongs to me,” the matter of the two of them will come to God; whomever God declares guilty will make double restitution to his neighbor.

Psalm 45:7 You love righteousness and hate wickedness.

Therefore God, your God, has anointed you

from among your companions with festive oil.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

John 10:34 Jesus answered them, “Is it not written in your law, ‘I said, “You are gods” ’?

Genesis 35:7 And he built an altar there and called the place El-Bethel, for there God had appeared to him when he fled before his brother.

James 1:17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shadow of change.

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 6:4 “Hear, Israel, Yahweh our God, Yahweh is unique.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant [3] and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, [4] and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, [5] then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Matthew 28:19–20 Therefore, go and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, [20] teaching them to observe everything I have commanded you, and behold, I am with you all the days until the end of the age."

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

1 Thessalonians 5:23 Now may the God of peace himself sanctify you completely, and may your spirit and soul and body be kept complete, blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Deuteronomy 6:4 "Hear, Israel, Yahweh our God, Yahweh is unique.

Matthew 22:37 And he said to him, “ ‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind.’

Mark 12:29–30 Jesus answered, “The most important is, ‘Listen, Israel! The Lord our God, the Lord is one. 30 And you shall love the Lord your God from your whole heart and from your whole soul and from your whole mind and from your whole strength.’

Hebrews 4:12 For the word of God is living and active and sharper than any double-edged sword, and piercing as far as the division of soul and spirit, both joints and marrow, and able to judge the reflections and thoughts of the heart.

Genesis 1:31 And God saw everything that he had made and, behold, it was very good. And there was evening, and there was morning, a sixth day.

Psalm 132:13 For Yahweh has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his habitation.

Psalm 48:2 Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Genesis 28:12–19 And he dreamed, and behold, a stairway was set on the earth, and its top touched the heavens. And behold, angels of God were going up and going down on it. 13 And behold, Yahweh was standing beside him, and he said, “I am Yahweh, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The ground on which you were sleeping I will give to you and to your descendants. 14 Your descendants shall be like the dust of the earth, and you will spread out to the west, and to the east, and to the north and to the south. And all the families of the earth will be blessed through you and through your descendants. 15 Now behold, I am with you, and I will keep you wherever you go. And I will bring you to this land, for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised to you.” 16 Then Jacob awoke from his sleep and said, “Surely Yahweh is indeed in this place and I did not know!” 17 Then he was afraid and said, “How awesome is this place! This is nothing else than the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven!” 18 And Jacob rose early in the morning, and he took the stone that he had put under his head and set it up as a stone pillar, and poured oil on top of it. [19] And he called the name of that place Bethel; however, the name of the city was formerly Luz.

Ezekiel 28:12–19 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

[13] You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your
mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

[14] You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

[15] You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created,

until wickedness was found in you.

[16] In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub,
from the midst of the stones of fire.

[17] Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings; I have exposed you for viewing.

[18] From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading,

I profaned your sanctuaries
and I brought fire from your midst;
it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.
19 All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;
you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,
turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 10:9 And I saw, and look, four wheels beside the cherubim, one wheel beside each cherub, and the appearance of the wheels was like the outward appearance of turquoise stone.

Isaiah 54:11 “O afflicted one, driven away, who is not consoled.
Look! I am about to set your stones in hard mortar, and I will lay your foundation with sapphires.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,
turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Exodus 28:20 and the fourth row is a turquoise and an onyx and a jasper. Their settings will be woven with gold.

Revelation 21:19 The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every kind of precious stone: the first foundation jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald,

Exodus 28:17 And you will fill it with stone mounting, four rows of stone, a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald is the first row;

Isaiah 14:4–18 that you will take this taunt against the king of Babylon, and you will say:

"How the oppressor has ceased!

his insolence has ceased.

5 Yahweh has broken the staff of the wicked, the scepter of rulers, 6 that struck the peoples in wrath, a blow without ceasing, that ruled the nations in anger with unrestrained persecution.

7 All of the earth rests and is quiet; they break forth into singing.

8 Even the cypresses rejoice over you, the cedars of Lebanon:

'Since you were laid down,

no wood cutter comes up against us.'

9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

10 All of them will respond and say to you, 'You yourself also were made weak like us!

You have become the same as us!'

11 Your pride is brought down to Sheol, and the sound of your harps; maggots are spread out beneath you like a bed, and your covering is worms.

12 How you have fallen from heaven, morning star, son of dawn!

You are cut down to the ground, conqueror of nations!

13 And you yourself said in your heart, 'I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

[14] I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like
the Most High.’
[15] But you are brought down to Sheol, to the depths of the pit.
[16] Those who see you will stare at you, they will look closely at you:
‘Is this the man who made the earth tremble, who caused kingdoms to shake,
[17] who made the world like the desert and destroyed its cities, who would not let his prisoners go home?’ [18] All the kings of the nations, all of them, lie in glory, each one in his house.

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Ezekiel 28:11–19 And the word of Yahweh came to me, saying, [12] “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

[13] You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your
mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

[14] You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

[15] You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created,

until wickedness was found in you.

[16] In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub,
from the midst of the stones of fire.

[17] Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings;

I have exposed you for viewing.

[18] From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading,

I profaned your sanctuaries
and I brought fire from your midst;
it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.
19 All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;
you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Isaiah 6:2 Seraphs were standing above him. Each had six wings: with two he covered his face, and with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew.

Genesis 3:14 Then Yahweh God said to the serpent, “Because you have done this,
you will be cursed more than any domesticated animal
and more than any wild animal.
On your belly you shall go

and dust you shall eat
all the days of your life.

Genesis 3:17 And to Adam he said, “Because you listened to the voice of your wife and you ate from the tree from which I forbade you to eat, the ground shall be cursed on your account.

In pain you shall eat from it all the days of your life.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for

themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 20:12 Besides, she is my sister, the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother. And she became my wife.

Leviticus 18:9 As for your sister’s nakedness, whether your father’s daughter or your mother’s daughter, whether born at home or born abroad, you must not expose their nakedness.

Leviticus 18:11 As for the nakedness of the daughter of your father’s wife, she is your sister, a relative of your father; you must not expose her nakedness.

Leviticus 20:17 “ ‘As for a man who takes his sister, his father’s daughter or his mother’s daughter, and he sees her nakedness and she herself sees his nakedness, it is a disgrace, and they shall be cut off before the eyes of their people; he has exposed his sister’s nakedness—he must bear his guilt.

Deuteronomy 27:22 ‘Cursed be the one who lies with his sister, the daughter of his father or the daughter of his mother.’ And all the people shall say, ‘Amen.’

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 38:2 And Judah saw the daughter of a certain Canaanite there whose name was Shua. And he took her and went in to her.

Leviticus 18:17 You must not expose the nakedness of a woman and her daughter, or her son’s daughter, or her daughter’s daughter; you must not take her as wife to expose her nakedness; they are close relatives—that is wickedness.

Leviticus 20:17 “ ‘As for a man who takes his sister, his father’s daughter or his mother’s daughter, and he sees her nakedness and she herself sees his nakedness, it is a disgrace, and they shall be cut off before the eyes of their people; he has exposed his sister’s nakedness—he must bear his guilt.

Leviticus 20:21 As for a man who marries his brother’s wife, it is an abomination; he has exposed his brother’s nakedness—they shall be childless.

Leviticus 21:7 “ ‘They shall not marry a woman who is a prostitute and defiled, nor shall they marry a woman divorced from her husband, because each priest is holy for his God.

Genesis 38:2 And Judah saw the daughter of a certain Canaanite there whose name was Shua. And he took her and went in to her.

Genesis 39:14 she called to the men of her house and said to them, “Look! He brought a Hebrew man to us to mock us! He came to me to lie with me, and I cried out with a loud voice.

Leviticus 21:11 And he shall not go near any dead person, nor shall he make himself unclean for his father or for his mother.

Judges 16:1 Samson went down to Gaza; there he saw a prostitute and had sex with her.

Amos 2:7 Those who trample the heads of the powerless into the dust of the ground and turn aside the way of the destitute, a man and his father have sexual relations with the same girl, so that they profane my holy name.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Revelation 2:7 The one who has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches. To the one who conquers, I will grant to him to eat from the tree of life which is in the paradise of God.’

Revelation 2:26–28 And the one who conquers and who keeps my works until the end, I will give him authority over the nations, [27] and “he will shepherd them with an iron rod; he will break them in pieces like jars made of clay,” [28] as I also have received from my Father, and I will give him the morning star.

Revelation 3:21 The one who conquers, I will grant to him to sit down with me on my throne, as I also have conquered and have sat down with my Father on his throne.

Revelation 5:10 and made them a kingdom and priests to our God, and they will reign on the earth.”

Revelation 21:24 And the nations will walk by its light, and the kings of the earth will bring their glory into it.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Hosea 1:10 The number of the children of Israel will be like the sand of the sea that cannot be measured or counted;

and in the place where it is said to them, “You are not my people,”

it will be said to them,

“Children of the living God.”

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit

shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Hosea 1:10 The number of the children of Israel will be like the sand of the sea

that cannot be measured or counted;

and in the place where it is said to them, “You are not my people,”

it will be said to them,

“Children of the living God.”

Revelation 12:7–9 And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. [8] And they did not prevail, nor was a place found for them any longer in heaven. [9] And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Revelation 12:7–9 And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. [8] And they did not prevail, nor was a place found for them any longer in heaven. [9] And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days

shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34 And Yahweh said to Moses, "Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon." 35 And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites
from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised."
13 And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. 14 Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh
the God of Israel. 15 And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Jude 9 But Michael the archangel, when he argued with the devil, disputing concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!”

1 Thessalonians 4:16 For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout of command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” 14 And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?” 15 The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

John 8:56–58 Abraham your father rejoiced that he would see my day, and he saw it and was glad.”

57 So the Jews said to him, “You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?” 58 Jesus said to them, “Truly, truly I say to you, before Abraham was, I am!”

Exodus 3:14 And God said to Moses, “I am that I am.” And he said, “So you must say to the Israelites, ‘I am sent me to you.’ ”

Exodus 3:1–3 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, “Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?”

Genesis 19:3 But he urged them strongly, and they turned aside with him and came into his house. And he made a meal for them and baked unleavened bread, and they ate.

Genesis 19:27–32 And Abraham arose early in the morning and went to the place where he had stood before Yahweh. 28 And he looked down upon the surface of Sodom and Gomorrah, and upon the whole surface of the land, the plain. And he saw that, behold, the smoke of the land went up like the smoke of a smelting furnace. 29 So it was, when God destroyed the cities of the plain that God remembered Abraham and sent Lot out from the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in which Lot lived.

30 And Lot went out from Zoar and settled in the hill country with his two daughters, for he was afraid to stay in Zoar. So he lived in a cave, he and his two daughters. 31 And the firstborn daughter said to the younger one, “Our father is old, and there is no man in the land to come in to us according to the manner of all the land. 32 Come, let us give our father wine to drink and let us lie with him that we may secure descendants through our father.”

Genesis 15:2 Then Abram said, “O Yahweh, my Lord, what will you give me? I continue to be childless, and my heir is Eliezer of Damascus.”

Genesis 15:8 And he said, “O Yahweh God, how shall I know that I will possess it?”

Genesis 16:2 And Sarai said to Abram, “Look, please, Yahweh has prevented me from bearing children. Please go in to my servant; perhaps I will have children by her." And Abram listened to the voice of Sarai.

Genesis 16:5 And Sarai said to Abram, "may my harm be upon you. I had my slave sleep with you, and when she saw that she had conceived, she no longer respected me. May Yahweh judge between me and you!"

Genesis 18:1 And Yahweh appeared to him by the oaks of Mamre. And he was sitting in the doorway of the tent at the heat of the day.

Exodus 6:3 And I appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob as God Shaddai, but by my name Yahweh I was not known to them.

Genesis 18:18 Abraham will surely become a great and strong nation, and all the nations of the earth will be blessed on account of him.

Genesis 23:6 "Hear us, my lord, you are a mighty prince in our midst. Bury your dead in the choicest of our burial sites. None of us will withhold his burial site from you for burying your dead."

Genesis 24:18 And she said, "Drink, my lord." And she quickly lowered her jar in her hand and gave him a drink.

Genesis 32:4 And he instructed them, saying, "Thus you must say to my lord, to Esau, 'Thus says your servant Jacob, I have dwelled as an alien with Laban, and I have remained there until now.

Genesis 33:8 And he said, "What do you mean by all this company that I have met?" Then he said, "To find favor in the eyes of my lord."

Genesis 33:13 But he said to him, "My lord knows that the children are frail, and the flocks and the cattle which are nursing are a concern to me. Now if they drove them hard for a day all the flocks would die.

Genesis 18:25 Far be it from you to do such a thing as this, to kill the righteous with the wicked, that the righteous would be as the wicked! Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?"

Genesis 28:13 And behold, Yahweh was standing beside him, and he said, "I am Yahweh, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. The ground on which you were sleeping I will give to you and to your descendants.

Hosea 12:4–5 In the womb he deceived his brother, and in his manhood he struggled with God.

[4] He struggled with the angel and prevailed; he pleaded for his mercy.

He met him at Bethel,

and there he spoke with him.

Genesis 48:15–16 And he blessed Joseph and said, “The God before whom my fathers, Abraham and Isaac, walked, The God who shepherded me all my life unto this day, [16] The angel who redeemed me from all evil, may he bless the boys.

And through them let my name be perpetuated,

and the name of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac.

And let them multiply into many in the midst of the earth.

Genesis 35:1–7 And God said to Jacob, “Arise, go up to Bethel and dwell there, and make an altar to the God who appeared to you when you fled from before Esau your brother.” [2] Then Jacob said to his household and to all who were with him, “Get rid of the foreign gods that are in your midst and purify yourselves and change your garments. [3] Then let us make ready and let us go up to Bethel, so that I can make an altar there to the God who answered me in the day of my trouble, and who has been with me on the way that I have gone.” [4] So they gave to Jacob all the foreign gods that were in their hands, and the ornamental rings that were in their ears. And Jacob buried them under the oak which was near Shechem. [5] Then they set out on their journey, and the terror of God was upon the cities that were all around them, so that they did not pursue after the sons of Jacob. [6] And Jacob came to Luz which was in the land of Canaan (that is Bethel), he and all the people that were with him. [7] And he built an altar there and called the place El-Bethel, for there God had appeared to him when he fled before his brother.

Genesis 35:7 And he built an altar there and called the place El-Bethel, for there God had appeared to him when he fled before his brother.

Genesis 28:19 And he called the name of that place Bethel; however, the name of the city was formerly Luz.

Genesis 35:6 And Jacob came to Luz which was in the land of Canaan (that is Bethel), he and all the people that were with him.

Genesis 48:3 Then Jacob said to Joseph, “El-Shaddai appeared to me in Luz, in the land of Canaan, and blessed me, Judges 1:23 And the house of Joseph spied out Bethel (the former name of the city was Luz).

Exodus 33:12–14 And Moses said to Yahweh, “See, you are saying to me, ‘Take this people up.’ But you have not let me know whom you will send with me, and you yourself have said, ‘I know you by name, and you also have found favor in my eyes.’ 13 And now if I have found favor in your eyes, make known to me, please, your way, and so I may know you so that I can find favor in your eyes. And see that this nation is your people.” 14 And he said, “My presence will go, and I will give you rest.”

Numbers 27:18–23 Then Yahweh said to Moses, “Take Joshua son of Nun, a man in whom is the spirit, and place your hand on him. 19 Have him stand before Eleazar the priest and before the entire community, and commission him in their sight. 20 You will give to him from your authority so that the entire community of Israel will obey him. 21 He will stand before Eleazar the priest, who will ask for him by the decision of the Urim before Yahweh. On his command they will go out, and at his command they will come in, both he and all of the Israelites with him, the entire community.” 22 Moses did just as Yahweh commanded him, and he took Joshua and set him before Eleazar the priest and before the entire community. 23 And he placed his hands on him and commissioned him just as Yahweh spoke by the hand of Moses.

Exodus 15:4 The chariots of Pharaoh and his army he cast into the sea, and his choice adjutants were sunk in the Red Sea.

Numbers 33:8 They set out from Pi-Hahiroth and went through the midst of the sea into the desert; and they went a journey of three days into the desert of Etham and camped at Marah.

Numbers 33:10–11 They set out from Elim, and they camped at the Red Sea. [11] They set out from the Red Sea and camped at the desert of Sin.

Isaiah 27:1 On that day, Yahweh will punish with his cruel, great and strong sword Leviathan, the fleeing serpent, and Leviathan, the twisting serpent, and he will kill the sea monster that is in the sea.

Job 26:13 By his breath the heavens were made clear; his hand pierced the fleeing snake.

Job 22:14 Thick clouds are a covering for him, so that he does not see; and he walks about on the dome of heaven.'

Job 38:1 Then Yahweh answered Job from the storm, and he said,

Psalm 97:2 Cloud and thick darkness are surrounding him; righteousness and justice are the foundation of his throne.

Psalm 104:3 the one who sets beams in the waters for his upper chambers, who makes clouds his chariot, who rides on the wings of the wind,

Nahum 1:3 Yahweh is slow to anger but great in power; and Yahweh will certainly not allow the guilty to go unpunished.
He marches in storm wind and in gale; storm clouds are the dust of his feet.

Deuteronomy 10:17 For Yahweh your God, he is God of the gods and Lord of the lords, the great and mighty God, the awesome one who is not partial, and he does not take bribes.

2 Chronicles 2:5 And the house that I am building will be great, for our God is greater than all gods.

Psalm 86:8 There is none like you among the gods, O Lord, and there are no works like yours.

Psalm 95:3 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods,

Psalm 96:4 For Yahweh is great and very worthy of praise; he is to be feared above all gods.

Psalm 136:2 Give thanks to the God of gods, for his loyal love endures forever.

Luke 10:1 And after these things, the Lord also appointed seventy-two others and sent them out two by two before him into every town and place where he was about to go.

Sirach 44:21 Therefore he assured him by an oath, that he would bless the nations in his seed, and that he would multiply him as the dust of the earth, and exalt his seed as the stars, and cause them to inherit from sea to sea, and from the river unto the utmost part of the land.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Exodus 3:1–3 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. [2] And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. [3] And Moses said, "Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?"

Deuteronomy 4:15 "So you must be very careful for yourselves, because you did not see any form on the day Yahweh spoke to you at Horeb from the midst of the fire, Deuteronomy 5:2 Yahweh our God made a covenant with us at Horeb.

1 Kings 8:9 There was not anything in the ark except the two tablets of stone which Moses had placed there at Horeb, where Yahweh made a covenant with the Israelites after they went out from the land of Egypt.

Daniel 7:22 until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

Daniel 7:10 A stream of fire issued forth and flowed from his presence; thousands upon thousands served him and ten thousand upon ten thousand stood before him. The judge sat, and the books were opened.

Daniel 7:9 “I continued watching until thrones were placed and an Ancient of Days sat; his clothing was like white snow and the hair of his head was like pure wool and his throne was a flame of fire and its wheels were burning fire.

Deuteronomy 4:25–27 “When you have had children and grandchildren and you have grown old in the land and you act corruptly and you make a divine image of the form of anything and you do evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God, thus provoking him to anger, [26] I call to witness against you today the heaven and the earth, that you will perish soon and completely from the land that you are crossing the Jordan into it to take possession of it; you will not live long on it, but you will be completely destroyed. [27] And Yahweh will scatter you among the peoples, and you will be left few in number among the nations to where Yahweh will lead you.

Deuteronomy 4:39–40 So you shall acknowledge today, and you must call to mind that Yahweh is God in heaven above and on the earth beneath. There is no other God. [40] And you shall keep his rules and his commandments that I am commanding you today, so that it may go well for you and for your children after you, and so that you may remain a long time on the land that Yahweh your God is giving to you during all of those days.”

Deuteronomy 11:18–24 “And you shall put these, my words, on your heart and on your inner self, and you shall bind them as a sign on your hand and let them be as an emblem between your eyes. [19] And you shall teach them to your children by talking about them when you sit in your house and when you travel on the road and when you lie down and when you get up. [20] And you shall write them on the doorframes of your house and on your gates, [21] so that they may multiply your days and the days of your children on the land that Yahweh swore to your ancestors to give it to them as long as heaven endures over the earth. [22] Yes, if you diligently keep all this commandment that I am commanding you to observe it, by loving Yahweh your God by walking in all his ways and by holding fast to him, [23] then Yahweh will drive out all of these nations before you, and you will dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you. [24] Every place on which the sole of your foot treads, it shall be yours; your boundary shall be from the desert and Lebanon from the river, the river Euphrates, on up to the western sea.

Leviticus 26:14–28 " 'But if you do not listen to me and you do not carry out all these commands, [15] and if you reject my statutes and if your inner self abhors my regulations, to not carry out all my commands by your breaking my covenant, [16] I in turn will do this to you: then I will summon onto you horror, the wasting disease, and the fever that wastes eyes and that drains away life; and you shall sow your seed in vain, and your enemies shall eat it. [17] And I will set my face against you, and you shall be defeated before your enemies; and your haters shall rule over you, and you shall flee away, but there shall not be anybody who is pursuing you.

[18] " 'And if in spite of these things you do not listen to me, then I will continue to discipline you seven times for your sins. [19] And I will break the pride of your strength; and I will make your heaven like iron and your land like copper. [20] And your strength shall be consumed in vain; and your land shall not give its produce, and the land's trees shall not give their fruit.

[21] " 'And if you go against me in hostility and you are not willing to listen to me, then I will add a plague onto you seven times according to your sins. [22] And I will send wild animals out among you, and they shall make you childless, and they shall cut down your domestic animals, and they shall make you fewer; and your roads shall be desolate.

[23] “ ‘And if you do not accept correction from me through these things, but you go against me in hostility, [24] then I myself will also go against you in hostility, and I myself also will strike you seven times for your sins. [25]
And I will bring upon you a sword that seeks vengeance for the covenant, and you shall be gathered to your cities; and I will send a plague in your midst, and you shall be given into the hand of an enemy. [26] At my breaking the supply of bread for you, then ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall return your bread by weight; and you shall eat it, and you shall not be satisfied.

[27] “ ‘And if through this you do not listen to me and you go against me in hostility, [28] then I will go against you in hostile anger, and also I myself will discipline you seven times for your sins.

Deuteronomy 28:43–52 The alien that is in your midst shall ascend over you, higher and higher, but you shall go down lower and lower. [44] He shall lend to you, but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head, but you shall be the tail.

[45] “And all of these curses shall come over you, and they shall pursue you, and they shall overtake you until you are destroyed, because you did not listen to the voice of Yahweh your God, by observing his commandments and his statutes that he commanded you. [46] And they shall be among you as a sign and as a wonder and among your offspring forever.

[47] “Because of the fact that you did not serve Yahweh your God with joy and with gladness of heart for the abundance of everything, [48] then you shall serve your enemies, whom Yahweh will send against you under conditions of famine, in thirst, in nakedness, and in a lack of everything; and he shall place a yoke of iron on your neck until he has destroyed you. [49] Yahweh will raise up against you a nation from far off, from the end of the earth, attacking as the eagle swoops down, a nation whose language you will not understand, [50] a grim-faced nation who does not show respect to the old and the young and does not show pity. [51] And it shall consume the fruit of your livestock and the fruit of your ground until you are destroyed, and who will not leave for you any grain, wine, and olive oil, calves of your herds, and lambs of your flock until it has destroyed you. [52] And it shall besiege you in all your towns until your high and fortified walls fall, which you are trusting in throughout your land; and it shall besiege you in all of your towns in all of your land that Yahweh your God has given to you.

Deuteronomy 28:64–67 And Yahweh shall scatter you among all the nations from one end of the earth up to the other end of the earth, and there you shall serve other gods that you have not known nor your ancestors, gods of wood and stone. 65 And among these nations you shall not find rest, and there shall not be a resting place for the sole of your foot, and Yahweh shall give you there an anxious heart and a weakening of eyes and a languishing of your inner self. 66 And your life shall hang in doubt before you, and you shall be startled night and day, and you shall not be confident of your life. 67 In the morning you shall say, 'If only it was evening!' and in the evening you shall say 'If only it was morning!' because of the dread of your heart that you shall feel, and because of the sight of your eyes that you shall see.

Deuteronomy 29:22–28 "And the next generation, that is, your children who will rise up after you, and the foreigner who will come from a distant land, when they will see the plagues of that land and its diseases that Yahweh has inflicted upon it, will say, 23 'All its land is brimstone and salt left by fire, none of its land will be sown, and it will not make plants sprout out and it will not grow any vegetation; it is as the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, Adman and Zeboiim, which Yahweh overturned in his anger and in his wrath.' 24 And all the nations will say, 'Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?' 25 And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them. 27 So the anger of Yahweh was kindled against that land to bring upon it all the curses written in this scroll, 28 and Yahweh uprooted them from their land in anger and in wrath and in great fury, and he cast them into another land, just as it is today.'

Deuteronomy 31:14–28 Then Yahweh said to Moses, "Look, you are about to die; call Joshua and present yourselves in the tent of assembly, so that I may instruct him.” So Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves in the tent of assembly. 15 And Yahweh appeared in the tent in a column of cloud, and the column of the cloud stood at the entrance of the tent. 16 And Yahweh said to Moses, “Look, you are about to lie down with your ancestors, and this people will arise and they will play the prostitute after the foreign gods of the land to which they are going. 17 And my anger shall flare up against them on that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall become as prey, and disasters and troubles shall find them, and they shall say on that day, ‘Is it not because our God is not in our midst that these disasters have found us?’ 18 But I will certainly hide my face on that day, because of all of the evil that they did because they turned to other gods.

19 “And so then write this song for yourselves and teach it to the Israelites; put it in their mouth, so that this song may be for me as a witness against the Israelites. 20 For when I bring them into the land that I swore to their ancestors, a land flowing with milk and honey, they will eat their fill, and they will become fat, and then they will turn to other gods, and they will serve them, and they will spurn me, and they will break my covenant. 21 And then many disasters and troubles will come upon them, and this song will give evidence before them as a witness, because it will not be forgotten from out of the mouth of their descendants, for I know their inclination that they are having today before I have brought them into the land that I swore.” 22 And Moses wrote this song on that day and taught it to the Israelites.

23 Then he told Joshua the son of Nun, and said to him, “Be strong and be courageous, for you shall bring the Israelites into the land that I swore to them, and I will be with you.”

24 And then when Moses finished writing the words of this law on the scroll until they were complete, 25 then Moses commanded the Levites carrying the ark of the covenant of Yahweh, saying, 26 “Take the scroll of this law and put it at the side of the ark of the covenant of Yahweh your God, and it will be there as a witness against you. 27 For I know your rebellion and your stiff neck even now while I am still alive with you today, rebelling against Yahweh, and how much more after my death. 28 Assemble to me all the elders of your tribes and your officials, so that I may speak in their ears these words, and that I may call as witness against them heaven and earth.

2 Kings 6:17 Then Elisha prayed and said, “O Yahweh, please open his eyes that he may see,” and Yahweh opened the eyes of the servant, and he saw, and look, the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire all around Elisha.

Ephesians 4:8 Therefore it says, “Ascending on high he led captivity captive;

he gave gifts to men.”

Galatians 3:19–20 Why then the law? It was added on account of transgressions, until the descendant should come to whom it had been promised, having been ordered through angels by the hand of a mediator. [20] Now the mediator is not for one, but God is one.

Exodus 24:12 And Yahweh said to Moses, “Come up to me on the mountain, and be there, and I will give you the tablets of stone and the law and the commandments that I have written to instruct them.”

Exodus 31:18 And when he finished speaking with him on Mount Sinai, he gave to Moses the two tablets of the testimony, stone tablets, written with the finger of God.

Exodus 32:15–16 And Moses turned and went down from the mountain, and the two tablets of the testimony were in his hand, tablets written on their two sides; on the front and on the back they were written. [16] And the tablets, they were the work of God; and the writing, it was the writing of God engraved on the tablets.

Deuteronomy 4:13 And he declared to you his covenant, the Ten Commandments, which he charged you to observe, and he wrote them on the two tablets of stone.

Deuteronomy 5:22 “These words Yahweh spoke to your whole assembly at the mountain from the midst of the fire and the very thick cloud with a loud voice, and he did not add anything, and then he wrote them on two tablets of stone and gave them to me.

Deuteronomy 4:15–16 “So you must be very careful for yourselves, because you did not see any form on the day Yahweh spoke to you at Horeb from the midst of the fire, 16 so that you do not ruin yourselves and make for yourselves a divine image in a form of any image, a replica of male or female,

Deuteronomy 5:7 There shall not be for you other gods besides me.

Deuteronomy 6:14 You shall not go after other gods from the gods of the peoples who are all around you,

Deuteronomy 7:4 For their sons and daughters will cause your son to turn away from following me, and so they will serve other gods, and the anger of Yahweh would be kindled against you, and he would quickly destroy you.

Deuteronomy 7:16 And you shall devour all of the peoples that Yahweh your God is giving to you; you shall not pity them, and you shall not serve their gods, which will be a snare for you.

Deuteronomy 8:19 And it will happen that if you indeed forget Yahweh your God and you go after other gods and you serve them and you bow down before them, I warn you today that you will surely perish.

Deuteronomy 11:16 Take care so that your heart is not easily deceived, and you turn away, and you serve other gods, and you bow down to them.

Deuteronomy 11:28 and the curse, if you do not listen to the commandments of Yahweh your God, but rather you turn from the way that I am commanding you today to go after other gods that you have not known.

Deuteronomy 13:2 and the sign or the wonder comes about that he spoke to you, saying, ‘Let us go after other gods (those whom you have not known), and let us serve them,’

Deuteronomy 13:6 “If your brother, the son of your mother or your son or your daughter or your wife whom you embrace or your intimate friend in secrecy says, ‘Let us go and let us serve other gods!’ gods that you and your ancestors have not known,

Deuteronomy 13:13 worthless men have gone out from your midst and have seduced the inhabitants of their town, saying, ‘Let us go and serve other gods!’ whom you have not known,

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 28:14 And you shall not turn aside from any of the words that I am commanding you today to the right or left by going after other gods to serve them.

Deuteronomy 28:36 Yahweh will bring you and your king whom you set up over you to a nation that you or your ancestors have not known, and there you will serve other gods of wood and stone.

Deuteronomy 28:64 And Yahweh shall scatter you among all the nations from one end of the earth up to the other end of the earth, and there you shall serve other gods that you have not known nor your ancestors, gods of wood and stone.

Deuteronomy 29:18 so that there is not among you a man or a woman or a clan or a tribe whose heart turns today from being with Yahweh our God to go to serve the gods of these nations, so that there is not among you a root sprouting poison and wormwood.

Deuteronomy 30:17–18 However, if your heart turns aside and you do not listen and you are lured away and you bow down to other gods and you serve them, [18] I declare to you today that you will certainly perish; you will not extend your time on the land that you are crossing the Jordan to go there to take possession of it.

Leviticus 15:1–15 Then Yahweh spoke to Moses and to Aaron, saying, [2] “Speak to the Israelites, and you shall say to them, ‘Any man when a fluid discharge occurs from his body, his fluid discharge is unclean. [3] And this becomes his uncleanness in his fluid discharge: whether his body secretes his fluid discharge or his body blocks his fluid discharge, it is his uncleanness. [4] Any bed upon which the person who discharges lies down becomes unclean, and any object upon which he sits becomes unclean. [5] And anyone who touches his bed must wash his garments and shall wash himself with water, and he shall be unclean until evening. [6] And the person who sits on the object upon which the person who discharges has sat must wash his garments, and he shall wash himself with water, and he shall be unclean until the evening. [7] And the person who touches the body of the person who discharges must wash his garments, and he shall wash himself with water, and he shall be unclean until the evening. [8] And if the person who discharges spits on one who is clean, then that one shall wash is garments, and he shall wash himself with water, and he shall be unclean until the evening. [9] And any saddle upon which the person who discharges rides becomes unclean. [10] And any person who touches anything that happened to be under him becomes unclean until the evening, and the person who carries them must wash his garments, and he shall wash himself with water, and he shall be unclean until the evening. [11] And anyone whom the person who discharges might touch without rinsing off his hands with water shall wash his garments, and he shall wash himself with water, and he shall be unclean until the evening. [12] But a clay vessel that the person who discharges touches must be broken, and any wood object must be rinsed with water.

[13] " 'And when the person who discharges becomes clean from his body fluid discharge, he shall count for himself seven days for his cleansing; then he shall wash his garments, and he shall wash his body with fresh water, and he shall be clean. [14] Then on the eighth day he shall take for himself two turtledoves or two young doves, and he shall come before Yahweh at the tent of assembly's entrance, and he shall give them to the priest. [15] And the priest shall sacrifice one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering, and so the priest shall make atonement for him before Yahweh from his body fluid discharge.

Leviticus 18:19 " 'And you must not have sex with a woman to expose her nakedness during her menstrual uncleanness.

Leviticus 20:18 As for a man who lies with a menstruating woman, he exposes her nakedness—her source he exposes and she herself reveals her blood’s source—both of them shall be cut off from the midst of their people.

Leviticus 22:4–6 “ ‘Anyone from Aaron’s offspring, if he is afflicted with a skin disease or a fluid discharge, shall not eat in the sanctuary until he is clean; and the one who touches any unclean person or a man from whom an emission of semen goes out, 5 or a man who touches any swarmer that is unclean for him or who touches a person who is unclean for him due to whatever his uncleanness, 6 a person who touches such a thing shall be unclean until the evening, and he shall not eat from the votive offerings, except when he washes his body with water

Deuteronomy 23:10–15 “If there is among you a man that is not clean because of a seminal emission during the night, he shall go outside the camp; he shall not come within the camp. 11 And then toward the coming of the evening, he shall bathe with water, and at the going down of the sun, he may come to the midst of the camp.

12 “And there shall be for you a designated place outside the camp; and you shall go there to relieve yourself, 13 and a digging tool shall be included in addition to your other utensils for yourself; and then when you relieve yourself outside the camp you shall dig with it, and then you shall turn, and you shall cover your excrement. 14 For Yahweh your God is walking about in the midst of your camp to deliver you and to hand your enemies over to you before you, and so let your camp be holy, so that he shall not see in it anything indecent, and he shall turn away from going with you.

15 “And you shall not hand over a slave to his master who has escaped and fled to you from his master.

Leviticus 11:24–25 And by these you shall become unclean—anyone who touches their dead body shall become unclean until the evening, 25 and anyone who carries their dead body must wash his garments, and he shall be unclean until the evening.

Leviticus 11:39 “ ‘And when one of the animals dies that is for you to eat, the one who touches its dead body shall become unclean until the evening.

Leviticus 21:16–24 Then Yahweh spoke to Moses, saying, [17] “Speak to Aaron, saying, ‘A man from your offspring throughout their generations, in whom is a physical defect, shall not come near to present your God’s food. [18] Indeed, any man in whom is a physical defect shall not come near: a blind man or lame or disfigured or deformed, [19] or a man in whom is a broken foot or a broken hand, [20] or a hunchback or a dwarf, or a spot in his eye or a skin disorder or a skin eruption or a crushed testicle. [21] Any man from Aaron the priest’s offspring in whom is a physical defect shall not come near to present offerings made by fire to Yahweh; a physical defect is in him; he shall not come near to present his God’s food. [22] He may eat his God’s food, from the most holy things and from the holy things. [23] But he must not enter the curtain, and he must not come near to the altar, because a physical defect is in him, and he must not profane my sanctuary, because I am Yahweh, who consecrates them.’ ”

[24] Thus Moses spoke to Aaron and to his sons and to all the Israelites.

Numbers 19:11 “ ‘The one who touches a corpse of any person will be unclean for seven days.

Numbers 19:16 Anyone in the open field who touches one who has been slain, or a corpse, or a bone of a person, or a burial site, he will be unclean for seven days.

Numbers 19:19 The clean person will spatter the unclean on the third day and on the seventh day; and on the seventh day he will purify him, and he will wash his garments; he will bathe in the waters, and in the evening he will be clean.

Numbers 31:19 And you, camp outside the camp seven days; all who killed a person and all who touched the slain purify yourselves on the third day and on the seventh day, you and your captives.

Numbers 31:24 And you will wash your garments on the seventh day and be clean, and afterward you will come into the camp.”

Exodus 33:7–11 And Moses took the tent and pitched it outside the camp far from the camp, and he called it the tent of assembly, and all seeking

Yahweh would go out to the tent of assembly, which was outside the camp. [8] And at the going out of Moses to the tent, all the people would rise and stand, each at the opening of his tent, and gaze after Moses until his entering the tent. [9] And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses. [10] And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent. [11] And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

Exodus 27:21 In the tent of assembly outside the curtain that is before the testimony, Aaron and his sons will arrange it, from evening until morning, before Yahweh as a lasting statute throughout their generations from the Israelites.

Exodus 28:43 And they will be on Aaron and on his sons when they come to the tent of assembly or when they approach the altar to serve in the sanctuary, so that they will not bear guilt and die. It is a lasting statute for him and for his offspring after him.

Exodus 30:26 And you will anoint with it the tent of assembly and the ark of the testimony,

Exodus 33:7–11 And Moses took the tent and pitched it outside the camp far from the camp, and he called it the tent of assembly, and all seeking Yahweh would go out to the tent of assembly, which was outside the camp. [8] And at the going out of Moses to the tent, all the people would rise and stand, each at the opening of his tent, and gaze after Moses until his entering the tent. [9] And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses. [10] And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent. [11] And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

1 Samuel 2:22 Now Eli was very old, and he heard all that his sons were doing to all Israel and that they were having sexual relations with the women who were serving at the entrance of the tent of assembly.

2 Chronicles 1:3 And Solomon and the whole assembly with him went to the high place that was at Gibeon, for the tent of assembly of God that Moses the servant of Yahweh had made in the desert was there.

1 Kings 8:4 So they brought up the ark of Yahweh and the tent of assembly and all of the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up.

1 Chronicles 28:19 "All this I give you in writing; from the hand of Yahweh he instructed me about all the workings of this plan."

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Isaiah 14:29 You must not rejoice, all you Philistines, that the rod that struck you is broken, for a viper will come forth from the root of the snake, and its fruit will be a flying serpent.

Isaiah 11:10 And this shall happen on that day: the nations shall inquire of the root of Jesse, which shall be standing as a signal to the peoples, and his resting place shall be glorious.

Isaiah 11:1 And a shoot will come out from the stump of Jesse, and a branch from its roots will bear fruit.

Hosea 9:16 Ephraim is stricken, their root is dried up,

they shall not bear fruit.

Even if they give birth,

I will kill the cherished offspring of their womb.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 3:11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

Matthew 2:19 Now after Herod had died, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt,

Acts 10:3 About the ninth hour of the day, he saw clearly in a vision an angel of God coming to him and saying to him, “Cornelius.”

Acts 11:13 And he reported to us how he had seen the angel standing in his house and saying, ‘Send to Joppa and summon Simon, who is also called Peter,

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, “I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh.”

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, “I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh.”

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, “I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh.”

Genesis 18:9–14 And they said to him, “Where is Sarah your wife?” And he said, “Here, in the tent.” [10] And he said, “I will certainly return to you in the spring, and look, Sarah your wife will have a son.” Now Sarah was listening at the doorway of the tent, and which was behind him. [11] Now Abraham and Sarah were old, advanced in age; the way of women had ceased to be for Sarah. [12] So Sarah laughed to herself saying, “After I am worn out and my husband is old, shall this pleasure be to me?” [13] Then Yahweh said to Abraham, “What is this that Sarah laughed, saying, ‘Is it indeed true that I will bear a child, now that I have grown old?’ [14] Is anything too difficult for Yahweh? At the appointed time I will return to you in the spring and Sarah shall have a son.”

Genesis 21:1–2 And Yahweh visited Sarah as he had said. And Yahweh did to Sarah as he had promised. [2] And she conceived, and Sarah bore to Abraham a son in his old age at the appointed time that God had told him.

Genesis 25:21 And Isaac prayed to Yahweh on behalf of his wife, for she was barren. And Yahweh responded to his prayer, and Rebekah his wife conceived.

Genesis 29:32–35 Then Leah conceived and gave birth to a son, and she called his name Reuben, for she said, “Because Yahweh has noticed my misery. Surely now my husband will love me.” [33] And she conceived again and gave birth to a son. And she said, “It is because Yahweh has heard that I am unloved that he gave me this son also.” And she called his name

Simeon. [34] And she conceived again and gave birth to a son. Then she said, “Now this time my husband will be joined to me, for I have borne him three sons.” Therefore, she called his name Levi. [35] And she conceived again and gave birth to a son. And she said, “This time I will praise Yahweh.” Therefore she called his name Judah. And she ceased bearing children.

Genesis 30:16–24 When Jacob came in from the field in the evening, Leah went out to meet him. And she said, “Come in to me, for I have hired you with my son’s mandrakes.” And he slept with her that night. [17] And God listened to Leah and she conceived and gave birth to a fifth son for Jacob. [18] Then Leah said, “God has given me my wage since I gave my slave girl to my husband.” And she called his name Issachar. [19] And Leah conceived again and gave birth to a sixth son for Jacob. [20] And Leah said, “God has endowed me with a good gift. This time my husband will acknowledge me, because I bore him six sons.” And she called his name Zebulun. [21] And afterward she gave birth to a daughter. And she called her name Dinah. [22] Then God remembered Rachel and listened to her, and God opened her womb. [23] And she conceived and gave birth to a son. And she said, “God has taken away my disgrace.” [24] And she called his name Joseph, saying, “Yahweh has added to me another son.”

1 Samuel 1:19–20 Then they rose early in the morning and worshiped before Yahweh and returned to their house at Ramah. Then Elkanah had sexual relations with Hannah his wife, and Yahweh remembered her. [20] In due time, Hannah conceived and gave birth to a son. She called his name Samuel, for she said, “I requested him from Yahweh.”

Psalm 17:14 from men by your hand, O Yahweh, from men of this world.

Their share is in this life, and you fill their stomach with your treasure.

They are satisfied with children.

They bequeath their excess to their children.

Psalm 127:3 Look, children are the heritage of Yahweh; the fruit of the womb is a reward.

Isaiah 44:2 Thus says Yahweh, who made you, and who formed you in the womb and will help you: you must not fear, my servant Jacob,

and Jeshurun whom I have chosen.

Isaiah 44:24 Thus says Yahweh, your redeemer, and he who formed you in the womb:

"I am Yahweh, who made everything, who stretched out the heavens alone, who spread out the earth—who was with me?—

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, "I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh."

2 Peter 2:4–10 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment, [5] and did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, a proclaimer of righteousness, and seven others when he brought a flood on the world of the ungodly, [6] and condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to destruction, reducing them to ashes, having appointed them as an example for those who are going to be ungodly, [7] and rescued righteous Lot, worn down by the way of life of lawless persons in licentiousness [8] (for that righteous man, as he lived among them day after day, was tormenting his righteous soul by the lawless deeds he was seeing and hearing), [9] then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials and to reserve the unrighteous to be punished at the day of judgment, [10] and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings,

Jude 6–7 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day, [7] as Sodom and Gomorrah and the towns around them indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural desire in the same way as these, are exhibited as an example by undergoing the punishment of eternal fire.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Genesis 13:9 Is not the whole land before you? Separate yourself from me. If you want what is on the left, then I will go right; if you want what is on the right, I will go left."

Genesis 41:57 And every land came to Egypt to Joseph to buy grain, for the famine was severe in every land.

Leviticus 25:9 And you shall cause a loud horn blast to be heard on the seventh month on the tenth of the month; on the Day of Atonement you shall cause a ram's horn to be heard in all your land.

Leviticus 25:24 And in all your property's land you must provide redemption for the land.

Judges 6:37 I will place a fleece of wool on the threshing floor. If there is dew on the fleece only, and all of the ground is dry, I will know that you will deliver Israel by my hand, just as you have said."

1 Samuel 13:3 Jonathan defeated the garrison of the Philistines that was at Geba, and the Philistines heard about it. Then Saul blew the trumpet throughout all the land, saying, "Let the Hebrews hear!"

2 Samuel 24:8 They went about through all the land, and they came to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days.

Genesis 9:19 These three were the sons of Noah, and from these the whole earth was populated.

Genesis 10:1 These are the generations of the sons of Noah—Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Children were born to them after the flood.

Genesis 7:21 And every living thing that moved on the earth perished—the birds, and the domesticated animals, and the wild animals, and everything that swarmed on the earth, and all humankind.

Genesis 7:21 And every living thing that moved on the earth perished—the birds, and the domesticated animals, and the wild animals, and everything that swarmed on the earth, and all humankind.

Jeremiah 32:20 who accomplished signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, up to this day, and in Israel, and among humankind, and you have made for yourself a name, as it is this day.

Psalm 64:9 And then all men will fear, and will declare the working of God, and will understand his doing.

Psalm 104:9 You set a boundary that they may not cross over, so that they would not return to cover the earth.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 30:16 When Jacob came in from the field in the evening, Leah went out to meet him. And she said, “Come in to me, for I have hired you with my son’s mandrakes.” And he slept with her that night.

Genesis 38:16 And he turned aside to her at the roadside and said, “Please come, let me come in to you,” for he did not know that she was his daughter-in-law. And she said, “What will you give to me that you may come in to me?”

Genesis 6:4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 2:23 And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

Genesis 14:13 Then one who escaped came and told Abram the Hebrew. And he was living at the oaks of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol and brother of Aner. They were allies with Abram.

Genesis 12:6 And Abram traveled through the land up to the place of Shechem, to the Oak of Moreh. Now the Canaanites were in the land at that time.

Genesis 28:1 Then Isaac called Jacob and blessed him. And he instructed him and said to him, “You must not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan.

Genesis 28:6 Now Esau saw that Isaac had blessed Jacob and sent him away to Paddan-Aram, to take for himself a wife from there, and he blessed him and instructed him, saying, “You must not take a wife from the daughters of Canaan,”

Genesis 15:16 And the fourth generation shall return here, for the guilt of the Amorites is not yet complete.”

Genesis 15:19–21 the land of the Kenites, the Kenizzites, the Kadmonites, [20] the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Rephaim, [21] the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Girgashites, and the Jebusites.”

Amos 2:9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, who was as tall as cedars and was as strong as the oaks. I destroyed his fruit above and his roots beneath.

Genesis 14:13 Then one who escaped came and told Abram the Hebrew. And he was living at the oaks of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol and brother of Aner. They were allies with Abram.

Genesis 10:16 and the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Joshua 13:11–12 and Gilead, and the border of the Geshurite and the Maacathites, all of Mount Hermon, and Bashan up to Salecah; [12] all the kingdom of Og in Bashan, who reigned in Ashtaroth and Edrei—he was left over from the survivors of the Rephaim; these Moses had defeated and driven out.

Joshua 13:30–31 Their territory was from Mahanaim, all Bashan, all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, and all the settlements of Jair, which are in Bashan, sixty cities, [31] and half of Gilead, with Ashtaroth, Edrei, and the cities of the kingdom of Og in Bashan; these were allotted to the children of Makir son of Manasseh, for half of the children of Makir according to their families.

Matthew 16:18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 32:27 And they do not lie with warriors fallen from long ago, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, and they placed their sword under their heads, and their shields were on their bones, for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living.

Psalm 88:10–12 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah 11 Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

12 Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Psalm 88:11–13 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah 11 Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

12 Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Job 26:1–6 Then Job answered and said, 2 “How you have helped one who has no power!

How you have assisted the arm that has no strength!

3 How you have advised one who has no wisdom!

And what sound wisdom you have made known in abundance!

4 With whose help have you uttered words, and whose breath has come forth from you?

5 “The spirits of the dead tremble below the waters and their inhabitants.

6 Sheol is naked before him, and there is no covering for Abaddon.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit

shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 1:26–27 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.” [27] So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Joshua 11:14 And all the spoil and livestock of these cities the Israelites took as booty; they struck the people with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them—they left behind no one who breathed.

Deuteronomy 2:10 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites.

Deuteronomy 2:20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, Deuteronomy 3:1–3 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei. [2] And Yahweh said to me, ‘You should not fear him, for I have given him and all of his army and his land into your hand. And so you will do to him as you did to Sihon the king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon.’ [3] And so Yahweh our God also gave Og the king of Bashan, and all of his army into our hand, and we struck him down until not a survivor remained to him.

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God

saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Chronicles 7:20 then I will uproot them from upon my land that I have given to them, and this house that I have consecrated for my name I will send away from before my face, and I will make it a proverb and a taunt among all the nations.

Isaiah 19:25 whom Yahweh of hosts blessed, saying, “May Egypt my people be blessed, and Assyria, the work of my hands, and my inheritance, Israel.”

Jeremiah 2:7 And I brought you to the land of the orchard, to eat its fruit, and its good things.

But you entered and defiled my land, and my inheritance you made a detestable thing.

Jeremiah 16:18 And I will first doubly repay their iniquity and their sin because of their profaning my land with the dead bodies of their abhorrences, and with their abominations they have filled up my inheritance.’ ”

Ezekiel 38:16 and you will advance against my people Israel like a cloud covering the land; it will be in the last days, and I will bring you against my land, so that the nations know me, when I show myself holy through you before their eyes, O Gog!” ’

Joel 1:6 Because a nation has invaded my land, strong and beyond counting.

Its teeth are the teeth of a lion, and its fangs are those of a lioness.

Joel 3:2 I will gather all the nations, and I will bring them down to the valley of Jehoshaphat, and I will argue a case against them there concerning my people and my inheritance Israel whom they have scattered among the nations, and my land that they have divided.

Numbers 21:2–3 Israel made a vow to Yahweh, and they said, “If you will surely give this people into our hand, then we will destroy their cities.” 3 Yahweh heard the voice of Israel; he gave to them the Canaanites, and they destroyed them and their cities. They called the name of the place Hormah.

Exodus 3:8 And I have come down to deliver them from the hand of the Egyptians and to bring them up from this land to a good and wide land, to a land flowing with milk and honey, to the place of the Canaanites and the Hittites and the Amorites and the Perizzites and the Hivites and the Jebusites.

Exodus 23:23 When my angel goes before you and brings you to the Amorites and the Hittites and the Perizzites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, I will wipe them out.

Deuteronomy 7:1 “When Yahweh your God brings you into the land that you are about to enter into it to take possession of it, and he drives out many nations before you, the Hittites and the Girgashites and the Amorites and the Canaanites and the Hivites and the Jebusites, seven nations mightier and more numerous than you,

Deuteronomy 20:17 Rather, you shall utterly destroy them, the Hittites and the Amorites, the Canaanites and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, just as Yahweh your God has commanded you,

Joshua 12:8 in the hill country, the Shephelah, the Arabah, on the slopes, in the wilderness, and in the Negev; the Hittites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites:

Numbers 13:6 from the tribe of Judah, Caleb son of Jephunneh;

Numbers 13:30 And Caleb silenced the people before Moses and said, “Surely, let us go up and let us take possession of it because surely we will be able to prevail over it.”

Numbers 14:30 You yourselves will not come into the land that I swore by oath to make you to dwell in it, but Caleb son of Jephunneh and Joshua son of Nun.

Numbers 13:22 They went up through the Negev and came to Hebron, where Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai the descendants of the Anakites were. (Hebron was built seven years before Zoan in Egypt.)

Joshua 15:14 Caleb drove out from there three of Anak’s sons, Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, the descendants of Anak.

Judges 1:10 And Judah went against the Canaanites living in Hebron (the former name of Hebron was Kiriath Arba). And they defeated Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai.

Joshua 15:14 Caleb drove out from there three of Anak’s sons, Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, the descendants of Anak.

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, 2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, 2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:1 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls,

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. [22] None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Deuteronomy 13:12–18 “If you hear in one of your towns which Yahweh your God is giving to you to live in, someone saying that [13] worthless men have gone out from your midst and have seduced the inhabitants of their town, saying, ‘Let us go and serve other gods!’ whom you have not known, [14] then you shall inquire and examine and interrogate thoroughly, and, look! It is true; the thing has actually been done, this detestable thing in your midst, [15] then you shall certainly strike down the inhabitants of that town with the edge of the sword; you shall destroy it and everything in it, its domestic animals with the edge of the sword. [16] And then you shall gather all of its booty into the middle of its public square, and you shall burn the town and all of its war-booty totally for Yahweh your God, and it shall be a pile of rubble forever; it shall not be built again. [17] And let not something cling to your hand from the things devoted to destruction, so that Yahweh may turn back from his burning anger, and he may show compassion to you and he may continue to show compassion and so multiply you just as he swore to your ancestors, [18] if you listen to the voice of Yahweh your God, to keep all of his commandments that I am commanding to you today so as to do the right thing in the eyes of Yahweh your God.”

Deuteronomy 20:10–18 “When you approach a city to fight against it, you must offer it peace. [11] And then if they accept your terms of peace and they surrender to you, and then all the people inhabiting it shall be forced labor for you, and they shall serve you. [12] But if they do not accept your terms of peace and they want to make war with you, then you shall lay siege against it. [13] And Yahweh your God will give it into your hand, and you shall kill all its males with the edge of the sword. [14] Only the women and the little children and the domestic animals and all that shall be in the city, all of its spoil you may loot for yourselves, and you may enjoy the spoil of your enemies that Yahweh you God has given to you. [15] Thus you shall do to all the far cities from you, which are not from the cities of these nations located nearby.

[16] But from the cities of these peoples that Yahweh your God is giving to you as an inheritance, you shall not let anything live that breathes. [17] Rather, you shall utterly destroy them, the Hittites and the Amorites, the Canaanites and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, just as Yahweh your God has commanded you, [18] so that they may not teach you to do like all their detestable things that they do for their gods and thereby you sin against Yahweh your God.

Numbers 13:28–29 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large; moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. [29] The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan."

Numbers 11:28–29 And Joshua son of Nun, the assistant of Moses from time of his youth, answered, "Moses, my lord, stop them." [29] But Moses said to him, "Are you jealous for my sake? Would that he give all Yahweh's people prophets, that Yahweh put his spirit on them!"

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 "Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, [2] a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, 'Who could stand before the sons of Anak?'

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, 'Who could stand before the sons of Anak?'

Deuteronomy 9:1 "Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls,

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 "Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, [2] a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:1 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls,

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 2:12 The Horites previously lived in Seir, but the descendants of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from among themselves, as Israel did with respect to the land of their possession that Yahweh gave to them.)

Deuteronomy 2:20–23 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, [21] a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them, [22] just as he did for the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed the Horites from before them and dispossessed them, and then they settled in their place up to this day. [23] And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

Deuteronomy 9:1–3 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, [2] a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’ [3] You should know today that Yahweh your God is the one crossing ahead of you as a devouring fire; he will destroy them, and he will subdue them before you; so you will dispossess them, and you will destroy them quickly, just as Yahweh promised you.

Amos 2:9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, who was as tall as cedars and was as strong as the oaks. I destroyed his fruit above and his roots beneath.

Joshua 13:2–3 This is the remaining land: all the regions of the Philistines, and all of the Geshurites, 3 from the Shihor, which is east of Egypt, up to the border of Ekron to the north, which is reckoned as Canaanite; there are five Philistine rulers: the Gazites, Ashdodites, Ashkelonites, Gittites, Ekronites, and the Avvim.

1 Samuel 17:4 Then a champion went out from the camps of the Philistines, whose name was Goliath from Gath. His height was six cubits and a span.

1 Samuel 17:23 While he was speaking to them, the champion, whose name was Goliath the Philistine from Gath, was coming up from the caves of the Philistines. He spoke just as he had previously, and David heard his words.

2 Samuel 21:15–22 There was war again for the Philistines with Israel, and David and his servants with him went down, and they fought the Philistines, and David grew weary. 16 Now Yishbi in Nob, who was among the descendents of Raphah (now the weight of his spearhead was three hundredweight of bronze, and he was newly armed), said that he would kill David. 17 But Abishai the son of Zeruiah helped him, and he attacked the Philistine and killed him. Then the men of David swore to him, saying, “You shall not go out with us any longer to the battle, so that you do not quench the lamp of Israel.”

18 It happened afterward that there was again battle at Gob with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph who was among the descendants of the Raphah.

19 There was again a battle with the Philistines at Gob. And Elhanan the son of Jaare-Oregim, the Bethlehemite, killed Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like the beam of a weaver.

20 Once again there was battle at Gath, and there was a man of great size. The fingers of his hand and the toes of his feet were six and six, twenty-four in number. He was also born to the Raphah. [21] He taunted Israel but Jonathan the son of Shimei, the brother of David, killed him. [22] These four were born for the Raphah in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

1 Chronicles 20:4–8 And after this there arose a war in Gezer with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite struck down Sippai, one of the descendants of the Rephaim. And they were subdued. [5] And again there was war with the Philistines. And Elhanan son of Jair struck down Lahmi, the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. [6] And again there was war in Gath. And there was a very tall man there, and he had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all. He himself was also a descendant of the Rephaim. [7] And he taunted Israel, but Jehonathan son of Shimea, brother of David, struck him down. [8] These were born to the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

Jeremiah 47:4 Because of the day that is coming to destroy all the Philistines, to cut off from Tyre and from Sidon every survivor who could help, for Yahweh is destroying the Philistines, the remnant of the coastland of Caphtor.

Amos 9:7 "Are you not like the Cushites to me, O people of Israel?" declares Yahweh. "Did I not bring up Israel from the land of Egypt and the Philistines from Caphtor and the Arameans from Kir?

Deuteronomy 2:20–23 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, [21] a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them, [22] just as he did for the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed the Horites from before them and dispossessed them, and then they settled in their place up to this day. [23] And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

2 Samuel 21:16 Now Yishbi in Nob, who was among the descendents of Raphah (now the weight of his spearhead was three hundredweight of bronze, and he was newly armed), said that he would kill David.

2 Samuel 21:18 It happened afterward that there was again battle at Gob with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph who was among the descendants of the Raphah.

2 Samuel 21:20 Once again there was battle at Gath, and there was a man of great size. The fingers of his hand and the toes of his feet were six and six, twenty-four in number. He was also born to the Raphah.

2 Samuel 21:22 These four were born for the Raphah in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

1 Chronicles 20:4 And after this there arose a war in Gezer with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite struck down Sippai, one of the descendants of the Rephaim. And they were subdued.

1 Chronicles 20:6 And again there was war in Gath. And there was a very tall man there, and he had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all. He himself was also a descendant of the Rephaim.

1 Chronicles 20:8 These were born to the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

Judges 3:3 the five rulers of the Philistines, all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hivites living on Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal Hermon up to Lebo-Hamath.

Judges 16:5 And the rulers of the Philistines came up to her and said, “Entice him and find out what makes his strength so great, and how we can overpower him, so that we may bind him up in order to subdue him; each of us will give you eleven hundred pieces of silver.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Exodus 23:28 And I will send the hornet before you, and it will drive out the Hivites, the Canaanites, and the Hittites from before you.

Exodus 23:29 I will not drive them out from before you in one year, lest the land become a desolation and the wild animals multiply against you.

Exodus 23:30 Little by little I will drive them out from before you until you are fruitful and take possession of the land.

Exodus 23:31 " 'And I will set your boundary from the Red Sea and up to the sea of the Philistines and from the desert up to the river, because I will give the inhabitants of the land into your hand, and you will drive them out from before you.

Exodus 33:2 And I will send an angel before you, and I will drive out the Canaanites, the Amorites, and the Hittites and the Perizzites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites,

Deuteronomy 33:27 The God of ancient time is a hiding place, and underneath are the arms of eternity, and he drove out from before you your enemy, and he said, 'Destroy them!'

Joshua 24:12 I sent before you the hornet and they drove out before you two kings of the Amorites; but not by your sword or bow.

Joshua 24:18 And Yahweh drove out all the people before us, the Amorites who live in the land. We will serve Yahweh, for he is our God."

Exodus 34:24 because I will evict nations before you, and I will enlarge your territory, and no one will covet your land when you go up to appear before Yahweh your God three times in the year.

Numbers 21:32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

Numbers 33:52 you will drive out the inhabitants of the land from your presence, and you will destroy all their idols and all the images of their molten idols, and you will demolish all their high places;

Numbers 33:53 you will dispossess the land and live in it because I have given the land to you to possess it.

Numbers 33:55 But if you do not drive out the inhabitants of the land from your presence, then it will happen that whomever you let remain of them will be like irritants in your eyes and like thorns in your sides; they will be your enemies in the land in which you live.

Joshua 3:10 Joshua said, “By this you will know that the living God is in your midst, and he will certainly drive out the Canaanites from before you, and the Hittites, Hivites, the Perizzites, the Girgashites, the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

Joshua 12:1 These are the kings of the land whom the Israelites defeated, and of whose land they took possession beyond the Jordan to the east, from the wadi of Arnon up to Mount Hermon, and all the Arabah to the east:

Joshua 13:6 all the inhabitants of the hill country, from the Lebanon up to Misrephoth Maim, and all the Sidonians. I will drive them out from before the Israelites; only allocate it to Israel as an inheritance just as I have commanded you.

Joshua 17:12 But the descendants of Manasseh were not able to take possession of these towns; the Canaanites were determined to live in this land.

Joshua 17:13 And it happened, when the Israelites grew strong, they put the Canaanites to forced labor but never drove them out completely.

Joshua 23:5 And Yahweh your God will push them back before you and drive them out of your sight, and you will possess their land, just as Yahweh your God promised to you.

Joshua 23:9 Yahweh has driven out before you great and strong nations; and as for you, nobody has withstood you to this day.

Deuteronomy 3:11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

1 Samuel 26:17–19 Then Saul recognized David's voice and said, "Is this your voice, my son David?" And David said, "It is my voice, my lord the king." [18] Then he said, "Why is my lord pursuing after his servant? For what have I done? And what evil is in my hand? [19] And so then, please let my lord the king listen to the words of his servant: If Yahweh has incited you against me, may he delight in an offering; but if it is mortals, may they be accursed before Yahweh, for they have driven me away today from sharing in the inheritance of Yahweh, saying, 'Go, serve other gods!'

2 Kings 5:15–19 When he returned to the man of God, he and all of his army, he came and stood before him and said, "Please now, I know that there is no God in all of the world except in Israel. So then, please take a gift from your servant." [16] And he said, "As Yahweh lives, before whom I stand, I surely will not take it." Still he urged him to take it, but he refused. [17] Then Naaman said, "If not, then please let a load of soil on a pair of mules be given to your servants, for your servant will never again bring a burnt offering and sacrifice to other gods, but only to Yahweh. [18] As far as this matter, may Yahweh pardon your servant when my master goes into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and he is leaning himself on my arm, that I also bow down in the house of Rimmon: when I bow down in the house of Rimmon, may Yahweh please pardon your servant in this matter." [19] He said to him, "Go in peace," so he went from him a short distance.

Job 9:8 He is the one who alone stretches out the heavens and who tramples on the waves of the sea.

Psalm 104:2 you who cover yourself with light as with a garment, who stretch out the heavens like a tent curtain,

2 Samuel 6:1–2 David again gathered all the chosen men in Israel, thirty thousand. [2] David got up and went and all the people who were with him, from Baale-judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts, upon which the cherubim sit.

1 Samuel 4:4 So the army sent to Shiloh and brought from there the ark of the covenant of Yahweh of hosts who sits between the cherubim. And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were there with the ark of the covenant of God.

Jeremiah 7:12 “For go now to my place that was in Shiloh, where I caused my name to dwell in the beginning, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel.

2 Samuel 7:2 And the king said to Nathan the prophet, “Look, please, I am living in a house of cedar, but the ark of God is staying in the middle of the tent.”

Judges 4:5 And she used to sit under the palm tree of Deborah between Ramah and Bethel in the hill country of Ephraim; and the Israelites went up to her for judgment.

2 Samuel 15:24–25 Suddenly Zadok was there, and all of the Levites with him, carrying the ark of the covenant of God. They set the ark of God down, and Abiathar offered sacrifices until all the people passed out of the city. 25 The king said to Zadok, “Let the ark of God return to the city. If I find favor in the eyes of Yawheh, he will let me return and let me see him in his dwelling place.

1 Kings 3:4 So the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice, for the great high place was there. Solomon used to offer a thousand burnt offerings on that altar.

2 Chronicles 1:3 And Solomon and the whole assembly with him went to the high place that was at Gibeon, for the tent of assembly of God that Moses the servant of Yahweh had made in the desert was there.

1 Kings 6:2 Now the house that King Solomon built for Yahweh was sixty cubits in its length and twenty cubits in its width and thirty cubits in its height.

1 Kings 8:4–8 So they brought up the ark of Yahweh and the tent of assembly and all of the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up. 5 King Solomon and all the assembly of Israel who were assembling with him in the presence of the ark were sacrificing sheep and oxen that could not be counted nor numbered because of abundance. 6 The priests brought the ark of the covenant of Yahweh to its place in the inner sanctuary of the house, to the most holy place, under the wings of the cherubim, 7 for the cherubim were spreading their wings over the place of the ark. The cherubim overshadowed the ark and its poles from above. 8 The poles were long, and the ends of the poles could be seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary, but they could not be seen from the outside, and they are there until this day.

2 Chronicles 24:6 So the king called Jehoiada the chief, and he said to him, “Why have you not required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax of Moses, the servant of Yahweh, and of the assembly of Israel for the tent of the testimony?”

2 Chronicles 29:3–7 In the first year of his kingship, in the first month, he opened the doors of the house of Yahweh and strengthened them. 4 And he brought in the priests and the Levites, and he gathered them into the eastern square. 5 And he said to them, “Hear me, O Levites! Sanctify yourselves now, and sanctify the house of Yahweh, the God of your ancestors, and bring out the defilement from the sanctuary. 6 For our ancestors acted unfaithfully and did evil in the sight of Yahweh our God, and have forsaken him and turned away their faces from the dwelling place of Yahweh. They have turned their backs on it. 7 They also shut the doors of the portico and extinguished the lamps. And they did not burn incense or offer burnt offerings in the sanctuary to the God of Israel.

2 Samuel 23:13 Then three of the thirty leaders went down and came to David at the time of the harvest to the cave of Adullam, while a group of the Philistines were camping in the valley of the Rephaim.

2 Samuel 5:18 Now the Philistines had come, and they spread out in the Valley of Rephaim.

1 Chronicles 11:15 And three of the thirty chiefs went down toward the rock to David at the cave of Adullam when the army of the Philistines was encamped in the valley of Rephaim.

1 Chronicles 14:9 Now the Philistines came and carried out a raid in the Valley of Rephaim.

2 Samuel 23:13–17 Then three of the thirty leaders went down and came to David at the time of the harvest to the cave of Adullam, while a group of the Philistines were camping in the valley of the Rephaim. [14] Now at that time, David was in the stronghold, and a garrison of the Philistines was in Bethlehem at that same time. [15] David said longingly, “Oh that someone would bring me a drink of water from the well of Bethlehem that is at the gate.” [16] So three of the mighty warriors broke into the camp of the Philistines, and they drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was at the gate, and they carried it and brought it to David. But he was not willing to drink it, but poured it out to Yahweh. [17] He said, “Far be it from me before Yahweh that I should do this. Is this not the blood of the men who went at the risk of their lives?” So he was not willing to drink it. These things the three mighty warriors did.

1 Chronicles 11:15–19 And three of the thirty chiefs went down toward the rock to David at the cave of Adullam when the army of the Philistines was encamped in the valley of Rephaim. [16] And David was then in the stronghold, and the garrison of the Philistines was then in Bethlehem. [17] And David had a craving, and he said, “Who could give me a drink of water from the well of Bethlehem that is by the gate!” [18] Then the three broke through into the camp of the Philistines and drew water from the well of Bethlehem that was by the gate and brought it and came to David. But David would not drink it and poured it out before Yahweh. [19] And he said, “Far be it from me that I would do this before my God. Shall I drink the lifeblood of these men? For at the risk of their lives they brought it.” And he was not willing to drink it. These things the three mighty men did.

2 Samuel 5:17–25 When the Philistines heard that they had anointed David as king over Israel, all the Philistines went up to seek David, but David heard and went down to the stronghold. [18] Now the Philistines had come, and they spread out in the Valley of Rephaim. [19] And David inquired of Yahweh, saying, “Shall I go up to the Philistines? Will you give them into my hands?” Yahweh said to David, “Go up, for I will certainly give the Philistines into your hand.” [20] So David came to Baal Perazim and defeated them there; and David said, “Yahweh has burst through my enemies before me like the bursting of water.” Therefore he called the name of that place Baal Perazim. [21] They had left their idols there, so David and his men carried them away.

[22] Once again the Philistines came up and spread out in the Valley of Rephaim. [23] So David inquired of Yahweh, but he said, “You shall not go up. Rather, go around to their rear and come to them from opposite the balsam trees. [24] And it shall be that when you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then pay attention, for then Yahweh has gone out before you to strike down the army of the Philistines.” [25] So David did thus, just as Yahweh had commanded him, and he struck down the Philistines from Geba all the way to Gezer.

1 Chronicles 14:8–17 When the Philistines heard that David had been anointed as king over all Israel, all the Philistines went up to search for David. But David heard and went out from before them. [9] Now the Philistines came and carried out a raid in the Valley of Rephaim. [10] Then David inquired of God, saying, “Shall I go up against the Philistines? Will you put them into my hand?” And Yahweh said to him, “Go up. I will put them into your hand.” [11] And he went up to Baal-Perazim, and David struck them there. And David said, “God has burst out against my enemies by my hand like waters burst out.” Therefore they will call the name of this place Baal-Perazim. [12] And they abandoned their gods there. And David commanded, and they were burnt with fire. [13] Then the Philistines carried out another raid in the valley. [14] Then David inquired again of God. And God said to him, “You shall not go up after them. Go around from before them and come against them the opposite way of the balsam trees. [15] And it shall be that when you hear the sound of marching in the tops of the balsam trees, then go out into battle, for God goes out before you to strike the camp of the Philistines.” [16] And David did as God commanded him, and they struck the camp of the Philistines from Gibeon to Gezer. [17] And the fame of David went out through all the lands. And Yahweh put the fear of him upon all the nations.

Joshua 18:16 the border goes down to the foot of the mountain, which is opposite the Valley of Ben Hinnom, which is in the valley of Rephaim to the north; then it does down the valley of Hinnom to the slope of the Jebusites to the south, and then it goes down to En Rogel.

Luke 11:49–51 For this reason also the wisdom of God said, ‘I will send to them prophets and apostles, and some of them they will kill and persecute,’ [50] so that the blood of all the prophets that has been shed from the foundation of the world may be required of this generation, [51] from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who perished between the altar and the temple building. Yes, I tell you, it will be required of this generation!

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Leviticus 26:12 And I will walk about in your midst, and I shall be your God, and you shall be my people.

Deuteronomy 23:14 For Yahweh your God is walking about in the midst of your camp to deliver you and to hand your enemies over to you before you, and so let your camp be holy, so that he shall not see in it anything indecent, and he shall turn away from going with you.

Deuteronomy 23:15 For Yahweh your God is walking about in the midst of your camp to deliver you and to hand your enemies over to you before you, and so let your camp be holy, so that he shall not see in it anything indecent, and he shall turn away from going with you.

2 Samuel 7:6–7 For I have not dwelt in a house from the day I brought up the Israelites from Egypt until this day; rather, I was going about in a tent and in a tabernacle. [7] In all of my going about among all the Israelites, did I speak a word with one of the tribes of Israel whom I commanded to shepherd my people Israel, saying, ‘Why did you not build me a cedar house?’ ” ’

Genesis 37:12–17 Now his brothers went to pasture the flock of their father in Shechem. 13 And Israel said to Joseph, “Are not your brothers pasturing in Shechem? Come, let me send you to them.” And he said to him, “Here I am.” 14 Then he said to him, “Go now, see if it goes well for your brothers and for the flock, then return word to me.” And he sent him from the valley of Hebron, and he arrived at Shechem. 15 And a man found him, and behold, he was wandering about in a field. And the man asked him, “What do you seek?” 16 And he said, “I am seeking my brothers. Tell me, please, where they are pasturing.” 17 And the man said, “They have moved on from here, for I heard them saying, ‘Let us go to Dothan.’ ” Then Joseph went after his brothers and found them in Dothan.

Genesis 37:15 And a man found him, and behold, he was wandering about in a field. And the man asked him, “What do you seek?”

1 Chronicles 10:12 every strong man arose and took the dead body of Saul and the dead bodies of his sons and brought them to Jabesh. And they buried their bones under the oak in Jabesh and fasted seven days.

Genesis 35:8 And Deborah, the nurse of Rebekah, died. And she was buried below Bethel, under the oak. And its name was called Allon-Bacuth.

Psalm 2:2 The kings of the earth establish themselves, and the rulers conspire together

against Yahweh and his anointed:

Daniel 9:25–26 And you must know and you must understand that from the time of the going out of the word to restore and build Jerusalem until an anointed one—a leader—will be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks; it will be restored and will be built with streets and a moat, but in a time of oppression.

26 “And after the sixty and two weeks an anointed one shall be cut off, and he shall have nothing, and the people of the coming leader will destroy the city and the sanctuary, and its end will be with the flood and on to the end there shall be war; these desolations are determined.

Isaiah 45:1 Thus says Yahweh to his anointed one, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have grasped to subjugate nations before him, and I uncover the loins of kings to open doors before him, and the gates shall not be shut:

Romans 16:20 And in a short time the God of peace will crush Satan under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

1 Corinthians 2:8 which none of the rulers of this age knew. For if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Mark 5:7 And crying out with a loud voice he said, “What have I to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I implore you by God, do not torment me!”

Luke 8:28 And when he saw Jesus, he cried out, fell down before him, and said with a loud voice, “What do I have to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me!”

Luke 3:23–37 And Jesus, when he began his ministry, was himself about thirty years old, being the son (as it was believed) of Joseph the son of Eli, [24] the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, the son of Melchi, the son of Jannai, the son of Joseph, [25] the son of Mattathias, the son of Amos, the son of Nahum, the son of Esli, the son of Naggai, [26] the son of Maath, the son of Mattathias, the son of Semein, the son of Josech, the son of Joda, [27] the son of Joanan, the son of Rhesa, the son of Zerubbabel, the son of Shealtiel, the son of Neri, [28] the son of Melchi, the son of Addi, the son of Cosam, the son of Elmadam, the son of Er, [29] the son of Joshua, the son of Eliezer, the son of Jorim, the son of Matthat, the son of Levi, [30] the son of Simeon, the son of Judah, the son of Joseph, the son of Jonam, the son of Eliakim, [31] the son of Melea, the son of Menna, the son of Mattatha, the son of Nathan, the son of David, [32] the son of Jesse, the son of Obed, the son of Boaz, the son of Sala, the son of Nahshon, [33] the son of Amminadab, the son of Admin, the son of Arni, the son of Hezron, the son of Perez, the son of Judah, [34] the son of Jacob, the son of Isaac, the son of Abraham, the son of Terah, the son of Nahor, [35] the son of Serug, the son of Reu, the son of Peleg, the son of Eber, the son of Shelah, [36] the son of Cainan, the son of Arphaxad, the son of Shem, the son of Noah, the son of Lamech, [37] the son of Methuselah, the son of Enoch, the son of Jared, the son of Mahalaleel, the son of Cainan, Hosea 6:7 But like Adam, they transgressed the covenant; there they dealt faithlessly with me.

Exodus 34:29–30 And when Moses came down from Mount Sinai, the two tablets of the testimony were in the hand of Moses at his coming down from the mountain; and Moses did not know that the skin of his face shone because of his speaking with him. 30 And Aaron and all the Israelites saw Moses, and, to their amazement, the skin of his face shone, and they were afraid of coming near to him.

Daniel 2:44 And in the day of those kings, the God of heaven will set up a kingdom that will never be destroyed, and the kingdom will not be left for another nation, and it will bring an end to all these kingdoms, but it will stand forever.

Matthew 12:28 But if I expel demons by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God has come upon you!

Mark 1:15 and saying, “The time is fulfilled and the kingdom of God has come near. Repent and believe in the gospel!”

Luke 8:1 And it happened that afterward also he was going about from one town and village to another preaching and proclaiming the good news concerning the kingdom of God, and the twelve were with him,

Luke 8:10 And he said, “To you it has been given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God, but to the rest they are in parables, so that ‘Seeing they may not see,

and hearing they may not understand.’

Luke 16:16 “The law and the prophets were until John; from that time on the kingdom of God has been proclaimed, and everyone is urgently pressed into it.

Luke 21:31 So also you, when you see these things happening, know that the kingdom of God is near.

Romans 14:17 For the kingdom of God is not eating and drinking, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.

Colossians 1:13 who has rescued us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of the Son he loves,

1 Corinthians 15:24 then the end, when he hands over the kingdom to the God and Father, when he has abolished all rule and all authority and power.

1 Corinthians 15:50 But I say this, brothers, that flesh and blood is not able to inherit the kingdom of God, nor can corruption inherit incorruptibility.

2 Timothy 4:1 I solemnly charge you before God and Christ Jesus, who is going to judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingdom,

2 Timothy 4:18 The Lord will rescue me from every evil deed, and will save me for his heavenly kingdom, to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

Leviticus 11:44–45 because I am Yahweh your God, and you must keep yourselves sanctified, so that you shall be holy, because I am holy. And you must not make yourselves unclean with any swarmer that moves along on the land, [45] because I am Yahweh, who brought you up from the land of Egypt to be for you as God. Thus you shall be holy, because I am holy.

Leviticus 19:2 “Speak to all the community of the Israelites, and say to them, ‘You must be holy, because I, Yahweh your God, am holy.

Leviticus 20:7 “ ‘And you shall consecrate yourselves, and you shall be holy, because I am Yahweh your God.

Leviticus 20:26 And you shall be holy for me, because I, Yahweh, am holy, and I have singled you out from the nations to be mine.

Leviticus 21:6 They shall be holy to their God, and they shall not profane the name of their God, because they are bringing near the offerings made by fire to Yahweh—their God’s food—and they shall be holy.

Psalm 16:3 With regard to the saints who are in the land, they are the noble ones in whom is all my desire.

Psalm 34:9 Fear Yahweh, you his saints, for there is no lack for those who fear him.

Psalm 16:3 With regard to the saints who are in the land, they are the noble ones in whom is all my desire.

Daniel 7:27 And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.'

John 10:34–35 Jesus answered them, "Is it not written in your law, 'I said, "You are gods" '? [35] If he called them 'gods' to whom the word of God came—and the scripture cannot be broken—

Psalm 82:6 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

John 10:30 The Father and I are one."

John 10:38 But if I am doing them, even if you do not believe me, believe the deeds, so that you may know and understand that the Father is in me and I am in the Father."

Psalm 82:6 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

John 10:34 Jesus answered them, “Is it not written in your law, ‘I said, “You are gods” ’?

Hebrews 1:3 who is the radiance of his glory and the representation of his essence, sustaining all things by the word of power. When he had made purification for sins through him, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high,

John 17:5 And now, Father, you glorify me at your side with the glory that I had at your side before the world existed.

John 1:1–14 In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. [2] This one was in the beginning with God. [3] All things came into being through him, and apart from him not one thing came into being that has come into being. [4] In him was life, and the life was the light of humanity. [5] And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it.

[6] A man came, sent from God, whose name was John. [7] This one came for a witness, in order that he could testify about the light, so that all would believe through him. [8] That one was not the light, but came in order that he could testify about the light. [9] The true light, who gives light to every person, was coming into the world. [10] He was in the world, and the world came into being through him, and the world did not recognize him. [11] He came to his own things, and his own people did not receive him. [12] But as many as received him—to those who believe in his name—he gave to them authority to become children of God, [13] who were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of a husband, but of God.

[14] And the Word became flesh and took up residence among us, and we saw his glory, glory as of the one and only from the Father, full of grace and truth.

John 17:24 “Father, those whom you have given to me—I want that those also may be with me where I am, in order that they may see my glory that you have given me because you loved me before the foundation of the world.

Acts 5:40–42 And they summoned the apostles, beat them, commanded them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and released them. 41 So they went out from the presence of the Sanhedrin rejoicing, because they had been considered worthy to be dishonored for the sake of the name. 42 Every day, both in the temple courts and from house to house, they did not stop teaching and proclaiming the good news that the Christ was Jesus.

Judges 2:1–2 And the angel of Yahweh went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said, “I brought you up from Egypt, and I brought you to the land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, ‘I will never break my covenant with you. 2 And as for you, do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land; break down their altars.’ But you did not listen to my voice. Why would you do such a thing?

Judges 2:5 And they called the name of this place Bokim, and there they sacrificed to Yahweh.

Jeremiah 23:3 “Then I myself will gather together the remnant of my flock from all the lands where I have driven them, and I will bring them back to their grazing place, and they will be fruitful, and they will become numerous.

Jeremiah 29:14 And I will let myself be found by you,’ declares Yahweh, ‘and I will restore your fortunes, and I will gather you from all the nations and from all the places to which I have driven you,’ declares Yahweh, ‘and I will bring you back to the place from which I deported you.’

Ezekiel 36:22–36 “Therefore thus say to the house of Israel, ‘Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “Not for your sake am I about to act, house of Israel, but for my holy name, which you defiled among the nations to which you went. 23 And I will consecrate my great name, which was profaned among the nations and which you have profaned in the midst of them, and the nations will know that I am Yahweh!” ’ a declaration of the Lord Yahweh, when I show myself holy before their eyes.

24 “ ‘And I will take you from the nations, and I will gather you from all of the lands, and I will bring you to your land. 25 And I will sprinkle on you pure water, and you will be clean from all of your uncleanness, and I will cleanse you from all of your idols. [26] And I will give a new heart to you, and a new spirit I will give into your inner parts, and I will remove the heart of stone from your flesh, and I will give to you a heart of flesh. [27] And I will give my spirit into your inner parts, and I will make it so that you will go in my rules, and my regulations you will remember, and you will do them. [28] And you will dwell in the land that I gave to your ancestors, and you will be to me as a people, and I will be to you as God. [29] And I will save you from all of your uncleanness, and I will call to the grain, and I will cause it to increase, and I will not bring famine upon you. [30] And I will cause the fruit of the tree and the crop of the field to increase, so that you will not suffer again the disgrace of famine among the nations. [31] And you will remember your evil ways and your deeds that were not good, and you will loathe yourself over your iniquities and over your detestable things. [32] But not for your sake am I acting," declares the Lord Yahweh. "Let it be known to you, be ashamed, and be put to shame because of your ways, house of Israel.

[33] "Thus says the Lord Yahweh: 'On the day when I cleanse you from all of your iniquities, I will cause the cities to be inhabited, and the ruins will be rebuilt. [34] And the land that was desolate will be cultivated in the very place that it was desolate before the eyes of all of the persons crossing over. [35] And they will say, "This desolate land has become like the garden of Eden, and the wasted and desolate and destroyed cities, now being refortified, are inhabited." [36] And the nations who are left all around, you will know that I, Yahweh, I built that which was destroyed; I planted the desolate land; I, Yahweh, I have spoken, and I will act.'

Isaiah 49:6 And he says, "It is trivial for you to be a servant for me, to raise up the tribes of Jacob

and to bring back the preserved of Israel.

I will give you as a light to the nations, to be my salvation to the end of the earth."

Ezekiel 37:19 Then speak to them, 'Thus says the Lord Yahweh: "Look! I am taking the piece of wood for Joseph that is in the hand of Ephraim and the tribes of Israel its associates, and I will put them on it, the piece of wood of Judah, and I will make them into one piece of wood, so that they be one in my hand.’ ”

Ezekiel 47:13 Thus says the Lord Yahweh: “This is the boundary by which you shall distribute the land for the twelve tribes of Israel: Two shares shall be for Joseph.

Ezekiel 47:21–22 You shall divide this land for yourselves according to the tribes of Israel. 22 And then you shall allocate it as an inheritance for yourselves and for the aliens dwelling as aliens in the midst of you who have children in the midst of you, and so they shall be to you just like full citizens among the Israelites. With you they shall be allotted with an inheritance in the midst of the tribes of Israel.

Ezekiel 48:1–15 And these are the names of the tribes: At the end of the north, along the way to Hethlon from Lebo-hamath to Hazar Enan on the boundary of Damascus beside Hamath northward, there will be one portion for Dan from the eastern border to the west. 2 And next to the territory of Dan, from the eastern border up to the western border, one portion for Asher. 3 And next to the territory of Asher, from the eastern border and up to the western border, one portion for Naphtali. 4 And next to the territory of Naphtali, from the eastern border up to the western border, one portion for Manasseh. 5 And next to the territory of Manasseh, from the eastern border up to the western border, one portion for Ephraim. 6 And next to the territory of Ephraim, from the eastern border and up to the western border, one portion for Reuben. 7 And next to the territory of Reuben, from the eastern border up to the western border, one portion for Judah.

8 And next to the territory of Judah, from the eastern border up to the western border, shall be located the contribution that you set apart, twenty-five thousand cubits in width, and its length just like one of the portions from the eastern border up to the western border, and the sanctuary shall be in the midst of it. 9 The contribution that you shall set apart for Yahweh, its length shall be twenty-five thousand cubits, and its width ten thousand cubits. 10 And to these shall be the holy district: to the priests northwards twenty-five thousand cubits, and westwards its width ten thousand cubits, and eastwards its width ten thousand cubits, and southwards its length twenty-five thousand cubits, and the sanctuary of Yahweh shall be in the midst of it. [11] To the priests, the ones being consecrated from the descendants of Zadok, who took care of my service and who did not go astray when the Israelites went astray, just as the Levites went astray. [12] And it will be for them a special gift from the contribution of the land as a most holy object next to the territory of the Levites. [13] And the Levites alongside the territory of the priests shall have twenty-five thousand cubits in length and in width ten thousand cubits, its full length, twenty-five thousand cubits and its full width, ten thousand cubits. [14] And they shall not sell any part from it, and shall not exchange, and shall not transfer the best of the land, for it is holy to Yahweh.

[15] And the remaining part of five thousand cubits in the width by twenty-five thousand cubits, is unholy; it is for the city as dwelling and as pastureland; and the city will be located in the middle of it.

Matthew 3:17 And behold, there was a voice from heaven saying, “This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased.”

Luke 3:22 and the Holy Spirit descended on him in bodily form like a dove, and a voice came from heaven, “You are my beloved Son; with you I am well pleased.”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:25–26 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Genesis 12:3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Genesis 10:2–16 The sons of Japheth: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. 3 And the sons of Gomer: Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah. 4 And the sons of Javan: Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim. 5 From these the coastland peoples spread out through their lands, each according to his own language by their own families, in their nations.

6 And the sons of Ham: Cush, Egypt, Put, and Canaan. 7 And the sons of Cush: Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. The sons of Raamah: Sheba and Dedan. 8 And Cush fathered Nimrod. He was the first on earth to be a mighty warrior. 9 He was a mighty hunter before Yahweh. Therefore it was said, “Like Nimrod a mighty hunter before Yahweh.” 10 Now, the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, Erech, Akkad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar. 11 From that land he went out to Assyria, and he built Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah, 12 Resen between Nineveh and Calah; that is the great city. 13 And Egypt fathered Ludim, Anamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim, 14 Pathrusim, and Casluhim (from whom the Philistines came), and Caphtorim.

15 Canaan fathered Sidon, his firstborn, and Heth, 16 and the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites,

Revelation 12:9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Luke 10:17–18 And the seventy-two returned with joy, saying, “Lord, even the demons are subject to us in your name!” [18] So he said to them, “I saw Satan falling like lightning from heaven.

Revelation 12:10 And I heard a loud voice in heaven saying, “Now the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God

and the authority of his Christ have come,

because the accuser of our brothers has been thrown down, the one who accuses them before our God day and night.

Matthew 16:18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

John 1:42 He brought him to Jesus. Looking at him, Jesus said, “You are Simon the son of John. You will be called Cephas” (which is interpreted “Peter”).

Galatians 2:11 But when Cephas came to Antioch, I opposed him to his face, because he was condemned.

Psalm 68:15 A mountain of God is the mountain of Bashan; a mountain of many peaks is the mountain of Bashan.

Psalm 22:16 Because dogs have surrounded me; a gang of evildoers has encircled me.

Like the lion they are at my hands and my feet.

Psalm 22:17 Because dogs have surrounded me; a gang of evildoers has encircled me.

Like the lion they are at my hands and my feet.

1 Peter 5:8 Be sober; be on the alert. Your adversary the devil walks around like a roaring lion, looking for someone to devour.

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Psalm 82:3 Judge on behalf of the helpless and the orphan; provide justice to the afflicted and the poor.

Psalm 22:12 Many bulls have encircled me; mighty bulls of Bashan have surrounded me.

Isaiah 63:7–11 I will mention the loyal love of Yahweh, the praises of Yahweh, according to all that Yahweh has done for us, and the greatness of goodness to the house of Israel that he has done to them according to his mercy and the abundance of his loyal love.

8 And he said, “Surely my people are children; they will not break faith.”
And he became a Savior to them.

9 In all their distress, there was no distress, and the messenger of his presence saved them, in his love and compassion he himself redeemed them, and he lifted them up,
and he supported them all the days of old.
10 But they were the ones who rebelled, and they grieved his Holy Spirit, so he became an enemy to them;
he himself fought against them.
11 Then his people remembered the days of old, of Moses.
Where is the one who led up them from the sea with the shepherds of his flock?
Where is the one who puts his Holy Spirit inside him,

Isaiah 63:7 I will mention the loyal love of Yahweh, the praises of Yahweh, according to all that Yahweh has done for us, and the greatness of goodness to the house of Israel that he has done to them according to his mercy and the abundance of his loyal love.

Isaiah 63:9 In all their distress, there was no distress, and the messenger of his presence saved them, in his love and compassion he himself redeemed them, and he lifted them up,

and he supported them all the days of old.

Isaiah 63:8 And he said, “Surely my people are children; they will not break faith.” And he became a Savior to them.

Isaiah 63:9 In all their distress, there was no distress, and the messenger of his presence saved them, in his love and compassion he himself redeemed them, and he lifted them up,

and he supported them all the days of old.

Isaiah 63:10 But they were the ones who rebelled, and they grieved his Holy Spirit,

so he became an enemy to them;

he himself fought against them.

Psalm 78:40–41 How often they rebelled against him in the wilderness and vexed him in the wasteland!

41 So they again tested God and distressed the Holy One of Israel.

Isaiah 63:7–11 I will mention the loyal love of Yahweh, the praises of Yahweh, according to all that Yahweh has done for us, and the greatness of goodness to the house of Israel that he has done to them according to his mercy and the abundance of his loyal love.

8 And he said, “Surely my people are children; they will not break faith.” And he became a Savior to them.

9 In all their distress, there was no distress, and the messenger of his presence saved them, in his love and compassion he himself redeemed them, and he lifted them up,

and he supported them all the days of old.

10 But they were the ones who rebelled, and they grieved his Holy Spirit,
so he became an enemy to them;
he himself fought against them.
11 Then his people remembered the days of old, of Moses.
Where is the one who led up them from the sea with the shepherds of his flock?
Where is the one who puts his Holy Spirit inside him,

Ezekiel 8:2 and I saw, and look! A figure like the appearance of a man; from the appearance of his waist and below was fire, and from his waist and upward was like the appearance of brightness, like the outward appearance of amber.

Ezekiel 8:3 And he sent out the form of a hand, and he took me by a lock of hair of my head, and the Spirit lifted me between earth and heaven, and it brought me to Jerusalem in visions of God to the doorway of the inner gate that faced north, at which there was the seat of the image of jealousy, which was making jealous.

Ezekiel 8:3 And he sent out the form of a hand, and he took me by a lock of hair of my head, and the Spirit lifted me between earth and heaven, and it brought me to Jerusalem in visions of God to the doorway of the inner gate that faced north, at which there was the seat of the image of jealousy, which was making jealous.

Ezekiel 8:5–6 And he said to me, “Son of man, lift up now your eyes toward the north.” And I lifted up my eyes toward the north, and, look, there was to the north of the gate of the altar this image of jealousy at the entrance. 6 And he said to me, “Son of man, “Do you see what they are doing—great detestable things that the house of Israel is committing here so as to drive me from my sanctuary, and yet you will see again greater detestable things.”

2 Samuel 22:9–13 Smoke went up from his nostrils and fire from his mouth.
Burning coals devoured, they burned from him.

[10] He bowed the heavens and came down; a very thick cloud was under his feet.
[11] He rode upon a cherub and flew; he was seen on the wings of the wind.
[12] He put darkness as a canopy all around him, a collection of thick rain clouds.
[13] From the brightness before him flamed burning coals of fire.

Genesis 15:17 And after the sun had gone down and it was dusk, behold, a smoking firepot and a flaming torch passed between those half pieces.

Genesis 3:24 So he drove the man out, and placed cherubim east of the garden of Eden, and a flaming, turning sword to guard the way to the tree of life.

Isaiah 6:2 Seraphs were standing above him. Each had six wings: with two he covered his face, and with two he covered his feet, and with two he flew.

Isaiah 6:6 Then one of the seraphs flew to me, and in his hand was a hot coal he had taken from the altar with tongs.

Matthew 3:11 I baptize you with water for repentance, but the one who comes after me is more powerful than I am, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

Luke 3:16 John answered them all, saying, “I baptize you with water, but the one who is more powerful than I am is coming, of whom I am not worthy to untie the strap of his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

Acts 1:1–5 I produced the former account, O Theophilus, about all that Jesus began to do and to teach, [2] until the day he was taken up, after he had given orders through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen, [3] to whom he also presented himself alive after he suffered, with many convincing proofs, appearing to them over a period of forty days and speaking the things about the kingdom of God. [4] And while he was with them, he commanded them, “Do not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for what was promised by the Father, which you heard about from me. [5] For John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now."

John 14:26 But the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name—that one will teach you all things, and will remind you of everything that I said to you.

John 15:26 "When the Advocate comes, whom I will send to you from the Father—the Spirit of truth, who proceeds from the Father—that one will testify about me.

Luke 24:49 And behold, I am sending out what was promised by my Father upon you, but you stay in the city until you are clothed with power from on high."

John 7:39 Now he said this concerning the Spirit, whom those who believed in him were about to receive. For the Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus had not yet been glorified.)

Acts 2:6 And when this sound occurred, the crowd gathered and was in confusion, because each one was hearing them speaking in his own language.

Acts 9:22 But Saul was increasing in strength even more, and was confounding the Jews who lived in Damascus by proving that this one is the Christ.

Acts 19:32 So some were shouting one thing and some another, for the assembly was in confusion, and the majority did not know why they had assembled.

Acts 21:27 But when the seven days were about to be completed, the Jews from Asia who had seen him in the temple courts stirred up the whole crowd and laid hands on him,

Acts 21:31 And as they were seeking to kill him, a report came up to the military tribune of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in confusion.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 10:23 And the sons of Aram: Uz, Hul, Gether, and Mash.

1 Chronicles 1:17 The sons of Shem: Elam, Asshur, Arphaxad, Lud, Aram, Uz, Hul, Gether, and Meshech.

1 Maccabees 15:22 The same things wrote he likewise unto Demetrius the king, and Attalus, to Ariarathes, and Arsaces, Galatians 1:15–21 But when the one who set me apart from my mother's womb and called me by his grace was pleased [16] to reveal his Son in me in order that I would proclaim the gospel about him among the Gentiles, immediately I did not consult with flesh and blood, [17] nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me, but I went away to Arabia and I returned again to Damascus. [18] Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to become acquainted with Cephas, and I stayed with him fifteen days, [19] but I did not see any others of the apostles except James, the brother of the Lord. [20] (Now the things which I am writing to you, behold, I assure you before God that I am not lying.) [21] Then I came to the regions of Syria and of Cilicia,

Isaiah 66:19 And I will set a sign among them, and I will send survivors from them to the nations: Tarshish, Pul, and Lud, who draw the bow; Tubal and Javan, the faraway coastlands that have not heard of my fame, and have not seen my glory.

And they shall declare my glory among the nations,

Isaiah 66:20 and bring all your countrymen from all the nations as an offering to Yahweh on horses and chariots and in litters and on mules and camels, to my holy mountain, Jerusalem," says Yahweh, "just as the sons of Israel bring an offering in a clean vessel to the house of Yahweh.

Jeremiah 46:9 Go up, O horses, and drive madly, O chariots, and let the warriors go forth;

Cush and Put, who wield the small shield, and Lud, who wield and bend the bow.

Ezekiel 27:10 Persia and Lud and Put were among your soldiers; small shield and helmet hung among you and gave to you your adornment.

Ezekiel 30:5 Cush and Put and Lud and all of Arabia and Kub and the people of the land of the treaty with them—by the sword they will fall."

Ezekiel 38:5 Persia, Cush, and Put are with them, all of them, with a small shield and helmet.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Galatians 3:7–9 then understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham. 8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: “In you all the nations will be blessed.” 9 So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.

Galatians 3:28–29 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Galatians 3:7 then understand that the ones who have faith, these are sons of Abraham.

Galatians 3:8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, proclaimed the good news in advance to Abraham: “In you all the nations will be blessed.”

Galatians 3:9 So then, the ones who have faith are blessed together with Abraham who believed.

Galatians 3:28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus.

Galatians 3:29 And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Judges 5:20 The stars fought from heaven; from their courses they fought against Sisera.

Daniel 8:10 And it grew up to the host of heaven, and it threw down to the ground some of the host and some of the stars and trampled them.

Daniel 12:3 But the ones having insight will shine like the brightness of the expanse, and the ones providing justice for the many will be like the stars forever and ever.

Revelation 1:20 As for the mystery of the seven stars which you saw in my right hand and the seven gold lampstands—the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

Revelation 12:4 And his tail swept away a third of the stars from heaven and threw them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, in order that whenever she gave birth to her child he could devour it.

Revelation 12:9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

1 Corinthians 15:42–54 Thus also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption, it is raised in incorruptibility. [43] It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power. [44] It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a natural body, there is also a spiritual body. [45] Thus also it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living soul”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. [46] But the spiritual is not first, but the natural; then the spiritual. [47] The first man is from the earth, made of earth; the second man is from heaven. [48] As the one who is made of earth, so also are those who are made of earth, and as the heavenly, so also are those who are heavenly. [49] And just as we have borne the image of the one who is made of earth, we will also bear the image of the heavenly.

[50] But I say this, brothers, that flesh and blood is not able to inherit the kingdom of God, nor can corruption inherit incorruptibility. [51] Behold, I tell you a mystery: we will not all fall asleep, but we will all be changed, [52] in a moment, in the blink of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed. [53] For it is necessary for this perishable body to put on incorruptibility, and this mortal body to put on immortality. [54] But whenever this perishable body puts on incorruptibility and this mortal body puts on immortality, then the saying that is written will take place: “Death is swallowed up in victory.

Matthew 25:41 Then he will also say to those on his left, ‘Depart from me, you accursed ones, into the eternal fire that has been prepared for the devil and his angels!

1 Corinthians 6:3 Do you not know that we will judge angels, not to mention ordinary matters?

1 Corinthians 11:10 Because of this, the woman ought to have a symbol of authority on her head, on account of the angels.

2 Corinthians 11:14 And no wonder, for Satan himself disguises himself as an angel of light.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Revelation 9:11 They have as king over them the angel of the abyss, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek he has the name Apollyon.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Exodus 15:11 Who is like you among the gods, Yahweh?

Who is like you—glorious in holiness, awesome in praiseworthy actions, doing wonders?

Psalm 82:1b God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 81:1b A psalm of Asaph.

[1] God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 95:3–4 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods, [4] in whose hand are the unexplored places of the earth, and the heights of the mountains are his,

Psalm 94:3–4 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods, [4] in whose hand are the unexplored places of the earth, and the heights of the mountains are his,

Psalm 97:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.

You are highly exalted above all gods.

Psalm 96:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.

You are highly exalted above all gods.

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Psalm 28:1 A psalm of David.

[1] Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Deuteronomy 32:43 Call for songs of joy, O nations, concerning his people, for the blood of his servants he will avenge, and he will take reprisals against his foes, and he will make atonement for his land, his people."

Revelation 12:7–17 And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. [8] And they did not prevail, nor was a place found for them any longer in heaven. [9]

And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

10 And I heard a loud voice in heaven saying, “Now the salvation and the power

and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Christ have come, because the accuser of our brothers has been thrown down, the one who accuses them before our God day and night.

11 And they conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, and they did not love their lives until death.

12 Because of this, rejoice, you heavens, and those who live in them!

Woe to the earth and to the sea, because the devil has come down to you, having great anger,

because he knows that he has little time!”

13 And when the dragon saw that he had been thrown down to the earth, he pursued the woman who had given birth to the male child. 14 And the two wings of a great eagle were given to the woman, in order that she could fly into the wilderness, to her place where she is fed there for a time, and times, and half a time, from the presence of the serpent. 15 And from his mouth the serpent spouted water like a river after the woman, in order that he could make her swept away by a river. 16 And the earth came to the aid of the woman, and the earth opened its mouth and swallowed up the river that the dragon had spouted out of his mouth. 17 And the dragon was angry at the woman, and went away to fight against the rest of her children, those who keep the commandments of God and who hold to the testimony about Jesus.

Revelation 12:5 And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is going to shepherd all the nations with an iron rod, and her child was snatched away to God and to his throne.

Matthew 8:31 So the demons implored him, saying, “If you are going to expel us, send us into the herd of pigs.”

Acts 17:18 And even some of the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers were conversing with him, and some were saying, “What does this babbler want to say?” But others said, “He appears to be a proclaimer of foreign deities,” because he was proclaiming the good news about Jesus and the resurrection.

Psalm 91:6 or the plague that spreads in the darkness, or the destruction that devastates at noon.

Psalm 90:6 or the plague that spreads in the darkness, or the destruction that devastates at noon.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

John 12:31 Now is the judgment of this world! Now the ruler of this world will be thrown out!

John 14:30 I will no longer speak much with you, for the ruler of the world is coming, and he has no power over me.

John 16:11 and concerning judgment, because the ruler of this world has been condemned.

2 Thessalonians 2:9–10 whose coming is in accordance with the working of Satan, with all power and signs and lying wonders, 10 and with every unrighteous deception against those who are perishing, in place of which they did not accept the love of the truth, so that they would be saved.

Hebrews 5:12 For indeed, although you ought to be teachers by this time, you have need of someone to teach you again the beginning elements of the oracles of God, and you have need of milk, not solid food.

2 Peter 3:10 But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, in which the heavens will disappear with a rushing noise, and the celestial bodies will be destroyed by being burned up, and the earth and the deeds done on it will be disclosed.

2 Peter 3:12 while waiting for and hastening the coming of the day of God, because of which the heavens will be destroyed by being burned up and the celestial bodies will melt as they are consumed by heat!

Galatians 4:3 So also we, when we were children, we were enslaved under the elemental spirits of the world.

Galatians 4:9 But now, because you have come to know God, or rather have come to be known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and miserable elemental spirits? Do you want to be enslaved to them all over again?

Colossians 2:8 Beware lest anyone take you captive through philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits of the world and not according to Christ,

Colossians 2:20 If you have died with Christ to the elemental spirits of the world, why do you submit to them as if living in the world?

Galatians 4:3 So also we, when we were children, we were enslaved under the elemental spirits of the world.

Galatians 4:9 But now, because you have come to know God, or rather have come to be known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and miserable elemental spirits? Do you want to be enslaved to them all over again?

Colossians 2:8 Beware lest anyone take you captive through philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits of the world and not according to Christ,

Colossians 2:20 If you have died with Christ to the elemental spirits of the world, why do you submit to them as if living in the world?

Galatians 4:3 So also we, when we were children, we were enslaved under the elemental spirits of the world.

Galatians 4:1–7 Now I say, for as long a time as the heir is a child, he is no different from a slave, although he is master of everything, [2] but he is under guardians and managers until the time set by his father. [3] So also we, when we were children, we were enslaved under the elemental spirits of the world. [4] But when the fullness of time came, God sent out his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, [5] in order that he might redeem those under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption. [6] And because you are sons, God sent out the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying out, “Abba! (Father!),” [7] so that you are no longer a slave but a son, and if a son, also an heir through God.

Galatians 4:8–11 But at that time when you did not know God, you were enslaved to the things which by nature are not gods. [9] But now, because you have come to know God, or rather have come to be known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and miserable elemental spirits? Do you want to be enslaved to them all over again? [10] You carefully observe days and months and seasons and years. [11] I am afraid for you, lest perhaps I have labored for you in vain!

Galatians 4:9 But now, because you have come to know God, or rather have come to be known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and miserable elemental spirits? Do you want to be enslaved to them all over again?

Galatians 4:8 But at that time when you did not know God, you were enslaved to the things which by nature are not gods.

Galatians 4:10 You carefully observe days and months and seasons and years.

1 Corinthians 8:4–6 Therefore, concerning the eating of food sacrificed to idols, we know that “an idol is nothing in the world” and that “there is no God except one.” [5] For even if after all there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, just as there are many gods and many lords, [6] yet to us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things, and we are for him, and there is one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things, and we are through him.

1 Corinthians 10:20–21 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. [21] You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

Colossians 2:8 Beware lest anyone take you captive through philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits of the world and not according to Christ,

Colossians 2:20 If you have died with Christ to the elemental spirits of the world, why do you submit to them as if living in the world?

Psalm 106:37 They even sacrificed their sons and daughters to the demons,

Isaiah 13:21 But wild animals will lie down there, and their houses will be full of howling creatures, and the daughters of ostriches will live there, and goats will dance there.

Isaiah 34:14 And desert creatures shall meet with hyenas, and a goat-demon shall call to his neighbor; surely there Lilith shall repose, and she shall find a resting place for herself.

Leviticus 17:7 And they may no longer sacrifice their sacrifices to the goat-idols after which they were prostituting. This is a lasting statute for them throughout their generations.” ’

1 Corinthians 10:20–21 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. 21 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

1 Corinthians 10:20–21 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. 21 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

1 Corinthians 10:20–21 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons. 21 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons.

Romans 3:9 What then? Do we have an advantage? Not at all. For we have already charged both Jews and Greeks are all under sin,

Romans 3:23 for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God,

Romans 5:12 Because of this, just as sin entered into the world through one man, and death through sin, so also death spread to all people because all sinned.

Romans 5:18 Consequently therefore, as through one trespass came condemnation to all people, so also through one righteous deed came justification of life to all people.

Titus 2:11 For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all people,

Hebrews 5:9 and being perfected, he became the source of eternal salvation to all those who obey him,

Colossians 1:16 because all things in the heavens and on the earth were created by him, things visible and things invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or powers, all things were created through him and for him,

Colossians 1:16 because all things in the heavens and on the earth were created by him, things visible and things invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or powers, all things were created through him and for him,

Daniel 7:20–28 and concerning the horns that were on its head, and concerning the other horn that came up and before which three horns fell, and this horn had eyes and a mouth speaking boastfully, and its appearance was larger than its companions. [21] I continued watching, and this horn made war with the holy ones and it prevailed over them, [22] until the Ancient of Days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Most High; and the time arrived and the holy ones took possession of the kingdom.

[23] "And he said, 'The fourth beast is the fourth kingdom that will be on the earth that will be different from all the other kingdoms, and it will devour the whole earth and it will trample it and it will crush it. [24] And as for the ten horns coming from it, from this kingdom ten kings will arise, and another will arise after them. And he will be different from the earlier ones, and he will subdue three kings. [25] And he will speak words against the Most High, and he will wear out the holy ones of the Most High, and he will attempt to change times and law, and they will be given into his hand for a time and two times and half a time. [26] Then the court will sit, and his dominion will be removed, to be eradicated and to be destroyed totally. [27] And the kingdom and the dominion and the greatness of the kingdoms under the whole heaven will be given to the nation of the holy ones of the Most High; his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all the dominions will serve and obey him.'

[28] This is the end of the account. As for me, Daniel—my thoughts terrified me greatly and my face changed over me, but I kept the matter in my heart."

Zechariah 14:1–5 Look! A day is coming for Yahweh, when your plunder will be divided in your midst. [2] I will gather all the nations against Jerusalem to battle, and the city will be captured, and they will loot the houses, and the women will be raped; half of the city will go into exile, but the remainder of the people will not be cut off from the city. [3] Then Yahweh will go forth and fight against those nations, like when he fights on a day of battle. [4] On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, which faces Jerusalem on the east; and the Mount of Olives will be split in half, from east to west, by a very great valley; and half of the mountain will withdraw toward the north, and the other half toward the south. [5] And you will flee by the valley of my mountains, because the valley of the mountains will reach to Azal, and you will flee like you fled from the earthquake in the days of King Uzziah of Judah. And Yahweh my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.

Isaiah 24:21–23 And this shall happen on that day: Yahweh will punish the host of heaven in heaven, and the kings of the earth on the earth.

[22] And they will be gathered in a gathering, like a prisoner in a pit.
And they will be shut in a prison and be punished after many days.

[23] And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed,
for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Daniel 8:10 And it grew up to the host of heaven, and it threw down to the ground some of the host and some of the stars and trampled them.

Romans 8:38 For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers,

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 10:20–21 Then he asked, “Do you know why I have come to you? And now I return to fight against the prince of Persia and I myself am going, and look, the prince of Javan will come. [21] However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Hebrews 9:5 And above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy seat, about which it is not now possible to speak in detail.

Isaiah 3:5 And the people will be oppressed by each other and a man by his neighbor.

The boy will act arrogantly toward the elder, and the dishonorable toward the honorable.

Isaiah 23:8 Who has planned this against Tyre, the bestower of crowns, whose merchants were princes, her traders the honored ones of the earth?

Nahum 3:10 Yet she went into captivity as an exile; her children were dashed to pieces at the head of all the streets.

They cast lots for her nobles;

all of her dignitaries were bound with chains.

Psalm 149:8 to bind their kings with chains and their nobles with fetters of iron,

2 Peter 2:10a and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings,

2 Peter 2:9 then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials and to reserve the unrighteous to be punished at the day of judgment,

2 Peter 2:10f and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings, [11] whereas angels, who are greater in strength and power, do not bring against them a demeaning judgment.

Exodus 15:11 Who is like you among the gods, Yahweh?

> Who is like you—glorious in holiness, awesome in praiseworthy actions, doing wonders?

Exodus 24:16f And the glory of Yahweh settled on Mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it for six days, and he called to Moses on the seventh day from the midst of the cloud. [17] And the appearance of the glory of Yahweh was like a consuming fire on the top of the mountain to the eyes of the Israelites.

Exodus 33:18–23 And he said, “Please show me your glory.”

[19] And he said, “I myself will cause all my goodness to pass over before you, and I will proclaim the name of Yahweh before you, and I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and I will show compassion to whom I will show compassion.” [20] But he said, “You are not able to see my face, because a human will not see me and live.” [21] And Yahweh said, “There is a place with me, and you will stand on the rock. [22] And when my glory passes over, I will put you in the rock’s crevice, and I will cover you with my hand until I pass over. [23] And I will remove my hand, and you will see my back, but my face will not be visible.”

Psalm 19:1 The heavens are telling the glory of God, and the firmament proclaims the work of his hands.

1 Corinthians 3:16 Do you not know that you are God’s temple and the Spirit of God dwells in you?

1 Timothy 1:5 But the goal of our instruction is love from a pure heart and a good conscience and a faith without hypocrisy,

1 Corinthians 10:25 Eat everything that is sold in the meat market, asking no questions for the sake of the conscience,

1 Corinthians 10:27–29 If any of the unbelievers invites you, and you want to go, eat everything that is set before you, asking no questions for the sake of the conscience. 28 But if someone says to you, “This is offered to idols,” do not eat it, for the sake of that one who informed you and the conscience. 29 Now I am not speaking about your own conscience, but the conscience of the other person. For why is my freedom judged by another’s conscience?

Hebrews 9:9 which was a symbol for the present time, in which both the gifts and sacrifices which were offered were not able to perfect the worshiper with respect to the conscience,

Hebrews 9:14 how much more will the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit offered himself without blemish to God, cleanse our consciences from dead works to serve the living God?

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words. 2 And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. 3 And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. 4 And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. 6 And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. 7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, 'Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?' 25 And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors

had not known them.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ 25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

James 1:1–3 James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Greetings!

2 Consider it all joy, my brothers, whenever you encounter various trials, 3 because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, 27 for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. 28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Psalm 82:6–7 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 33:1–2 Now this is the blessing with which Moses, the man of God, blessed the Israelites before his death.

[2] Then he said, “Yahweh came from Sinai,
and he dawned upon them from Seir;
he shone forth from Mount Paran,
and he came with myriads of holy ones,
at his right hand a fiery law for them.

Acts 7:52–53 Which of the prophets did your fathers not persecute? And they killed those who announced beforehand about the coming of the Righteous One, whose betrayers and murderers you have now become, [53] you who received the law by directions of angels and have not observed it!”

Galatians 3:19 Why then the law? It was added on account of transgressions, until the descendant should come to whom it had been promised, having been ordered through angels by the hand of a mediator.

Hebrews 2:2 For if the word spoken through angels was binding and every transgression and act of disobedience received a just penalty,

Daniel 7:14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words.
2 And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. 3 And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. 4 And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. 6 And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. 7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

1 Chronicles 3:19 And the sons of Pedaiah: Zerubbabel and Shimei. And the sons of Zerubbabel: Meshullam and Hananiah, and Shelomith their sister, Deuteronomy 25:5f “When brothers dwell together and one of them dies and has no son, the wife of the deceased shall not become the wife of a man of another family; her brother-in-law shall have sex with her, and he shall take her to himself as a wife, and he shall perform his duty as a brother-in-law with respect to her. 6 And then the firstborn that she bears shall represent his dead brother, so that his name is not blotted out from Israel.

Ruth 4:10 And also Ruth the Moabite, the wife of Mahlon, I have acquired as a wife, to raise up the name of the dead over his inheritance, so that the name of the dead may not be cut off from his relatives and from the gate of his birth place. You are witnesses today."

Zechariah 4:6–9 And he answered and said to me, "This is the word of Yahweh to Zerubbabel, saying, 'Not by strength and not by power, but only by my Spirit,' says Yahweh of hosts. [7] 'Who are you O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel you will become level ground, and he will bring out the top stone amid the shouts of "Grace, grace to it!" ' " [8] And the word of Yahweh came to me, saying, [9] "The hands of Zerubbabel have founded this house, and his hands will finish it. And you will know that Yahweh of hosts has sent me to you.

Zechariah 3:1–10 And he showed me Joshua the high priest standing before the angel of Yahweh; and Satan was standing on his right to accuse him. [2] But Yahweh said to Satan, "Yahweh rebukes you, O Satan! Yahweh who has chosen Jerusalem rebukes you! Is this not a stick snatched from the fire?" [3] And Joshua was clothed in filthy garments and was standing before the angel. [4] And he answered and said to the ones standing before him, saying, "Remove the filthy garments from him." And he said to him, "See, I have taken away your guilt from you, and will clothe you with rich garments." [5] And I said, "Let them put a clean headband on his head." And they put a clean headband on his head, and they clothed him with garments. And the angel of Yahweh was standing by.

[6] And the angel of Yahweh assured Joshua, saying, [7] "Thus says Yahweh of hosts: 'If you will walk in my ways, and if you will keep my requirements, then you will judge my house, and you will also guard my courtyards, and I will give to you passageways among these that are standing here. [8] Listen, please, O Joshua the high priest, you and your companions that are sitting before you. For the men are a sign that, look, I am going to bring my servant the Branch. [9] For consider, the stone that I set before Joshua, on one stone are seven eyes. Look, I am going to engrave an inscription on it,' declares Yahweh of hosts, 'and I will remove the guilt of that land in a single day. [10] On that day,' declares Yahweh of hosts, 'you will invite one another under the vine and under the fig tree.' "

Zechariah 6:9–15 And the word of Yahweh came to me, saying, [10] “Collect from the exiles—from Heldai, Tobijah, and from Jedaiah, all of whom came from Babylon—and go on that day, go to the house of Josiah son of Zephaniah. [11] Take the silver and gold and make a crown, and set it on the head of Joshua son of Jehozadak, the high priest. [12] And say to him, ‘Thus says Yahweh of hosts: “Look, here is a man whose name is Branch, and from his place he will sprout, and he will build the temple of Yahweh. [13] And he will build the temple of Yahweh, and he will bear majesty and will sit and rule on his throne. And he shall be a priest on his throne, and the counsel of peace will be between the two of them.” ’ [14] And the crown will be for Helem, for Tobijah, for Jedaiah, and for Hen son of Zephaniah, as a memorial in the temple of Yahweh. [15] And those who are far off will come and build the temple of Yahweh, and you will know that Yahweh of hosts has sent me to you. And it will happen if you will listen diligently to the voice of Yahweh your God.”

Hosea 11:1 When Israel was a child, I loved him, and out of Egypt I called my son.

Genesis 46:1–4 So Israel journeyed with all that he had, and he came to Beersheba and offered sacrifices to the God of his father, Isaac. [2] And God spoke to Israel in visions of the night and said, “Jacob, Jacob.” And he said, “Here I am.” [3] Then he said, “I am God, the God of your father. Do not be afraid to go down to Egypt, for I will make you a great nation there. [4] I myself will go down with you to Egypt, and I myself will also bring you up. And Joseph will place his hand over your eyes.”

Jeremiah 31:31–33 Look, the days are coming,” declares Yahweh, “and I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah, [32] not like the covenant that I made with their ancestors on the day of my grasping them by their hand, bringing them out from the land of Egypt, my covenant that they themselves broke, though I myself was a master over them,” declares Yahweh. [33] “But this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days,” declares Yahweh: “I will put my law in their inward parts and on their hearts I will write it, and I will be to them God, and they themselves will be to me people.

Isaiah 40:6 A voice is saying, “Call!”

And he said, “What shall I call?”

All humankind are grass, and all his loyalty is like the flowers of the field.

1 Kings 22:19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand.

2 Kings 17:16 They abandoned all the commands of Yahweh their God and made for themselves two molten calf-shaped idols; they made a pole of Asherah worship and bowed down to the army of the heavens and served Baal.

Deuteronomy 4:19 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Exodus 24:9–11 And Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy from the elders of Israel went up. [10] And they saw the God of Israel, and what was under his feet was like sapphire tile work and like the very heavens for clearness. [11] And toward the leaders of the Israelites he did not stretch out his hand, and they beheld God, and they ate, and they drank.

Isaiah 24:23 And the full moon will be ashamed and the sun will be ashamed, for Yahweh of hosts will rule on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and before his elders in glory.

Psalm 105:22 to obligate his officials as he saw fit and teach his elders wisdom.

Revelation 22:5 And night will not exist any longer, and they will not have need of the light of a lamp and the light of the sun, because the Lord God will give light to them, and they will reign forever and ever.

Matthew 10:25 It is enough for the disciple that he become like his teacher, and the slave like his master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebul, how much more the members of his household?

Matthew 12:24 But the Pharisees, when they heard it, said, "This man does not expel demons except by Beelzebul the ruler of demons!"

Mark 3:22 And the scribes who had come down from Jerusalem were saying, "He is possessed by Beelzebul!" and "By the ruler of the demons he expels the demons!"

Luke 11:15 But some of them said, "By Beelzebul the ruler of demons he expels demons!"

Matthew 12:27 And if I expel demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your sons expel them? For this reason they will be your judges!

Luke 11:18 So if Satan also is divided against himself, how will his kingdom stand? For you say that I expel demons by Beelzebul.

Luke 11:19 But if I expel demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your sons expel them? For this reason they will be your judges!

2 Kings 1:2 Ahaziah had fallen through the lattice in his upper room, which was in Samaria, and he was injured. So he sent messengers, and he said to them, "Go, inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron, if I will survive this injury."

2 Kings 1:3 Then the angel of Yahweh spoke to Elijah the Tishbite, "Get up, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria and speak to them, 'Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are going to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron?'

2 Kings 1:6 Then they said to him, "A man came up to meet us, and he said to us, 'Go, return to the king who sent you and speak to him, "Thus says Yahweh, 'Is it because there is no God in Israel that you are sending to inquire of Baal-Zebub the god of Ekron? Therefore the bed upon which you have gone, you will not come down from it, for you will surely die.’ ” ’ ”

2 Kings 1:16 and he said to him, “Thus says Yahweh, ‘Because you have sent messengers to inquire of Baal-Zebub, the god of Ekron—is it because there is no God in Israel from whom to inquire his word?—therefore the bed upon which you went, you shall not come down from it, for you shall surely die.’ ”

Revelation 20:7–10 And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison [8] and he will go out to deceive the nations that are at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to assemble them for battle, whose number is like the sand of the sea. [9] And they went up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the fortified camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and consumed them. [10] And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and sulphur, where the beast and the false prophet also are, and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

Revelation 20:7–10 And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison [8] and he will go out to deceive the nations that are at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to assemble them for battle, whose number is like the sand of the sea. [9] And they went up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the fortified camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and consumed them. [10] And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and sulphur, where the beast and the false prophet also are, and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. 2 But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. 3 And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. 4 But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: 5 And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: 6 And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: 7 And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. 8 There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: 9 And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, 10 And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. 11 One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee?
And it shall say, No. 12 At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. 13 To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; 30 It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

31 And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; 32 This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. [32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Daniel 9:24–27 “Seventy weeks is decreed for your people and for your holy city, to put an end to the transgression and to seal up sin and to make atonement for guilt and to bring in everlasting righteousness and to seal vision and prophet and to anoint the most holy place. 25 And you must know and you must understand that from the time of the going out of the word to restore and build Jerusalem until an anointed one—a leader—will be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks; it will be restored and will be built with streets and a moat, but in a time of oppression.

26 “And after the sixty and two weeks an anointed one shall be cut off, and he shall have nothing, and the people of the coming leader will destroy the city and the sanctuary, and its end will be with the flood and on to the end there shall be war; these desolations are determined. 27 And he will make a strong covenant with the many for one week, but in half of the week he will let cease sacrifice and offering and in its place a desolating abomination comes even until the determined complete destruction is poured out on the desolator.”

Daniel 9:24–27 “Seventy weeks is decreed for your people and for your holy city, to put an end to the transgression and to seal up sin and to make atonement for guilt and to bring in everlasting righteousness and to seal vision and prophet and to anoint the most holy place. 25 And you must know and you must understand that from the time of the going out of the word to restore and build Jerusalem until an anointed one—a leader—will be seven weeks and sixty-two weeks; it will be restored and will be built with streets and a moat, but in a time of oppression.

26 “And after the sixty and two weeks an anointed one shall be cut off, and he shall have nothing, and the people of the coming leader will destroy the city and the sanctuary, and its end will be with the flood and on to the end there shall be war; these desolations are determined. 27 And he will make a strong covenant with the many for one week, but in half of the week he will let cease sacrifice and offering and in its place a desolating abomination comes even until the determined complete destruction is poured out on the desolator.”

Matthew 24:15–21 “So when you see the abomination of desolation spoken about by the prophet Daniel standing in the holy place” (let the one who reads understand), [16] “then those in Judea must flee to the mountains! [17] The one who is on his housetop must not come down to take things out of his house, [18] and the one who is in the field must not turn back to pick up his cloak. [19] And woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing their babies in those days! [20] But pray that your flight may not happen in winter or on a Sabbath. [21] For at that time there will be great tribulation, such as has not happened from the beginning of the world until now, nor ever will happen.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

2 Chronicles 35:20–25 After all of this that Josiah had prepared for the temple, Neco the king of Egypt went up to make war at Carchemish on the Euphrates, and Josiah went up to meet him. [21] And he sent messengers to him, saying, “What is there between us, O king of Judah? I am not against you yourself this day, but against the house making war against me. And God has commanded me to make haste. Stop opposing God, who is with me that he will not destroy you.” [22] But Josiah did not turn his face from him, but he disguised himself to fight with him. He did not listen to the words of Neco from the mouth of God, and he went out to fight in the plain of Megiddo. [23] And the archers shot King Josiah, and the king said to his servants, “Take me away, for I am badly wounded.” [24] So his servants took him out of the chariot and transported him in his second chariot and brought him to Jerusalem. And he died and was buried in the burial sites of his ancestors. And all Judah and Jerusalem mourned over Josiah. 25 And Jeremiah uttered a lament for Josiah, and all the male and female singers have spoken in their laments about Josiah to this day. And they made them a requirement in Israel, and behold, they are written in the laments.

Revelation 20:7–10 And when the thousand years are completed, Satan will be released from his prison 8 and he will go out to deceive the nations that are at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, to assemble them for battle, whose number is like the sand of the sea. 9 And they went up on the broad plain of the earth and surrounded the fortified camp of the saints and the beloved city, and fire came down from heaven and consumed them. 10 And the devil who deceived them was thrown into the lake of fire and sulphur, where the beast and the false prophet also are, and they will be tormented day and night forever and ever.

Revelation 20:1–6 And I saw an angel descending from heaven, holding the key of the abyss and a great chain in his hand. 2 And he seized the dragon—the ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan—and bound him for a thousand years, 3 and threw him into the abyss, and shut it and sealed it above him, in order that he could not deceive the nations again until the thousand years are completed. After these things it is necessary for him to be released for a short time.

4 And I saw thrones, and they sat down on them, and authority to judge was granted to them. And I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded because of the testimony about Jesus and because of the word of God, and who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and did not receive the mark on their forehead and on their hand, and they came to life and reigned with Christ for a thousand years. 5 (The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were completed.) This is the first resurrection. 6 Blessed and holy is the one who has a part in the first resurrection. Over this person the second death has no authority, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will reign with him a thousand years.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Revelation 16:16 And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven;

I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;

and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Revelation 16:16 And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

1 Corinthians 6:17 But the one who joins himself to the Lord is one spirit with him.

Colossians 1:15–17 who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn over all creation, [16] because all things in the heavens and on the earth were created by him, things visible and things invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or powers, all things were created through him and for him, [17] and he himself is before all things, and in him all things are held together,

Acts 26:10 which I also did in Jerusalem, and not only did I lock up many of the saints in prison, having received authority from the chief priests, but also when they were being executed, I cast my vote against them.

Revelation 19:9 And he said to me, “Write: Blessed are those who are invited to the banquet of the wedding celebration of the Lamb!” And he said to me, “These are the true words of God.”

Exodus 28:9–12 “And you will take two onyx stones and engrave on them the names of the Israelites, [10] with six of their names on the one stone and the remaining six on the second, according to their genealogies. [11] As the work of a skilled stone craftsman, with seal engravings you will engrave on the two stones the names of the Israelites; you will make them mounted in gold filigree settings. [12] And you will set the two stones on the ephod’s shoulder pieces as stones of remembrance for the Israelites, and Aaron will bear their names before Yahweh on his two shoulder pieces for remembrance.

Luke 11:49–51 For this reason also the wisdom of God said, ‘I will send to them prophets and apostles, and some of them they will kill and persecute,’ [50] so that the blood of all the prophets that has been shed from the foundation of the world may be required of this generation, [51] from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who perished between the altar and the temple building. Yes, I tell you, it will be required of this generation!

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34 And Yahweh said to Moses, "Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon." 35 And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised."

[13] And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. [14] Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh the God of Israel. [15] And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. [33] There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. [32] Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

[33] Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. [34] And Yahweh said to Moses, “Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon.” [35] And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. [22] None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised.”

[13] And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. [14] Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh the God of Israel. [15] And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:25–26 And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Genesis 12:3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. 2 But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. 3 And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. 4 But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: 5 And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: 6 And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: 7 And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. 8 There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: 9 And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, 10 And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. 11 One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee? And it shall say, No. 12 At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. 13 To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; 30 It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

31 And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; 32 This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. 33 For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: 26 The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. 27 And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; 28 And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: 29 Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. 30 And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. 31 And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. 32 And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. 33 And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. 34 And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. 35 But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. 36 And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. 37 And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; 38 And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days

shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Genesis 19:3 But he urged them strongly, and they turned aside with him and came into his house. And he made a meal for them and baked unleavened bread, and they ate.

Genesis 19:27–32 And Abraham arose early in the morning and went to the place where he had stood before Yahweh. [28] And he looked down upon the surface of Sodom and Gomorrah, and upon the whole surface of the land, the plain. And he saw that, behold, the smoke of the land went up like the smoke of a smelting furnace. [29] So it was, when God destroyed the cities of the plain that God remembered Abraham and sent Lot out from the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in which Lot lived.

[30] And Lot went out from Zoar and settled in the hill country with his two daughters, for he was afraid to stay in Zoar. So he lived in a cave, he and his two daughters. [31] And the firstborn daughter said to the younger one, “Our father is old, and there is no man in the land to come in to us according to the manner of all the land. [32] Come, let us give our father wine to drink and let us lie with him that we may secure descendants through our father.”

Genesis 15:2 Then Abram said, “O Yahweh, my Lord, what will you give me? I continue to be childless, and my heir is Eliezer of Damascus.”

Genesis 15:8 And he said, “O Yahweh God, how shall I know that I will possess it?”

Genesis 16:2 And Sarai said to Abram, “Look, please, Yahweh has prevented me from bearing children. Please go in to my servant; perhaps I will have children by her.” And Abram listened to the voice of Sarai.

Genesis 16:5 And Sarai said to Abram, “may my harm be upon you. I had my slave sleep with you, and when she saw that she had conceived, she no longer respected me. May Yahweh judge between me and you!”

Genesis 18:1 And Yahweh appeared to him by the oaks of Mamre. And he was sitting in the doorway of the tent at the heat of the day.

Exodus 6:3 And I appeared to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob as God Shaddai, but by my name Yahweh I was not known to them.

Genesis 18:18 Abraham will surely become a great and strong nation, and all the nations of the earth will be blessed on account of him.

Genesis 23:6 “Hear us, my lord, you are a mighty prince in our midst. Bury your dead in the choicest of our burial sites. None of us will withhold his burial site from you for burying your dead.”

Genesis 24:18 And she said, “Drink, my lord.” And she quickly lowered her jar in her hand and gave him a drink.

Genesis 32:4 And he instructed them, saying, “Thus you must say to my lord, to Esau, ‘Thus says your servant Jacob, I have dwelled as an alien with Laban, and I have remained there until now.

Genesis 33:8 And he said, “What do you mean by all this company that I have met?” Then he said, “To find favor in the eyes of my lord.”

Genesis 33:13 But he said to him, “My lord knows that the children are frail, and the flocks and the cattle which are nursing are a concern to me. Now if they drove them hard for a day all the flocks would die.

Genesis 18:25 Far be it from you to do such a thing as this, to kill the righteous with the wicked, that the righteous would be as the wicked! Far be it from you! Will not the Judge of all the earth do justice?”

Numbers 13:28–29 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large; moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. 29 The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan.”

John 8:56–58 Abraham your father rejoiced that he would see my day, and he saw it and was glad.”

57 So the Jews said to him, “You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?” 58 Jesus said to them, “Truly, truly I say to you, before Abraham was, I am!”

Exodus 3:14 And God said to Moses, “I am that I am.” And he said, “So you must say to the Israelites, ‘I am sent me to you.’ ”

Exodus 3:1–3 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, “Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?”

Jude 9 But Michael the archangel, when he argued with the devil, disputing concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!”

1 Thessalonians 4:16 For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout of command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” 14 And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?” 15 The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Jude 9 But Michael the archangel, when he argued with the devil, disputing concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!”

1 Thessalonians 4:16 For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout of command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” 14 And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?” 15 The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God

saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Matthew 16:18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 32:27 And they do not lie with warriors fallen from long ago, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, and they placed their sword under their heads, and their shields were on their bones, for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living.

Psalm 88:10–12 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah [11] Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

[12] Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Psalm 88:11–13 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah [11] Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

[12] Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Job 26:1–6 Then Job answered and said, [2] “How you have helped one who has no power!

How you have assisted the arm that has no strength!

[3] How you have advised one who has no wisdom!

And what sound wisdom you have made known in abundance!

[4] With whose help have you uttered words, and whose breath has come forth from you?

[5] “The spirits of the dead tremble below the waters and their inhabitants.

[6] Sheol is naked before him, and there is no covering for Abaddon.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Jude 9 But Michael the archangel, when he argued with the devil, disputing concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!”

1 Thessalonians 4:16 For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout of command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” 14 And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?” 15 The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Exodus 33:7–11 And Moses took the tent and pitched it outside the camp far from the camp, and he called it the tent of assembly, and all seeking Yahweh would go out to the tent of assembly, which was outside the camp. [8] And at the going out of Moses to the tent, all the people would rise and stand, each at the opening of his tent, and gaze after Moses until his entering the tent. [9] And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses. [10] And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent. [11] And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

Exodus 27:21 In the tent of assembly outside the curtain that is before the testimony, Aaron and his sons will arrange it, from evening until morning, before Yahweh as a lasting statute throughout their generations from the Israelites.

Exodus 28:43 And they will be on Aaron and on his sons when they come to the tent of assembly or when they approach the altar to serve in the sanctuary, so that they will not bear guilt and die. It is a lasting statute for him and for his offspring after him.

Exodus 30:26 And you will anoint with it the tent of assembly and the ark of the testimony,

Exodus 33:7–11 And Moses took the tent and pitched it outside the camp far from the camp, and he called it the tent of assembly, and all seeking Yahweh would go out to the tent of assembly, which was outside the camp. 8 And at the going out of Moses to the tent, all the people would rise and stand, each at the opening of his tent, and gaze after Moses until his entering the tent. 9 And at the entering of Moses into the tent the column of cloud would descend and stand at the opening of the tent, and he would speak with Moses. 10 And all the people would see the column of cloud standing at the opening of the tent, and all the people would rise and bow in worship, each at the opening of his tent. 11 And Yahweh would speak to Moses face to face, as a man speaks to his neighbor. And he would return to the camp, and his assistant Joshua the son of Nun, a young man, did not leave the middle of the tent.

1 Samuel 2:22 Now Eli was very old, and he heard all that his sons were doing to all Israel and that they were having sexual relations with the women who were serving at the entrance of the tent of assembly.

2 Chronicles 1:3 And Solomon and the whole assembly with him went to the high place that was at Gibeon, for the tent of assembly of God that Moses the servant of Yahweh had made in the desert was there.

1 Kings 8:4 So they brought up the ark of Yahweh and the tent of assembly and all of the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up.

Isaiah 14:13–14 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

14 I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’

Psalm 147:4 He counts the number of the stars; he gives names to all of them.

Genesis 1:16 And God made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day and the smaller light to rule the night, and the stars.

Judges 5:20 The stars fought from heaven; from their courses they fought against Sisera.

Isaiah 40:25–26 “And to whom you will compare me, and am I equal?” says the holy one.

26 Lift your eyes up on high, and see! Who created these?

The one who brings out their host by number.

He calls all them by name.

Because he is great of power and mighty of power, not one is missing.

Daniel 8:10 And it grew up to the host of heaven, and it threw down to the ground some of the host and some of the stars and trampled them.

Revelation 12:1–9 And a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun and with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars, 2 and who was pregnant and was crying out because she was having birth pains, and was in torment to give birth. 3 And another sign appeared in heaven, and behold, a great fiery red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads were seven royal headbands. 4 And his tail swept away a third of the stars from heaven and threw them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, in order that whenever she gave birth to her child he could devour it. 5 And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is going to shepherd all the nations with an iron rod, and her child was snatched away to God and to his throne. 6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she had a place prepared there by God, so that they could feed her there for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

7 And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. 8 And they did not prevail, nor was a place found for them any longer in heaven. 9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Psalm 106:37 They even sacrificed their sons and daughters to the demons,

Isaiah 13:21 But wild animals will lie down there, and their houses will be full of howling creatures, and the daughters of ostriches will live there, and goats will dance there.

Isaiah 34:14 And desert creatures shall meet with hyenas, and a goat-demon shall call to his neighbor;

surely there Lilith shall repose,

and she shall find a resting place for herself.

Leviticus 17:7 And they may no longer sacrifice their sacrifices to the goat-idols after which they were prostituting. This is a lasting statute for them throughout their generations.” ’

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 132:13 For Yahweh has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his habitation.

Psalm 48:2 Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, "Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably." 14 Then Micaiah said, "As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant 3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, 4 and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, 5 then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them

when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34

And Yahweh said to Moses, “Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon.” [35] And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. [22] None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised.”

[13] And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. [14] Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh the God of Israel. [15] And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words. [2] And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. [3] And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. [4] And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

[5] Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. [6] And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. [7] Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other's language." [8] So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. [9] Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. [20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, 'Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?' [25] And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ [25] And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

James 1:1–3 James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Greetings!

[2] Consider it all joy, my brothers, whenever you encounter various trials, [3] because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Psalm 82:6–7 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors

had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Exodus 15:11 Who is like you among the gods, Yahweh?

Who is like you—glorious in holiness, awesome in praiseworthy actions, doing wonders?

Psalm 82:1b God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 81:1b A psalm of Asaph.

[1] God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 95:3–4 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods, [4] in whose hand are the unexplored places of the earth, and the heights of the mountains are his,

Psalm 94:3–4 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods, [4] in whose hand are the unexplored places of the earth, and the heights of the mountains are his,

Psalm 97:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.

You are highly exalted above all gods.

Psalm 96:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.

You are highly exalted above all gods.

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Psalm 28:1 A psalm of David.

[1] Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Deuteronomy 32:43 Call for songs of joy, O nations, concerning his people, for the blood of his servants he will avenge, and he will take reprisals against his foes,
and he will make atonement for his land, his people."

John 8:56–58 Abraham your father rejoiced that he would see my day, and he saw it and was glad."
[57] So the Jews said to him, "You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?" [58] Jesus said to them, "Truly, truly I say to you, before Abraham was, I am!"

Exodus 3:14 And God said to Moses, "I am that I am." And he said, "So you must say to the Israelites, 'I am sent me to you.' "

Exodus 3:1–3 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. [2] And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. [3] And Moses said, "Let me turn aside and see this great sight.
Why does the bush not burn up?"

Luke 11:49–51 For this reason also the wisdom of God said, 'I will send to them prophets and apostles, and some of them they will kill and persecute,' [50] so that the blood of all the prophets that has been shed from the foundation of the world may be required of this generation, [51] from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who perished between the altar and the temple building. Yes, I tell you, it will be required of this generation!

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Genesis 14:13 Then one who escaped came and told Abram the Hebrew. And he was living at the oaks of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol and brother of Aner. They were allies with Abram.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Samuel 6:1–2 David again gathered all the chosen men in Israel, thirty thousand. [2] David got up and went and all the people who were with him, from Baale-judah to bring up from there the ark of God which is called the name, the name of Yahweh of hosts, upon which the cherubim sit.

1 Samuel 4:4 So the army sent to Shiloh and brought from there the ark of the covenant of Yahweh of hosts who sits between the cherubim. And the two sons of Eli, Hophni and Phinehas, were there with the ark of the covenant of God.

Jeremiah 7:12 “For go now to my place that was in Shiloh, where I caused my name to dwell in the beginning, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel.

2 Samuel 7:2 And the king said to Nathan the prophet, “Look, please, I am living in a house of cedar, but the ark of God is staying in the middle of the tent.”

Luke 10:1 And after these things, the Lord also appointed seventy-two others and sent them out two by two before him into every town and place where he was about to go.

Genesis 3:14 Then Yahweh God said to the serpent, “Because you have done this,

you will be cursed more than any domesticated animal

and more than any wild animal.

On your belly you shall go

and dust you shall eat
all the days of your life.

Genesis 3:17 And to Adam he said, “Because you listened to the voice of your wife and you ate from the tree from which I forbade you to eat, the ground shall be cursed on your account.

In pain you shall eat from it all the days of your life.

Galatians 1:15–21 But when the one who set me apart from my mother’s womb and called me by his grace was pleased [16] to reveal his Son in me in order that I would proclaim the gospel about him among the Gentiles, immediately I did not consult with flesh and blood, [17] nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me, but I went away to Arabia and I returned again to Damascus. [18] Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to become acquainted with Cephas, and I stayed with him fifteen days, [19] but I did not see any others of the apostles except James, the brother of the Lord. [20] (Now the things which I am writing to you, behold, I assure you before God that I am not lying.) [21] Then I came to the regions of Syria and of Cilicia,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. [2] But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. [3] And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. [4] But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: [5] And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: [6] And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: [7] And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. [8] There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: [9] And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, [10] And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. [11] One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee? And it shall say, No. [12] At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. [13] To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; [30] It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

[31] And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; [32] This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. [32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Matthew 16:18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 32:27 And they do not lie with warriors fallen from long ago, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, and they placed their sword under their heads, and their shields were on their bones, for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living.

Psalm 88:10–12 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah [11] Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

[12] Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Psalm 88:11–13 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah [11] Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

[12] Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Job 26:1–6 Then Job answered and said, [2] "How you have helped one who has no power!

How you have assisted the arm that has no strength!

[3] How you have advised one who has no wisdom!

And what sound wisdom you have made known in abundance!

[4] With whose help have you uttered words, and whose breath has come forth from you?

[5] "The spirits of the dead tremble below the waters and their inhabitants.

[6] Sheol is naked before him, and there is no covering for Abaddon.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Psalm 106:37 They even sacrificed their sons and daughters to the demons,

Isaiah 13:21 But wild animals will lie down there, and their houses will be full of howling creatures, and the daughters of ostriches will live there, and goats will dance there.

Isaiah 34:14 And desert creatures shall meet with hyenas, and a goat-demon shall call to his neighbor;

surely there Lilith shall repose,

and she shall find a resting place for herself.

Leviticus 17:7 And they may no longer sacrifice their sacrifices to the goat-idols after which they were prostituting. This is a lasting statute for them throughout their generations.” ’

Matthew 25:41 Then he will also say to those on his left, ‘Depart from me, you accursed ones, into the eternal fire that has been prepared for the devil and his angels!

1 Corinthians 6:3 Do you not know that we will judge angels, not to mention ordinary matters?

1 Corinthians 11:10 Because of this, the woman ought to have a symbol of authority on her head, on account of the angels.

2 Corinthians 11:14 And no wonder, for Satan himself disguises himself as an angel of light.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Revelation 9:11 They have as king over them the angel of the abyss, whose name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek he has the name Apollyon.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days

shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. 2 But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. 3 And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. 4 But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine
again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: 5 And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: 6 And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: 7 And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. 8 There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: 9 And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, 10 And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. 11 One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee?
And it shall say, No. 12 At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. 13 To shew thee
such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; 30 It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

31 And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; 32 This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall

reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. [32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

1 Corinthians 2:8 which none of the rulers of this age knew. For if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Mark 5:7 And crying out with a loud voice he said, “What have I to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I implore you by God, do not torment me!”

Luke 8:28 And when he saw Jesus, he cried out, fell down before him, and said with a loud voice, “What do I have to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me!”

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Sirach 44:21 Therefore he assured him by an oath, that he would bless the nations in his seed, and that he would multiply him as the dust of the earth, and exalt his seed as the stars, and cause them to inherit from sea to sea, and from the river unto the utmost part of the land.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the

peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Genesis 10:2–16 The sons of Japheth: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. 3 And the sons of Gomer: Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah. 4 And the sons of Javan: Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim. 5 From these the coastland peoples spread out through their lands, each according to his own language by their own families, in their nations.

6 And the sons of Ham: Cush, Egypt, Put, and Canaan. 7 And the sons of Cush: Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. The sons of Raamah: Sheba and Dedan. 8 And Cush fathered Nimrod. He was the first on earth to be a mighty warrior. 9 He was a mighty hunter before Yahweh. Therefore it was said, “Like Nimrod a mighty hunter before Yahweh.” 10 Now, the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, Erech, Akkad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar. 11 From that land he went out to Assyria, and he built Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah, 12 Resen between Nineveh and Calah; that is the great city. 13 And Egypt fathered Ludim, Anamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim, 14 Pathrusim, and Casluhim (from whom the Philistines came), and Caphtorim.

15 Canaan fathered Sidon, his firstborn, and Heth, 16 and the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites,

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, "Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably." 14 Then Micaiah said, "As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak." 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?" He said to him, "Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king." 16 Then the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?" 17 So he said, "I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, 'There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.' " 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant 3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, 4 and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, 5 then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Ezekiel 28:12–19 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your
mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God's holy mountain;

you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

15 You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created,

until wickedness was found in you.

16 In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub,
from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings;

I have exposed you for viewing.

18 From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading,

I profaned your sanctuaries
and I brought fire from your midst;
it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.
19 All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;
you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,
turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 10:9 And I saw, and look, four wheels beside the cherubim, one wheel beside each cherub, and the appearance of the wheels was like the outward appearance of turquoise stone.

Isaiah 54:11 “O afflicted one, driven away, who is not consoled.
Look! I am about to set your stones in hard mortar, and I will lay your foundation with sapphires.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,
turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Exodus 28:20 and the fourth row is a turquoise and an onyx and a jasper. Their settings will be woven with gold.

Revelation 21:19 The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every kind of precious stone: the first foundation jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald,

Exodus 28:17 And you will fill it with stone mounting, four rows of stone, a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald is the first row;

Ezekiel 28:12–19 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain;

you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

15 You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created,

until wickedness was found in you.

16 In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings;

I have exposed you for viewing.

18 From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading,

I profaned your sanctuaries
and I brought fire from your midst;
it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.
19 All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;
you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,
turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 10:9 And I saw, and look, four wheels beside the cherubim, one wheel beside each cherub, and the appearance of the wheels was like the outward appearance of turquoise stone.

Isaiah 54:11 “O afflicted one, driven away, who is not consoled.
Look! I am about to set your stones in hard mortar, and I will lay your foundation with sapphires.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,
turquoise, onyx and jasper,
sapphire, malachite and emerald.
And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;
on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Exodus 28:20 and the fourth row is a turquoise and an onyx and a jasper. Their settings will be woven with gold.

Revelation 21:19 The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every kind of precious stone: the first foundation jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald,

Exodus 28:17 And you will fill it with stone mounting, four rows of stone, a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald is the first row;

Psalm 132:13 For Yahweh has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his habitation.

Psalm 48:2 Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Ezekiel 28:12–19 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

14 You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

15 You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created, until wickedness was found in you.

16 In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub, from the midst of the stones of fire.

17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.

I threw you on the ground before kings; I have exposed you for viewing.

18 From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading,

I profaned your sanctuaries

and I brought fire from your midst; it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.

[19] All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;

you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 10:9 And I saw, and look, four wheels beside the cherubim, one wheel beside each cherub, and the appearance of the wheels was like the outward appearance of turquoise stone.

Isaiah 54:11 “O afflicted one, driven away, who is not consoled.

Look! I am about to set your stones in hard mortar, and I will lay your foundation with sapphires.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Exodus 28:20 and the fourth row is a turquoise and an onyx and a jasper. Their settings will be woven with gold.

Revelation 21:19 The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every kind of precious stone: the first foundation jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald,

Exodus 28:17 And you will fill it with stone mounting, four rows of stone, a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald is the first row;

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Matthew 16:18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 32:27 And they do not lie with warriors fallen from long ago, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, and they placed their sword under their heads, and their shields were on their bones, for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living.

Psalm 88:10–12 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah 11 Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

12 Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Psalm 88:11–13 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah 11 Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

12 Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Job 26:1–6 Then Job answered and said, 2 “How you have helped one who has no power!

How you have assisted the arm that has no strength!

3 How you have advised one who has no wisdom!

And what sound wisdom you have made known in abundance!

4 With whose help have you uttered words, and whose breath has come forth from you?

5 “The spirits of the dead tremble below the waters and their inhabitants.

6 Sheol is naked before him, and there is no covering for Abaddon.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 132:13 For Yahweh has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his habitation.

Psalm 48:2 Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Ezekiel 28:12–19 “Son of man, raise a lament over the king of Tyre, and you must say to him, ‘thus says the Lord Yahweh: “You were a perfect model of an example, full of wisdom and perfect of beauty.

[13] You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

[14] You were an anointed guardian cherub, and I placed you on God’s holy mountain; you walked in the midst of stones of fire.

15 You were blameless in your ways from the day when you were created, until wickedness was found in you.
16 In the abundance of your trading, they filled the midst of you with violence, and you sinned; and I cast you as a profane thing from the mountain of God, and I expelled you, the guardian cherub,
from the midst of the stones of fire.
17 Your heart was proud because of your beauty; you ruined your wisdom because of your splendor.
I threw you on the ground before kings; I have exposed you for viewing.
18 From the abundance of your iniquities in the dishonesty of your trading,

I profaned your sanctuaries

and I brought fire from your midst; it consumed you, and I have turned you to ashes on the earth before the eyes of everyone who sees you.

[19] All who know you among the peoples are appalled over you;

you have become as horrors, and you shall cease to exist forever.” ’ ”

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Ezekiel 10:9 And I saw, and look, four wheels beside the cherubim, one wheel beside each cherub, and the appearance of the wheels was like the outward appearance of turquoise stone.

Isaiah 54:11 “O afflicted one, driven away, who is not consoled.

Look! I am about to set your stones in hard mortar, and I will lay your foundation with sapphires.

Ezekiel 28:13 You were in Eden, the garden of God, and every precious stone was your adornment: carnelian, topaz and moonstone,

turquoise, onyx and jasper,

sapphire, malachite and emerald.

And gold was the craftsmanship of your settings and your mountings in you;

on the day when you were created they were prepared.

Exodus 28:20 and the fourth row is a turquoise and an onyx and a jasper. Their settings will be woven with gold.

Revelation 21:19 The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every kind of precious stone: the first foundation jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald,

Exodus 28:17 And you will fill it with stone mounting, four rows of stone, a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald is the first row;

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and

Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Acts 2:6 And when this sound occurred, the crowd gathered and was in confusion, because each one was hearing them speaking in his own language.

Acts 9:22 But Saul was increasing in strength even more, and was confounding the Jews who lived in Damascus by proving that this one is the Christ.

Acts 19:32 So some were shouting one thing and some another, for the assembly was in confusion, and the majority did not know why they had assembled.

Acts 21:27 But when the seven days were about to be completed, the Jews from Asia who had seen him in the temple courts stirred up the whole crowd and laid hands on him,

Acts 21:31 And as they were seeking to kill him, a report came up to the military tribune of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in confusion.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

John 8:56–58 Abraham your father rejoiced that he would see my day, and he saw it and was glad."

57 So the Jews said to him, "You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?" 58 Jesus said to them, "Truly, truly I say to you, before Abraham was, I am!"

Exodus 3:14 And God said to Moses, "I am that I am." And he said, "So you must say to the Israelites, 'I am sent me to you.' "

Exodus 3:1–3 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, "Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?"

Romans 3:9 What then? Do we have an advantage? Not at all. For we have already charged both Jews and Greeks are all under sin,

Romans 3:23 for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God,

Romans 5:12 Because of this, just as sin entered into the world through one man, and death through sin, so also death spread to all people because all sinned.

Romans 5:18 Consequently therefore, as through one trespass came condemnation to all people, so also through one righteous deed came justification of life to all people.

Titus 2:11 For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all people,

Hebrews 5:9 and being perfected, he became the source of eternal salvation to all those who obey him,

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, “I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh.”

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, “I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh.”

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, “I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh.”

Genesis 18:9–14 And they said to him, “Where is Sarah your wife?” And he said, “Here, in the tent.” [10] And he said, “I will certainly return to you in the spring, and look, Sarah your wife will have a son.” Now Sarah was listening at the doorway of the tent, and which was behind him. [11] Now Abraham and Sarah were old, advanced in age; the way of women had ceased to be for Sarah. [12] So Sarah laughed to herself saying, “After I am worn out and my husband is old, shall this pleasure be to me?” [13] Then Yahweh said to Abraham, “What is this that Sarah laughed, saying, ‘Is it indeed true that I will bear a child, now that I have grown old?’ [14] Is anything too difficult for Yahweh? At the appointed time I will return to you in the spring and Sarah shall have a son."

Genesis 21:1–2 And Yahweh visited Sarah as he had said. And Yahweh did to Sarah as he had promised. 2 And she conceived, and Sarah bore to Abraham a son in his old age at the appointed time that God had told him.

Genesis 25:21 And Isaac prayed to Yahweh on behalf of his wife, for she was barren. And Yahweh responded to his prayer, and Rebekah his wife conceived.

Genesis 29:32–35 Then Leah conceived and gave birth to a son, and she called his name Reuben, for she said, "Because Yahweh has noticed my misery. Surely now my husband will love me." 33 And she conceived again and gave birth to a son. And she said, "It is because Yahweh has heard that I am unloved that he gave me this son also." And she called his name Simeon. 34 And she conceived again and gave birth to a son. Then she said, "Now this time my husband will be joined to me, for I have borne him three sons." Therefore, she called his name Levi. 35 And she conceived again and gave birth to a son. And she said, "This time I will praise Yahweh." Therefore she called his name Judah. And she ceased bearing children.

Genesis 30:16–24 When Jacob came in from the field in the evening, Leah went out to meet him. And she said, "Come in to me, for I have hired you with my son's mandrakes." And he slept with her that night. 17 And God listened to Leah and she conceived and gave birth to a fifth son for Jacob. 18 Then Leah said, "God has given me my wage since I gave my slave girl to my husband." And she called his name Issachar. 19 And Leah conceived again and gave birth to a sixth son for Jacob. 20 And Leah said, "God has endowed me with a good gift. This time my husband will acknowledge me, because I bore him six sons." And she called his name Zebulun. 21 And afterward she gave birth to a daughter. And she called her name Dinah. 22 Then God remembered Rachel and listened to her, and God opened her womb. 23 And she conceived and gave birth to a son. And she said, "God has taken away my disgrace." 24 And she called his name Joseph, saying, "Yahweh has added to me another son."

1 Samuel 1:19–20 Then they rose early in the morning and worshiped before Yahweh and returned to their house at Ramah. Then Elkanah had sexual relations with Hannah his wife, and Yahweh remembered her. [20] In due time, Hannah conceived and gave birth to a son. She called his name Samuel, for she said, "I requested him from Yahweh."

Psalm 17:14 from men by your hand, O Yahweh, from men of this world.

Their share is in this life, and you fill their stomach with your treasure.

They are satisfied with children.

They bequeath their excess to their children.

Psalm 127:3 Look, children are the heritage of Yahweh; the fruit of the womb is a reward.

Isaiah 44:2 Thus says Yahweh, who made you, and who formed you in the womb and will help you: you must not fear, my servant Jacob,

and Jeshurun whom I have chosen.

Isaiah 44:24 Thus says Yahweh, your redeemer, and he who formed you in the womb: "I am Yahweh, who made everything, who stretched out the heavens alone, who spread out the earth—who was with me?—

Genesis 4:1 Now Adam knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain. And she said, "I have given birth to a man with the help of Yahweh."

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Genesis 10:2–16 The sons of Japheth: Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Meshech, and Tiras. 3 And the sons of Gomer: Ashkenaz, Riphath, and Togarmah. 4 And the sons of Javan: Elishah, Tarshish, Kittim, and Dodanim. 5 From these the coastland peoples spread out through their lands, each according to his own language by their own families, in their nations.

6 And the sons of Ham: Cush, Egypt, Put, and Canaan. 7 And the sons of Cush: Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. The sons of Raamah: Sheba and Dedan. 8 And Cush fathered Nimrod. He was the first on earth to be a mighty warrior. 9 He was a mighty hunter before Yahweh. Therefore it was said, “Like Nimrod a mighty hunter before Yahweh.” 10 Now, the beginning of his kingdom was Babel, Erech, Akkad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar. 11 From that land he went out to Assyria, and he built Nineveh, Rehoboth-Ir, Calah, 12 Resen between Nineveh and Calah; that is the great city. 13 And Egypt fathered Ludim, Anamim, Lehabim, Naphtuhim, 14 Pathrusim, and Casluhim (from whom the Philistines came), and Caphtorim.

15 Canaan fathered Sidon, his firstborn, and Heth, 16 and the Jebusites, the Amorites, the Girgashites,

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. 22 Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:25–26 And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Genesis 12:3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant [3] and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, [4] and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, [5] then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. [2] But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. [3] And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. [4] But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: [5] And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: [6] And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: [7] And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. [8] There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: [9] And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, [10] And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. [11] One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee? And it shall say, No. [12] At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. [13] To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; [30] It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

[31] And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; [32] This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. [32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 11:28–29 And Joshua son of Nun, the assistant of Moses from time of his youth, answered, “Moses, my lord, stop them.” [29] But Moses said to him, “Are you jealous for my sake? Would that he give all Yahweh’s people prophets, that Yahweh put his spirit on them!”

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, [2] a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:1 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls,

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, 2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:1 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls,

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 2:12 The Horites previously lived in Seir, but the descendants of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from among themselves, as Israel did with respect to the land of their possession that Yahweh gave to them.)

Deuteronomy 2:20–23 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, 21 a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them, 22 just as he did for the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed the Horites from before them and dispossessed them, and then they settled in their place up to this day. 23 And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

Deuteronomy 9:1–3 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, 2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’ 3 You should know today that Yahweh your God is the one crossing ahead of you as a devouring fire; he will destroy them, and he will subdue them before you; so you will dispossess them, and you will destroy them quickly, just as Yahweh promised you.

Amos 2:9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, who was as tall as cedars and was as strong as the oaks. I destroyed his fruit above and his roots beneath.

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. 2 But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. 3 And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. 4 But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: 5 And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: 6 And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: 7 And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. 8 There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: 9 And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, 10 And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. [11] One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee? And it shall say, No. [12] At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. [13] To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; [30] It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

[31] And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; [32] This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. [32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words.
2 And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. 3 And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. 4 And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. 6 And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. 7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. [20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ [25] And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ [25] And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

James 1:1–3 James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Greetings!

[2] Consider it all joy, my brothers, whenever you encounter various trials, [3] because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ’s, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Psalm 82:6–7 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

[7] However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes.”

Daniel 7:14 And to him was given dominion and glory and kingship that all the peoples, the nations, and languages would serve him; his dominion is a dominion without end that will not cease, and his kingdom is one that will not be destroyed.

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words. [2] And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of

Shinar and settled there. [3] And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. [4] And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

[5] Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. [6] And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. [7] Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” [8] So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. [9] Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Numbers 13:28–29 Yet the people who are inhabiting it are strong and the cities are fortified and very large; moreover, we saw the descendants of the Anakites there. [29] The Amalekites are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and the Amorites are living in the hill country; and the Canaanites are living at the sea and on the banks of the Jordan.”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34 And Yahweh said to Moses, "Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon." 35 And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised."

13 And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. 14 Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh

the God of Israel. [15] And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Matthew 16:18 And I also say to you that you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not overpower it!

Isaiah 14:9 Sheol below is getting excited over you, to meet you when you come;

it arouses the dead spirits for you, all of the leaders of the earth.

It raises all of the kings of the nations from their thrones.

Ezekiel 32:27 And they do not lie with warriors fallen from long ago, who went down to Sheol with their weapons of war, and they placed their sword under their heads, and their shields were on their bones, for the terror of the warriors was in the land of the living.

Psalm 88:10–12 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah 11 Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

12 Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Psalm 88:11–13 Do you work wonders for the dead?

Or do the departed spirits rise up to praise you? Selah 11 Is your loyal love told in the grave, or your faithfulness in the underworld?

12 Are your wonders known in the darkness, or your righteousness in the land of forgetfulness?

Job 26:1–6 Then Job answered and said, 2 “How you have helped one who has no power!

How you have assisted the arm that has no strength!

3 How you have advised one who has no wisdom!

And what sound wisdom you have made known in abundance!

4 With whose help have you uttered words, and whose breath has come forth from you?

5 “The spirits of the dead tremble below the waters and their inhabitants.

6 Sheol is naked before him, and there is no covering for Abaddon.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God

saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 11:28–29 And Joshua son of Nun, the assistant of Moses from time of his youth, answered, “Moses, my lord, stop them.” [29] But Moses said to him, “Are you jealous for my sake? Would that he give all Yahweh’s people prophets, that Yahweh put his spirit on them!”

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, [2] a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:1 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls,

Deuteronomy 9:1–2 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, [2] a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 9:1 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls,

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Deuteronomy 2:12 The Horites previously lived in Seir, but the descendants of Esau dispossessed them and destroyed them from among themselves, as Israel did with respect to the land of their possession that Yahweh gave to them.)

Deuteronomy 2:20–23 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, [21] a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them, [22] just as he did for the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed the Horites from before them and dispossessed them, and then they settled in their place up to this day. [23] And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

Deuteronomy 9:1–3 “Hear, Israel, you are about to cross the Jordan today to go to dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you, great cities fortified with high walls, [2] a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’ [3] You should know today that Yahweh your God is the one crossing ahead of you as a devouring fire; he will destroy them, and he will subdue them before you; so you will dispossess them, and you will destroy them quickly, just as Yahweh promised you.

Amos 2:9 Yet I destroyed the Amorite before them, who was as tall as cedars and was as strong as the oaks. I destroyed his fruit above and his roots beneath.

Genesis 1:26–27 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.” [27] So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Joshua 11:14 And all the spoil and livestock of these cities the Israelites took as booty; they struck the people with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them—they left behind no one who breathed.

Deuteronomy 2:10 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites.

Deuteronomy 2:20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, Deuteronomy 3:1–3 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei. 2 And Yahweh said to me, ‘You should not fear him, for I have given him and all of his army and his land into your hand. And so you will do to him as you did to Sihon the king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon.’ 3 And so Yahweh our God also gave Og the king of Bashan, and all of his army into our hand, and we struck him down until not a survivor remained to him.

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 6:4 “Hear, Israel, Yahweh our God, Yahweh is unique.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. [20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant 3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, 4 and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, 5 then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Matthew 28:19–20 Therefore, go and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, [20] teaching them to observe everything I have commanded you, and behold, I am with you all the days until the end of the age.”

Genesis 1:26 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.”

Jude 9 But Michael the archangel, when he argued with the devil, disputing concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!”

1 Thessalonians 4:16 For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout of command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” [14] And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh’s army.” And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, “What is my lord commanding his servant?” [15] The commander of Yahweh’s army said to Joshua, “Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy.” And Joshua did so.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 7:13 “I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Psalm 132:13 For Yahweh has chosen Zion; he has desired it for his habitation.

Psalm 48:2 Beautiful in elevation, the joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion, in the far north, the city of the great king.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Jude 9 But Michael the archangel, when he argued with the devil, disputing concerning the body of Moses, did not dare to pronounce a blasphemous judgment, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!”

1 Thessalonians 4:16 For the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a shout of command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first.

Daniel 10:21 However, I will tell you what is inscribed in the book of truth, and there is not one who contends with me against these beings except

Michael, your prince.”

Daniel 12:1 “Now at that time, Michael, the great prince, will arise, the protector over the sons of your people, and it will be a time of distress that has not been since your people have been a nation until that time. And at that time your people will escape, everyone who is found written in the scroll.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Daniel 11:36 “Then the king will do as he pleases, and he will exalt himself and will consider himself above any god, and he will speak horrendous things against the God of gods, yet he will succeed until the period of anger is finished, for what is determined will be done.

Joshua 5:13–15 And it happened, when Joshua was by Jericho, he looked up, and he saw a man standing opposite him with his sword drawn in his hand. And Joshua went to him and said, “Are you with us, or with our adversaries?” 14 And he said, “Neither. I have come now as the commander of Yahweh's army." And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and he bowed down and said to him, "What is my lord commanding his servant?" [15] The commander of Yahweh's army said to Joshua, "Take off your sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy." And Joshua did so.

Daniel 10:13 But the prince of the kingdom of Persia stood before me for twenty-one days. And look, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to assist me, and I left him there beside the king of the Persians.

Daniel 8:11 Even against the prince of the hosts it acted arrogantly and took away from him the regular burnt offering, and the place of his sanctuary was overthrown.

Daniel 8:25 And by his planning he will make a success of deceit by his hand, and in his mind he will boast, and in their ease he will destroy many, and even against the prince of princes he will rise up, and he will be broken, but not by human hands.

Daniel 7:13 "I continued watching in the visions of the night, and look, with the clouds of heaven one like a son of man was coming, and he came to the Ancient of Days, and was presented before him.

Psalm 82:3 Judge on behalf of the helpless and the orphan; provide justice to the afflicted and the poor.

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Matthew 28:19–20 Therefore, go and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, [20] teaching them to observe everything I have commanded you, and behold, I am with you all the days until the end of the age."

Genesis 1:26 And God said, "Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth."

Matthew 3:11 I baptize you with water for repentance, but the one who comes after me is more powerful than I am, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

Luke 3:16 John answered them all, saying, “I baptize you with water, but the one who is more powerful than I am is coming, of whom I am not worthy to untie the strap of his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

Acts 1:1–5 I produced the former account, O Theophilus, about all that Jesus began to do and to teach, [2] until the day he was taken up, after he had given orders through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen, [3] to whom he also presented himself alive after he suffered, with many convincing proofs, appearing to them over a period of forty days and speaking the things about the kingdom of God. [4] And while he was with them, he commanded them, “Do not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for what was promised by the Father, which you heard about from me. [5] For John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now.”

John 14:26 But the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name—that one will teach you all things, and will remind you of everything that I said to you.

John 15:26 “When the Advocate comes, whom I will send to you from the Father—the Spirit of truth, who proceeds from the Father—that one will testify about me.

Luke 24:49 And behold, I am sending out what was promised by my Father upon you, but you stay in the city until you are clothed with power from on high.”

John 7:39 Now he said this concerning the Spirit, whom those who believed in him were about to receive. For the Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus had not yet been glorified.)

Numbers 21:2–3 Israel made a vow to Yahweh, and they said, “If you will surely give this people into our hand, then we will destroy their cities.” [3]

Yahweh heard the voice of Israel; he gave to them the Canaanites, and they destroyed them and their cities. They called the name of the place Hormah.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. [20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, "Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously

favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant 3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, 4 and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, 5 then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words.
2 And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. 3 And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. 4 And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. 6 And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. 7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ 25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. 26 And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ 25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

James 1:1–3 James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Greetings!

[2] Consider it all joy, my brothers, whenever you encounter various trials, [3] because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, [27] for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. [28] There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. [29] And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Psalm 82:6–7 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

[7] However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes."

Deuteronomy 4:25–27 "When you have had children and grandchildren and you have grown old in the land and you act corruptly and you make a divine image of the form of anything and you do evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God, thus provoking him to anger, [26] I call to witness against you today the heaven and the earth, that you will perish soon and completely from the land that you are crossing the Jordan into it to take possession of it; you will not live long on it, but you will be completely destroyed. [27] And Yahweh will scatter you among the peoples, and you will be left few in number among the nations to where Yahweh will lead you.

Deuteronomy 4:39–40 So you shall acknowledge today, and you must call to mind that Yahweh is God in heaven above and on the earth beneath. There is no other God. [40] And you shall keep his rules and his commandments that I am commanding you today, so that it may go well for you and for your children after you, and so that you may remain a long time on the land that Yahweh your God is giving to you during all of those days."

Deuteronomy 11:18–24 "And you shall put these, my words, on your heart and on your inner self, and you shall bind them as a sign on your hand and let them be as an emblem between your eyes. [19] And you shall teach them to your children by talking about them when you sit in your house and when you travel on the road and when you lie down and when you get up. [20] And you shall write them on the doorframes of your house and on your gates, [21] so that they may multiply your days and the days of your children on the land that Yahweh swore to your ancestors to give it to them as long as heaven endures over the earth. [22] Yes, if you diligently keep all this commandment that I am commanding you to observe it, by loving Yahweh your God by walking in all his ways and by holding fast to him, [23] then Yahweh will drive out all of these nations before you, and you will dispossess nations larger and more numerous than you. [24] Every place on which the sole of your foot treads, it shall be yours; your boundary shall be from the desert and Lebanon from the river, the river Euphrates, on up to the western sea.

Leviticus 26:14–28 " 'But if you do not listen to me and you do not carry out all these commands, [15] and if you reject my statutes and if your inner self abhors my regulations, to not carry out all my commands by your breaking my covenant, [16] I in turn will do this to you: then I will summon onto you horror, the wasting disease, and the fever that wastes eyes and that drains away life; and you shall sow your seed in vain, and your enemies shall eat it. [17] And I will set my face against you, and you shall be defeated before your enemies; and your haters shall rule over you, and you shall flee away, but there shall not be anybody who is pursuing you.

[18] " 'And if in spite of these things you do not listen to me, then I will continue to discipline you seven times for your sins. [19] And I will break the pride of your strength; and I will make your heaven like iron and your land like copper. 20 And your strength shall be consumed in vain; and your land shall not give its produce, and the land's trees shall not give their fruit.

21 " 'And if you go against me in hostility and you are not willing to listen to me, then I will add a plague onto you seven times according to your sins. 22 And I will send wild animals out among you, and they shall make you childless, and they shall cut down your domestic animals, and they shall make you fewer; and your roads shall be desolate.

23 " 'And if you do not accept correction from me through these things, but you go against me in hostility, 24 then I myself will also go against you in hostility, and I myself also will strike you seven times for your sins. 25 And I will bring upon you a sword that seeks vengeance for the covenant, and you shall be gathered to your cities; and I will send a plague in your midst, and you shall be given into the hand of an enemy. 26 At my breaking the supply of bread for you, then ten women shall bake your bread in one oven, and they shall return your bread by weight; and you shall eat it, and you shall not be satisfied.

27 " 'And if through this you do not listen to me and you go against me in hostility, 28 then I will go against you in hostile anger, and also I myself will discipline you seven times for your sins.

Deuteronomy 28:43–52 The alien that is in your midst shall ascend over you, higher and higher, but you shall go down lower and lower. 44 He shall lend to you, but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head, but you shall be the tail.

45 "And all of these curses shall come over you, and they shall pursue you, and they shall overtake you until you are destroyed, because you did not listen to the voice of Yahweh your God, by observing his commandments and his statutes that he commanded you. 46 And they shall be among you as a sign and as a wonder and among your offspring forever.

47 "Because of the fact that you did not serve Yahweh your God with joy and with gladness of heart for the abundance of everything, 48 then you shall serve your enemies, whom Yahweh will send against you under conditions of famine, in thirst, in nakedness, and in a lack of everything;

and he shall place a yoke of iron on your neck until he has destroyed you. [49] Yahweh will raise up against you a nation from far off, from the end of the earth, attacking as the eagle swoops down, a nation whose language you will not understand, [50] a grim-faced nation who does not show respect to the old and the young and does not show pity. [51] And it shall consume the fruit of your livestock and the fruit of your ground until you are destroyed, and who will not leave for you any grain, wine, and olive oil, calves of your herds, and lambs of your flock until it has destroyed you. [52] And it shall besiege you in all your towns until your high and fortified walls fall, which you are trusting in throughout your land; and it shall besiege you in all of your towns in all of your land that Yahweh your God has given to you.

Deuteronomy 28:64–67 And Yahweh shall scatter you among all the nations from one end of the earth up to the other end of the earth, and there you shall serve other gods that you have not known nor your ancestors, gods of wood and stone. [65] And among these nations you shall not find rest, and there shall not be a resting place for the sole of your foot, and Yahweh shall give you there an anxious heart and a weakening of eyes and a languishing of your inner self. [66] And your life shall hang in doubt before you, and you shall be startled night and day, and you shall not be confident of your life. [67] In the morning you shall say, 'If only it was evening!' and in the evening you shall say 'If only it was morning!' because of the dread of your heart that you shall feel, and because of the sight of your eyes that you shall see.

Deuteronomy 29:22–28 "And the next generation, that is, your children who will rise up after you, and the foreigner who will come from a distant land, when they will see the plagues of that land and its diseases that Yahweh has inflicted upon it, will say, [23] 'All its land is brimstone and salt left by fire, none of its land will be sown, and it will not make plants sprout out and it will not grow any vegetation; it is as the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah, Adman and Zeboiim, which Yahweh overturned in his anger and in his wrath.' [24] And all the nations will say, 'Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?' [25] And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them. [27] So the anger of Yahweh was kindled against that land to bring upon it all the curses written in this scroll, [28] and Yahweh uprooted them from their land in anger and in wrath and in great fury, and he cast them into another land, just as it is today.'

Deuteronomy 31:14–28 Then Yahweh said to Moses, "Look, you are about to die; call Joshua and present yourselves in the tent of assembly, so that I may instruct him." So Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves in the tent of assembly. [15] And Yahweh appeared in the tent in a column of cloud, and the column of the cloud stood at the entrance of the tent. [16] And Yahweh said to Moses, "Look, you are about to lie down with your ancestors, and this people will arise and they will play the prostitute after the foreign gods of the land to which they are going. [17] And my anger shall flare up against them on that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide my face from them, and they shall become as prey, and disasters and troubles shall find them, and they shall say on that day, 'Is it not because our God is not in our midst that these disasters have found us?' [18] But I will certainly hide my face on that day, because of all of the evil that they did because they turned to other gods.

[19] "And so then write this song for yourselves and teach it to the Israelites; put it in their mouth, so that this song may be for me as a witness against the Israelites. [20] For when I bring them into the land that I swore to their ancestors, a land flowing with milk and honey, they will eat their fill, and they will become fat, and then they will turn to other gods, and they will serve them, and they will spurn me, and they will break my covenant. [21] And then many disasters and troubles will come upon them, and this song will give evidence before them as a witness, because it will not be forgotten from out of the mouth of their descendants, for I know their inclination that they are having today before I have brought them into the land that I swore." [22] And Moses wrote this song on that day and taught it to the Israelites.

[23] Then he told Joshua the son of Nun, and said to him, "Be strong and be courageous, for you shall bring the Israelites into the land that I swore to them, and I will be with you.”

24 And then when Moses finished writing the words of this law on the scroll until they were complete, 25 then Moses commanded the Levites carrying the ark of the covenant of Yahweh, saying, 26 “Take the scroll of this law and put it at the side of the ark of the covenant of Yahweh your God, and it will be there as a witness against you. 27 For I know your rebellion and your stiff neck even now while I am still alive with you today, rebelling against Yahweh, and how much more after my death. 28 Assemble to me all the elders of your tribes and your officials, so that I may speak in their ears these words, and that I may call as witness against them heaven and earth.

Judges 2:1–2 And the angel of Yahweh went up from Gilgal to Bokim and said, “I brought you up from Egypt, and I brought you to the land that I had promised to your ancestors. I said, ‘I will never break my covenant with you. 2 And as for you, do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of this land; break down their altars.’ But you did not listen to my voice. Why would you do such a thing?

Judges 2:5 And they called the name of this place Bokim, and there they sacrificed to Yahweh.

Isaiah 14:13–14 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

14 I will ascend to the high places of the clouds, I will make myself like the Most High.’

Psalm 147:4 He counts the number of the stars; he gives names to all of them.

Genesis 1:16 And God made two great lights, the greater light to rule the day and the smaller light to rule the night, and the stars.

Judges 5:20 The stars fought from heaven; from their courses they fought against Sisera.

Isaiah 40:25–26 “And to whom you will compare me, and am I equal?” says the holy one.

26 Lift your eyes up on high, and see! Who created these?

The one who brings out their host by number.

He calls all them by name.

Because he is great of power and mighty of power, not one is missing.

Daniel 8:10 And it grew up to the host of heaven, and it threw down to the ground some of the host and some of the stars and trampled them.

Revelation 12:1–9 And a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun and with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars, 2 and who was pregnant and was crying out because she was having birth pains, and was in torment to give birth. 3 And another sign appeared in heaven, and behold, a great fiery red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads were seven royal headbands. 4 And his tail swept away a third of the stars from heaven and threw them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman who was about to give birth, in order that whenever she gave birth to her child he could devour it. 5 And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is going to shepherd all the nations with an iron rod, and her child was snatched away to God and to his throne. 6 And the woman fled into the wilderness, where she had a place prepared there by God, so that they could feed her there for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

7 And there was war in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon, and the dragon and his angels fought back. 8 And they did not prevail, nor was a place found for them any longer in heaven. 9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:10 " 'I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Revelation 16:16 And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven; I will raise up my throne above the stars of God; and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Revelation 16:16 And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and

Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 6:4 “Hear, Israel, Yahweh our God, Yahweh is unique.

1 Thessalonians 5:23 Now may the God of peace himself sanctify you completely, and may your spirit and soul and body be kept complete, blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Deuteronomy 6:4 “Hear, Israel, Yahweh our God, Yahweh is unique.

Matthew 22:37 And he said to him, “ ‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind.’

Mark 12:29–30 Jesus answered, “The most important is, ‘Listen, Israel! The Lord our God, the Lord is one. [30] And you shall love the Lord your God from your whole heart and from your whole soul and from your whole mind and from your whole strength.’

Hebrews 4:12 For the word of God is living and active and sharper than any double-edged sword, and piercing as far as the division of soul and spirit, both joints and marrow, and able to judge the reflections and thoughts of the heart.

Deuteronomy 6:4 “Hear, Israel, Yahweh our God, Yahweh is unique.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. [20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant 3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, 4 and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, 5 then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> 9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven.

20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant 3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, 4 and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, [5] then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, “Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably.” 14 Then Micaiah said, “As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak.” 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, “Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?” He said to him, “Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king.” 16 Then the king said to him, “How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?” 17 So he said, “I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant [3] and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, [4] and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, [5] then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

2 Samuel 15:24–25 Suddenly Zadok was there, and all of the Levites with him, carrying the ark of the covenant of God. They set the ark of God down, and Abiathar offered sacrifices until all the people passed out of the city. [25] The king said to Zadok, "Let the ark of God return to the city. If I find favor in the eyes of Yawheh, he will let me return and let me see him in his dwelling place.

1 Kings 3:4 So the king went to Gibeon to sacrifice, for the great high place was there. Solomon used to offer a thousand burnt offerings on that altar.

2 Chronicles 1:3 And Solomon and the whole assembly with him went to the high place that was at Gibeon, for the tent of assembly of God that Moses the servant of Yahweh had made in the desert was there.

1 Kings 6:2 Now the house that King Solomon built for Yahweh was sixty cubits in its length and twenty cubits in its width and thirty cubits in its height.

1 Corinthians 2:8 which none of the rulers of this age knew. For if they had known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Mark 5:7 And crying out with a loud voice he said, “What have I to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I implore you by God, do not torment me!”

Luke 8:28 And when he saw Jesus, he cried out, fell down before him, and said with a loud voice, “What do I have to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me!”

Matthew 3:11 I baptize you with water for repentance, but the one who comes after me is more powerful than I am, whose sandals I am not worthy to carry. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

Luke 3:16 John answered them all, saying, “I baptize you with water, but the one who is more powerful than I am is coming, of whom I am not worthy to untie the strap of his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

Acts 1:1–5 I produced the former account, O Theophilus, about all that Jesus began to do and to teach, [2] until the day he was taken up, after he had given orders through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen, [3] to whom he also presented himself alive after he suffered, with many convincing proofs, appearing to them over a period of forty days and speaking the things about the kingdom of God. [4] And while he was with them, he commanded them, “Do not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for what was promised by the Father, which you heard about from me. [5] For John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now.”

John 14:26 But the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name—that one will teach you all things, and will remind you of everything that I said to you.

John 15:26 “When the Advocate comes, whom I will send to you from the Father—the Spirit of truth, who proceeds from the Father—that one will testify about me.

Luke 24:49 And behold, I am sending out what was promised by my Father upon you, but you stay in the city until you are clothed with power from on high.”

John 7:39 Now he said this concerning the Spirit, whom those who believed in him were about to receive. For the Spirit was not yet given, because Jesus had not yet been glorified.)

Genesis 37:12–17 Now his brothers went to pasture the flock of their father in Shechem. 13 And Israel said to Joseph, “Are not your brothers pasturing in Shechem? Come, let me send you to them.” And he said to him, “Here I am.” 14 Then he said to him, “Go now, see if it goes well for your brothers and for the flock, then return word to me.” And he sent him from the valley of Hebron, and he arrived at Shechem. 15 And a man found him, and behold, he was wandering about in a field. And the man asked him, “What do you seek?” 16 And he said, “I am seeking my brothers. Tell me, please, where they are pasturing.” 17 And the man said, “They have moved on from here, for I heard them saying, ‘Let us go to Dothan.’ ” Then Joseph went after his brothers and found them in Dothan.

Genesis 37:15 And a man found him, and behold, he was wandering about in a field. And the man asked him, “What do you seek?”

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> 9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34 And Yahweh said to Moses, "Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon." 35 And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised."

13 And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. 14 Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh

the God of Israel. [15] And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. [33] There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. [32] Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

[33] Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. [34] And Yahweh said to Moses, "Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon.” [35] And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. [22] None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised.”

[13] And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. [14] Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh the God of Israel. [15] And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

2 Peter 2:4–10 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment, [5] and did not spare the ancient world, but preserved Noah, a proclaimer of righteousness, and seven others when he brought a flood on the world of the ungodly, [6] and condemned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to destruction, reducing them to ashes, having appointed them as an example for those who are going to be ungodly, [7] and rescued righteous Lot, worn down by the way of life of lawless persons in licentiousness [8] (for that righteous man, as he lived among them day after day, was tormenting his righteous soul by the lawless deeds he was seeing and hearing), [9] then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trials and to reserve the unrighteous to be punished at the day of judgment, [10] and especially those who go after the flesh in defiling lust and who despise authority.

Bold and arrogant, they do not tremble in awe as they blaspheme majestic beings,

Jude 6–7 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day, 7 as Sodom and Gomorrah and the towns around them indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural desire in the same way as these, are exhibited as an example by undergoing the punishment of eternal fire.

Galatians 1:15–21 But when the one who set me apart from my mother's womb and called me by his grace was pleased 16 to reveal his Son in me in order that I would proclaim the gospel about him among the Gentiles, immediately I did not consult with flesh and blood, 17 nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were apostles before me, but I went away to Arabia and I returned again to Damascus. 18 Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to become acquainted with Cephas, and I stayed with him fifteen days, 19 but I did not see any others of the apostles except James, the brother of the Lord. 20 (Now the things which I am writing to you, behold, I assure you before God that I am not lying.) 21 Then I came to the regions of Syria and of Cilicia,

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the

peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, "Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably." 14 Then Micaiah said, "As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak." 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?" He said to him, "Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king." 16 Then the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?" 17 So he said, "I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, 'There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.' " 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?"

19 And he said, "Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, 'Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?' Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, 'I will entice him,' and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant [3] and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, [4] and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, [5] then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, "The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34 And Yahweh said to Moses, "Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon." 35 And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised."

13 And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. 14 Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh
the God of Israel. 15 And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words.
2 And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. 3 And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. 4 And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. 6 And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. 7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven.

[20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ [25] And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ [25] And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

James 1:1–3 James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Greetings!

2 Consider it all joy, my brothers, whenever you encounter various trials, 3 because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, 27 for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. 28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Psalm 82:6–7 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes."

Genesis 3:14 Then Yahweh God said to the serpent, "Because you have done this,

you will be cursed

more than any domesticated animal
and more than any wild animal.
On your belly you shall go

and dust you shall eat
all the days of your life.

Genesis 3:17 And to Adam he said, “Because you listened to the voice of your wife and you ate from the tree from which I forbade you to eat, the ground shall be cursed on your account.

In pain you shall eat from it all the days of your life.

Isaiah 14:29 You must not rejoice, all you Philistines, that the rod that struck you is broken, for a viper will come forth from the root of the snake, and its fruit will be a flying serpent.

Isaiah 11:10 And this shall happen on that day: the nations shall inquire of the root of Jesse, which shall be standing as a signal to the peoples, and his resting place shall be glorious.

Isaiah 11:1 And a shoot will come out from the stump of Jesse, and a branch from its roots will bear fruit.

Hosea 9:16 Ephraim is stricken, their root is dried up,

they shall not bear fruit.

Even if they give birth,

I will kill the cherished offspring of their womb.

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. [2] But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. [3] And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. [4] But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: [5] And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: [6] And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: [7] And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. [8] There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: [9] And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, [10] And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. [11] One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee? And it shall say, No. [12] At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. [13] To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; [30] It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

[31] And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; [32] This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. [32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 32:9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Numbers 21:2–3 Israel made a vow to Yahweh, and they said, “If you will surely give this people into our hand, then we will destroy their cities.” 3 Yahweh heard the voice of Israel; he gave to them the Canaanites, and they destroyed them and their cities. They called the name of the place Hormah.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Revelation 16:16 And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Zechariah 12:11 On that day the wailing will be great in Jerusalem, like the wailing for Hadad Rimmon in the plain of Megiddo.

Isaiah 14:13 And you yourself said in your heart, ‘I will ascend to heaven;

I will raise up my throne above the stars of God;

and I will sit on the mountain of assembly on the summit of Zaphon;

Zechariah 12:10 “ ‘I will pour on the house of David and on the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and supplication, and they will look to me whom they pierced, and they shall mourn over him, as one wails over an only child, and they will grieve bitterly over him as one grieves bitterly over a firstborn.

Revelation 16:16 And he gathered them to the place called in Hebrew Armageddon.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, "Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, 'Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?' Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, 'I will entice him,' and Yahweh said to him, 'How?' [22] He said, 'I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.' And he said, 'You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.' [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you."

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Acts 26:10 which I also did in Jerusalem, and not only did I lock up many of the saints in prison, having received authority from the chief priests, but also when they were being executed, I cast my vote against them.

Revelation 19:9 And he said to me, “Write: Blessed are those who are invited to the banquet of the wedding celebration of the Lamb!” And he said to me, “These are the true words of God.”

Exodus 28:9–12 “And you will take two onyx stones and engrave on them the names of the Israelites, [10] with six of their names on the one stone and the remaining six on the second, according to their genealogies. [11] As the work of a skilled stone craftsman, with seal engravings you will engrave on the two stones the names of the Israelites; you will make them mounted in gold filigree settings. [12] And you will set the two stones on the ephod’s shoulder pieces as stones of remembrance for the Israelites, and Aaron will bear their names before Yahweh on his two shoulder pieces for remembrance.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. [2] And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. [3] And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler’s staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34 And Yahweh said to Moses, “Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon.” 35 And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised.”

13 And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. 14 Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh the God of Israel. 15 And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba;

Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. 22 Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Kings 8:4–8 So they brought up the ark of Yahweh and the tent of assembly and all of the holy vessels that were in the tent; the priests and the Levites brought them up. 5 King Solomon and all the assembly of Israel who were assembling with him in the presence of the ark were sacrificing sheep and oxen that could not be counted nor numbered because of abundance. 6 The priests brought the ark of the covenant of Yahweh to its place in the inner sanctuary of the house, to the most holy place, under the wings of the cherubim, 7 for the cherubim were spreading their wings over the place of the ark. The cherubim overshadowed the ark and its poles from above. 8 The poles were long, and the ends of the poles could be seen from the holy place in front of the inner sanctuary, but they could not be seen from the outside, and they are there until this day.

2 Chronicles 24:6 So the king called Jehoiada the chief, and he said to him, “Why have you not required the Levites to bring from Judah and Jerusalem the tax of Moses, the servant of Yahweh, and of the assembly of Israel for the tent of the testimony?”

2 Chronicles 29:3–7 In the first year of his kingship, in the first month, he opened the doors of the house of Yahweh and strengthened them. 4 And he brought in the priests and the Levites, and he gathered them into the eastern square. 5 And he said to them, “Hear me, O Levites! Sanctify yourselves now, and sanctify the house of Yahweh, the God of your ancestors, and bring out the defilement from the sanctuary. 6 For our ancestors acted unfaithfully and did evil in the sight of Yahweh our God, and have forsaken him and turned away their faces from the dwelling place of Yahweh. They have turned their backs on it. 7 They also shut the doors of the portico and extinguished the lamps. And they did not burn incense or offer burnt offerings in the sanctuary to the God of Israel.

John 8:56–58 Abraham your father rejoiced that he would see my day, and he saw it and was glad."

57 So the Jews said to him, "You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?" 58 Jesus said to them, "Truly, truly I say to you, before Abraham was, I am!"

Exodus 3:14 And God said to Moses, "I am that I am." And he said, "So you must say to the Israelites, 'I am sent me to you.' "

Exodus 3:1–3 And Moses was a shepherd with the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian, and he led the flock to the west of the desert, and he came to the mountain of God, to Horeb. 2 And the angel of Yahweh appeared to him in a flame of fire from the midst of a bush, and he looked, and there was the bush burning with fire, but the bush was not being consumed. 3 And Moses said, "Let me turn aside and see this great sight. Why does the bush not burn up?"

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, "Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you."

Genesis 49:10 The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff between his feet,

until Shiloh comes.

And to him shall be the obedience of nations.

Numbers 13:32–33 And they presented the report of the land that they explored to the Israelites, saying, “The land that we went through to explore is a land that eats its inhabitants, and all the people whom we saw in its midst are men of great size. 33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes.”

Numbers 21:31–35 Thus Israel lived in the land of the Amorites. 32 Moses sent to explore Jaazer; they captured its environs and dispossessed the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up by the way of the Bashan, and Og king of the Bashan and all his people went out to meet them for battle at Edrei. 34 And Yahweh said to Moses, “Do not fear him because I will give him and all his people and all his land into your hand. You will do to him just as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who was living in Heshbon.” 35 And so they destroyed him and his sons, and all his people until they had not spared a survivor; and they took possession of his land.

Joshua 11:21–22 At that time Joshua came and exterminated the Anakites from the hill country, from Hebron, Debir, Anab, and from all the hill country of Judah, and from all the hill country of Israel; Joshua utterly destroyed them with their cities. 22 None of the Anakites were left in the land of the Israelites; some remained only in Gaza, Gath, and Ashdod.

Joshua 14:12–15 So now give me this hill country that Yahweh spoke of on that day, for you heard on that day that the Anakites were there, with great and fortified cities. Perhaps Yahweh is with me, and I will drive them out just as Yahweh promised.”

13 And Joshua blessed him and gave Hebron to Caleb son of Jephunneh as an inheritance. 14 Thus Hebron became the inheritance of Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite to this day, because he remained true to Yahweh the God of Israel. 15 And the name of Hebron formerly was Kiriath Arba; Arba was the greatest person among the Anakites. And the land rested from war.

Genesis 3:14 Then Yahweh God said to the serpent, “Because you have done this,

you will be cursed

more than any domesticated animal
and more than any wild animal.
On your belly you shall go

and dust you shall eat

all the days of your life.

Genesis 3:17 And to Adam he said, “Because you listened to the voice of your wife and you ate from the tree from which I forbade you to eat, the ground shall be cursed on your account.

In pain you shall eat from it all the days of your life.

Revelation 12:9 And the great dragon was thrown down, the ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who deceives the whole world. He was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

Luke 10:17–18 And the seventy-two returned with joy, saying, “Lord, even the demons are subject to us in your name!” 18 So he said to them, “I saw Satan falling like lightning from heaven.

Revelation 12:10 And I heard a loud voice in heaven saying, “Now the salvation and the power

and the kingdom of our God

and the authority of his Christ have come,

because the accuser of our brothers has been thrown down, the one who accuses them before our God day and night.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, "Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably." 14 Then Micaiah said, "As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak." 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?" He said to him, "Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king." 16 Then the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?" 17 So he said, "I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, 'There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.' " 18 Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?"

19 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. 20 And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. 21 Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ 22 He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ 23 So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant 3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, 4 and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, 5 then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven. 20 But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

1 Kings 22:13–23 Then the messenger who had gone to summon Micaiah said to him, "Please now, the words of the prophets are unanimously favorable to the king. Please let your words be as one word with them, and speak favorably." 14 Then Micaiah said, "As Yahweh lives, surely only as Yahweh speaks to me, that will I speak." 15 When he came to the king, the king asked him, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-Gilead to the battle, or shall we refrain?" He said to him, "Go up and triumph, and Yahweh will give it into the hand of the king." 16 Then the king said to him, "How many times must I make you swear that you shall not tell me anything but truth in the name of Yahweh?" 17 So he said, "I saw all of Israel scattering to the mountains, like the sheep without a shepherd. Yahweh also said, ‘There are no masters for these, let them return in peace, each to his house.’ ” [18] Then the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, “Did I not say to you that he would not prophesy good concerning me, but disaster?”

[19] And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 17:2–5 If there is found in one of your towns that Yahweh your God is giving to you a man or a woman that does evil in the eyes of Yahweh your God to transgress his covenant [3] and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden, [4] and it is reported to you or you hear about it and you enquire about it thoroughly and, indeed, the trustworthiness of the deed has been established, it has occurred, this detestable thing, in Israel, [5] then you shall bring out that man or that woman who has done this evil thing to your gates; that is, the man or the woman, and you shall stone them with stones to death.

Deuteronomy 29:25 And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Genesis 1:26–27 And God said, “Let us make humankind in our image and according to our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of heaven, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every moving thing that moves upon the earth.” 27 So God created humankind in his image, in the likeness of God he created him, male and female he created them.

Joshua 11:14 And all the spoil and livestock of these cities the Israelites took as booty; they struck the people with the edge of the sword, until they had destroyed them—they left behind no one who breathed.

Deuteronomy 2:10 (The Emim previously lived in it, a people large, numerous, and tall, like the Anakites.

Deuteronomy 2:20 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, Deuteronomy 3:1–3 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei. 2 And Yahweh said to me, ‘You should not fear him, for I have given him and all of his army and his land into your hand. And so you will do to him as you did to Sihon the king of the Amorites, who was reigning in Heshbon.’ 3 And so Yahweh our God also gave Og the king of Bashan, and all of his army into our hand, and we struck him down until not a survivor remained to him.

Deuteronomy 9:2 a great and tall people, the sons of the Anakites, whom you know and of whom you have heard it said, ‘Who could stand before the sons of Anak?’

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. 2 Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. 3 And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” 4 The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the

daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Numbers 13:33 There we saw the Nephilim (the descendants of Anak came from the Nephilim), and we were like grasshoppers in our own sight, and so we were in their eyes."

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, "My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years." [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 3:11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 3:11 (For only Og, king of Bashan, was left from the remnant of the Rephaim. Indeed, his bedstead—it was a bedstead of iron. It is in Rabbah of the Ammonites. Nine cubits is its length, and four cubits is its width according to the cubit of a man.)

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. [2] But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. [3] And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. [4] But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: [5] And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: [6] And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: [7] And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. [8] There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: [9] And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, [10] And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. [11] One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee? And it shall say, No. [12] At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. [13] To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; [30] It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

[31] And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; [32] This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another.

[32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Job 1:6 And it happened one day that the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst.

Job 2:1 And then one day the sons of God came to present themselves before Yahweh, and Satan also came into their midst to present himself before Yahweh.

Psalm 89:6 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Psalm 89:7 For who in the sky is equal to Yahweh?

Who is like Yahweh among the sons of God,

Job 38:7 when the morning stars were singing together and all the sons of God shouted for joy?

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

1 Kings 22:19–23 And he said, “Therefore, hear the word of Yahweh. I saw Yahweh sitting on his throne with all the hosts of heaven standing beside him from his right hand and from his left hand. [20] And Yahweh said, ‘Who will entice Ahab so that he will go up and fall at Ramoth-Gilead?’ Then this one was saying one thing and the other one was saying another. [21] Then a spirit came out and stood before Yahweh and said, ‘I will entice him,’ and Yahweh said to him, ‘How?’ [22] He said, ‘I will go out and I will be a false spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.’ And he said, ‘You shall entice and succeed, go out and do so.’ [23] So then, see that Yahweh has placed a false spirit in the mouth of all of these your prophets, and Yahweh has spoken disaster concerning you.”

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:21–22 You are not able to drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You are not able to share the table of the Lord and the table of demons. [22] Or are we attempting to provoke the Lord to jealousy? We are not stronger than he is, are we?

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Isaiah 14:29 You must not rejoice, all you Philistines, that the rod that struck you is broken, > for a viper will come forth from the root of the snake, and its fruit will be a flying serpent.

Isaiah 11:10 And this shall happen on that day: the nations shall inquire of the root of Jesse, which shall be standing as a signal to the peoples, and his resting place shall be glorious.

Isaiah 11:1 And a shoot will come out from the stump of Jesse, and a branch from its roots will bear fruit.

Hosea 9:16 Ephraim is stricken, their root is dried up,

they shall not bear fruit.

Even if they give birth,

I will kill the cherished offspring of their womb.

Deuteronomy 2:23 And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

Joshua 13:2–3 This is the remaining land: all the regions of the Philistines, and all of the Geshurites, [3] from the Shihor, which is east of Egypt, up to the border of Ekron to the north, which is reckoned as Canaanite; there are five Philistine rulers: the Gazites, Ashdodites, Ashkelonites, Gittites, Ekronites, and the Avvim.

1 Samuel 17:4 Then a champion went out from the camps of the Philistines, whose name was Goliath from Gath. His height was six cubits and a span.

1 Samuel 17:23 While he was speaking to them, the champion, whose name was Goliath the Philistine from Gath, was coming up from the caves of the Philistines. He spoke just as he had previously, and David heard his words.

2 Samuel 21:15–22 There was war again for the Philistines with Israel, and David and his servants with him went down, and they fought the Philistines, and David grew weary. [16] Now Yishbi in Nob, who was among the descendents of Raphah (now the weight of his spearhead was three hundredweight of bronze, and he was newly armed), said that he would kill David. [17] But Abishai the son of Zeruiah helped him, and he attacked the Philistine and killed him. Then the men of David swore to him, saying, “You shall not go out with us any longer to the battle, so that you do not quench the lamp of Israel.”

[18] It happened afterward that there was again battle at Gob with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph who was among the descendants of the Raphah.

[19] There was again a battle with the Philistines at Gob. And Elhanan the son of Jaare-Oregim, the Bethlehemite, killed Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like the beam of a weaver.

[20] Once again there was battle at Gath, and there was a man of great size. The fingers of his hand and the toes of his feet were six and six, twenty-four in number. He was also born to the Raphah. [21] He taunted Israel but Jonathan the son of Shimei, the brother of David, killed him. [22] These four were born for the Raphah in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

1 Chronicles 20:4–8 And after this there arose a war in Gezer with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite struck down Sippai, one of the descendants of the Rephaim. And they were subdued. [5] And again there was war with the Philistines. And Elhanan son of Jair struck down Lahmi, the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. [6] And again there was war in Gath. And there was a very tall man there, and he had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all. He himself was also a descendant of the Rephaim. [7] And he taunted Israel, but Jehonathan son of Shimea, brother of David, struck him down. [8] These were born to the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

Jeremiah 47:4 Because of the day that is coming to destroy all the Philistines, to cut off from Tyre and from Sidon > every survivor who could help, for Yahweh is destroying the Philistines, the remnant of the coastland of Caphtor.

Amos 9:7 "Are you not like the Cushites to me, O people of Israel?" declares Yahweh. "Did I not bring up Israel from the land of Egypt and the Philistines from Caphtor and the Arameans from Kir?

Deuteronomy 2:20–23 (It is also considered the land of Rephaim; Rephaim lived in it previously, and the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, [21] a people great and numerous and as tall as the Anakites; Yahweh destroyed them from before them, and they dispossessed them and settled in place of them, [22] just as he did for the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir, when he destroyed the Horites from before them and dispossessed them, and then they settled in their place up to this day. [23] And also the Avvites, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and the Caphtorim, who came out from Caphtor, destroyed them and then settled in their place.

2 Samuel 21:16 Now Yishbi in Nob, who was among the descendents of Raphah (now the weight of his spearhead was three hundredweight of bronze, and he was newly armed), said that he would kill David.

2 Samuel 21:18 It happened afterward that there was again battle at Gob with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite killed Saph who was among the descendants of the Raphah.

2 Samuel 21:20 Once again there was battle at Gath, and there was a man of great size. The fingers of his hand and the toes of his feet were six and six, twenty-four in number. He was also born to the Raphah.

2 Samuel 21:22 These four were born for the Raphah in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

1 Chronicles 20:4 And after this there arose a war in Gezer with the Philistines. Then Sibbecai the Hushathite struck down Sippai, one of the descendants of the Rephaim. And they were subdued.

1 Chronicles 20:6 And again there was war in Gath. And there was a very tall man there, and he had six fingers on each hand and six toes on each foot, twenty-four in all. He himself was also a descendant of the Rephaim.

1 Chronicles 20:8 These were born to the giants in Gath, and they fell by the hand of David and by the hand of his servants.

Judges 3:3 the five rulers of the Philistines, all the Canaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hivites living on Mount Lebanon, from Mount Baal Hermon up to Lebo-Hamath.

Judges 16:5 And the rulers of the Philistines came up to her and said, “Entice him and find out what makes his strength so great, and how we can overpower him, so that we may bind him up in order to subdue him; each of us will give you eleven hundred pieces of silver.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

Genesis 11:1–9 Now the whole earth had one language and the same words.
2 And as people migrated from the east they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. 3 And they said to each other, “Come, let us make bricks and burn them thoroughly.” And they had brick for stone and they had tar for mortar. 4 And they said, “Come, let us build ourselves a city and a tower whose top reaches to the heavens. And let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

5 Then Yahweh came down to see the city and the tower that humankind was building. 6 And Yahweh said, “Behold, they are one people with one language, and this is only the beginning of what they will do. So now nothing that they intend to do will be impossible for them. 7 Come, let us go down and confuse their language there, so that they will not understand each other’s language.” 8 So Yahweh scattered them from there over the face of the whole earth, and they stopped building the city. 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, for there Yahweh confused the language of the whole earth, and there Yahweh scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his
inheritance.

Genesis 12:1–3 And Yahweh said to Abram, “Go out from your land and from your relatives, and from the house of your father, to the land that I will show you. 2 And I will make you a great nation, and I will bless you, and I will make your name great. And you will be a blessing. 3 And I will bless those who bless you, and those who curse you I will curse. And all families of the earth will be blessed in you.”

Deuteronomy 4:19–20 And do this so that you do not lift your eyes toward heaven and observe the sun and the moon and the stars, all the host of the heaven, and be led astray and bow down to them and serve them, things that Yahweh your God has allotted to all of the peoples under all of the heaven.

[20] But Yahweh has taken you and brought you out from the furnace of iron, from Egypt, to be a people of inheritance to him, as it is this day.

Deuteronomy 17:3 and by going and serving other gods and so he bows down to them and to the sun or to the moon or to any of the host of heaven which I have forbidden,

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ [25] And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

Psalm 82:6 I have said, “You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

Deuteronomy 29:24–26 And all the nations will say, ‘Why has Yahweh done such a thing to this land? What caused the fierceness of this great anger?’ [25] And they will say, ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their ancestors, which he made with them when he brought them out from the land of Egypt. [26] And they went and served other gods and bowed down to them, gods whom they did not know them and he had not allotted to them.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

James 2:19 You believe that God is one; you do well. Even the demons believe, and shudder!

James 1:1–3 James, a slave of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes in the dispersion. Greetings!

2 Consider it all joy, my brothers, whenever you encounter various trials, 3 because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance.

Galatians 3:26–29 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus, 27 for as many of you as were baptized into Christ have put on Christ. 28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male and female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. 29 And if you are Christ's, then you are descendants of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

Psalm 82:6–7 I have said, "You are gods, and sons of the Most High, all of you.

7 However, you will die like men, and you will fall like one of the princes."

2 Esdras 5:1–13 Nevertheless as concerning the tokens, behold, the days shall come, that they which dwell upon earth shall be taken in a great number, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. 2 But iniquity shall be increased above that which now thou seest, or that thou hast heard long ago. 3 And the land, that thou seest now to have root, shalt thou see wasted suddenly. 4 But if the most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see after the third trumpet that the sun shall suddenly shine again in the night, and the moon thrice in the day: 5 And blood shall drop out of wood, and the stone shall give his voice, and the people shall be troubled: 6 And even he shall rule, whom they look not for that dwell upon the earth, and the fowls shall take their flight away together: 7 And the Sodomitish sea shall cast out fish, and make a noise in the night, which many have not known: but they shall all hear the voice thereof. 8 There shall be a confusion also in many places, and the fire shall be oft sent out again, and the wild beasts shall change their places, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters: 9 And salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall destroy one another; then shall wit hide itself, and understanding withdraw itself into his secret chamber, 10 And shall be sought of many, and yet not be found: then shall unrighteousness and incontinency be multiplied upon earth. [11] One land also shall ask another, and say, Is righteousness that maketh a man righteous gone through thee? And it shall say, No. [12] At the same time shall men hope, but nothing obtain: they shall labour, but their ways shall not prosper. [13] To shew thee such tokens I have leave; and if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things.

2 Esdras 12:29–33 And whereas thou sawest two feathers under the wings passing over the head that is on the right side; [30] It signifieth that these are they, whom the Highest hath kept unto their end: this is the small kingdom and full of trouble, as thou sawest.

[31] And the lion, whom thou sawest rising up out of the wood, and roaring, and speaking to the eagle, and rebuking her for her unrighteousness with all the words which thou hast heard; [32] This is the anointed, which the Highest hath kept for them and for their wickedness unto the end: he shall reprove them, and shall upbraid them with their cruelty. [33] For he shall set them before him alive in judgment, and shall rebuke them, and correct them.

2 Esdras 13:25–38 This is the meaning of the vision: Whereas thou sawest a man coming up from the midst of the sea: [26] The same is he whom God the Highest hath kept a great season, which by his own self shall deliver his creature: and he shall order them that are left behind. [27] And whereas thou sawest, that out of his mouth there came as a blast of wind, and fire, and storm; [28] And that he held neither sword, nor any instrument of war, but that the rushing in of him destroyed the whole multitude that came to subdue him; this is the interpretation: [29] Behold, the days come, when the most High will begin to deliver them that are upon the earth. [30] And he shall come to the astonishment of them that dwell on the earth. [31] And one shall undertake to fight against another, one city against another, one place against another, one people against another, and one realm against another. [32] And the time shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I shewed thee before, and then shall my Son be declared, whom thou sawest as a man ascending. [33] And when all the people hear his voice, every man shall in their own land leave the battle they have one against another. [34] And an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as thou sawest them, willing to come, and to overcome him by fighting. [35] But he shall stand upon the top of the mount Sion. [36] And Sion shall come, and shall be shewed to all men, being prepared and builded, like as thou sawest the hill graven without hands. [37] And this my Son shall rebuke the wicked inventions of those nations, which for their wicked life are fallen into the tempest; [38] And shall lay before them their evil thoughts, and the torments wherewith they shall begin to be tormented, which are like unto a flame: and he shall destroy them without labour by the law which is like unto fire.

Deuteronomy 3:1 “Then we turned, and we went up the road to Bashan, and Og the king of Bashan came out to meet us, he and all of his army for the battle at Edrei.

Deuteronomy 3:13 And the remainder of Gilead and all of Bashan, the kingdom of Og, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasseh, the whole region of Argo. All of that area of Bashan was called the land of the Rephaim.

Deuteronomy 4:47 And so they took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two kings of the Amorites who were beyond the Jordan, eastward,

Ezekiel 38:2 “Son of man, set your face toward Gog of the land of Magog, the head leader of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy against him.

Amos 7:1 This is what my Lord Yahweh showed me, and look, he is going to form locusts at the beginning of the sprouting of the second crop, and look, after the mowings of the king.

2 Peter 2:4 For if God did not spare the angels who sinned, but held them captive in Tartarus with chains of darkness and handed them over to be kept for judgment,

Jude 6 And the angels who did not keep to their own domain but deserted their proper dwelling place, he has kept in eternal bonds under deep gloom for the judgment of the great day,

2 Thessalonians 2:8 and then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will slay with the breath of his mouth, and wipe out by the appearance of his coming,

Genesis 6:1–4 And it happened that, when humankind began to multiply on the face of the ground, daughters were born to them. [2] Then the sons of God saw the daughters of humankind, that they were beautiful. And they took for themselves wives from all that they chose. [3] And Yahweh said, “My Spirit shall not abide with humankind forever in that he is also flesh. And his days shall be one hundred and twenty years.” [4] The Nephilim were upon the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God went into the daughters of humankind, and they bore children to them. These were the mighty warriors that were from ancient times, men of renown.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

> [9] For Yahweh’s portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Exodus 15:11 Who is like you among the gods, Yahweh?

> Who is like you—glorious in holiness, awesome in praiseworthy actions, doing wonders?

Psalm 82:1b God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 81:1b A psalm of Asaph.

> [1] God stands in the divine assembly; he administers judgment in the midst of the gods.

Psalm 95:3–4 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods, [4] in whose hand are the unexplored places of the earth, and the heights of the mountains are his,

Psalm 94:3–4 For Yahweh is the great God, and the great king over all gods, [4] in whose hand are the unexplored places of the earth, and the heights of the mountains are his,

Psalm 97:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.

You are highly exalted above all gods.

Psalm 96:9 For you, O Yahweh, are most high over all the earth.

You are highly exalted above all gods.

Psalm 29:1 Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Psalm 28:1 A psalm of David.

[1] Ascribe to Yahweh, O sons of God, ascribe to Yahweh glory and strength.

Deuteronomy 32:43 Call for songs of joy, O nations, concerning his people, for the blood of his servants he will avenge, and he will take reprisals against his foes, and he will make atonement for his land, his people."

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

[9] For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:17 They sacrificed to the demons, not God, to gods whom they had not known, new gods who came from recent times; their ancestors had not known them.

1 Corinthians 10:20 No, but that the things which they sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God, and I do not want you to become

sharers with demons.

Deuteronomy 32:8–9 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

9 For Yahweh's portion was his people, Jacob the share of his inheritance.

Deuteronomy 32:8 When the Most High apportioned the nations, at his dividing up of the sons of humankind, he fixed the boundaries of the peoples, according to the number of the children of Israel.

